Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when the Audit Commission's concerns about district health authorities having the resources to meet their own unique mental health needs are going to be met; [19046]

(2) how she will apportion funds for the health and social care of the mentally ill, as recommended by the Audit Commission. [19049]

Mr. Bowis: The national weighted capitation formula used to allocate hospital and community health service funds to regional health authorities has recently been revised and modified to include a separate index of factors which affect the need for psychiatric services.

The greater part of funding for personal social services is allocated to local authorities on the basis of standard spending assessments which indicate the Government's view of the need for particular services in individual local authorities, which then decide how to spend these resources in the light of their individual assessments of local needs and priorities.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of steps taken in reducing the socio-economic problems for those who are mentally ill in Wales; and what plans she has to implement this policy in England. [19045]

Mr. Bowis: The policy for both England and Wales is to provide a range of care appropriate to the needs of the individual. Our guidance for England is set out in the "Mental Illness Key Area Handbook", copies of which are available in the Library.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for those people suffering from less severe forms of mental illness receiving help in a primary care setting. [19047]

Mr. Bowis: In many cases, such illnesses can be dealt with in a primary care setting by a suitably qualified member of the team. We have initiated a programme of action to improve the understanding of mental health issues among primary care staff.

Mentally Disordered Offenders

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what decisions have been made between herself and the Home Secretary to fund the care of mentally disordered offenders. [19050]

Mr. Bowis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department work closely together in developing services for mentally disordered offenders. Funding is determined through the annual public expenditure survey process.

Housing and Mental Illness

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the desirability of providing affordable housing for the mentally ill; and what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for the Environment on the subject. [19051]

Mr. Bowis: The provision of suitable housing plays an important role in providing care for mentally ill people. Housing for those requiring community care is the responsibility of local statutory agencies, which should work closely together to meet local needs.

To help develop effective inter-agency working, the Department of Health, in partnership with the Department of the Environment, will host four regional seminars in June to consider housing for groups with special needs. The seminars will have mental illness as a linking theme. Ministers from both Departments met in December 1994 to discuss a range of housing and community care issues and will attend the seminars.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the world campaigns against TB and on the United Kingdom contributions. [19120]

Mr. Sackville: The Overseas Development Agency has identified the control of communicable diseases, and particularly mentioned tuberculosis, as one of its priority themes for health and population assistance. During 1994 and 1995, the United Kingdom contributed £625,000 to the World Health Organisation tuberculosis programme and almost £2,500,000 has been paid in grants for tuberculosis-related activities. This includes £175,000 channelled through British non-governmental organisations.

NHS Prescriptions

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each of the last five years received help with NHS prescriptions under the low income scheme. [19396]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available. Information on free prescriptions is collected for the numbers of prescribed items dispensed, rather than for the numbers of people to whom the prescriptions are dispensed.

NHS Sight Tests

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the population was eligible for free NHS eye examinations in each of the last 10 available years. [19002]

Mr. Malone: Before April 1989, everybody was eligible. Since that time, when universal eligibility was removed, about 40 per cent. of the population have been eligible.

Since 1 April 1989, the groups entitled to a national health service sight test have been:

- children under 16
- students under 19 in full-time education
- people on income support or family credit and their partners
- holders of exemption certificate AG2
- the registered blind or partially sighted
- those who need certain complex lenses
- diagnosed diabetics and glaucoma sufferers
- close relatives aged 40 or over of diagnosed glaucoma sufferers

Since 1 April 1995, people receiving disability working allowance are also eligible to receive free NHS sight tests.

Pharmaceutical Industry

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 4 April, Official Report, column 1039, about the pharmaceutical industry, when she expects the report on the contribution of the pharmaceutical industry to the United Kingdom economy will be (a) completed by the Office of Health Economics and (b) submitted to her Department; and what proportion of the cost of this study is being contributed by (i) the United Kingdom pharmaceutical industry and (ii) her Department. [19401]

Mr. Malone: The paper has been prepared by the Office of Health Economics in consultation with Government economists, and was discussed by the pharmaceutical industry strategy working group, which includes senior Government officials. The Office of Health Economics will meet all costs, and hope to publish the paper in May.

Peto Institute

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how the current funding for the British Peto institute was calculated; [19516]

(3) what assessments she has made of the work of the British Peto institute; [19517]

(4) how much public funding in the current financial year has been provided to the Peto institute in the west midlands; and if the outreach services provided by the Peto institute in Britain is recognised in its funding. [19515]

Mr. Bowis: The Department of Health does not currently provide funding to the Foundation for Conductive Education in Birmingham, although funding has been provided in the past. It is open to the foundation to apply for funding under the Department's section 64 scheme, but no application has been received.

It is also open to the foundation to seek funding from health authorities, local authorities and other public bodies for services provided. The Department for Education funded an assessment of the Foundation's work with children by the University of Birmingham, which was published in 1993.

In September last year, I visited the Peto institute in Budapest to see for myself the work being undertaken. I was also able to discuss this with the Hungarian Minister of Health.

Psychiatric Disorders

Mr. Grocott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, if she will list the numbers and proportion of people broken down into age bands admitted to NHS hospitals by psychiatric disorders in each year since 1970 until the most recent date available on a consistent basis. [19519]

Mr. Bowis: Information on admissions to national health service hospitals by age group and age-specific rates per 100,000 home population for mental illness in each year since 1970 will be placed in the Library.

Infertility Treatment

Mr. Couchman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what advice West Kent health authority has sought from her Department in respect of the most efficacious provision of infertility diagnosis and treatment; [19531]

(2) what contacts her Department has had with West Kent health authority in respect of infertility treatment and investigation in the United Kingdom. [19530]

Mr. Sackville: The provision of infertility diagnosis and treatment locally is a matter for West Kent health authority. Guidance on infertility services has been provided by the Department of Health. As far as we are aware West Kent health authority has not sought any additional advice from the Department.

Mr. Couchman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the efficacy of one infertility treatment against another; [19533]

(2) what recent assessment her Department has made of the efficacy of provision of infertility treatments and investigation in the United Kingdom. [19532]

Mr. Sackville: Advice on the effectiveness of infertility treatments in England is available to health authorities and clinicians in two publications drawn to the attention of the national health service in 1992:

(a) The effective health care bulletin, "Management of Subfertility", published for the NHS Management Executive by a consortium of Leeds and York Universities and the Research Unit of the Royal College of Physicians.

(b) The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists publication "Infertility—Guidelines for Practice".

Copies of these documents are available in the Library.

Information relating to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland is a matter for my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Wales and for Scotland and for my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which bodies funded by her Department have undertaken studies into the effectiveness of infertility treatment; and on what dates the studies were undertaken. [19480]

Mr. Sackville: The effective health care bulletin "The Management of Subfertility" contains a comprehensive list of references to published research papers, including those concerning the effectiveness of various infertility treatments. The bulletin was published for the national health service executive by a consortium of York and Leeds universities and the research unit of the Royal College of Physicians and was made available to health authorities and clinicians in 1992.

Mr. Etherington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what advice Sunderland health authority has sought from her Department in respect of the most efficacious provision of infertility treatment and diagnosis in the last five years; [19479]

(2) what contacts her Department has had with Sunderland health authority in respect of infertility treatment and investigation in the United Kingdom in the last five years. [19478]

Mr. Sackville: The provision of infertility diagnosis and treatment locally is a matter for Sunderland district health authority. Guidance on infertility services has been provided by the Department of Health. As far as we are aware, the health authority has not sought additional advice from the Department.

Maudsley Hospital

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement concerning the future of the centre for epilepsy at Maudsley hospital. [19473]

Mr. Bowis: I was pleased to participate in the launch of the centre for epilepsy in July last year. The centre is established at the Maudsley hospital where it is expected to remain for the foreseeable future.

Departmental Staff

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list for each agency and the central Department for which she is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19684]

Mr. Sackville: The total hours of overtime worked and the total amount paid in overtime in each of the last three years for the Department of Health, excluding its agencies, is shown in the table. Figures for the number of hours worked in 1992–93 are not available.

| | Overtime hours worked | Overtime cost of hours worked (£) |
| 1992–93 | — | 1,372,671 |
| 1993–94 | 80,764 | 1,034,738 |
| 1994–95 | 68,939 | 795,737 |

The total days lost through sickness were:
1992: 38,938
1993: 50,382

The figures for 1994 are not yet available. the sickness absence data are not analysed by cost.

Asthma

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the total expenditure on general practitioner prescribed anti-asthma medication and preparations, per family health service authority, for the last year for which figures are available; [19430]

(2) what was the total number of prescriptions for the treatment of asthma, per family health service authority, for the last year for which figures are available; [19509]

(3) what was the total expenditure on general practitioner prescribed anti-asthma medication and preparations, per drug prescribed, for the last year for which figures are available. [19472]

Mr. Malone: The information will be placed in the Library.

Acute Breathing Difficulties

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the total number of patients receiving hospital treatment for acute breathing difficulties per region, for each month from September 1994 until the last month for which figures are available. [19471]

Mr. Sackville: Acute breathing difficulties occur as a symptom of a wide range of medical conditions. Central returns do not include numbers of hospital admissions classified by symptom. Information on hospital admissions for asthma for the 1994–95 financial year is not yet available.

Dental Services

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the bleaching of teeth using peroxide-based agents by dental practitioners. [19475]

Mr. Malone: Many products used by dentists will, given their nature, be subject to specific consumer safety requirements designed to ensure that products on the market are safe and are accompanied by adequate information. Medicinal products, cosmetic products and medical devices are all—subject to certain transitional arrangements in the case of medical devices—covered by such legislation. Within this legal framework, dentists use their clinical judgment in determining appropriate treatment for their patients.

Hospital Services

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will quantify the substantial revenue savings which she expects to be released from bringing hospital services together following her announcement of 4 April. [19704]

Mr. Malone: The revenue savings expected to be released are currently estimated at around £75 million per year.

Occupational Health

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the occupational health guidelines covering NHS trusts; and if she will make a statement. [19474]

Mr. Sackville: I refer the hon. and learned Member to the reply I gave him on 5 April, columns 1217–18.

Ambulances

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice is given to ambulance authorities and trusts on buying British ambulances. [19527]

Mr. Sackville: Specification and selection of ambulances is a matter for each individual trust, but it is the supplier's responsibility to ensure the specification requirements are fully met, or to indicate where they are not.

Primary Care

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the pressure on acute services in the demand for more resources resulting from the increased investments in primary care in London. [19702]

Mr. Malone: It is for local health commissions to manage the implementation of change within the available resources; assessing future service requirements and the balance between hospital, primary care and community care in their area. Changes to acute services will be paced over a number of years to ensure continuity of provision as alternative services are built up.

Residential Care

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is her policy on the sale of homes of patients who have been taken into residential care to defray costs incurred; what consideration is given to carers who were long-term residents in such houses; and what assistance is given to carers who find themselves with no alternative accommodation or funds. [19525]

Mr. Bowis: In the assessment of charges for residential accommodation, local authorities do not have powers to force the sale of property without first seeking a court order. Under the local authority charging regulations, local authorities are required to ignore the value of property if the resident's spouse or a relative who is over 60 or under 16 or ill still lives there. They also have discretion to ignore the value in other circumstances, for example where a long-term carer or elderly companion still occupies the property. This discretion has been highlighted in guidance issued by both the Department of Health and the Scottish Office.

Mixed Sex Wards

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of hospital wards are of mixed sex; and if she will make a statement. [17983]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available.

NHS and the public

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to publish the information collected from the chairman of health authorities as a result of the letter sent to them and published in her Department's press release of 21 January 1994 entitled, "Is the NHS listening to the public?—Mawhinney asks health authorities for answers"; and if she will make a statement. [18932]

Mr. Malone: My right hon. Friend the then Minister for Health announced the results of his letter of 12 January 1994 to chairmen of district health authorities at a national conference for national health staff on 13 April 1994. Copies of the Minister's speech and a good practice booklet, "Involving Local People", which drew on survey findings, were issued to all district health authorities, family health services authorities, NHS trusts and community health councils on 13 May 1994. Copies of both documents are available in the Library.

Community Care Social Services

Mr. Barry Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS beds are being blocked by the Isle of Wight community care social services decisions for a period in excess of five days. [18805]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally. My hon. Friend may wish to contact the chairman of the Isle of Wight health authority for details.

Hospital Developments (Tenders)

Ms Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria have been issued to hospital trusts regarding the assessment of bids from groups of companies for development of new hospitals through the private finance initiative. [19694]

Mr. Sackville: There is general guidance on the appraisal of proposals and assessment of tenders for hospital developments in the national health service executive's capital investment manual and in the NHS estates guidance CONCODE. The specific criteria used for individual schemes are decided locally. Copies of these documents are available in the Library.

St. Bartholomew's and Guy's Hospitals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the service to patients provided at present by (a) St. Bartholomew's hospital and (b) Guy's hospital. [19711]

Mr. Malone: St. Bartholomew's hospital provides in-patient, out-patient and day-case services in the following specialities:

Over time, the main site for acute specialist services will be at St. Thomas' hospital with Guy's developing as a local hospital and academic centre.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many beds, on average, there are at Guy's hospital; and what information she has on the likely number of in-patients beds remaining at Guy's hospital after the changes announced on 4 April. [19708]

Mr. Malone: There are currently 702 beds in use at Guy's hospital. By 1998–99, after the changes announced on 4 April, there will be 112 in-patient beds on the Guy's site dedicated to planned surgery for patients. As proposed in the recent public consultation exercise, changes at Guy's will take place over a period of time.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of whether the St. Bartholomew's hospital site is able to house a private hospital. [19709]

Mr. Malone: A project team, led by Sir Ronald Grierson, has been set up to look at options for the future use of the St. Bartholomew's site. The Royal Hospitals trust has also been in discussion with the city initiative on possible uses of the site for health-related services.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for the future of the St. Bartholomew's site once NHS services have terminated there. [19707]

Mr. Malone: A project team has been set up to look at practical options for the future use of the St. Bartholomew's site. This will be chaired by Sir Ronald Grierson and will include a number of distinguished academics and clinicians.

London Chest Hospital

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the service provided by the London Chest hospital. [18719]

Mr. Malone: The London Chest hospital provides cardio thoracic surgical and medical services, primarily for the residents of North Thames regional health authority. Services will transfer over time to the Royal London hospital site at Whitechapel.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she has given to the Royal London Hospital trust in relation to the closure of cardiothoracic services at St. Bartholomew's and the London Chest hospital prior to the development of the new unit on the Royal London hospital site. [19705]

Mr. Malone: The relocation of cardiothoracic services from St. Bartholomew's and the London Chest hospitals forms part of the Royal Hospitals trust's proposals to concentrate acute services on a single site at Whitechapel. The trust is required to meet all patients charter standards and make full and adequate provision for all its services which may need to be relocated, either permanently or temporarily, whilst building work is undertaken.

No services will transfer or close until adequate alternative facilities are in place.

London Hospitals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her answer of 4 April, Official Report, columns 1043-45, relating to changes to London hospitals, when she received the final documents from the four comprehensive consultation exercises carried out by the district health authorities. [19723]

Mr. Malone: The conclusions of the consideration by South Thames regional health authority were received on 16 March 1995 and the conclusions of the consideration by North Thames regional health authority were received on 23 March 1995.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what weight was put on the opinion of local people in making the decision about changes to London hospitals. [19717]

Mr. Malone: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State took full account of all comments made during the consultation processes in reaching her decision.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which London hospitals closed in the last five years; and which are due to close in the next 10 years. [18716]

Mr. Malone: The Department does not routinely collect information on hospital closures or proposals for closure. Information has been held centrally, since 1992, on cases where proposals to change the use of health service facilities are referred to Ministers for decision following objections from a community health council. A list of such closures and changes of use for the period January 1992 to March 1995 will be placed in the Library.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates she has made of the changes to the London hospitals being a consequence of the internal market. [19710]

Mr. Malone: The changes being made to health services in London address many of the issues identified in the Tomlinson report on London's health services, medical education and research, and take forward the Government's strategy set out in "Making London Better". They are intended to improve health care in London by concentrating specialist services in fewer, better, centres of excellence, providing modern acute hospitals closer to major centres of population and releasing resources for investment in primary and community health services, while preserving and enhancing London's reputation for treatment, teaching and research.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will break down by hospital the £400 million capital investment announced for London hospitals; and from which budget it will come. [19713]

Mr. Malone: Latest estimates of planned gross capital investment are as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| Royal Hospitals NHS Trust | 239 |
| Guy's/St. Thomas' NHS Trust | 90 |
| Greenwich Healthcare NHS Trust | 35 |
| Wellhouse NHS Trust | 68 |
| Total | 432 |

These estimates may be subject to revision as more detailed plans are prepared. Exchequer capital funding for "Making London Better" projects is available from the national health service capital allocation. Funding arrangements for individual projects, including the exploration of private finance, will be considered as part of detailed implementation of proposals.

Primary Care, London

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the recommendations of the Acheson report into primary care services in London in the early 1980s which were not carried out. [18721]

Mr. Malone: The individual recommendations of the Acheson report are no longer relevant as the 1990 general practitioner contract and the national health service reforms have changed the framework within which primary care services are provided. However, these changes did take full account of the Acheson report, and the further development of services in the London initiative zone following the Tomlinson report have continued the improvement of primary care services in London.

Brook and Edgware Hospitals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the service to patients provided by (a) the Brook hospital and (b) Edgware hospital. [19712]

Mr. Malone: The Brook hospital currently provides:

General Medicine
Cardiac
General Surgery
Neurosciences
Geriatric Medicine
Minor injuries unit

Out-patient services supported by on site diagnostic, X-ray, pathology, nuclear medicine, occupational therapy and physiotherapy services.

Services provided at the Brook hospital will transfer to the new hospital at Greenwich, the Queen Elizabeth Military hospital, with tertiary cardiac and neurosciences services transferring to the Guy's and St. Thomas' trust and King's Healthcare trust.

Edgware Hospital currently provides the following services:

General Surgery
ENT
Plastic Surgery
General Medicine
Haematology
Neurology
Obstetrics
Urology
Ophthalmology
Thoracic Surgery
Dermatology
Geriatric Medicine
Clinical Oncology
Gynaecology
Orthopaedics
Oral Surgery
Accident and Emergency
Rheumatology
Anaesthetics
Paediatrics

Main acute services will be relocated to Barnet General hospital and Northwick Park hospital.

Services currently provided at the Brook and Edgware hospitals will not transfer or close until adequate alternative facilities are in place.

London Hospitals (Research)

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was each London hospital's research rating in each of the last five years. [18720]

Mr. Malone: The research of London hospitals is not subject to an annual rating review. The last review which concerned the R and D of any of the London hospitals was the special health authorities research review. The review report was published in July 1993 and a copy is in the Library. The UK higher education funding councils undertake reviews of higher education institutions, including medical schools in the University of London, every four years. Research ratings are used to determine the allocation of research grants. The next research assessment exercise is to be held in 1996.

London Ambulance Service

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria she will use for deciding whether or not the London Ambulance Service is fully equipped to provide an improved service for Londoners in relation to the announcement on 4 April on changes to health services in London. [18718]

Mr. Sackville: The London Ambulance Service has recently achieved better response times and considerable improvements have been made to its vehicle fleet and equipment, including 180 new emergency ambulances. The need for further developments and improvements to accommodate the decisions made on changes to London's health services have been identified, and changes planned to ensure a satisfactory standard of service to patients.

Royal London Hospitals Trust

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the cost of concentrating acute and specialist services over time at the Royal London hospital in capital terms; and what is the expected revenue saving from this capital investment. [19714]

Mr. Malone: The estimated net cost of rationalising the services of the Royal London Hospitals national health service trust at the Royal London hospital is £173 million, once land sales are taken into account; £35 million of this cost is backlog maintenance. In addition, the completed development is expected to produce NHS revenue savings of £30 million per annum.

Deprivation Scores

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the average deprivation score for the areas of each hospital listed as due to change in London in the announcement of 4 April. [18715]

Mr. Malone: The following figures for the relevant district health authorities are calculated using the same method as the Department of the Environment's ward index of local conditions.

A positive score shows relatively high levels of deprivation, while a negative score shows relatively low levels.

| District Health Authority (DHA) | DOE index |
|---|---|
| Barnet | –2.065 |
| Brent and Harrow | 13.530 |
| East London and the City | 28.203 |
| Bexley and Greenwich | 13.289 |
| South East London | 27.250 |

Correspondence

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the correspondence she has received on her changes to London's hospitals' services was in favour of them. [18722]

Mr. Malone: Figures are not available.

Nursing Numbers

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses were employed by the NHS and how many employed by the private sector in each of the last four years (a) in total, (b) by region and (c) by district health authority. [13371]

Mr. Sackville [holding answer 16 March 1995]: Available information on whole-time equivalent numbers of nursing and midwifery staff in the national health service is shown in the attached table. The table includes nursing and midwifery staff directly employed by the NHS in hospital and community health services, those working in the general medical services who are employed by general practitioners, and England totals for numbers of Project 2000 students.

Students undertaking traditional forms of training are included in the hospital and community health service figures shown.

Numbers of nursing and midwifery staff by district health authorities can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The publication "Private hospitals, homes and clinics registered under Section 23 of the Registered Homes Act 1984" contains whole-time equivalent numbers of staff in post for non-NHS establishments in England, by region and by district health authority. The latest data available relate to 1993-94, and copies of this year and the preceding three years are available in the Library.

NHS Staff Suicides

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the number of suicides by (a) female NHS staff and (b) male NHS staff, in each professional group, in each year since 1990. [17708]

Mr. Bowis [holding answer 5 April 1995]: Information is not available in the form requested.

DEFENCE

Estimates

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he intends to publish the 1995 "Statement on the Defence Estimates". [18907]

Mr. Soames: On current plans, the "Statement on the Defence Estimates" 1995 should be published on Wednesday 3 May. This would be followed by a press briefing and publication of a press notice. Copies will also be placed in the Library of the House.

Land Sales

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 8 March, Official Report, column 257, if he will list the capital receipts for each of the last 10 years from the sale of land by his Department. [18906]

Mr. Soames: Capital receipts generated by the sale of my Department's land over the last ten financial years are as follows:

1985–86: £60.2 million
1986–87: £75.6 million
1987–88: £77.8 million
1988–89: £149.6 million
1989–90: £74 million
1990–91: £81.6 million
1991–92: 102.2 million
1992–93: £68 million
1993–94: £70.7 million

Final figures for 1994–95 are not yet available, but receipts are expected to be in the region of £65 million.

Redundant Military Sites

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's involvement in environmental clean-up operations; how many operations are currently under way; and how much money is spent each year on such operations. [18846]

Mr. Freeman: Decontamination of MOD land is undertaken where there is a significant risk to health and safety or the environment, or where land is being sold. In the latter case, my right hon. Friend the then Minister of State for the Armed Forces set out the position in answer to a question from the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 15 July 1994, Official Report, column 818. Information on the total number of remediation/decontamination programmes currently under way at individual MOD sites and their associated costs is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. Details of sites in disposal with identified contamination problems are contained in the House of Commons Defence Committee's report on the defence estate, Vol. II, page 72, published on 15 December 1994.

Green Policy

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's policy concerning environmental matters; if he will specify what actions his Department are pursuing to safeguard the environment; how much money his Department spent in each of the last 10 years on environmental protection and maintenance; and if he will make a statement. [18844]

Mr. Freeman: My Department's policy is to comply with the letter and spirit of UK environmental legislation and international conventions to which the UK is a signatory, and Crown or defence immunities are invoked only where necessary for national security. I set out current environmental action in my answer to the hon. Member for Lewisham, Deptford (Ms Ruddock), Official Report, column 1152, on 5 April 1995.

Environmental protection measures are an integral part of many defence activities. As a consequence, the discrete costs involved cannot be separately identified. Details of my Department's policy and activities on environmental matters are readily available in the "Statement on Defence Estimates".

Climatic Change Data

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department's policy to use RN submarines to collect climatic change data from beneath the Arctic ice cap costs each year. [18845]

Mr. Soames: The Ministry of Defence does not specifically fund the collection of climatic change data by Royal Navy submarines. As part of my Department's commitment to the environment, however, data obtained from Royal Navy submarine deployments to the Arctic have been made available to the Scott Polar Research Institute.

Sport

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what priority is given to sport in the armed forces; and what resources are committed to its promotion. [17558]

Mr. Soames: All three services strongly encourage their personnel to participate in sport; it is widely recognised that sport encourages physical fitness and contributes to military effectiveness by developing personal qualities such as courage, resilience, stamina, co-ordination, and team spirit. Sport is also enjoyable and it therefore makes a significant contribution to morale and esprit de corps, and is an important retention and recruitment factor.

Resources for sport within the armed forces derive from various sources, including both public and non-public funding, and assistance from some of the major sporting associations; it is not, therefore, possible to quantify the resources, in terms of funding or manpower, devoted to the promotion of sport within the service environment.

Adventure Training

Mr. Viggers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what priority is given to adventure training in the armed forces; and what resources are committed to its promotion. [17559]

Mr. Soames: The armed forces have long recognised the great value of adventurous training as a medium for developing qualities such as fitness, self reliance, initiative and endurance. All the services are committed to adventurous training as an integral part of personal and unit training. This was recognised by the House of Commons Defence Committee report in October last year on military training, ninth report.

Full details of the resources committed to adventurous training, much of which is conducted at unit level, could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, as quoted in the HCDC report cited £9.5 million was spent on operating costs for adventurous training centres in the financial year 1993-94, the last period for which this information is available, with 375 staff being employed on adventurous training at these centres.

Ships

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the estimated present value of HMS Kent, HMS Jupiter and HMS Hermione; and what amounts have been spent on (a) maintenance and (b) refits of each ship in the last 10 years. [18849]

Mr. Soames: While my Department is attempting to sell these vessels any estimate of their value remains commercially confidential. Approximate known costs of major maintenance and refits carried out over the last 10 years are set out. Details of routine and operational maintenance and the costs of refit and maintenance work carried out before the royal dockyards passed into commercial management in April 1987 are no longer available.

| Vessel | Major maintenance | Refits |
|---|---|---|
| HMS Kent | £240,000 | None in the period |
| HMS Jupiter | £13,000,000 | £8,000,000 |
| HMS Hermione | [1]£4,000,000 | £8,000,000 |

Note:
[1] Excludes cost of a maintenance period undertaken in 1985 which is not available.

Public Interest Immunity Certificates

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many public interest immunity certificates were signed by himself or Ministers in his Department between April 1992 and July 1994; and if he will state for each certificate the date it was signed and the Minister responsible. [19225]

Mr. Freeman: I have nothing to add to the answer given to the hon. Member for Oldham, West (Mr. Meacher) on 10 March 1994, Official Report, column 399, for the period April 1992 to July 1994.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19375]

Mr. Freeman: The MOD is not a regulator of business and did not repeal or introduce any rules or regulations with a significant impact on business in the first three months of 1995.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19343]

Mr. Freeman: The permanent secretary has personal responsibility for overseeing the preparation of compliance cost assessments. Officials are required to follow the Department of Trade and Industry's advice contained in its booklet "Checking the Cost to Business A Guide to Compliance Cost Assessment" published in 1992. On 30 March 1995, the MOD published draft proposals for new reserve forces legislation. The document explained the need for a compliance cost assessment, described the costs that will need to be estimated and invited employers willing to help with this work to come forward. No completed CCAs were issued by MOD in the first three months of 1995.

Gifts

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 3 April, Official Report, column 970, on how many occasions since 1979 any Minister or relative of a Minister has accepted any financial gift, payment or commission associated with proposed or completed sales of arms to overseas Governments. [19476]

Mr. Freeman: I am not aware of any such financial gift, payment or commission contrary to the procedures set down for Ministers and their families.

Western European Armaments Group

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what effect membership of the Western European Armaments Group will have on the costs of European procurement collaborations. [17541]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 3 April 1995]: The title of the Western European Armaments Group was adopted following the transfer of the functions of the former Independent European Programme Group to the WEU in December 1992. The group is the main forum for European co-operation in research, development and production of defence equipment and the United Kingdom has been a member since its establishment in 1976. The United Kingdom shares with other European nations constraints on our defence budget. We must constantly seek value for money in all aspects of our work and, in the area of equipment procurement, we have recognised for many years that co-operation with our European neighbours can be a most effective method by which we can achieve this aim.

HEALTH

Residential Care

Mr. Foulkes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what is the total income to each local authority in England and Wales and in total from placements of old people in (a) registered and (b) unregistered independent residential care and nursing homes inside and outside the local authority area and from placements in local authority homes for older people; and if she will break this down by income from (i) government grants (1) inside aggregate external finance and (2) outside AEF, (ii) sales, (iii) fees and charges, (iv) other income and (v) joint arrangements; [18925]

(2) what is the total expenditure by each local authority in England and Wales on placements of older people in (a) registered and (b) unregistered independent residential care and nursing homes inside and outside the local authority; if she will break this down into expenditure on (i) employees (ii) running expenses and (iii) joint arrangements; and if she will provide similar information on expenditure by local authorities on local authority homes for older people. [18921]

Mr. Bowis: Information for England in 1992–93, the latest year for which complete information is available, will be placed in the Library. Information for Wales is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales.

Drug Users

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to introduce photo-identity passes for registered drug users to ensure that they cannot attend more than one drug-prescribing centre to obtain drug supplies; if she will consider introducing legislation so that all registered drugs users are required to register exclusively with the health authority in whose area they reside and that this health authority maintain a photo-identity record of the registered user; if she will consider supplementing this legislation with a requirement that anyone seeking to register as a drug user must do so through his or her local health authority and must specify a single prescribing centre to attend; if she will legislate to ensure that anyone seeking to register as a drug user must be referred back to his or her local health authority; if she will ensure that cross-referencing within and between health authorities is encouraged and funded; and if she will make a statement. [19009]

Mr. Bowis: I have no such plans at present.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the private prescription of Temazepam and other drugs is controlled and regulated; what record is kept by (a) doctors and (b) pharmacists of private prescriptions; what plans she has to tighten up the private prescription of Temazepam; and if she will make a statement. [19011]

Mr. Bowis: Temazepam is a prescription-only medicine under the Medicines Act 1968 and is also controlled under schedule 4 to the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985.

When prescribing in a private capacity, general practitioners operate outside the general medical service regulations. It is good professional practice to keep accurate medical records. The General Medical Council has regarded as serious professional misconduct the prescription or supply of drugs of dependence otherwise than in the course of bona fide treatment.

When a private prescription is dispensed by a pharmacist an entry must be made in the prescription-only register on the date of dispensing or, if that is not reasonably practicable, on the following day. The register must be preserved for two years after the date of the last entry, and the prescription must be retained for two years from the date on which the prescription-only medicine was supplied, or for a repeat prescription two years from the date on which the prescription was dispensed for the last time.

The Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985 require that the dispensing pharmacist should retain private prescriptions for controlled drugs for two years from the date of dispensing. They also require that private prescriptions should be produced for inspection on request by the Home Office drugs inspectorate or by other persons authorised to demand this information.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to ban Temazepam in its jelly formulation; and if she will make a statement. [19023]

Mr. Bowis: The abuse of Temazepam capsules by drug misusers is of particular concern and we are keeping the position under review.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines she has issued to health authorities on the prescription of Temazepam; what is the latest date that she issued these guidelines; what guidelines she plans to issue; and if she will make a statement. [19012]

Mr. Bowis: Information about the effects of Temazepam on patients is given in the British National Formulary, which is issued by the Department to all general practitioners free of charge.

In 1993, the Department asked family health services authorities to work with local general practitioners to agree local targets on the reduction of all benzodiazepine prescribing.

In March 1994, the Department distributed copies of the Mental Health Foundation's booklet "Guidelines for the Prevention and Treatment of Benzodiazepine Dependence" to every family health services authority and recommended their use by general practitioners wishing to help patients who may be dependent on benzodiazepines. The need for further guidance is being kept under review.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list for each agency and the central Department for which she is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19659]

Mr. Sackville: The total cost of relocating Department of Health staff, including agencies, in each year since 1992–93 was £9.4 million, as shown in the table.

Information on the highest three claims and the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Summary of Department of Health employees' removal costs

| Year | £ million |
| 1992–93 | 5.8 |
| 1993–94 | 3.0 |
| 1994–95 | 0.6 |
| Total | 9.4 |

Source: Departmental Accounts.

Notes:

1. Costs include—Preliminary visits;
2. Subsistence connected with removals;
3. Removal costs;
4. Estate Agent fees;
5. Legal and survey fees;
6. Miscellaneous relocation expenses;
7. Bridging finance expenses;
8. Services of relocation companies.

Pharmaceutical Services

Ms Estelle Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she has taken to ensure the continuance of supply of category A drugs used for medical purposes for prescriptions on weekends and bank holidays; and if she will make a statement. [19456]

Mr. Malone: Family health services authorities are responsible for ensuring that patients have access to an appropriate level of pharmaceutical services in their area at all times, including bank holidays and weekends. Class A drugs such as diamorphine may not be held as stock by all community pharmacies, so where patients requiring them are discharged from secondary care at a weekend, they should be provided with sufficient medicines or suitable arrangements made to ensure cover is available before discharge.

Solvent Abuse

Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the report on solvent abuse from the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs will be published; and if she will make a statement. [19947]

Mr. Bowis: We shall publish the report "Volatile Substance Abuse" tomorrow. The report provides a background to solvent abuse, sets out its causes, prevalence and patterns and looks at the toxicology of the substances involved. It goes on to consider issues of prevention, help for misusers and their families, training and planning. We are grateful to the advisory council for producing its thorough and timely report. Copies of the report will be placed in the Library.

As a result of the recommendation that the Government should stimulate the establishment of an industry-led forum to consider the misuse potential of its products and how to reduce it, my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade is writing to industry representatives seeking their assistance.

HIV–AIDS

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much money has been granted to Oxfordshire health authority to provide HIV–AIDS services for each year since 1990; and what is the planned allocation for 1995–96; [18681]

(2) which HIV–AIDS specific voluntary sector agencies have received money from Oxfordshire health authority to provide HIV–AIDS services for each year since 1990; how much they have received; and what are the planned allocations for 1995–96; [18682]

(3) how much money has been granted to Oxfordshire social services to provide HIV–AIDS services for each year since 1990; [18683]

(4) which HIV–AIDS specific voluntary sector agencies have received money from Oxfordshire social services to provide HIV–AIDS services for each year since 1990; how much they received; and what are the planned allocations for 1995–96. [18684]

Mr. Sackville: Allocations to the national health service for HIV–AIDS services are distributed to regional health authorities. Information on allocations below regional level including allocations from district health authorities to the voluntary sector is not available centrally.

Since 1994–95 the scope of the AIDS support grant scheme for local authorities has been confined to community care services for people with HIV–AIDS, with local authority prevention work funded separately under the healthy alliances scheme.

Before 1994–95 AIDS support grant allocations were made on an open-ended bidding system. Since 1994–95, however, information became available for the first time on the number of live AIDS cases resident in individual authorities and indicative allocations have since been made on this basis. This allows resources to be targeted more closely to areas of highest prevalence.

In moving to the new method for AIDS support grant allocations, it was clear that some authorities had historically received a greater proportion of resources than they were entitled to under the new system. An element of transitional relief for 1994–95 was given to those authorities most affected by the change to the new system.

The amounts allocated to Oxfordshire county council under the AIDS support grant scheme and the amounts of grant provided from Oxfordshire social services to HIV–AIDS voluntary sector agencies are as follows:

| | AIDS support grant allocation (£) | Voluntary Sector funding | £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 156,250 | OXAIDS | 15,000 |
| | | Oxford Body Positive | 17,000 |
| | | General Hospitals District Samaritan Fund | 5,000 |
| | | The Ley Community | 10,000 |
| 1991–92 | 162,500 | OXAIDS | 17,000 |
| | | Oxford Body Positive | 9,000 |
| | | General Hospitals District Samaritan Fund | 1,000 |
| 1992–93 | 240,000 | OXAIDS | 33,000 |
| | | Oxford Body Positive | 35,000 |
| | | General Hospitals District Samaritan Fund | 3,000 |
| | | The Ley Community | 15,000 |

| 1994–95 | 130,000 [1]£20,000 | | |
| 1995–96 | 115,000 [1]£20,000 | | |

[1]Healthy Alliances allocation

Information on the amount of voluntary sector provision is taken from the end of year report to the Department and is not yet available for 1994–95 and 1995–96.

Special Transitional Grants

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which authorities were unable to spend 85 per cent. of their special transitional grant for 1993–94 in the independent sector. [19409]

Mr. Bowis: We have not yet received all the audited returns of expenditure of the 1993–94 special transitional grant.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amount of special transitional grant was spent by each authority in 1993–94 on non-residential or nursing care. [19410]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what amount of special transitional grant was spent by each authority in 1993–94 in (a) the private sector and (b) the voluntary sector. [19411]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Market Testing

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the capital asset value of the computing and information technology services included in the market testing—competitive tendering programme for each regional health authority for 1994–95 (a) as recorded on asset registers at 31 March 1994, (b) at project net book value as at 31 March 1994 and (c) as identified in the statement of services requirements of assets likely to be transferred to the successful supplier. [19503]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many metres of mahogany or products containing it her Department has bought in the last five years; and if she will list the purposes and the costs. [19843]

Mr. Sackville: The information is not available. However, the Department's policy is not to purchase mahogany or other tropical hardwoods. Specifications for the purchase of relevant items are written to exclude the use of these materials.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requirements there are for officials in her Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before her and her Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in her Department in the first three months of the year. [19348]

Mr. Sackville [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Department follows guidance that applies to all Government Departments. I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade today. My Department published one compliance cost assessment in the first three months of this year, copies of which are available in the Library.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many rules and regulations she repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19362]

Mr. Sackville [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Twenty-four rules and regulations were made in the first three months of 1995 of which three revoked earlier instruments, five updated fees and charges and one facilitated competition. One had costs for business.

Statutory instruments which were not themselves regulatory, including those dealing with the establishment, dissolution or transfers of property of individual national health service trusts, Orders in Council and commencement orders have been excluded, as have instruments not subject to any parliamentary procedure.

TRANSPORT

Road Pricing (Research)

Mr. Roy Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much money his Department has spent to date on (a) research into road pricing and (b) research into motorway charging. [19878]

Mr. Watts: To date, the Department of Transport has spent £2.8 million on research into city congestion charging and £1.9 million on research into motorway tolling.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has brought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19845]

Mr. Norris: My Department does not have this information. Current policy is not to buy mahogany.

London Taxis

Mr. Bendall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement about London taxi fares and fees. [20164]

Mr. Norris: The Secretary of State has made an order increasing London taxi fares by about 4.44 per cent. on average with effect from Saturday 22 April 1995. The new tariff will incorporate a minimum fare of £1.20, including a hire charge of 80p for the first 513 m, 561.22 yd, or 111 seconds. The rate will then be 20p for every 256.5 m, 280.61 yd, or 55.5 seconds up to 6 miles and 20p for each 171 m, 187.07 yd, or 37 seconds thereafter.

The Secretary of State has decided that there will be no increase this year in the fees for London taxi driver and vehicle licences, currently £87 and £78 respectively.

Transport Research Laboratory Staff

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons ex-staff of the Transport Research Laboratory are being re-employed either directly or through external agents following recent staff reductions; what is the number of those ex-staff re-employed on a full or part-time basis; and what is the cost of this re-employment. [18704]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Transport Research Laboratory.

I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from John Wootton to Mr. Neil Gerrard, dated 19 April 1995:

You asked a Parliamentary Question about the re-employment of former staff of the Transport Research Laboratory following recent staff reductions. The Minister for Local Transport and Road Safety has asked me to reply.

The staff reductions at TRL, which were necessary because of the reduced demand for the Laboratory's services, have led to the reorganisation of work in some areas and some transitional problems. As a result, 17 former staff are currently being re-employed directly on a part-time basis to meet short term pressures of work. The cost of this re-employment under fixed term contracts will be £129k. In addition, TRL are presently using the services on 16 former staff through external agents or contractors, 2 on a full-time basis, the remainder on a part-time basis. These former staff are engaged to undertake specific tasks of a limited duration and for which resources are in the main not required on a regular basis. The cost of employing these former staff through agencies or contractors varies month to month; the cost in March 1995 was £29k.

I hope this satisfactorily answers your enquiry.

New Road Schemes

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in what year the target of new starts for road schemes was last achieved. [19070]

Mr. Watts: In the year 1994–95.

National Road Programme

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what factors led to the revision of the national road programme summary of milestones for 1994–95. [19071]

Mr. Watts: The national road programme summary of milestones for 1994–95 was revised to reflect the priorities set out in the trunk roads in England 1994 review and the resources available following the 1994 Budget.

Air Service Agreements

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to resist the EU negotiating bilateral air agreements until such time as the policy regarding state aid to airlines is identical in each member state; and if he will make a statement. [19914]

Mr. Norris: It is the Government's policy that member states should remain free to negotiate bilateral air service agreements, except in those cases, for example with Switzerland, where a mandate has been agreed in the Council of Ministers. The Government remain committed to opposing state aid in air transport which distorts competition.

White Hart Roundabout, Yeading

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects work to install phased traffic lights at the White Hart roundabout, Yeading, to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [19485]

Mr. Norris: This is a matter for the London borough of Ealing, but I understand that it expects to have the signals in place before the end of July.

Rail Safety Advice

Ms Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice about rail safety is provided by Railtrack to schools; and what comparable advice was supplied to schools before privatisation. [19440]

Mr. Watts: Railtrack has continued and developed the previous BR programme of school visits which incorporates talks, discussions and the distribution of a range of support materials. Train drivers and British Transport police officers visit schools regularly, warning children of the danger they can cause to themselves and to others. Besides the dangers of playing on the lines, topics covered include trespass, vandalism, high voltage electricity and stone throwing.

Since Railtrack assumed responsibility, anti-trespass and vandalism initiatives, including school visits, have been co-ordinated by the Railtrack zones in co-operation with train operators and the BTP. This has led to an increase in the level of involvement of local managers and in support from communities.

Navigational Lights

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what additional navigational lighting or related equipment is required for a sea-going vessel plying between the Seacon terminal on the Isle of Dogs on the River Thames to any inland port on the River Rhine capable of handling a vessel of up to 2,000 tonnes which are additional to those required by international rules for the sea; and under what authority any such additional requirement would be made. [19769]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The requirements for navigational lights on the River Thames conform to international rules as set out in the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea in 1972. There are no additional requirements.

The requirements for navigational lights in German inland waters are matters for the German authorities. It is for the owners and operators of ships operating between the UK and ports on the Rhine to ensure that they are aware of any localised navigational regulations.

Marine Accident Inspectors

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library copies, with or without the relevant names, of the contract of employment and terms of reference and duties of (a) the chief and deputy chief inspectors of marine accidents, and (b) those of their other inspectors; and what is the civil service or other basis of their remuneration and terms of employment. [19763]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The chief inspector of marine accidents has been employed on a contract since 3 January 1989 which has been extended until 31 December 1996. He is employed as a grade 5 in the salary range £36,739 to £54,815.

The deputy chief inspector of marine accidents is a grade 6 who is employed on standard conditions and the salary range is £28,213 to £47,044.

There are three principal inspector of marine accidents who are employed in the grade 7 salary range £24,724 to £38,290. There are six inspectors of marine accidents who are employed in the salary range £20,454 to £32,752. They are employed on standard civil service terms of employment.

The marine accident investigation branch is responsible for investigating accidents occurring to or on UK-registered ships and other ships in UK territorial waters, with the objective of improving safety of life at sea.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what persons or body appointed the chief and deputy chief inspectors of marine accidents of the marine accident investigation branch of his Department; and if he will list the experience, professional qualifications and the previous appointments in the field of marine investigation of each inspector. [19762]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Secretary of State for Transport appoints the chief and deputy chief inspector of marine accidents.

Prior to his appointment, the chief inspector worked in the shipping industry for 33 years and is a fully qualified and experienced master mariner. His previous work on marine safety and on-board investigations included an appointment in industry as safety manager in BP Shipping.

The incumbent deputy chief inspector has a successful background of 37 years in shipping and is also a fully qualified and experienced master mariner. He spent 27 years at sea and nine and a half years as a nautical surveyor in the Department of Transport marine directorate, later the Marine Safety Agency, before his present appointment. As a nautical surveyor, he carried out investigations into a number of marine accidents.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what means the chief inspector of marine accidents has discharged his statutory duty of publishing collective summaries of the investigations made by his branch; and if he will list the date and reference of each such report. [19764]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Collective summaries of investigations were published on the following dates.

| Edition number | Date |
|---|---|
| 1/90 | January 1990 |

Shipping Accidents, Thames

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if the collision at Tower bridge, London at 02.30 on 18 October 1981 between the pleasure launch Hurlingham and the overtaking dredger vessel Bowtrader was referred to in the report to him of his marine accident investigation branch into the collision between the Bowbelle and the Marchioness in August 1989; if he will list the date and nature of specific action taken by his Department consequent to that collision; what assessment was made by his responsible officials of the likelihood of its repetition; and what assessment he has made of the similarities and dissimilarities between the circumstances and consequences of that collision and that occurring near Southwark bridge on 20 August 1989; [19766]

(2) what action was taken by any part of his Department on, or in respect of, crafts or ships on the River Thames subsequent to the collision between the passenger launch Hurlingham and the dredger Bowtrader at 02.30 on 18 October 1981 in respect of (a) laden or unladen trim of such, or similar, dredgers, (b) communication between bow lookout and wheelhouses and the numbers and duties of bow lookouts and (c) standing or visible orders to be made by the vessel owners, operators or captains in respect of these matters. [19765]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The case of the collision between the pleasure launch Hurlingham and the dredger Bowtrader on 18 October 1981 is dealt with in annexe 11 of the chief inspector's report; the similarities and differences relating to earlier incidents are discussed in section 15 of the report. The incident was investigated by the casualty branch of the surveyor general's organisation and discussions held with the Port of London authority. The Department's surveyors were alerted to the problems of the view from the rear of the wheelhouse in vessels such as the Hurlingham and advised to consider this aspect in relation to survey and inspection of both new and existing vessels.

Marchioness Disaster

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what procedures were available prior to the establishment of the marine accident investigation branch in July 1989 for preliminary internal and non-public but published investigation, comparable to that mounted by it in respect of the Marchioness disaster, that would also assist him in deciding whether to initiate a full public inquiry authorised by the Merchant Shipping Acts. [19761]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Section 55 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1970 provided for a preliminary inquiry to be held by a person appointed for the purpose by the Secretary of State. PI reports were not published but lessons learnt might be promulgated through merchant shipping notices.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he received the main report of the chief inspector of marine accidents into the collision between the Bowbelle and the Marchioness on 20 August 1989; when he decided and on what grounds, that the nature of the report was such as to not require a full and formal inquiry under the Merchant Shipping Acts; when he first made that decision public and by what means; when he published the chief inspector's report; and what persons or bodies he consulted prior to his decision not to hold a full public inquiry. [19767]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: My right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State for Transport received the report of the chief inspector of marine accidents on 5 June 1990. The report was published on 15 August 1991 and in December that year my right hon. Friend the then Secretary of State for Transport announced the Hayes inquiry into river safety. On publication of the Hayes report in July 1992, in an oral statement made in this House on 9 July 1992, Official Report, columns 698–704, I said there was no case for a formal investigation because, as far as we were aware, all the facts had been established and no useful purpose would be served by such an inquiry. When making his decision, there is no requirement for the Secretary of State for Transport to consult other parties.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list each occasion when a Minister of the Crown indicated that it was not the intention of Her Majesty's Government to initiate an inquiry into the collision of the Marchioness and the Bowbelle on 20 August 1989 (a) orally in Parliament, (b) by written answer, (c) in writing to an hon. Member, (d) in writing to a relative of any deceased, or their legal representative and (e) in formal interview or deputation, stating in respect of any of the above any reason for declining to act other than the claim that no further or significant evidence had been drawn to his attention which had not already been contained, or dealt with, in the report from his marine accident investigation branch. [19771]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, in the light of the recommendations made by the jury at the completion of the inquest into the death of persons aboard the Marchioness on 20 August 1989, he will reconsider his refusal to initiate a review of the rescue arrangements on the Thames by an independent person as recommended by John W. Haynes Esq., in his report to him of July 1992, Cm 1991. [19770]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Thames rescue arrangements have been kept under review since the Marchioness disaster and we do not propose to initiate a further independent review. The London emergency services liaison panel has recently published new procedures for dealing with major incidents on the River Thames, with the police as co-ordinators of the emergency response. The river users liaison safety sub-committee of the London district marine safety committee has also completed a review of craft available for rescue throughout the tidal Thames and made recommendations for the provision of lifesaving appliances, grab-chains and warning signs along the river banks. We are giving urgent and careful attention to the recommendations made by the jury at the Marchioness inquest.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if, in respect of the activity of the inspector primarily responsible for investigating the collision between the Marchioness and the Bowbelle near Southwark bridge on 20 August 1989, he will list (a) the witnesses interviewed at the initiative of the inspector, (b) those who directly or indirectly approached his marine accident investigation branch, and (c) others who have given evidence in any court and inquest relating to this event; and, in relation to those named in lists (b) and (c), if he will give the occasion and date on which they made the approach or gave evidence. [19772]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The MAIB inquiry team obtained evidence either orally or in the form of written statements from well over 100 people. In the case of most of the survivors, the statements were those made to the police. It is not normal practice to provide a list of witnesses. My Department does not have any responsibility for keeping records of those who have given evidence in courts which are outside the jurisdiction of my Department.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport at what times the operations manager of South Coast Shipping and the officers of the Metropolitan police boarded the dredger Bowbelle on 20 January 1989, as referred to in his answer of 11 January 1994, Official Report, column 133; by what means; and if those times were recorded in the ship's log. [19780]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The exact time at which such persons boarded Bowbelle and by what means is not known to my Department except that it was while the vessel was anchored in Gallions reach.

She was at anchor between 03.25 hours and approximately 04.45 hours on 20 August 1989. There is no record in the ship's official log book nor in the deck log book of such persons boarding Bowbelle on 20 August 1989.

Marine Accident Investigation Branch

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what are the statutory bases of the marine accident investigation branch; when, for what reason and by whom it was proposed that it replace some of the functions of the surveyor general's organisation; who was consulted about the change; and what documents relating to its creation were placed before Parliament for information or approval prior to, or at the time of, its inception. [19760]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The marine accident investigation branch was established under section 33 of the Merchant Shipping Act 1988 and operates under the Merchant Shipping (Accident Reporting and Investigation) Regulations 1994. The then Secretary of State for Transport proposed its establishment in the Merchant Shipping Bill published in 1987. The reasons for this proposal were set out in paragraphs 47 to 52 of "Merchant Shipping: Legislative Proposals," Cm 239, published in October 1987. Parliament was consulted about the change, and the relevant legislation—including the Merchant Shipping (Accident Investigation) Regulations 1989, since superseded—was placed before it.

Navigation Byelaws

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what agreement, regulation or similar instrument of the International Maritime Organisation prohibits, with or without specific application, the introduction of local navigation byelaws, additional to international arrangements otherwise in force, for those parts of ports or navigable waterways possessing acknowledged and particular hazards to safe navigation. [19768]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 18 April 1995]: None. Harbour authorities have powers to regulate navigation in waters within their jurisdiction.

Road Schemes

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in respect of the trunk road schemes which have been assessed by the use of the cost-benefit analysis method since 1979 and which have now been constructed what was (a) the capital cost of the scheme as included in the COBA assessment submitted to the public inquiry, (b) the net present value of the scheme as calculated in that assessment, (c) the actual capital cost of building the scheme and (d) the net present value of the scheme of the COBA assessment submitted to the public inquiry, if it had used the actual capital costs of the scheme in the calculation. [17786]

Mr. Watts: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Ms Joan Walley, dated 19 April 1995:

As you know, Mr. John Watts, Minister for Railways and Roads, has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking for a list of those road schemes assessed by COBA since 1979 and which have now been constructed; in each case giving (a) the capital cost estimate submitted to the public inquiry, (b) the net present value estimated at the public inquiry, (c) the actual cost of building the scheme and (d) the estimate of the net present value had the actual final cost been used in the calculation.

I regret that the information you asked for is not held centrally by the Agency and given the number of schemes involved a file search to extract it could only be done at disproportionate cost.

However, I can say that a recent study of 6 schemes has indicated that the overall post-construction net present value is very close to that predicted prior to public inquiry on those schemes.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Serious Fraud Office

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Attorney-General what investigation the Serious Fraud Office has made or is carrying out into Robertson Associates or Robertsons Research. [14528]

The Attorney-General: The Serious Fraud Office is investigating the affairs of Butte Mining plc, and the circumstances under which the company was floated on the stock exchange in October 1987. The circumstances surrounding the issue of listing particulars for a further share issue in April 1988 are also under consideration. This involves scrutiny of several other companies, but it is the practice of the Serious Fraud Office not to give operational details of continuing investigations.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Market Testing

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what was the capital asset value of the computing and information technology services included in the market testing—competitive tendering programme for each regional health authority for 1994–95 (a) as recorded on asset registers at 31 March 1994, (b) at project net book value as at 31 March 1994 and (c) as identified in the statement of services requirements of assets likely to be transferred to the successful supplier.

Bridge Programme

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what sums have been expanded on the bridge strengthening programme in Northern Ireland; what are the estimates for 1995–96; when he expects the programme to be completed; and if he will list the bridges replaced, the cost of each bridge, the original estimate and which bridges and at what cost have still to be replaced; and if he will list the number of sites where replacement work is in progress.

Mr. Moss: In the last three years, expenditure on the bridge assessment and strengthening programme has been as follows:

1994–95: £6,249,000

Information prior to 1992–93 is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The provisional allocation for the 1995–96 financial year is £5,000,000.

It is planned that the assessment programme will be completed by 31 December 1988. The timing of the completion of the associated strengthening works will depend on the volume of work identified by the assessments and the availability of finance.

The bridges replaced in the period 1992–93 to 1994–95 were as follows:

| Road Service Division | Bridge | Estimatedcost £000 | Actualcost £000 |

ENVIRONMENT

Feral Mink

16. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment his Department has made of the damage being done to British wildlife by feral mink. [17921]

Sir Paul Beresford: This matter is in the hands of the Government's statutory scientific adviser, the Joint Nature Conservation Committee.

Unfit Housing

24. Mr. Roy Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the number of houses in England which are unfit for human habitation. [17929]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: According to the statutory definition, in 1991 there were 1.5 million such dwellings. Half these are unfit on only one item and we estimate that one third of the properties could be made fit for less than £500.

Single Regeneration Budget

25. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will amend the bidding guidance for the single regeneration budget to specify more clearly the criteria which will be given greatest weight when determining the success or otherwise of an application. [17930]

Mr. Curry: The criteria for assessing bids for financial support from the SRB challenge fund are contained in the updated bidding guidance which was published on 12 April 1995 and copies of which have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what guidelines he issues in respect of the single regeneration bid to recognise the needs of refugees. [19461]

Sir Paul Beresford: The guidance to bidders for the second round of the single regeneration budget challenge fund was released on 12 April 1995. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House. The guidance does not refer explicitly to support for projects to meet the needs of refugees, although such projects could fall within the challenge fund's objectives where they form part of a local regeneration strategy.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many bids to help refugees, including bids from the Refugee Council, (a) failed and (b) succeeded under the single regeneration bid. [19460]

Sir Paul Beresford: Information is not specifically collected about unsuccessful and successful bids for support from the single regeneration budget challenge fund which are aimed at helping refugees, since most challenge fund bids address a range of objectives. However, about a third of the 201 successful challenge fund bids are specifically intended to benefit minority ethnic communities. Some of these bids are likely to include help for refugees.

Rural Development Commission (Training)

26. Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what discussions his Department has held with the Department of Employment about the future of the Rural Development Commission's direct training scheme; and if he will make a statement. [17931]

Mr. Atkins: I have met my right hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Employment to discuss this issue. The Rural Development Commission has identified an outline plan for alternative provision, and is investigating the scope for supporting young people on the new entrants training scheme through modern apprenticeships. The commission is now developing detailed proposals in consultation with officials from both Departments.

North Sea

27. Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what recent representations he has received regarding the North sea. [17932]

Mr. Atkins: Campaign literature from organisations such as Greenpeace, Seas at Risk, the World Wide Fund for Nature and the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds and a few letters from members of the public.

Global Warming

28. Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what recent discussions he has had with representatives of other Governments about the pollution of the earth's atmosphere and its likely effect on the climate; and if he will make a statement. [17933]

Mr. Gummer: During the Berlin conference of the parties to the climate change convention, which ended on 7 April, I had numerous discussions with representatives of other Governments, particularly during intensive negotiations on future commitments under the convention. The mandate which was adopted is consistent with United Kingdom and European Union objectives and opens the way for reductions of greenhouse gas emissions by developed countries in the period after 2000.

31. Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what estimate he has of the increased average temperature of Reddish and of Denton in Greater Manchester over the next 10, 25 and 50 years. [17936]

Mr. Atkins: Specific estimates of future temperatures are not available for local areas in the United Kingdom. The Hadley Centre for Climate Prediction and Research has predicted that the average temperature for the UK as a whole could increase by 0.1 deg C, 0.5 deg C and 1 deg C over the next 10, 25 and 50 years respectively.

Housing Management

28. Mr. Carrington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are his plans for the development of compulsory competitive tendering in housing management. [17934]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We have put in place the legislative framework extending compulsory competitive tendering to housing management. The first contracts are due to be in operation from April 1996. I am pleased to say that local authorities are making good progress with their preparations.

Urban Landscape

30. Mr. Booth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what he can do to encourage high standards of urban design and ensure new developments enhance urban landscapes. [17935]

Mr. Gummer: I will shortly launch a national campaign to promote consideration of urban design and its contribution to the quality of the built environment. The campaign will focus on specific sites where development is anticipated, and will help to assess how greater attention to urban design issues can help to ensure new development fits successfully into the existing built environment.

The urban design campaign is an example of action stemming from my Department's initiative "Quality in Town and Country" which seeks to encourage debate and stimulate ideas about what Government and others can do to help achieve quality in the built environment, in city, town and village.

Council Housing Transfers

32. Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what progress there has been with the large-scale voluntary transfer of council housing to housing associations. [17937]

Mr. Curry: Forty local authorities have transferred almost 180,000 dwellings, generating over £2.6 billion in private finance. The 1995–96 disposals programme includes a further 13 authorities and 51,000 dwellings. We are working with metropolitan authorities to identify ways of taking the policy forward in urban areas as well.

Unitary Authorities

34. Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are his further proposals to reconsider unitary status for former county boroughs. [17939]

Mr. Gummer: We shall direct the Local Government Commission to conduct reviews of nine districts, four of which were, or contained within their areas, former county boroughs. We are also looking at the case for referring other districts to the commission, some of which are former county boroughs. We intend that the reviews should begin in early July, when Sir David Cooksey takes up his appointment as chairman of the commission.

Area Cost Adjustment

35. Mr. Pickthall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what are his latest plans for changes to the area cost adjustment. [17940]

Mr. Curry: We have commissioned research which may enable us to take a fresh look at the boundaries of the zones used in the calculation of the area cost adjustment. The findings of this research will be discussed with the local authority associations in the summer.

The local authority associations may put forward other possible methodology changes for discussion.

Environment Bill

36. Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if his Department will be maintaining a dialogue with environmental green groups before and during the passage of the Environment Bill through the Commons; and if he will make a statement. [17941]

Mr. Atkins: On 13 October, my right hon. Friend published the draft clauses and schedules in respect of the environment agency. This allowed interested parties a chance to inform themselves of the details of the proposed legislation before it was introduced to Parliament. Subsequently, both Ministers and officials have met with various groups, including environmental groups, on the provisions contained within the Bill.

Corruption

37. Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what evidence he has of corruption in local government. [17942]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: There are cases where a local authority auditor is investigating allegations of corruption, but everyone is innocent until proved guilty. Criminal proceedings are, of course, a matter for the police and the Crown Prosecution Service.

London Docklands

38. Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the future of the London Docklands development corporation. [17943]

Mr. Curry: The London Docklands development corporation is pursuing a phased withdrawal from the docklands urban development area to be concluded on 31 March 1998.

Energy Expenditure

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish details from each Government Department of expenditure on energy and energy efficiency measures incurred during 1993–94 with reference to total expenditure on energy (£), total energy used (kwh), energy expenditure per $M^2$(£), the standard performance indicator, expenditure on energy efficiency measures (£), total floor area of Government Departments, and percentage progress on £/m relative to 1992–93. [19117]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Yes. Some points of detail are still being verified with Departments, but I expect the data to be available shortly.

Correspondence

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will ask the Director General of Ofwat to explain his failure to reply to the letter dated 18 January from the hon. Member for Aylesbury about cesspool emptying charges; and if he will make a statement. [19084]

Mr. Atkins: This is a matter for the Director General of Water Services. However, I understand that he will reply to the hon. Member's letter shortly.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which overtime has been paid, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [119688]

Sir Paul Beresford: The following information covers staff in my Department, excluding Ordnance Survey and PSA Services.

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Hours | £ | Hours | £ | Hours | £ |
| DOE | 148 | 1,267 | 116 | 967 | 58 | 495 |

| QEII Conf Centre | 13 | 130 | 13 | 128 | 12 | 118 |

Note:
Both hours and cost are given to the nearest 000.
Sickness:
Details of sickness absence taken from the OHSA reports shows in 1992 DOE lost 58,741 man days and in 1993 55,587 days (including 4,481 days for the Planning Inspectorate and 19 days for QEIICC). Data for 1994 are not yet available.

Right to Buy

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what plans he has to seek to extend the right to buy their homes to tenants of all housing associations; and if he will make a statement. [19706]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We are looking at a range of options to encourage more housing association tenants to become home owners and will be consulting in due course.

Pollution, North Sea

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what new proposals he has to tackle North sea pollution. [17907]

Mr. Atkins: To continue and develop the measures agreed by the first, second and third North sea conferences which have been successfully addressing the protection of the North sea environment since 1983.

Building Regulations

Mr. Thomason: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment whether he has concluded, in the light of the recommendations of the deregulation task forces, whether the scope of the building regulations in England and Wales should be widened to address electrical safety. [20162]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: After consideration of this issue, the Building Regulations Advisory Committee has recommended that more detailed work should be undertaken on a proposal that electrical safety should be introduced into the building regulations for work which already has to be notified to building control authorities. I have accepted this recommendation and have asked for additional studies to be undertaken to identify the costs, benefits and practical implications.

Standard Spending Assessments

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what further information he has made available to local authorities about standard spending assessments for 1995–96. [20163]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: A publication, "Standard Spending Assessment Handbook 1995–96", has been produced to provide details of the standard spending assessment of each local authority. Copies have today been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies have also been sent to every local authority in England, and to the local authority associations.

The tables from the handbook are being made available in computer-readable form.

Council Charge Capping

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what plans he has to change the rules and practices relating to council charge capping; and if he will make a statement. [17938]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: My right hon. Friend has no such plans.

Convention on Climate Change

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting of the contracting parties to the first review of the intergovernmental convention on climate change held in Berlin recently. [18262]

Mr. Gummer [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to my answer given to the hon. Member for Newport, West (Mr. Flynn) earlier today.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Sierra Leone

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what work is being done by the United Nations Development Programme to produce an analysis of the problems of Sierra Leone, and what is the timetable of action that will be followed by the United Nations to act on that analysis. [18669]

Mr. Baldry: We are not aware of any specific analysis. However, UNDP, along with other development agencies, is involved in assisting the Government of Sierra Leone both in the transition to democratic rule and in tackling their development and humanitarian problems.

South Africa

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much development aid is being given by the United Kingdom to South Africa in 1994–95 and 1995–96 (a) as bilateral aid, (b) through the European development fund and (c) through other multi-lateral initiative. [18878]

Mr. Baldry: Bilateral aid expenditure in 1994–95 is estimated to be £15 million. In 1995–96 we expect expenditure to be about £20 million. EC aid to South Africa is provided not through the European development fund but under a specific line in the EC's budget. The UK share of the EC allocation was about £15 million in 1994 and about £17 million for 1995. To date, no loans have been made by the World bank or African development bank; our contributions through the various United Nations programmes are not readily attributable to individual countries.

Pergau Dam

Miss Lestor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his written answer of 27 March, Official Report, column 444, for what reason expenditure on the Pergau dam project was not listed in table 1 on page 34 of the supply estimates, class II for 1991–92, HC 236-II; and under which subhead of which vote parliamentary authority was sought for expenditure in 1991–92. [18706]

Mr. Baldry: Table 1 of the 1991–92 estimate for class II, vote 5 lists projects on which expenditure had been incurred up to March 1991. This project became effective only in July 1991. Expenditure in 1991–92 was incurred under class II, vote 5, subhead A2.

Aid

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the contribution United Kingdom aid makes to the protection and conservation of the natural environment in recipient countries. [18714]

Mr. Baldry: The Government's activities and achievements in this area under the aid programme are described in the 1995 department report, Cm 2802, a copy of which is in the Library of the House. A more detailed progress report on ODA's work, including help with tackling environmental problems, will be published shortly.

Former Yugoslavia

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was the budget for 1994–95 for expenditure on emergency engineering assistance in the former Yugoslavia; what is the proposed budget for 1995–96; and if he will make a statement. [18796]

Mr. Baldry: The ODA's expenditure on emergency infrastructure engineering in the former Yugoslavia in 1994–95 was £7.5 million.

The total budget for 1995–96 has not yet been fixed, but ODA is continuing to fund its engineering programmes. Security permitting, the work will continue to address prevailing humanitarian needs.

Commission on Sustainable Development

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of whether it is appropriate to the United Kingdom's role in the world that he should attend the meeting of the Commission on Sustainable Development this year. [18352]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Department of Environment co-ordinates the United Kingdom's activities in relation to the Commission on Sustainable Development. The United Kingdom delegation will be led by the Secretary of State for the Environment. He will be supported by officials from a number of Government Departments, including the FCO.

Aid and Trade Provision

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to which projects and programmes he has allocated the funding no longer allocated to the aid and trade provision projects in Turkey, Botswana and Indonesia in the financial year 1994–95. [19275]

Mr. Baldry: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Eccles (Miss Lestor) on 5 April 1995, Official Report, column 1120.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to which projects and programmes he will allocate the funding (a) no longer allocated to the Pergau dam and (b) no longer allocated to the aid and trade provision projects in Turkey, Botswana and Indonesia in the 1995–96 financial year. [19276]

Mr. Baldry: These funds have been absorbed into the overall aid budget and allocated according to ODA's priorities and objectives as set out in the 1995 FCO–ODA departmental report, Cm 2802, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

Know-how Fund

Mr. Gordon McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many projects involving the development of co-operatives in central and eastern Europe have been initiated through funds provided by the British Government through the know-how funds or otherwise; what is the total amount of money provided by the Government for training and development of co-operatives in central and eastern Europe; and what figures are available for the number of co-operatives and co-operative jobs generated by these funds. [19067]

Mr. Baldry: Since 1990, £1,154,050 has been committed from the know-how fund in support of eight projects to assist farmers and banking co-operatives in Slovakia, Bulgaria, Romania, Poland and Ukraine. The European Union's PHARE programme has allocated a further 16.5 million ecu, the UK share of which is around 16 per cent. for the development of co-operatives and the training of staff in the agricultural sector. There are no figures available for the number of co-operatives and co-operative jobs generated by these funds.

Many state-run co-operatives have been abolished as part of the reform process in former communist Europe. The know-how fund has targeted its assistance on institutions which can survive in the environment of a market economy but require help in the short term with the transformation from the state to the private sector.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Intergovernmental Conference

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals he has received to alter the year in which the intergovernmental conference is to be held under the Maastricht treaty. [19481]

Mr. David Davis: Under the terms of the Maastricht treaty on European Union, article N(2), the intergovernmental conference will be convened in 1996. I have received no formal proposals to alter this schedule.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19423]

Mr. Goodlad: My Department employs two political advisers. Their salaries and conditions of work are negotiated individually in relation to their previous earnings and are confidential.

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The following numbers by grade are full-time equivalents:

FCO (Diplomatic and Aid wings including NRI)

| Grade | Number of Officers |
|---|---|
| G5 | 9 |
| G6 | 7 |
| G7 | 34 |
| Assistant Economist | 29 |
| Total | 81 |

Karen People, Burma

Mr. Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Burmese Government about the treatment of the Karen people. [19293]

Mr. Goodlad: With our EU partners, we have expressed our concerns about the treatment of the Karen people directly to the ruling military regime in Burma, the State Law and Order Restoration Council. We called in the Burmese ambassador on 17 February to reinforce the EU action and to urge SLORC to call an immediate halt to the current offensive. On 10 March the EU issued a statement condemning the attacks and calling upon SLORC to find a swift and peaceful solution to the ethnic minority problem in Burma.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19837]

Mr. Goodlad: The information requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Burundi

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has on the number of recent violent deaths in Burundi; and what current initiatives are being taken by the international community to promote peace. [19690]

Mr. Baldry: We do not have an accurate assessment of the number of deaths in Burundi but are concerned at the level of violence. Action in support of the moderate and broad-based Government is being taken by the United Nations, the European Union and the Organisation of African Unity. We have given our full backing to these efforts.

Nigeria

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is his policy on the introduction of oil sanctions as a way of cutting off resources to Nigeria and promoting a return to democracy there.

Mr. Baldry: The European Union's measures against Nigeria will be reviewed, or strengthened, in the light of progress towards a return to democratic civilian rule. All options will, of course, be considered.

Sierra Leone

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans the United Nations has to appoint a special representative to assist peacemaking efforts in Sierra Leone. [18666]

Mr. Baldry: Following a request from the Government of Sierra Leone in December 1994 for a good offices mission, the United Nations Secretary-General sent his special representative, Ambassador Behanu Dinka, to Freetown in February.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what attempts have been made by the international community to provide training to help the Government of Sierra Leone to bring their armed forces under control. [18665]

Mr. Baldry: Guinea, Nigeria and Ghana have units of their armed forces in Sierra Leone. The Government of Sierra Leone have recruited ex-Ghurkas to train Government troops.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what mediation or demobilisation support from the United Nations to promote peace in the country the Government of Sierra Leone have sought. [18664]

Mr. Baldry: The Government of Sierra Leone approached the United Nations Secretary-General in December last year to request his good offices as an intermediary to end the conflict. We are not aware of any specific request from the Government of Sierra Leone for UN support on demobilisation.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Publicity

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the total expenditure on (a) all forms of publicity and (b) all publications and pamphlets produced for his Department and for all the agencies and public bodies for which his Department is responsible, for each year since 1979, including the budgeted figure for 1995–96, (i) including and (ii) excluding privatisation-related expenditures and expressed in 1994 prices; and if he will supply information for the period from 1 April 1993 to 1 March 1995 showing (1) the nature and (2) the purpose of each publicity campaign and of each publication involving the expenditure of more than £50,000. [14604]

Mr. Waldegrave [holding answer 17 March 1995]: Expenditure on all forms of publicity, publications and pamphlets by the Department in the financial year 1984–85 and each subsequent year was as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1984–85 | 601,000 |

| 1992–93 | 4,217,000 |
| 1993–94 | 4,312,000 |
| 1994–95[1] | 4,800,000 |
| 1995–96[1] | 4,400,000 |

[1] Forecast.

Expenditure prior to 1984–85 was not kept in this form and figures would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Publicity campaigns and publications from 1 April 1993 involving expenditure of more than £50,000 are as follows:

| Title | Objective |

Publications and publicity by MAFF agencies are the responsibility of their chief executives. I have asked them to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Letter from Dr. P. I. Stanley to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 31 March 1995:

EXPENDITURE SINCE 1979 BY MAFF AND ITS AGENCIES ON PUBLICITY AND PUBLICATIONS

The Central Science Laboratory (CSL) was first launched as an executive agency of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) in April 1992. Expenditure details are not therefore available for the years 1979–1991, when CSL formed part of the Department. Further, CSL was re-launched as an enlarged agency in April 1994, following its merger with the Food Science Laboratories in Norwich and Aberdeen. The merger necessitated revision of several publications including the Agency's Framework Document, Statement of Standards and Quality of Service and promotional brochure and this is reflected in the outturn of expenditure in 1993/94.

CSL's expenditure on all forms of publicity and all publications, including pamphlets, in £'000, expressed in 1994 prices follows. There has been no privatisation-related expenditure.

| | Publicity | Publications |
|---|---|---|
| 1992/93 | 3.18 | 20.60 |
| 1993/94 | 7.21 | 82.40 |
| 1994/95 | 15.00 | 50.00 |
| 1995/96[1] | 14.56 | 48.54 |

[1]Budgeted figures.

The Agency does not run publicity campaigns as such but does participate in exhibitions, open days anda conferences. No single event or publication has cost in excess of £50,000.

Letter from Dr. T. W. A. Little to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 31 March 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about expenditure on publicity and publications by CVL over the last few years.

CVL became an Executive Agency in 1990. Up to and including November 1992 our accounts were processed and produced by MAFF.

The figures in 1994 prices for the financial years from 1992–93, including the budgetary figure for 1995–96, are as follows:

| | Including VAT £ |
| 1992–93[1] | 31,995 |
| 1993–94 | 33,698 |
| 1994–95 | 48,732 |
| 1995–96 | 41,272 |

[1] Based on CVL/MAFF records. A word or two of explanation about the figures may be of assistance. To facilitate the marketing of the Agency CVL uses a range of material to inform customers about it products and services. This covers publication of the Annual Report and Accounts through pamphlets about individual services to marketing brochures and customer newsletters. In this financial year we expect to produce nearly 22,000 individual items which will be distributed by various means to 4,000 customers and prospects.

Finally, you also asked for information about privatisation-related expenditure and further details of each publicity campaign or publication involving expenditure of more than £50,000. CVL has had no expenditure in the areas relating to privatisation and no single campaign involving more than £50,000.

Letter from Guy Stapleton to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 31 March 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about expenditure on all forms of publicity and all publications and pamphlets produced by the Agency since 1979 at 1994 prices.

The Intervention Board has spent the following sums on publicity and publications since 1989–90 at 1994 prices. Papers for earlier years have been disposed of under the Agency's records management policy.

| | Publicity £ | Publications £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1989–90 | 64,019 | 31,258 |
| 1990–91 | 29,732 | 22,165 |
| 1991–92 | 22,320 | 27,690 |
| 1992–93 | 11,030 | 31,637 |
| 1993–94 | 8,780 | 36,482 |
| 1994–95 | 10,969 | 30,954 |

Publicity covers the cost of recruitment advertising and the Agency's stand at the Royal Show and the Festival of Food and Farming. Publications covers the cost of the Agency's Annual Report, Corporate Plan and information leaflets supplied to our customers. The Agency's 1995–96 budget has not yet been disaggregated sufficiently to allow comparable figures to be extracted, but expenditure is expected to be comparable with the previous year.

The Agency has had no involvement in any privatisation. None of the publications or publicity campaigns has cost over £50,000.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Rutter to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 3 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply on behalf of the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) to your question about expenditure on publicity, publication and pamphlets, as this is an operational matter for which I am responsible.

The VMD was established as a Next Steps Agency in April 1990, but did not maintain its own accounts until 1991/92. Expenditure prior to that date will therefore be included with that for core MAFF. There has been no privatisation related expenditure incurred by the VMD, and the total expenditure on all forms of publicity, publications and pamphlets is as follows:

| 1992/93 | 21,339.06 | 22,431.88 |
| 1993/94 | 59,420.91 | 60,609.33 |
| 1994/95 (forecast) | 27,978.03 | 27,978.03 |
| 1995/96 (budgeted) | 28,400.00 | 27,500.00 |

The above figures include the VMD's Annual Report and Accounts and publicity relating to the safe use of organophosphorus sheep dips, as well as expenditure on the VMD's quarterly newsletter, MAVIS.

During this period, there has been no publicity campaign or publication involving the expenditure of more than £50,000.

Letter from A. M. Kerr to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 31 March 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply, in respect of the Pesticides Safety Directorate, to your question about expenditure on publicity, publications and pamphlets. All the costs detailed below have been adjusted to reflect 1994/95 prices using H M Treasury's assumptions of GDP deflators at market prices.

The Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD) incurred expenditure totalling £15,290 on publicity in 1993/94 in connection with the launch of the Agency. No expenditure on publicity has been incurred in 1994/95. There is no budget provision in 1995/96 for publicity.

Expenditure on publications and pamphlets totalled £2,335 in 1993/94 and £21,398 in 1994/95. The budgeted figure for 1995/96 covering publications and pamphlets is £42,307.

The costs of other publications, published by HMSO on behalf of PSD, are borne by HMSO who aim to recover the costs from sales revenue. Costs of producing other publications and pamphlets with a wider Food Safety emphasis have been borne centrally and are therefore covered in the core MAFF return.

None of the above expenditure was privatization related. There has been no expenditure in excess of £50,000 incurred on any individual publicity campaign, publication or pamphlet.

As PSD was established as an agency on 1 April 1993 figures prior to this date are not available.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Walsh to Mr. Malcolm Bruce, dated 31 March 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply on his behalf to the question which you tabled on 14 March (No. 832). In this you sought information for the core Department and for each of the Agencies concerning the total expenditure on (a) all forms of publicity and (b) all publications and pamphlets produced by the Department. The information that you require is as follows:

| | Expenditure | |
|---|---|---|
| | All forms of publicity (excluding publications) £ | Publications £ |
| 1992/93[1] | 278,000 | 146,000 |
| 1993/94 | 313,000 | 218,000 |
| 1994/95 | 359,000 | 249,000 |

[1] ADAS was formed as an Executive Agency in 1992.

Currently, the budgeted figure for 1995/96 has not been agreed. Expenditure on all forms of publicity is used to inform our 32,000 fee-paying customers about ADAS' products and MAFF/Welsh Office policy implementation (this Agency is jointed owned by the MAFF and the Welsh Office). The 1994/95 expenditure on all forms of publicity represent 0.5% of our £75 million revenue.

The only publication exceeding £50,000 was "Agricultural Strategy" which was produced in 1994. This outlined the future for each sector of the British agricultural industry. It was distributed to clients and potential clients throughout England and Wales.

Set-aside Compensation

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what will be the cost in (a) 1995 and (b) 1996 in the increase in set-aside compensation for cereal growers by 12 ecu per tonne, agreed in May 1993 by EC Agriculture Ministers.

[15792]

Mr. Jack: Based on expected uptake of the arable scheme and on the exchange rate in place today, it is estimated that the additional cost will be approximately £43 million in both 1995 and 1996.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the jobs that have been lost to agencies in his Department in the past two years that have (a) been taken over by contractors and (b) disappeared. [18320]

Mr. Waldegrave [holding answer 4 April 1995]: Responsibility for this matter is delegated to agency chief executives and I have asked them to reply to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Dr. P. I. Stanley to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 April 1995:

JOBS LOST TO MAFF AGENCIES IN THE PAST TWO YEARS

The Central Science Laboratory (CSL) was first launched as an executive agency of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) in April 1992.

Over the two year period since 1st April 1993 there have been no job losses overall within CSL and no jobs have been taken over by contractors. However, approval has been given for six members of staff to take voluntary early retirement in March 1995.

Letter from J. Bainton to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked met to reply, in respect of Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD), to your question about jobs that have been lost to agencies in the past two years.

The Directorate was launched as an executive agency on 1 April 1993. Since that time no jobs have been taken over by contractors, although PSD does, as necessary, contract-out some pesticide evaluation work in order to manage work flows within the agency. However, over the period, PSD has reduced its complement of typists from 6.5 to 2.5 staff, which has largely been as a consequence of the introduction of new computer systems which have provided staff with direct access to word processing facilities.

Letter from T. W. A. Little to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 19 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about jobs lost to Agencies over the last two years.

Over the past two years there have been no jobs lost to CVL by the Department and no work has been taken over by a contractor.

Letter from Guy Stapleton to Mr. Paul Flynn dated 11 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries & Food has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question concerning the loss of jobs in MAFF agencies over the past two years.

Internal restructuring brought about by market testing in the Intervention Board resulted in the saving of nineteen posts in total during the period from 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1995. No posts have been taken over by contractors.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Walsh to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply directly to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question No. 1014. In this you asked him to list the jobs that had been lost to Agencies in his department in the past two years that have (a) been taken over by contractors and (b) disappeared.

In the past two years ADAS has reduced its complement of permanent staff by a total of 445 posts. This represents 19% of staff in post at the 1 April 1993. The work carried out by these staff has not been taken over by contractors. Some has disappeared and some absorbed due to more efficient practices.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Rutter to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 3 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply on behalf of the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) to your question about the jobs that have been lost to agencies in his Department in the past two years, as this is an operational matter for which I am responsible.

I can confirm that no jobs in the VMD have been lost in the past two years as a result either of being taken over by contractors or disappearing.

Suicide (Italian Official)

Mr. Marlow: To the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will seek through the Council to gain access to the Commission report on the suicide of the Italian official in the tobacco department and related issues. [18240]

Mr. Waldegrave [holding answer 4 April 1995]: This is a matter for the European Commission and was subject to internal investigation by the Commission at the time.

Warble Fly

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what were the number of cases of warble fly in (a) and (b) 1994. [19262]

Mrs. Browning: In 1984, 477 herds in England and Wales were found to be clinically infested with warble fly.

In 1994, clinical warble fly infestation was confirmed in two herds in England and none in Wales. In addition, 45 imported animals found to be infested with warble fly were returned to the country of origin.

Fisheries Council

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the outcome of the Fisheries Council held in Luxembourg on 6 April; and if he will make a statement. [19215]

Mr. Jack: I represented the United Kingdom at the meeting of the Fisheries Council in Luxembourg on 6 April with the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland, my hon. Friend the Member for Dumfries (Sir H. Monro).

The Council discussed recent developments in the Community's dispute with Canada concerning Greenland halibut. I did not consider in the context of current negotiations that it was helpful or appropriate for the Council to adopt a proposed statement commenting on recent reported incidents. Accordingly, a statement was issued in the name of the presidency. I was pleased to note that all member states endorsed the importance of bringing to a successful conclusion the continuing negotiations between the EC and Canada.

The Council also considered a proposal for the adoption of an autonomous quota for the EU in the Greenland halibut fishery. The Commissioner explained that this was necessary to permit the conservation of the fishery by providing a legal basis for controlling fishing by community vessels. However, I voted against the measure since it was inappropriate in my view to adopt it when other quota figures were on the verge of being agreed with Canada.

There was a discussion of drift net fishing. No conclusions were reached on the now somewhat dated proposal for phasing out the use of drift nets. I emphasised the considerable importance of the various types of drift net fishing to British fishermen. The importance of orderly conduct in the tuna fishery this summer was discussed. I am pleased that this was approached in a constructive way by all member states involved and they will be meeting together at an early stage to ensure that arrangements are satisfactorily planned. The Commissioner also said that there would be a Community vessel in the fishery in order to provide for Commission and national inspectors to ensure proper compliance with the rules. The UK will deploy Royal Navy fishery protection resources as appropriate.

The Council decided that, in the absence of a full year proposal, the 1994 autonomous tariff quotas should be rolled forward for three months. A formal proposal to this end will be made shortly for early adoption. This will meet the immediate needs of our fish processors. A proposal for the full year, taking account of the needs of the new member states, will be considered by the Council at a later date.

The Council noted progress on the Commission's ideas for management strategies and objectives and for quota flexibility. I emphasised the importance of ensuring that we avoided creating unhelpful new complexities in the CPF of little value to fishermen. I also emphasised the importance of taking account of the impact of industrial fisheries.

I questioned whether proposals for socio-economic measures should be a Community measure when they were designed to address issues generally more appropriate for national social security measures. The Council expects to discuss these further in June.

The Council agreed to adopt a single guide price for herring for 1995. Proposals for a regional price in parts of the UK and Ireland and for the future treatment of transhipments of herring will be put to the management committee. The UK voted against because this proposal did not deal adequately with the needs of Scottish pelagic fishermen.

Because of our growing concern in the UK about the catches of immature fish I pressed the Commissioner on the importance of developing technical conservation rules and other measures to reduce these catches and so improve fish stocks. I am pleased to say that the Commissioner was able to assure me that this would form a specific part of the work in preparation for proposals to be made in June this year.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19342]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given today by the President of the Board of Tradewhich sets out the general position on the preparation of compliance cost assessments. MAFF issued 18 compliance cost assessments accompanying draft legislation in the first three months of this year.

Equine Encephalomyelitis

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what was the number of cases of equine encephalomyelitis in each year since 1985. [19266]

Mrs. Browning: Equine encephalomyelitis has never been recorded in England.

Quarantine Regulations

Sir David Steel: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food on what grounds he has rejected the Agriculture Select Committee's recommendations that a vaccination-based system for approved countries should replace the quarantine system for dogs arriving from those countries. [19524]

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proposals he has for enabling residents of countries within the European Union to travel with their domesticated animals in an unhindered fashion; and what plans he has to relax the quarantine regulations. [19468]

Mrs. Browning: The Government's position is set out in the reply to the fifth report from the Agriculture Select Committee, Session 1993–94, laid before the House on 25 January 1995, Cm 2735.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

"Public Bodies"

Mr. Tyler: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when the next edition of the directory entitled "Public Bodies" will be published; if he will ensure that details are included for all quangos; and if he will make a statement. [19106]

Mr. David Hunt: "Public Bodies 1994" was published on 6 February 1995. The next edition will be "Public Bodies 1995" and will be published soon after the end of this year.

"Public Bodies" includes statistical information about all non-departmental public bodies.

British Gas

Mr. Merchant: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made in the investigation into whether British Gas should retain its charter mark. [20165]

Mr. David Hunt: Following the approach from the Gas Consumers Council on 18 January, I have now agreed with British Gas and the council a programme of action so that British Gas can retain its charter mark award by demonstrably continuing to meet tough criteria which the charter mark scheme sets down.

In its submission, the Gas Consumers Council expressed faith in British Gas as a company and made it clear that British Gas should retain its charter mark provided it could get its performance back on track. Its main concern was a rise in complaints in the following areas:

account queries (a 27 per cent. increase over 1993); service and repairs (a 9 per cent. increase over 1993); staff manner (up 12 per cent. on 1993); and lack of reply to correspondence and non-answering of telephones (up 18 per cent. on 1993).

British Gas has assured me that its aim is to re-establish its reputation for excellence as quickly as possible and that its new structure will ultimately enable it to be more responsive to customers. It is determined to provide the highest service among gas suppliers.

However, British Gas accepts that the process of reorganisation has meant that it has not always been able to maintain its previous level of performance, despite which it has continued to meet or exceed all but three of its 39 regulated standards of service.

The agreed programme of action needed to pass the charter mark test consists of the following main elements:

increased training for staff dealing directly with customers and a project to address customer contact across the company's different business units to ensure that misdirected queries/complaints are handled effectively; front-line staff will be empowered to make amends to dissatisfied customers; additional telephone lines have been set up to ensure that telephone answering meets the targets of 90 per cent. of calls being answered in 30 seconds or less;

increased staffing and weekend working to clear the backlog of correspondence and telephone inquiries and to ensure that the target of replying to 90 per cent. of correspondence within five days is met;

a leaflet to all customers outlining the recent changes in the structure of British Gas and details of contacts for further information; market research to identify core customer requirements, with each business unit developing its own standards for the start of 1996;

a freephone number to enable customers to find out the location of their nearest payment or prepayment token outlet;

a national quality audit to ensure that the company's service work, including work carried out by contractors, is of the highest quality;

each business unit to develop new IT systems, or enhance existing ones, to improve the quality of information available to those dealing with inquiries/complaints; and staff focus groups will monitor standards of service on a regular basis and identify and share best practice.

We have agreed with British Gas and the Gas Consumers Council that we will review progress and the position on British Gas's charter mark at the end of the year.

I believe that this very positive programme shows the real value of the charter mark scheme as a reward for excellence—the charter mark means business.

EDUCATION

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19838]

Mr. Forth: This Department has not purchased any mahogany, or products containing mahogany, in the past five years.

Teachers (Early Retirement)

Mr. Nigel Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many enhancement years have been added to the pensions of teachers taking early retirement in (a) Lancashire and (b) England and Wales since 1989. [19052]

Mr. Robin Squire: This information is not readily available. I will write to my hon. Friend as soon as possible.

Mr. Nigel Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) headmasters and (b) other teaching staff including deputy headmasters have taken early retirement due to ill health each year since 1989 in (i) Lancashire and (ii) England and Wales. [19055]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table shows the number of members of the teachers' superannuation scheme who retired on the grounds of ill health for the financial years 1989–90 to 1993–94. This includes some lecturers in further and higher education and some teachers in independent schools as well as maintained school teachers.

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the expenditure in each local authority on early retirement compensation in each year since 1990–91 for which information is available (a) in total and (b) per pupil. [19700]

Mr. Robin Squire: Total expenditure and expenditure per pupil on premature retirement compensation and Crombie payments as recorded by each local education authority for the years 1990–91 to 1993–94 is shown in the table. The expenditure figures include payments made to further and higher education lecturers and to teachers at sixth form colleges and grant-maintained schools who were granted premature retirement by the LEA. It is not possible to separate out these costs. The pupil numbers used in the calculations are for all LEA maintained schools: they exclude sixth form colleges.

Grant-maintained Schools

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will estimate the number of hours which staff within her Department spend on issues relating to grant-maintained schools in whole-time equivalents. [19131]

Mr. Robin Squire: Some 77 full-time equivalent posts are concerned wholly or mainly with matters specific to grant-maintained schools. Many other staff in the Department have responsibilities that relate to both grant-maintained and local education authority schools.

Departmental Expenditure Plans

Mrs. Anne Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the cost of editing, designing and printing her Department's expenditure plans 1995–96 to 1997–98, Cm 2810. [19759]

Mr. Forth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Truro (Mr. Taylor) on 23 March, Official Report, column 175.

Roberts Street Primary School

Mr. Pearson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education following the meeting held with the Under-Secretary of State and Dudley council and its hon. Members recently, if she has any good news for Roberts Street primary on how the technical barriers to use of the private finance initiative can be removed or other means accessed to enable this badly needed new school project to go ahead. [19145]

Mr. Robin Squire: The local education authority is preparing a more detailed explanation of its proposal. We shall then be able to assess whether it meets the crucial criterion for the private finance initiative, mainly, how far there is a transfer of risk from the public sector to the private sector.

School Spending

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answer of 28 March, Official Report, column 574, if she will list the same information on expenditure per pupil for Nottingham and Staffordshire, Surrey and Hertfordshire. [18785]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table shows expenditure by Nottinghamshire, Staffordshire, Surrey and Hertfordshire local education authorities on pre-primary and primary pupils combined, and on secondary pupils, from 1974–75 to 1993–94, the latest year for which provisional outturn figures are available.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list for each agency and the central Department for which she is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19670]

Mr. Forth: Overtime worked in the Department for Education in the years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95, measured as full-time equivalent staff numbers, was 21, 31 and 32. For each of these financial years, the cost of overtime was £639,000, £694,000 and £750,000 respectively. The figures for 1994–95 are estimated.

Data on sickness are not yet available for 1994. In 1992, the amount of time lost through sickness was 20,368 days, and in 1993 20,966 days. The monetary cost of these absences is not available.

Grant for Education Support and Training

Mr. Steinberg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the average GEST funding for (a) each local education authority school and (b) each grant-maintained school; and what is the accounting procedure for such funding by the local education authorities and Funding Agency for Schools. [19042]

Mr. Robin Squire: For the financial year 1995–96, GEST funding averages £11,100 per local education authority maintained primary, secondary and special school. Grant is payable in instalments, with, if necessary a final adjustment for the financial year on receipt by the Department of an audit certificate confirming actual expenditure.

For grant-maintained schools, similar activities are supported by special purpose grant—development. The calculation and payment of special purpose grants are now the responsibility of the Funding Agency for Schools and I have asked the chairman of the funding agency to write to the hon. Member.

Funding Agency for Schools

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many people are employed at the Funding Agency for Schools; and what were the staff costs in the last financial year. [19130]

Mr. Robin Squire: These matters are the responsibility of the Funding Agency for Schools. I have asked the chairman of the funding agency to write to the hon. Member with this information.

School Meals

Ms Estelle Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will publish a table showing the total expenditure on school meal service on a per capita basis in cash and real terms for each year since 1970 until the most recent date available. [19376]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table shows the cost per pupil on expenditure on the school meal service in cash and real terms from 1976–77 to 1993–94, the latest year for which provisional outturn figures are available. Figures from 1970 to 1975–76 are not readily available and can be produced only at disproportionate cost.

Schools Budget

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answer of 28 March, Official Report, column 577, if she will list the same information on amounts held back of education budgets in 1994–95 for each county local education authority. [18786]

Mr. Robin Squire: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply that I gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Billericay (Mrs. Gorman) on 17 October 1994, Official Report, column 28.

Schools Management, North Yorkshire

Mr. Robert Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what reductions have been made by North Yorkshire county council to its central administration since the advent of local management of schools. [18829]

Mr. Robin Squire: The percentage of North Yorkshire county council's general schools budget devoted to management and administration in connection with schools since 1991–92 has been as follows:

1991–92: 1.92 per cent.
1992–93: 2.15 per cent.
1993–94: 1.90 per cent.
1994–95: 1.73 per cent.
1995–96: 1.67 per cent.

To maintain comparability, all these figures exclude expenditure on special schools, which only became subject to local management from 1994–95.

(3) how many Conservative party health group meetings, for which agenda and summonses were dispatched on Conservative central office notepaper, were held at the Department of Health in Richmond terrace in 1994–95. [18679]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 18 April 1995]: One Conservative party health group meeting was held during 1994–95 at Richmond house. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health held another meeting on 4 April. These meetings did not incur additional cost to the taxpayer. No civil servant, apart from my right hon. ### Official Box, House of Commons

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Prime Minister what instructions and advice is given to special advisers who occupy the civil service box inside the Chamber of the House as to their conduct, behaviour and impartiality during Question Time, statements and debates; and if he has any plans to amend or review this advice; and if he will make a statement. [18979]

The Prime Minister: Attendance in the Official Box is by permission of Madam Speaker who has laid down clear rules on officials' behaviour. These require officials to conduct themselves discreetly at all times. I expect these rules to be scrupulously observed.

"Old Ditch"

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the prehistoric earthwork known as the "Old Ditch" on Tilshead down was destroyed; and who authorised its removal. [18852]

Mr. Soames: The surface of the scheduled ancient monument known as the "Old Ditch" on Tilshead down was regrettably scraped during essential engineering works between 13 and 17 March. Investigation into the incident is being carried out, but initial indications are that the damage to the earthwork was the result of an accident.

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library the report by the defence land agent on the destruction of the prehistoric monument known as the "Old Ditch" on Tilshead down; and if he will make a statement. [18854]

Poverty

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many households in Liverpool are living on or below the poverty line. [18945]

Mr. Burt: No Government of any political persuasion have ever accepted that it is possible to provide a meaningful definition of poverty.

Statistics on patterns of household disposable income, for the United Kingdom as a whole, are provided in "Households below Average Income 1979–1991/92" published in July 1994, a copy of which is in the Library. Information is not available on a regional basis.

Maintenance

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total monetary value of maintenance arranged or collected by his Department's liable relatives unit in the year from 6 April 1991 to 5 April 1992. [18821]

Mr. Burt: Benefit savings of £283.9 million were achieved in the 1991–92 financial year as a result of liable relative action by the Benefits Agency. It is not possible to break this down to show amounts arranged or collected.

Child Support Agency

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of cases taken on by the Child Support Agency involve absent parents and parents with care who have separated since 5 April 1993. [18818]

Mr. Burt: The information is not collected.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimates he has made of the number of people in Burnley, Pendle and Rossendale currently receiving invalidity benefit who will not qualify for the new incapacity benefit. [19395]

Mr. Hague: The information requested is not available. Estimates are not broken down into local areas or regions.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19834]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is not available, but as a matter of policy the Department has deliberately phased out the use of tropical hardwoods including mahogany.

EMPLOYMENT

Training and Enterprise Councils

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many members of training and enterprise councils representing business and industry have been nominated by co-operative business; what are the criteria for business and industry nominations; and what steps are taken to ensure that nominations are received from co-operative business. [19069]

Mr. Paice: The Department does not hold information on the numbers of training and enterprise council board members from co-operative business. As private companies, TECs are responsible for the selection of their own board members. The Government contract with TECs requires that two thirds of the board should be private sector employers who are chairmen, chief executives or top operational managers at local level of a company. Private sector directors should broadly reflect the mix of commerce and industry in the TEC area.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment when the jobseeker's allowance pilot was set up in Guildford in Surrey; and whether there has been a reduction in the unemployment register for Guildford since the pilot commenced. [19136]

Miss Widdecombe: The pilot currently running in the Employment Service's Guildford district is not a jobseeker's allowance pilot. It is part of a project aimed at improving and making more efficient ES's existing job-broking and advisory activities, in particular through developing better information technology support. The pilot has been developing and testing a prototype IT system, to deal with functions such as signing, vacancy taking, vacancy search, maintaining client records, carrying out in-work benefit calculations and managing diaries and case loads. The prototype system began operation in four of the five offices in the Guildford district in May 1994.

Between June and December 1994, average unemployment fell by 23 per cent. in the Guildford district.

South London TEC

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the figure for expected youth training guarantees starts in 1995–96 in the expanded South London TEC area. [19292]

Mr. Paice: The figure for youth training guarantee starts for the SOLOTEC area of Bexley, Bromley, Croydon and Sutton for the 1995–96 contract year is 2,250. A further 1,152 guarantee starts are expected for Greenwich and Lewisham subject to further negotiation between SOLOTEC and the government office for London.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19841]

Miss Widdecombe: None.

TREASURY

European Co-operative Statute

Mr. Jon Owen Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what action the Government are taking to progress the European Co-operative Statute with a view to reaching a common position during the French presidency in the first half of the current year; and if he will make a statement. [19451]

Mr. Nelson: The Government are negotiating constructively on the proposal for a European Co-operative Statute. A number of important issues need to be resolved, including the legal base, protection of creditors on transfer of registered office and the question of compulsory employee participation. Discussions on the statute are continuing in the Council working group in Brussels.

Industrial and Provident Societies

Mr. Keen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set out the objectives of the forthcoming general review, under the deregulation initiative, of the industrial and provident societies legislation as outlined in the recent report of the Chief Registrar; what steps are being taken to consult interested societies and their members; if he will produce a timetable for the review; and if he will make a statement. [19449]

Mr. Nelson: A consultation document on proposed changes to industrial and provident societies legislation was published on 5 April, Official Report, column 1162. Copies have been sent to promoting bodies, professional accounting bodies, solicitors' firms, housing associations and co-operatives. Proposals include aligning the audit requirements for industrial and provident societies with those of companies and changing the timetable for submitting returns. The closing date for response is 12 May. Subject to the responses, the Government hope to put draft orders to the Deregulation Committee as soon as possible thereafter.

Schools (Tax Relief)

Mr. Blunkett: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if schools will be able to claim tax relief on money raised by parents. [18900]

Sir George Young [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Schools are generally exempt from tax on moneys they receive from fund-raising by parents.

Exchange Rates

Sir Teddy Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if Her Majesty's Government are required by the Maastricht treaty to seek to arrange their economic policies with a view to seek to engage sterling in a stable exchange rate with other Euro-currencies. [18154]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 4 April 1995]: There is no provision in the treaty which requires the United Kingdom to seek to maintain a stable exchange rate.

Income Tax

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give a breakdown by category of the number of people who have (a) been brought into paying income tax since 1992–93 and (b) will come into paying income tax in 1995–96 as compared with 1994–95. [17428]

Sir George Young [holding answer 31 March 1995]: Available information is given in the table. The increase in taxpayer numbers is largely due to economic growth. In addition, the number of people in work is increasing—the UK work force in employment had increases of 174,000 between December 1993 and December 1994. If the 1978–79 income tax regime had been indexed to 1995–96, there would be 1 million more taxpayers in 1995–96.

Number of taxpayers by status (thousands)

| | Single people | Husbands | Wives | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 10,460 | 9,080 | 5,840 | 25,400 |
| 1994–95[1] | 10,700 | 9,100 | 5,900 | 25,700 |
| 1995–96[1] | 10,800 | 9,400 | 6,000 | 26,200 |

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19364]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 18 April 1995]: My Department has not repealed any regulations this year. The following regulations were introduced in the first three months of the year:

The Natural History Museum (Authorised Repositories) Order 1995

The Wireless Telegraphy (Television Licence Fees) (Amendment) Regulations 1995.

Neither of these introduced new regulatory requirements which had costs for business.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19350]

Mr. Sproat [holding answer 18 April 1995]: My Department is committed to undertaking compliance cost assessments for all measures which impose costs on business. No such measures have been introduced this year and therefore no assessments have been prepared.

(2) what resources the British Technology Group has placed in the university sector (a) since 1991 and (b) in 1991 prior to privatisation. [19249]

Mr. Ian Taylor: This is a matter for the board.

Mr. Battle: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assets held by the British Technology Group have been sold since it was privatised. [19250]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Under the terms of a special share in British Technology Group, the Secretary of State's approval is required for any disposal of the whole or a material part of the assets of the group. No such disposal has taken place. Any other asset sales are a matter for the board.

Companies House

Mr. Peter Atkinson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what targets he has set Companies House executive agency for 1995–96. [19994]

Mr. Heseltine: I have set Companies House executive agency the following targets for 1995–96:

to make all statutory documents available for public inspection within a maximum of five working days of receipt in Companies House to achieve, on average, a monthly compliance rate for accounts submitted of 95 per cent. and for annual returns submitted of 93 per cent.

Mr. Keen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what steps he is taking to acknowledge the centenary celebrations of the international co-operative movement; and if he or one of his Ministers will be taking part in the centenary congress of the International Co-operative Alliance to be held in Manchester in September 1995. [19450]

Mr. Heseltine: No DTI Ministers will attend this event, but the Department expects to be represented at official level. I take this opportunity to wish the alliance a successful centennial congress.

Coal Mining Contractors Pension Scheme

Mr. McCartney: To ask the President of the Board of Trade (1) how many members of the coal mining contractors pension scheme fund who have pensions retained in the scheme are not contactable because the coal mining contractors pension scheme fund does not have accurate information on their addresses; [18831]

(2) what is the expected amount of the coal mining contractors pension scheme fund to be transferred to the insurance company to be selected by the trustees; [18833]

(3) what is the current total sum in the coal mining contractors pension scheme fund; [18832]

(4) how many members of the coal mining contractors pension scheme are currently in receipt of a pension; and how many are not yet in receipt of a pension but who will qualify for a pension once they attain the age of 65 years. [18830]

AEA Technology

Dr. Moonie: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the current actuarial value of the forecast total liabilities of the pension rights of the employees at AEA Technology; and if he will make a statement. [19156]

Mr. Heseltine [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Employees of AEA Technology are employed by the UKAEA. Detailed data are available only for the whole of the UKAEA. However, the value of the liabilities in respect of AEA Technology is estimated to lie in the range of £120 million to £160 million.

Arms Exports

Mr. Mullin: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Teignbridge (Mr. Nicholls) of 2 March, Official Report, column 716, if he will make a statement on how the EU criteria for arms exports were taken into consideration in the issuing of a licence to Alvis for the export of armoured vehicles to Indonesia. [19341]

Mr. Heseltine: I have nothing further to add to my statement of 2 March 1995.

Mr. Ian Taylor: Information concerning the paid overtime for the financial years 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95 is given in the table.

The Department could provide information on the monetary equivalents of these figures only at disproportionate cost. Data are not yet available for 1994.

Chernobyl

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will place in the Library a copy of the report on the stabilisation of the existing shelter and damaged remains of reactor 4 at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant in the Ukraine, commissioned by the European Commission under the EU Tacis contract WW92.04/01.01/B029. [19319]

Mr. Heseltine: The report in question is the property of the European Commission and is commercially confidential. However, the executive summary has been made available to the European Parliament, and copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

Waste Management

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment he has made of the implications for present waste management strategy at Sellafield of the agreement between British Nuclear Fuels and Nuclear Electric on 31 March on reprocessing and spent fuel management services; and what meetings Ministers or officials of his Department had with each company respectively, in regard to the matters set out in the agreement. [19321]

Mr. Heseltine: The agreement between British Nuclear Fuels plc and Nuclear Electric plc is a commercial matter for the companies involved. Subject to meeting the appropriate regulatory requirements, BNFL is responsible for waste management strategy at Sellafield as operators of the site. I understand from the company that the agreement has no implications for this strategy. Ministers and officials meet representatives from the two companies from time to time to discuss a range of issues.

Deregulation

Mr. Steen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 27 March, Official Report, column 410, if he will list the 1,000 regulations which have been targeted by Departments to remove unnecessary burdens to business; and if he will make a statement as to the progress proposed on each, and the timescale for so doing. [18090]

Mr. Jonathan Evans [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Of the 1,000 regulations, about 430 are concerned with transportation matters including about 25 aviation, about 250 maritime and about 150 road transport regulations; about 130 concern the Chancellor's Departments including amendments to the regulatory structure in implementing the investment services directive and the capital adequacy directive; regulatory changes arising from self-assessment of personal taxation and simplification of VAT accounting; about 110 are concerned with health and safety including legislation under the Health and Safety at Work, etc Act 1974; about 100 concern trade and industry, including consumer protection, weights and measures, patents, insurance regulation, company and competition law; about 80 relate to local government, housing, environmental controls, and planning and building regulations; about 75 deal with agricultural, fisheries and food matters; about 50 relate to health matters including human medicines and food safety legislation; about 30 concern matters dealt with by the Home Office including legislation on gambling, liquor licensing, street trading, public entertainment licensing and game licensing; the remainder are from other departments with regulatory responsibilities.

Considerable progress has already been made in implementing these changes. The timetable for the remainder varies because of the need for consultation with those affected by the regulations, but we expect about half of the 1,000 to have been dealt with by the end of the year.

Deregulatory action is also being undertaken in a number of other important areas, including ensuring that new regulations are introduced only if they are needed and have the minimum possible compliance costs; making enforcement procedures more business friendly; and promoting a deregulatory approach in the European Union.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19369]

Mr. Heseltine [holding answer 18 April 1995]: In the first three months of 1995, there were three simple repeals of regulation. In the same period, 21 were introduced, not including commencement orders, Orders in Council and instruments not subject to parliamentary procedure, such as translations into Welsh, of which:

nine repealed earlier instruments or substituted a more favourable regime for business two implemented EU obligations, including measures to facilitate trade between member states four facilitated privatisations and competition

four updated fees and charges or related to local legislation the remaining two, while not fitting any of the categories above, had no adverse impact on business

Very few introduced new regulatory requirements which had costs for business.

Other deregulatory activity by my Department is described in the answer to another question given to my hon. Friend today.

Mr. Steen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19354]

Mr. Heseltine [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Government have agreed that a compliance cost assessment should be prepared in the following circumstances:

in support of papers for collective discussion that deal with proposals which may have an impact on business;

when preparing statistical surveys which will involve business;

alongside draft primary, secondary and EC legislation having an impact on business when it is presented to Parliament;

as part of the advice to Ministers on the line to be taken on a private Member's Bill which affects business;

All CCAs accompanying draft Government legislation are published. My Department issued four of these in the first three months of this year, copies of which are in the Library. A list of all CCAs issued between November 1993 and June 1994 was published in December 1994—Cm 2719. Another Command Paper covering the period July to December 1994 will be published shortly.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19849]

Mr. Ian Taylor: In the last five years the only item purchased for my Department's London headquarters which contains mahogany was a veneer meeting table bought in 1990 at a cost of around £400. Comparable information is not available for the DTI's agencies.

Pergau Dam

Mr. Worthington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his answer of 31 March, Official Report, column 886, in what circumstances further contributions will be made from the public purse to meet cost escalations for the Pergau dam. [19692]

Mr. Heseltine: No approach has been made to date which will entail additional contributions from the public purse to meet cost escalations for the Pergau dam.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19363]

Mr. Howard [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Thirty eight instruments were revoked in the months January, February and March 1995. Twenty-eight statutory instruments were made during that period, not including commencement orders. Orders in Council and instruments not subject to parliamentary procedure. Of these, over half revoked earlier instruments or substituted a more favourable regime for business.

Firearms

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the (a) name, (b) occupation or former occupation, (c) place of residence and (d) annual honorarium, allowance and/or payment of each member of the Advisory Committee on Firearms; and if he will make a statement; [19017]

(2) what recommendations he has received from the Advisory Committee on Firearms in relation to the certification of shotguns in the past five years; and if he will make a statement. [19019]

Mr. Maclean: The Firearms Consultative Committee is a statutory body set up under section 22 of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988. Members appointed to the committee are chosen from those who appear to the Home Secretary to have knowledge and experience of either the possession, use or keeping of, or transactions in firearms; or weapon technology; or the administration or enforcement of the provisions of the Firearms Acts in Great Britain.

A list of committee members with biographies relevant to their appointment is contained in the committee's fifth annual report, a copy of which is in the Library. Since the report was published, Lord Shrewsbury has assumed chairmanship of the committee and Sir Malcolm Guthrie has resigned. Communications to committee members should be addressed to the Secretary, Firearms Consultative Committee, 50 Queen Anne's gate, London SW1H 9AT. Members receive no allowance, but travelling expenses are reimbursed.

The recommendations received from the Firearms Consultative Committee in the past five years including those relating to the certification of shotguns are listed in the committee's fifth annual report.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will list the differences between the current legislation governing (a) firearms and (b) shotgun certificates; and if he will make a statement; [19027]

(2) what plans he has to bring the legislation governing shotgun certificates into line with the legislation governing firearm certificates; and if he will make a statement. [19026]

Mr. Maclean: Before issuing either a firearm or shotgun certificate, a chief officer of police must consider whether the applicant is, by virtue of a previous conviction, prohibited from possessing firearms and whether the applicant can be permitted to possess firearms without danger to the public safety or to the peace. In addition, a firearm certificate will be refused where the chief officer is not satisfied that the applicant has a good reason for possessing the firearm(s) in question. A shotgun certificate will be refused where the chief officer is satisfied that the applicant does not have a good reason for possessing shotguns. The holder of a firearm certificate must obtain further authority from the police for each additional firearm he wishes to keep. The holder of a shotgun certificate may acquire additional shotguns subject to notifying the police of each acquisition.

There are no plans to bring the legislation governing the issue of shotgun certificates in Great Britain completely into line with that for firearm certificates, but the Firearms Consultative Committee in its fifth annual report recommended that a working group be set up to consider the issue of licensing as a whole. The merits of a single certificate to cover both firearms and shotguns will be considered.

Closed Circuit Television

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 March, Official Report, column 853, if Wood Green high road's bid was among those 289 bids for CCTV assessed by the panel as being of good or very good quality. [18800]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Yes.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 March, Official Report, column 853, how many of the 289 CCTV bids assessed as being of good or very good quality were from London. [19374]

Mr. Maclean: Thirty-three.

Criminal Injuries Compensation Claims

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of claimants under (a) the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board and (b) the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority lived in London in the last year for which figures are available. [19392]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Definitive records are not available centrally. However, such records as are available suggest that in the year 1 April 1994 to 31 March 1995 about 12.5 per cent. of the claims registered by CICA had a London address. The only figures available in respect of CICB relate to the period December 1993 to March 1994, when about 8 per cent. of the claims registered appear to have had a London address.

Police National Computer

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consideration his Department has given to private sector investment in the operation and maintenance of the police national computer. [19153]

Mr. Maclean: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for Leyton

(Mr. Cohen) on 8 March 1995, Official Report, columns 185–86.

Miscarriages of Justice

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information he has received from the Association of Chief Police Officers about the cost of police investigations into alleged and proven miscarriages of justice in the last five years. [19040]

Mr. Maclean: None. However, we are due shortly to discuss with the association the results of a survey of the costs of a small sample of recently completed investigations, based on information supplied to the Home Office by the police forces concerned.

Crime Rates

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list for each OECD country for which data are available the total of recorded crime in 1979, 1987 and 1993, with an index for each country where 1979=100. [18898]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The readily available information on crimes recorded by the police in OECD countries is provided in the table:

Crimes[1] recorded by the police in OECD countries[2]

[1] More serious offences. In many countries defined as against the "penal code" or "criminal code" and excludes less serious crimes—misdemeanours. The range of offences covered differ between each country and some countries acknowledge double counting in the collection of such statistics. Comparisons based upon absolute figures are therefore misleading. For certain countries, it is additionally known that in the period 1979–87, improvements in data quality and changes in the penal code have affected these statistics.

Drugs

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list those mines where the British Coal occupational health service currently maintains responsibility for the holding of pethidine; in which mines pethidine is currently (a) held and (b) not held; and if he will make a statement. [19389]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Mines are covered by a group licence issued by the Home Office to enable them to hold certain controlled drugs, including pethidine, on site for emergency use.

The British Coal Corporation's occupational health service currently maintains responsibility for the supply of pethidine to the following mines:

Annesley/Bentinck
Asfordby

None of these mines currently holds pethidine on site.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the legislative differences relating to drugs which are classified as schedule 3 as compared with those classified as schedule 4; and if he will make a statement. [19015]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The differences between the controls on drugs in schedule 3 and schedule 4 of the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985 are as follows:

possession of schedule 3 drugs requires authority. Possession of schedule 4 drugs does not require authority when they are in the form of medicinal products;

import and export licences are required for schedule 3 drugs but not for schedule 4 drugs;

certain schedule 3 drugs are subject to the Misuse of Drugs (Safe Custody) Regulations 1973 which require them to be kept in a locked cabinet or locked receptacle. The remaining schedule 3 and all schedule 4 drugs are exempted from these requirements; schedule 3 drugs are subject to specific requisitioning requirements; prescriptions must be handwritten by doctors; supply on prescription is subject to certain requirements; and there are labelling requirements for some containers. Schedule 4 drugs are exempted from these requirements.

Prison Population

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Knowsley, North (Mr. Howarth) of 17 March, Official Report, column 761, if he will list the prisons which his Department regards as significantly over the average level of overcrowding in all prisons. [18209]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Jim Cunningham, dated 19 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about those prisons which are regarded as significantly over the average level of overcrowding in all prisons.

On 31 March 1995 the total population of the 133 prison establishments in England and Wales was 51,121. The total Certified Normal Accommodation in use at those establishments was 49,441. The percentage overcrowding in the prison estate as a whole was, therefore, 3%.

Of those 133 establishments, 45 had a population in excess of their Certified Normal Accommodation in use. The average percentage by which the population of these 45 establishments exceeded their Certified Normal Accommodation in use was 22%. In 18 of these 45 establishments, the population exceeded the Certified Normal Accommodation in use by a percentage greater than 22%. These establishments are shown in the attached table.

Prison establishments with a population of more than 22 per cent. higher than their certified normal accommodation in use on 31 March 1995

|---|---|
| Birmingham | 45 |
| Brixton | 23 |
| Canterbury | 49 |
| Cardiff | 48 |
| Chelmsford | 57 |
| Dorchester | 42 |
| Durham | 41 |
| Exeter | 53 |
| Leeds | 31 |
| Leicester | 80 |
| Lincoln | 42 |
| Low Newton | 40 |
| Pentonville | 31 |
| Preston | 39 |
| Shepton Mallet | 32 |
| Shrewsbury | 83 |
| Stafford | 48 |
| Swansea | 46 |

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what resources are available to deal with overcrowding in prison. [18217]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Jim Cunningham, dated 19 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the resources available to deal with overcrowding in prisons.

The majority of prisons are not overcrowded. Overcrowding is concentrated principally in some local prisons and remand centres. This is because of the need to hold unsentenced prisoners close to the courts.

Our first priority is to ensure that existing accommodation is fully utilised. In addition, there is a substantial programme for the building of new accommodation. By the end of the decade, this will provide 6,400 new prison places through the building of new prisons and new houseblocks at existing prisons.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria his Department uses to determine the funding given to prisons in the United Kingdom with particular reference to prison numbers and overcrowding. [18216]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Funding for prisons in England and Wales takes account of the need to accommodate the projected prison population with minimum overcrowding in accordance with agreed standards and policies.

Funding for prisons in Scotland and in Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the relevant Secretaries of State.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list (a) the official cell capacity and (b) the inmate prison population in each prison in England and Wales on 24 March. [17236]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Portland Young Offenders Institution

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements were made to evacuate those detained in the young offenders institution, Portland, during the unexploded bomb defusing emergency on 1 and 2 April; and if he will make a statement. [18917]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Rhodri Morgan, dated 19 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the evacuation arrangements at Portland Young Offender Institution when an unexploded bomb was recently discovered in the vicinity.

Based upon expert advice received by the Major in charge of the bomb disposal squad, action was taken to relocate 90 inmates within the establishment but away from those areas which may have been at risk if the bomb had exploded.

Throughout the emergency high levels of supervision and control were exercised.

John Martin Scripps (Home Leave)

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) who made the decision to grant John Martin Scripps temporary home leave from Mount prison in October 1994; and which Ministers were involved in approving the decision to grant him temporary home leave; [17960]

(2) what inquiries or investigations have been set up into the decision in October 1994 to grant temporary home leave to John Martin Scripps; [17957]

(3) if he will give details of all previous occasions on which John Martin Scripps, who absconded from Mount prison in October 1994 while on temporary home leave, failed to return from such leave; [17958]

(4) if he will outline what factors were taken into account in determining the suitability of John Martin Scripps for temporary home leave from Mount prison in October 1994. [17959]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. George Howarth, dated 19 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Questions about the decision to grant John Martin Scripps temporary home leave.

On 2 October 1982 Mr. Scripps was sentenced to three years imprisonment for burglary. Whilst serving that sentence he was granted home leave from Spring Hill prison and failed to return on 5 June 1984. He was unlawfully at large until 15 March 1985 during which time he committed further offences for which he was sentenced to two years imprisonment concurrent to the sentence he was serving. Mr. Scripps completed this sentence on 25 November 1986.

On 22 January 1988 Mr. Scripps was sentenced to seven years imprisonment on charges of importing drugs. After serving the initial part of his sentence in Wandsworth and Swaleside prisons he was re-categorised from Category B to Category C and transferred on 24 January 1989 to Highpoint prison. On 1 June 1990 he was granted home leave and failed to return.

Mr. Scripps was arrested at Heathrow airport in November 1990 and charged with two offences of smuggling drugs. He was convicted and sentenced to six years imprisonment, consecutive to the seven years he was already serving.

In September 1993 Mr. Scripps applied for home leave and this was considered under the criteria set out in Circular Instruction No. 43/1992, a copy of which is in the Library of the House. The application was refused but in December 1993 he re-applied and this was granted for home leave to be taken in February 1994. He returned on time and he was granted a further home leave in April 1994 from which he returned on time.

On 24 August 1994 Mr. Scripps applied to take further home leave in October and this was approved by the appropriate governor grade. These applications are not required to be put to Ministers and none was involved in making these decisions about Mr. Scripps.

The area manager has set up an investigation into the decisions to grant Mr. Scripps home leave and, in particular, to establish what factors were taken into account in determining Mr. Scripps' suitability. I shall write to you again once this information is available.

On 4 April, the Home Secretary tabled amendments to the Prison Rules introducing tighter control on the temporary release of prisoners and, under these, Mr. Scripps would not have been eligible for release on temporary licence during his current sentence.

Parkhurst Prison (Security)

Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when (a) he and (b) the Director General of the Prison Service was informed of security problems at HM prison, Parkhurst prior to the breakout in January; and if he will publish or place in the Library details of such warnings; [17291]

(2) when he received a warning from the former governor of HM prison, Parkhurst, Mr. John Marriott, of potential security problems at the prison. [17290]

Mr. Howard: I explained in my statement to the House on 10 January the extent to which I was made aware of the security concerns at Parkhurst and the action which was taken as a result. As I indicated in that statement, I have asked Sir John Learmont and Sir John Woodcock to carry out an independent assessment of events at Parkhurst. This will include the issue of any warnings about security at Parkhurst which were given before the escapes on 3 January. The findings of their report will be published.

Women Fine Defaulters

Ms Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many women served custodial sentences for fine defaulting in each year since 1989. [17206]

Letter from Derek Lewis to Ms Janet Anderson, dated 19 April 1995:

Mr. Richards: My right hon. Friend and I have received many representations on the question of the funding of education over the last 12 months. The funding of education is, however, a local government responsibility. We have made it clear that, in our view, there is sufficient scope for local authorities in Wales to fund education appropriately from within the overall settlement they have had. By long-standing arrangement, it is for local authorities in Wales to decide their priorities for spending.

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the expenditure per pupil in each county council for (a) 1992–93, (b) 1993–94, (c) 1994–95 and (d) 1995–96. [19507]

Religious Education

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has received for Welsh Office funding of courses to promote his policies in the field of religious education in schools; and what plans he has to fund courses in addition to the money made available through grant for education support and training. [18859]

Mr. Richards: I have received one recent representation about the funding of religious education courses. GEST itself provides a sound mechanism for funding such courses.

Children's Oral Health

Practice and Fund Managers

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his oral statement to the Welsh Grand

Committee on 4 April, Official Report, Welsh Grand Committee, columns 1-8, what statistical information he has on the number of practice managers and fund managers in post in each year since April 1991; and by what legal authority their salaries are paid. [19254]

Mr. Redwood: Although information on the numbers of staff employed by general medical practitioners has been collected for a number of years, the number of practice managers was collected, as a separate category, for the first time at 1 April 1994 when there were 523—373 whole-time equivalent—in Wales. Information on fund managers has not yet been collected as a separate category.

General medical practitioners are self-employed contractors to the NHS and, as employers, are responsible for the salaries of their staff.

Welsh Development Agency

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if his Department gave consent to contract splitting in relation to the contract awarded to KLR and Co., consultants to the Welsh Development Agency on information technology and general financial management; if he will list the principal points in which his consent to contract splitting would affect the tendering and approval procedures; and if he will make a statement. [19222]

Mr. Redwood: KLR and Co. was contracted to provide cover for the vacant post of chief finance officer on 9 March 1995. This was in addition to the contract under which KLR and Co. was engaged to review the agency's information systems on 23 December 1994.

These were separate contracts and my consent was not required.

[19255]

Mr. Redwood: None. The commissioning of the report did not require my Department's consent, although I agreed that the agency should commission an investigation.

Mr. David Griffiths

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the principal points of (a) agreements and (b) disagreement in his meeting with former Health Promotion Authority for Wales board member Mr. David Griffiths on 3 April; what offers he made to Mr. Griffiths regarding his reinstatement on another non-departmental public body in (i) health or (ii) another field; and if he answered Mr. Griffiths's request for answers to his letter regarding the conduct and control of senior officers and board members and their overseas travel at the Health Promotion Authority for Wales. [19256]

Mr. Redwood: On 3 April 1995, I met with directors of education in Wales. Mr. Griffiths was present in his capacity as director of education for Gwent. The meeting was concerned only with various education matters.

Mr. Griffiths has been invited to serve as a non-executive director of the University Dental Hospital NHS trust and he has accepted that appointment.

I have answered the points Mr. Griffiths raised with me.

Hinkley Point A

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he or officials of his Department were consulted by the nuclear installations inspectorate in regard to the prospective safety implications for Wales over the decision announced on 3 April to give Nuclear Electric permission to extend the operating life of the Hinkley Point A magnox reactor. [19306]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The nuclear installations inspectorate recently completed is assessment of Nuclear Electric's periodic safety review for Hinkley Point A. This concluded that safety remains adequately high for continued operation of the plant.

Although the Welsh Office was not specifically consulted about it, the review included detailed consideration of the risks to the general public in the UK, including Wales.

Horse Disease

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the number of cases of equine encephalomyelitis in each year since 1985. [19265]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No cases of equine encephalomyelitis have occurred in Wales since 1985.

Warble Fly

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the number of cases of warble fly in (a) 1984 and (b) 1994. [19261]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given today by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food.

School Buildings

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated total expenditure required to clear the backlog of repairs to school buildings, per county council. [19508]

Mr. Redwood: Such information is not held centrally. Local education authorities are responsible for the repair and maintenance of school buildings.

Housing Subsidy

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the housing revenue grant for each Welsh district council for each year from 1992–93 to date. [19431]

Mr. Redwood: The amount of housing revenue account subsidy paid to Welsh district councils since 1992–93 is set out in the following table.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19672]

Mr. Redwood: Overtime payments in the last three financial years were:

£000

| | Welsh Office | Cadw |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 267 | 177 |
| 1993–94 | 539 | 185 |
| 1994–95 | 355 | 161 |

Working days, excluding weekends, lost through sickness were:

| | Welsh Office | Cadw |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 23,644 | 3,079 |
| 1993–94 | 23,831 | 2,931 |
| 1994–95 | 21,163 | 3,122 |

Information is not held centrally on the number of hours of overtime worked nor on the monetary equivalent of time lost through sickness absence.

Figures for 1994–95 are to 28 February 1995.

Market Testing

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what was the capital asset value of the computing and information technology services included in the market-testing/competitive tendering programme for each regional health authority for 1994–95 (a) as recorded on asset registers at 31 March 1994 (b) at project net book value as at 31 March 1994 and (c) as identified in the statement of services requirements of assets likely to be transferred to the successful supplier. [19502]

Mr. Richards: There is no regional health authority in Wales. No IT services provided by the Welsh Health Common Services Authority were market-tested in 1994–95.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years, and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19844]

Mr. Redwood: Three items of furniture containing mahogany from a sustainably managed source have been purchased in the last five years at a cost of £1,922.

SCOTLAND

Organ Transplants

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what provision the national health service makes for patients awaiting organ transplants requiring multiple prescriptions who are disqualified from free prescriptions because they are above income support levels; what plans he has to revise the specified conditions list to make patients awaiting organ transplants exempt from prescription charges either totally or above a specified level; and if he will make a statement; [19037]

(2) when the last review of the specified conditions list was carried out; on what date changes resulting from this review were implemented; how the review and its implementation impacted upon those awaiting organ transplants; how the review and its implementation impacted upon those whose medical condition precludes the reasonable prospect of an organ transplant; and if he will make a statement. [19035]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Patients awaiting organ transplants who are not otherwise exempt or entitled to the remission of charges may qualify for free prescriptions if they have any one of the specified medical conditions, including a permanent fistula requiring continuous surgical dressing or an appliance, and hold an exemption certificate issued by a health board. The specified medical conditions were last reviewed in 1993 as part of the fundamental review of health expenditure and we have no plans for change. Prescription prepayment certificates continue to offer savings for anyone not entitled to free prescriptions who needs frequent or extensive medication. Coupled with the wide-ranging arrangements for charge exemption and remission, they ensure that no one need be deterred from obtaining necessary prescribed medication for financial reasons.

Drugs, Paisley

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the report entitled "The Paisley Plan to Smash the Drugs Dealers", a copy of which was sent to him on 29 March. [19005]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State welcomes the report which was discussed in detail at a meeting attended by the hon. Member and my noble and learned Friend the Minister of State on 29 March. He fully supports the efforts being made by Strathclyde police to deal with the drugs-related problems in Paisley.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what guidelines he has issued to health boards on the prescription of Temazepam; what is the latest date that he issued these guidelines; what guidelines he plans to issue; and if he will make a statement. [19013]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In the light of concern about the misuse of Temazepam, the Chief Medical Officer at the Scottish Office had discussions with directors of public health in November 1992 about measures which might be taken to tackle the problem. Local action so far has included voluntary bans or restrictions on prescribing in some areas, and initiatives to raise the awareness of doctors about the implications of misuse.

Health boards were also asked to develop local policies in 1994–95 to reduce the use of anxiolytics and hypnotics—which include Temazepam—and to ensure that systems are in place for the clinical review of all repeat prescribing.

Guidance on the prescribing of benzodiazepines, including Temazepam and other hypnotic and anxiolytic drugs, was most recently issued in November 1994 in the form of a report prepared by a working group set up by the Scottish National Medical Advisory Committee. The report, which was issued to health boards and all doctors in Scotland, gives practical advice on how the prescribing of benzodiazepines can be reduced.

The need for further advice is being kept under review.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what recommendations have been received from the Advisory Committee on the Misuse of Drugs in relation to Temazepam since 1992; what action he has taken on these recommendations; if he will review the position of his Department in relation to these recommendations; and if he will make a statement. [19021]

(2) If he will make Temazepam a schedule 3, rather than a schedule 4, drug as soon as possible; and if he will make a statement. [18995]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs reviewed the controls on Temazepam in 1992–93 and recommended, subject to public consultation, that the drug should be re-scheduled from schedule 4 to schedule 3 of the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985. Following wide public consultation and consideration the of responses, the council recommended to the Home Secretary in July 1993 that control of the drug should be tightened. The issues involved are complex, but the Government hope to announce the outcome of their consideration soon.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how the private prescription of Temazepam and other drugs is controlled and regulated; what record is kept by (a) doctors and (b) pharmacists of private prescriptions; what plans he has to tighten up the private prescription of Temazepam; and if he will make a statement. [19010]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: When prescribing in a private capacity, general practitioners operate outside the General Medical Service Regulations. It is good professional practice to keep accurate medical records. The General Medical Council has regarded as serious professional misconduct the prescription or supply of drugs of dependence otherwise than in the course of bona fide treatment.

The Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985 require that when a private prescription is dispensed by a pharmacist an entry must be made in the private prescription book on the date of dispensing, or if that is not reasonably practicable on the following day. Also, the book must be preserved for two years from the date of the last entry and, in the case of prescription only medicines such as Temazepam, the prescription must be retained for two years. The regulations require that private prescriptions be produced for inspection on request by the Home Office drugs inspectorate or by other persons authorised to demand this information.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to ban Temazepam in its jelly formulation; and if he will make a statement. [19024]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I have no such immediate plans but the misuse of Temazepam capsules is of particular concern and we will keep the position under review.

Police, Strathclyde

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the progress of the civilianisation programme undertaken by Strathclyde police over the past few years; and how it has been supported by the Scottish Office. [19033]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The following table shows the numbers of civilians added to the authorised establishment of Strathclyde police each year since 1992 and the numbers of police officers released in consequence for operational duty.

| | Number of additional civilians | Number of officers released |
|---|---|---|
| 1992 | 79 | 68 |
| 1993 | 94 | 83 |

| | Number of additional civilians | Number of officers released |
|---|---|---|
| 1994 | 84 | 46 |
| 1995 (to 31 March) | 98 | 85 |
| Total | 355 | 282 |

The Scottish Office pays police grant the usual way at 51 per cent. of expenditure by Strathclyde regional council on the additional staff.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of the overtime budget of Strathclyde police has been spent in the two months since 1 February on (a) witness duties in court where police evidence was taken, (b) witness duties in court where police evidence was not heard for any reason, (c) the protests against the construction of the M77 link road and (d) drugs-related crime and violence within K division; and if he will make a statement. [19031]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information for the eight-week period between 23 January and 19 March 1995 supplied by Strathclyde police is set out in the following table.

|---|---|---|
| Overtime in the period from 23 January 1995 to 19 March 1995 incurred in relation to: | | |
| (a)—(b) Court attendance | 48.9 | 4.1 |
| (Records do not differentiate between officers who give evidence and those who do not) (c) M77 link road protests | 7.1 | 0.6 |
| (d) Drugs-related crime and violence in K Division | 0.8 | 0.07 |

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what requests for additional police officers the chief constable of Strathclyde police has made to (a) him and (b) Strathclyde regional council within the past 12 months; what consultations he has carried out with Strathclyde regional council on the funding of additional police officers within its area during that period; what action he has taken to assist or facilitate funding for such requests from the chief constable; and if he will make a statement. [19032]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Since the strength of Strathclyde police has been below authorised establishment during the past 12 months, there has been no need for Strathclyde regional council to seek the consent of the Secretary of State to recruit additional officers. Between 31 March 1994 and 31 March 1995 the strength of the force increased by 154, but 20 additional officers could still be recruited before the consent of the Secretary of State would be required.

Sheltered Housing

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will make a statement on the desirability of developing sheltered housing in the Foxbar area of Paisley to allow residents there to remain within the community; and if he will make a statement. [18991]

(2) what assessment criteria are used by Scottish Homes in determining the need for sheltered housing in communities; how the agency facilitates the development of sheltered housing by housing associations and co-operatives; and if he will make a statement, with specific reference to the Foxbar area of Paisley. [18992]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Housing for community care client groups, including elderly people, is a national priority for both local housing authorities and Scottish Homes and, wherever possible, housing initiatives should seek to maintain the existing social framework. However, the provision of sheltered housing, including its location, is decided by local housing authorities, working in partnership, as appropriate, with Scottish Homes, housing associations and other interests.

Scottish Homes issued a discussion paper, "Housing the Elderly in the 1990s", in May 1993. Scottish Homes is considering the responses to that paper and will publish a policy statement shortly. It is for Scottish Homes to assess its funding of individual housing association projects. I understand that the chairman, Sir James Mellon, has written recently to the hon. Member about plans for the Foxbar area and has offered briefing by local members of staff.

Eye Tests

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what percentage of the population was eligible for free NHS eye examinations in each of the last 10 available years. [19001]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Until April 1989 everyone was eligible for free NHS sight tests. Since April 1989, when eligibility was restricted to certain groups, around 40 per cent. of the population in Scotland has been eligible.

Alcohol

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to amend the laws on drinking alcohol in public places; and if he will make a statement. [18982]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: We have no such plans. In 1993, following an experiment in three authority areas, we invited all local authorities to consider making byelaws prohibiting the consumption of alcohol in designated public places. Byelaws require the confirmation of my right hon. Friend and are already in place in parts of Dundee, Motherwell and East Kilbride. Many other authorities, including Renfrew district council, are working up proposals.

NHS Trusts

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list for each NHS trust in Scotland the chairpersons and non-executive directors who live outside the boundaries of the operational boundaries of that trust. [18984]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: There are no such chairpersons or non-executive directors. The small number who do not live in the immediate vicinity of the NHS trust concerned all come from the trust's catchment area.

Evening Primrose Oil

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will enable general practitioners to prescribe evening primrose oil, and products containing it, as a treatment for arthritis; and if he will make a statement. [18985]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: There are no preparations containing evening primrose oil which hold a product license for the treatment of arthritis. Licensed versions are available only for the treatment of eczema and mastalgia. Where general practitioners consider that it is clinically appropriate they may prescribe a drug on a named patient basis for a use outside its licensed indication. However, drugs which are listed in schedule 10 of the National Health Service (General Medical Services) (Scotland) Regulations 1995 may not be prescribed under the NHS.

A number of unlicensed evening primrose products are available for general sale but are included in the list of items which general practitioners cannot prescribe under the NHS, on the recommendation of the independent Advisory Committee on Borderline Substances.

Raymond Gilmour

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the progress of his consideration of the application for the prerogative of mercy for and on behalf of Raymond Gilmour. [19004]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: I refer the hon. Member to my reply of 6 March, Official Report, column 86–87. Inquiries into the matters raised on Mr. Gilmour's behalf are continuing.

Warble Fly

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of cases of warble fly in (a) 1984 and (b) 1994. [19259]

Sir Hector Monro: In 1984, 23 herds were found to be infested with warble fly. No cases were reported in 1994.

Drugs Prescribing

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what are the legislative differences relating to drugs which are classified as schedule 3 as compared with those classified as schedule 4; and if he will make a statement. [19014]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The differences between the controls on drugs in schedule 3 and those in schedule 4 to the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985 are as follows:

possession of schedule 3 drugs requires authority. Possession of schedule 4 drugs does not require authority when they are in the form of medicinal products;

import and export licences are required for schedule 3 drugs but not for schedule 4 drugs;

certain schedule 3 drugs are subject to the Misuse of Drugs (Safe Custody) Regulations 1973 which require them to be kept in a locked cabinet or locked receptacle. The remaining schedule 3 and all schedule 4 drugs are exempted from these requirements; schedule 3 drugs are subject to specific requisitioning requirements; prescriptions must be handwritten by doctors; specified checks must be made before the drugs may be supplied on prescription; and containers must be labelled. Schedule 4 drugs are exempted from these requirements.

Floods, Strathclyde

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the financial and other assistance given to individuals and local authorities following the floods in Strathclyde during December 1994. [18998]

Mr. Kynoch: The Government have assisted both individuals and local authorities in dealing with the consequences of the flooding. Resources totalling over £7 million have been made available including:

£100,000 supplementary capital allocation to Renfrew district council in 1994–95, to provide temporary accommodation for those made homeless;

£200,000 supplementary capital allocation to Glasgow district council in 1994–95 to undertake urgent housing repairs;

£1.365 million supplementary capital allocations to Strathclyde regional council in 1994–95 for urgent repair work on non-housing services;

authorising Renfrew district council to carry forward unutilised capital consent of up to a maximum of £1.85 million from 1994–95 for expenditure in 1995–96;

authorising Strathkelvin district council to carry forward unutilised capital consent of up to a maximum of £0.53 million from 1994–95 for expenditure in 1995–96;

£2.5 million additional capital allocations in 1995–96 for remedial work on housing to Renfrew district council and Strathkelvin district council;

£10,000 contribution to Clyde river purification board study on the cause and extent of the recent flooding; and an increase of £180,000 in the 1995–96 non-housing capital consent allocation to Renfrew district council to meet the cost of repairs to the Linwood sports centre.

£120,000 from DSS social fund for payments to individuals in need.

In addition, the Government scheme of special financial assistance, known as the Bellwin scheme, has been activated.

A draft national planning policy guideline on planning and flooding has recently been issued for consultation.

Equine Encephalomyelitis

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the number of cases of equine encephalomyelitis in each year since 1985. [19263]

Sir Hector Monro: Equine encephalomyelitis has never been recorded in Scotland.

Registered Drug Addicts

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to introduce photo-identity passes for registered drug users to ensure that they cannot attend more than one drug-prescribing centre to obtain drug supplies; if he will consider introducing legislation so that all registered drug users are required to register exclusively with the health board in whose area they reside and that this health board maintain a photo-identity record of the registered user; if he will consider supplementing this legislation with a requirement that anyone seeking to register as a drug user must do so through his or her local health board and must specify a single prescribing centre to attend; if he will, in addition, legislate to ensure that anyone seeking to register as a drug user must be referred back to his or her local health board; if he will ensure that cross-referencing within and between each health board is encouraged and funded; and if he will make a statement. [19008]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The arrangement recommended in the British National Formulary, and followed by many medical practices, is that registered addicts, before obtaining supplies of certain controlled drugs, should name the pharmacy where they will have their prescription dispensed. The prescription is then sent direct to that pharmacy by the medical practice. There are no plans at present to introduce photo-identity passes.

Divorce Law Reform

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will bring forward proposals for an extension of divorce law reform which includes mediation provisions to Scotland. [19526]

Mr. Lang: I am considering the Scottish Law Commission report, "Reform of the Ground for Divorce"—Scot. Law Com. No. 116 of 1989—in the light of the consultation document, "Looking to the Future: Mediation and the Ground for Divorce", which was issued in England and Wales in December 1993 by my noble and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor, but I have no immediate plans to bring forward proposals to reform divorce law in Scotland.

Birds (Licences)

Mr. Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many licences were issued in Scotland under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 for the killing of (a) goosanders, (b) red-breasted mergansers and (c) cormorants during (i) 1993 and (ii) 1994; and what bag limits were imposed on these licences. [19498]

Sir Hector Monro: The information is as follows:

| Licences issued for | 1993 | Limits of birds to be shot | 1994 | Limits of birds to be shot |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Cormorant | 12 | 166 | 13 | 100 |
| Goosander | — | — | 1 | 50 |
| Cormorant and goosander and red-breasted merganser | 12 | 632 | 10 | 618 |
| Cormorant and red-breasted merganser | 1 | 30 | 2 | 70 |
| Cormorant and goosander | 5 | 302 | 7 | 465 |
| Goosander and red-breasted merganser | 2 | 80 | 2 | 50 |

Market Testing

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the capital asset value of the computing and information technology services included in the market testing/competitive tendering programme for each regional health authority for 1994–95 (a) as recorded on asset registers at 31 March 1994, (b) at project net book value as at 31 March 1994 and (c) as identified in the statement of services requirements of assets likely to be transferred to the successful supplier. [19500]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not available centrally.

Environment Protection Agency

Mr. Raymond S. Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to appoint a chairman to the Scottish Environment Protection Agency. [20161]

Mr. Lang: Subject to the successful passage of the Environment Bill, I intend to appoint Professor William Turmeau, who recently retired as principal and vice-chancellor of Napier university, Edinburgh, to become the chairman of the Scottish Environment Protection Agency at an initial salary of £36,000 per annum.

Listeriosis

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of listeriosis were recorded in each of the past five years; and what were the main causes. [18919]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The numbers of cases of human listeriosis reported to the Scottish Centre for Infection and Environmental Health during the period 1990 to 1994 are as follows. Although no specific source of infection was identified for these particular cases, there is general agreement, based on international experience, that food-borne infection is the predominant means of transmission. Hospital-acquired infection and person-to-person spread are also recognised, but these are less common routes of transmission.

Jurors

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland on how many occasions over the last year for which figures are available females have been objected to as jurors; and what evidence he has of the number of occasions on which women have been objected to in rape cases. [17479]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 4 April 1995]: No records of objections are maintained.

Prescriptions

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what has been for each health board in Scotland the costs of operating the prescription service for medication in the NHS for each year since 1979–80. [18260]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 5 April 1995]: The cost to each health board of operating the prescription service can be calculated by adding together the net ingredient cost of drugs and appliances and the fees and allowances paid for dispensing these items, and then deducting the income generated from NHS prescription charges paid by patients and from the sale of pre-payment certificates. The following table gives the information, calculated on this basis, for each of the years from 1979–80 until 1993–94. Equivalent information for 1994–95 is not yet available.

Residential Homes

Dr. Godman: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, pursuant to his answer, of 22 March, Official Report, columns 337–38, when he expects to receive the report of the working group which is examining inter alia, the ownership, management and monitoring of privately owned residential homes for the elderly; if he will place a copy in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [18089]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I expect to receive the report of the working group in the autumn when I will consider its recommendations.

ENVIRONMENT

Caravans

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will discuss with the Valuation Office reasons for the change in the basis for valuation of caravans; what representations he has received from caravan owners relating to this decision by the Valuation Office; and if he will make a statement. [18668]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We have received many representations from caravan site operators and some from owners of individual caravans about the approach which has been adopted by the Valuation Office to the valuation of caravan parks for the purposes of the 1995 non-domestic rating revaluation. I understand that the agency is discussing the issues further with representatives of caravan site operators.

Wildlife Imports (Vietnam)

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received on the importation of wildlife into the United Kingdom from Vietnam; and what steps he will take to stop the practice. [19828]

Sir Paul Beresford: My Department has received representations on the import into the United Kingdom of crab-eating monkeys from Vietnam. The UK and Vietnam are parties to the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species, which regulates international trade in wildlife. Under CITES, crab-eating monkeys can be imported into the UK from Vietnam, provided certain strict conditions are met. However, no such imports have been authorised in recent years.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19842]

Sir Paul Beresford [holding answer 19 April 1995]: My Department does not keep central records of individual purchases. Its policy, set out in its environmental purchasing guide "Selling to DOE", is to purchase joinery, furniture, and fittings manufactured only from wood produced from sustainably managed forests.

DEFENCE

RAF Logistics Command

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about defence agency status for the logistics support services organisation of the Royal Air Force. [20451]

Mr. Soames: The Royal Air Force logistics support services organisation is part of Headquarters Logistics Command, and is responsible for providing a range of engineering and supply logistic support services to the Ministry of Defence, overseas Governments and the UK defence industry. It has been decided that the logistics support services organisation is to be considered for defence agency status under the next steps procedures. An entry to this effect will appear in the May 1995 edition of the market testing bulletin.

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the proposed rationalisation of Headquarters Logistics Command. [20481]

Mr Soames: As part of the "Front Line First" process, my Department has consulted thoroughly with trade unions and local authorities closely associated with RAF Logistics Command on the proposal to rationalise its headquarters' structure.

No issues have been raised which call into question the viability of the proposal and I have therefore decided that it should proceed as set out in the consultative document, which was issued on 19 January 1995. The effect of this rationalisation is the creation of some 400 civilian posts in the Headquarters Logistics Command at various levels.

The details of the new civilian posts involved are being issued to trade unions for further local consultation and discussion.

Defence Medical Services

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement about defence agency status for the Defence Medical Services' secondary care organisation. [20452]

Mr. Soames: Following my announcement in the House on 8 December, Official Report, columns 304–305, in which I confirmed the recommendations made by the "Front Line First" medical study, it has been decided that the Defence Medical Services' secondary care organisation is to be considered as a candidate for agency status under the next steps procedures. An entry to this effect will appear in the May 1995 market testing bulletin and I should welcome comments from interested parties. These should be sent by 9 June to Mr. J. P. Green, head of the secondary care agency review team, Ministry of Defence, Room 118, Lacon house, Theobalds road, London WC1X 8RY.

Married Quarters

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress is being made with the selection of financial advisers for the proposed transfer of his Department's married quarters estate to the private sector. [20482]

Mr. Soames: I am glad to announce that, following a competitive selection process, we have chosen NatWest Markets for this role.

Occupational Health and Safety Agency

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the details of the methodology for transforming the Occupational Health Service into Trident Medical Services. [18915]

Mr. Horam: I have been asked to reply.

The Occupational Health and Safety Agency has not been transformed into Trident Medical Services. Previously the Occupational Health Service, it remains an executive agency of the Cabinet Office following a prior options review in 1994.

Trident Medical Services is a private sector provider of medical treatment.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the suspension and subsequent resignation of the director of the civil service occupational health scheme at the Atomic Weapons Establishment; and if he will make a statement on the impact this has had on the formation of a successor company and the application of the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981 to those employed by the scheme within the AWE as at 31 March.

Mr. Horam: I have been asked to reply.

The senior medical officer employed by the Occupational Health and Safety Agency was suspended from duty on 20 March pending investigation of matters which had that day come to light regarding the tendering process for the contract to provide occupational health services to Hunting-BRAE, trading as AWE plc. It appeared that he had become a director of the company awarded the contract. He resigned voluntarily and with immediate effect on 23 March before any formal investigations had taken place.

His resignation has no effect on the future of the OHSA. The Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 1981 apply to the transfer of relevant employees from OHSA to Trident Medical Services Ltd. This follows from AWE's decision to award the contract for provision of occupational health services to Trident.

Sundstrand Corporation

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what grounds his Department has selected Sundstrand of Rockford Corporation Illinois to supply gas-powered turbine engines for Spearfish torpedoes; what was the nature of the competition for this programme; which United Kingdom contractors were invited to tender; what offset arrangements have been agreed; and if he will make a statement. [18705]

Mr. Freeman: The choice of Sundstrand as engine supplier was made by GEC-Marconi in 1981 as the designers of Spearfish. The only competitive alternative was also of US manufacture. The intention had been fully to compete the main production order of the torpedo, including the engine under licence, but the declining numbers required has meant this has not proved to be feasible. However, maximum competition at the subcontractor level was implemented instead. Some 25 per cent. in value of the engine was competed between three UK contenders and Microturbo of Fareham was successful.

Trident

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the maximum number of warheads which will be deployed on each Trident submarine; and when the decision was taken on this matter. [19329]

Mr. Soames: As announced by my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Defence in his speech to the Centre for Defence Studies at King's college, London on 16 November 1993, each Trident submarine will deploy with no more than 96 warheads and many will carry significantly fewer.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his latest assessment of the future costs of decontaminating and clean-up of military nuclear production and operational facilities, including radioactive waste management and disposal; and if he will commission a study along the lines of the United States Energy Department study, estimating the cold war mortgage of radioactive contamination arising from the United Kingdom nuclear weapons programme. [19317]

Mr. Soames: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to disclose details of planned spending associated with the defence nuclear programme. The importance and costs of radiological and other forms of decontamination are, however, fully recognised as part of future defence planning, and adequate funding will be made available. Studies already conducted or to be undertaken will continue to assist in refining the estimates of the costs of radioactive waste management and disposal.

HMS Repulse and HMS Renown

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his latest estimate of the decommissioning date for (a) HMS Repulse and (b) HMS Renown. [19326]

Mr. Soames: It is not our practice to comment in detail on the strategic submarine ballistic nuclear operational programme.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the reasons for HMS Renown being laid up at the Clyde submarine base, Faslane since June 1994. [19328]

Mr. Soames: HMS Renown returned to Faslane in June 1994 with a minor defect. It is not our practice to comment in detail on the material state of individual submarines.

WE177 Free-fall Bomb

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on progress made in the implementation of plans to withdraw from service by 2007 the WE177 free-fall nuclear bomb. [19332]

Mr. Soames: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for City of Chester (Mr. Brandreth) on 4 April, Official Report, column 1097.

Portland Naval base

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future sale of the Portland naval base. [19167]

Mr. Soames: My noble Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Defence announced the sale of Portland naval base to Portland Port Ltd. on 6 April. Portland Port Ltd. is a Dorset-based company and we believe it offers the best long-term prospect for the local community and for reuse of the naval base.

Porton Down Volunteers' Children

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 20 March, Official Report, columns 77–78, what reports his Department has received of children of ex-Porton Down service volunteers being born with a disability; and if he will make a statement. [19272]

Mr. Soames: This is a matter for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Mr. John Chisholm to Mr. Derek Fatchett, dated 18 April 1995:

1. Your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Defence asking what reports his Department has received of children of ex-Porton Down Service volunteers being born with a disability has been passed to me as the Chief Executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency to reply since this now includes the former Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment Agency.

2. The Ministry of Defence has received no reports of any children of ex-Porton Down Service volunteers being born with disabilities.

3. It is important to bear in mind that disabilities at birth occur in the general population and, whilst every such birth is regretted, there is no statistical evidence to indicate a higher level of birth defects in the children of Service families, including ex-Porton Down service volunteers, compared with the general population.

Decommissioned Ships

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the current condition of HMS Kent, HMS Hermione and HMS Jupiter and the prospects for their sale; and if he will make a statement. [19304]

Mr. Freeman: HMS Kent, HMS Jupiter and HMS Hermione are at present lying decommissioned in Portsmouth naval base, preparatory to their future offer for sale to the commercial scrap market. Despite strenuous efforts by the Disposal Sales Agency, none of these ships has attracted an overseas buyer for further operational use. There does, however, appear to be a flourishing commercial market for scrap metal recovery.

Surplus Land

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the names of the estate agents and consultants who have advised his Department on the sale of surplus land and buildings over the last five years. [19282]

Mr. Soames: Records of the names of the estate agents and consultants who have advised my Department on the sale of surplus land and buildings over the last five years are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Navy Staff

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many civilian Navy personnel have lost jobs in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [19157]

Mr. Freeman: The number of UK-based civilian staff made redundant from the Navy department in each financial year since 1986–87, the earliest date for which records were kept centrally, is as follows:

1987–88: 321
1988–89: 311
1989–90: 400
1990–91: 251
1991–92: 213
1992–93: 249
1993–94: 587
'1994–95: 635

'up to end of February 1995

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on careers counselling for naval personnel who have lost their jobs in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [19159]

Mr. Soames: No separate record is kept of the cost of resettlement advice which has been given to naval personnel who left on redundancy.

Press and Public Relations

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, North (Mr. Henderson) of 31 March, Official Report, column 872, if he will give the number and location of service personnel and civilians employed in press and public relations and public relations support posts overseas.

Mr. Freeman: The number of service personnel and civilians employed in press and public relations and public relations support posts overseas is 22. Posts are located in Belize, Cyprus, Falkland Islands, Gibraltar, Hong Kong, Germany and the former Yugoslavia.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if staff on secondment to the Defence Export Services Organisation may simultaneously work for or offer consultancy services to companies in the private sector. [19436]

Mr. Freeman: Under the conditions of service issued on secondment no officer may:

(a) engage at any time in private activity which would require attendance during working hours or in any way impair his or her usefulness as public servant.

(b) engage in any occupation or undertaking which might in any way conflict with the interests of the Ministry of Defence or be inconsistent with his or her position as a public servant.

It is a condition of the secondment that the secondee does not engage in any such activity, occupation or undertaking without the consent of the permanent secretary, MOD.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the level of bonuses to be paid for the financial year 1994–95 to the (a) head, (b) offset adviser and (c) international finance adviser of the Defence Export Services Organisation. [19435]

Mr. Freeman: On the position of the Head of the Defence Export Services Organisation, I would refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on the 30 November 1994, Official Report, columns 777–78. The offset adviser is on secondment to MOD and any bonus is a matter for his company and not for the department. The international finance adviser is on a fixed-term appointment as a civil servant and is eligible for the normal civil service performance-related pay arrangements. It is not the practice to comment on the pay of individual officers.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 30 November 1994 to the hon. Member for Nottingham, South (Mr. Simpson), Official Report, column 778, if he will name the current offset adviser and international finance adviser at the Defence Export Services Organisation; and if he will give (a) the companies from which they are seconded, (b) the duration of their contracts, (c) any bonuses to which they are entitled and (d) the number of hours per week they are contracted to work for the organisation. [19433]

Mr. Freeman: The information requested is as follows:

Offset adviser: Mr. David Mitchell
Company: British Aerospace Defence Ltd.
Duration of contract: two years to October 1995
Bonuses: The responsibility of his Company
Hours per week: 41 hours including meal breaks

The post of international finance adviser, at present, is a fixed-term appointment as a civil servant and is not classed as a secondee.

IFA: Mr. Miles Faulkner
Previous company: Trafalgar house
Duration of contract: Two years extended by one year to March 1996
Bonuses: Eligible for normal civil service performance-related pay
Hours per week: Four days per week—32.8 hours

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 22 November 1994, Official Report, column 139, if he will give the net cost of the Defence Export Services Organisation in each year from 1979–80 to 1992–93. [19432]

Mr. Freeman: Final outturn figures for the Defence Export Services Organisation for the years 1988–89 to 1992–93 are as stated below. Figures before 1988–89 are not readily available.

| | 1988–89 | 1989–90 | 1990–91 | 1991–92 | 1992–93 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Gross Expenditure | 9.97 | 10.25 | 11.57 | 29.99 | 31.87 |
| Receipts by DESO | (22.20) | (26.24) | (29.20) | (18.94) | (19.98) |
| | (12.23) | (15.99) | (17.63) | 11.05 | 11.89 |

Notes:
1. The figures for 1988–89, 1989–90 and 1990–91 include Disposal receipts for the Army, RAF and Navy. These receipts were disaggregated to the appropriate areas from 1991 and no longer fall to the DESO budget.
2. Brackets indicate receipts.

Competitive Tendering

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many competitive tendering exercises carried out by his Department in each of the last two years were caught by the provisions of the public services directive but were not subsequently advertised in the Official Journal of the European Union in compliance with the relevant regulations. [19228]

Mr. Freeman: All requirements falling within the scope of the EU services directive where there is an obligation to advertise are customarily advertised in the prescribed manner in the supplement to the Official Journal of the European Communities. Records of exact numbers of advertisements are not kept.

Arms Sales, Sierra Leone

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what exports of weapons there have been from Britain to Sierra Leone in the past five years. [18872]

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Ilford, South (Mr. Gapes), Official Report, column 501, on 28 November 1994.

Hunting

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether armed forces personnel who hunt are liable for the costs of the support staff who drive the horseboxes and care for the horses; and what those costs are as a daily rate and in total for each year since 1991. [19539]

Mr. Soames: Members of the armed forces who are permitted to hunt during duty time are not liable for the costs of military drivers and grooms as such costs arise irrespective of participation in hunting or any other form of training and are therefore not additional.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what has been the total cost of fuel used by the Household Cavalry in attending fox hunt meets that has been reimbursed to the Ministry of Defence for each year since 1991. [19537]

Mr. Soames: The costs of fuel used by members of the Household Cavalry Mounted Regiment in travelling to fox hunt meets are met privately by the individuals taking part. The requirement for reimbursement does not, therefore, arise.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what circumstances it is permitted for individuals who are not serving members of the armed forces to use army horses or equipment to hunt; and what charges are made for the use of such equipment. [19540]

Mr. Soames: Individuals who are not serving members of the armed forces are not permitted to use Army horses or equipment to hunt.

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence from what date members of the armed forces who hunt have been liable for the costs of fuel for transport to and from hunt meets. [19538]

Mr. Soames: So far as we have been able to determine, members of the armed forces who are permitted to hunt have always been liable for the costs of fuel for transport to and from hunt meets.

European Armaments Agency

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his European Union counterparts in respect of the markets which the European arms procurement agency will endeavour to satisfy; and if he will make a statement. [19446]

Mr. Freeman: Ministers and officials of my Department have played a full part in discussions, within the forum of the Western European Armaments Group, on the concept and role of a European armaments agency. These discussions continue.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if membership of the European arms procurement agency will be subject to parliamentary approval. [19445]

Mr. Freeman: Discussions on a European armaments agency continue. Formal parliamentary approval would not be necessary if the UK were to become a member of such an agency, but Parliament will, of course, be kept informed of developments.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how the United Kingdom's proposed joining of the European arms procurement agency will affect the policy of (a) subsidiarity in defence and (b) the resources available for diversification of defence industries. [19443]

Mr. Freeman: Discussions on a European armaments agency continue. If the UK became a member, this would not affect the principle that decisions on armaments procurement for the UK armed forces are the preserve of Her Majesty's Government. It is not envisaged that UK membership of a European armaments agency would have any effect upon the resources available for diversification of defence industries.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department, and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19549]

Mr. Freeman: The information requested is as follows:

Haymes Garth

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the total cost of (a) all structural repairs, to Haymes Garth and (b) all other work carried out to the building, and the total sums expended. [19781]

Mr. Soames: The total cost of refurbishing Haymes Garth was £380,000; of which £80,000 was spent on essential external maintenance, £68,000 was spent on furniture and fittings and £232,000 on structural work and alterations.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what sums were spent on (a) redecoration, (b) curtains and (c) other furnishings to Haymes Garth; what were the estimated costs in each such category; and by whom and on what dates these (i) estimates and (ii) payments were authorised.

Mr. Soames: The total sum spent on redecoration, curtains and other furnishings to Haymes Garth was £68,000. The original allocation for these items was £60,000. RAF Support Command costed and approved the work at Haymes Garth.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence by whom and on what date the decision was taken to renovate Haymes Garth.

Mr. Soames: The decision to retain Haymes Garth was taken by the then Air Officer Commanding in Chief RAF Support Command in February 1992, and the renovation programme stemmed from that decision.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date Air Chief Marshall Sir Sandy Wilson was informed that he was to occupy Haymes Garth; and when he took up residence. [19785]

Mr. Soames: Sir Sandy Wilson took up residence at Haymes Garth in May 1993, and had been aware that he was to occupy the house from August 1992.

Small Arms Spares

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason he has decided not to proceed with the market-test initiative on the management and supply of small arms spares; and if he will make a statement. [18799]

Mr. Freeman: The market test of management and supply of small arms spares was withdrawn from full competition because of insurmountable intellectual property rights and critical item manufacture problems. However, the market testing process has identified changes in procurement processes which, once introduced, will lead to efficiency savings.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what requirements there are for officials in his department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19351]

Mr. Ancram: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by the Under-Secretary of State for Corporate Affairs on 19 April, Official Report, column 189. My officials follow the procedures set out in that answer.

Four compliance cost assessments were issued in Northern Ireland in the first three months of this year.

Parliament Buildings, Stormont

Mr. Beggs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects work to start on the repair of the fire damage and refurbishment of Parliament buildings, Stormont; and what is his estimate of the completion date for this project. [19467]

Mr. Moss: The debris resulting from the fire on 2 January has now been removed from the former Commons chamber. A detailed examination of the damage has been undertaken to assess its extent and to develop options for repair and refurbishment. I will make an announcement when this assessment is completed.

DNA Sampling

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to amend the law to allow the RUC to make greater use of DNA sampling. [20333]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I intend to introduce legislation which will allow the RUC to take full advantage of developments in the technology of DNA analysis and give the police in Northern Ireland the opportunity to take samples from those suspected of a range of offences in wider circumstances than at present. It is vital that the RUC should be able to make use of technological innovation in the detection and investigation of crime at the earliest opportunity.

These measures will facilitate the use of improved technology for the analysis of DNA samples and fine-tune the law in other areas. They will assist the RUC to maintain its well-earned reputation for professionalism and their standards of excellence in investigating and detecting crime.

In addition, I plan to clarify the law in Northern Ireland on the status of prisoners when they are required for interview by the police and in respect of prisoners who are unlawfully at large in Northern Ireland so that they may be arrested and returned to custody as swiftly as possible no matter what part of the UK from which they are unlawfully at large.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19415]

Mr. Heseltine: My Department employs one political adviser and one chief economic adviser. Their salary and conditions of work are negotiated individually in relation to their previous earnings, and are confidential. Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. Their grades range from grade 3 to economic assistant.

Insolvency Service

Mrs. Helen Jackson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will publish in full the official receiver's responses on whether the work of the Insolvency Service should be contracted out. [19936]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The responses from official receivers are still being considered. If a decision is made to seek parliamentary approval for an enabling order a digest of the official receiver's responses will be published by laying copies in the Library of the House.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many people and what percentage of the work force are employed in small and medium enterprises. [19093]

Mr. Page: At the end of 1991, 14 million people, or 67 per cent. of the work force, excluding central and local government, were employed in enterprises with fewer than 500 employees.

Business Links

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many Business Link initiatives are now fully operational in the United Kingdom. [19095]

Mr. Page: Ninety Business Links are open in England as at 12 April 1995. Separate arrangements for providing support services for businesses in the rest of the United Kingdom are being developed by the offices for Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Regional Supply Networks

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is the budget allocated to the regional supply networks in the current year. [19094]

Mr. Page: The budget allocated to the regional supply network in the 1995–96 financial year is £2.8 million.

Advertising

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list each non-departmental public body and agency for which he has responsibility and, for each, list separate figures for the spending by that body or agency on (a) television advertising, (b) radio advertising, (c) newspaper advertising, (d) other promotional materials and activities, (e) the totals in each year of (a) to (d) and

(f) the proportion of (e) that was spent on recruitment advertising for each year since 1979–80 or for each year of its existence if it has been created since then; and what are his latest estimates of (a) to (f) for the years 1994–95 and 1995–96. [17622]

Mr. Heseltine: The NDPBs sponsored by my Department are listed in the publication "Public Bodies 1994", copies of which are available in the Library of the House. The other information requested is not available centrally and could not be compiled without incurring disproportionate cost.

The DTI's executive agencies are detailed on pages 80 to 84 of my Department's annual report—Cm 2804—which is also available in the Library of the House. I have asked the chief executives of these agencies to write direct to the hon. Member giving the other information requested.

Letter from P. R. S. Hartnack to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the Patent Office to the parliamentary question tabled by you on 28 March 1995.

Promotional expenditure of the Patent Office since its inception as an executive agency (in March 1990) is shown below in the format requested:

| | Newspaper advertising | Other promotional matters and activities | Total | Proportion of total on recruitment advertising (per cent.) |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| actual | | | | |
| 1990—91 | 56 | 530 | 636 | 1.1 |
| 1991–92 | 71 | 813 | 884 | 2.5 |
| 1992–93 | 398 | 989 | 1,387 | 0.6 |
| 1993–94 | 409 | 1,136 | 1,545 | 0.0 |
| forecast | | | | |
| 1995–96 | 156 | 450 | 606 | 1.0 |

There has been no expenditure on television and radio advertising in the period shown. The main objective of our advertising is to encourage British companies, and individuals, to obtain patents, trade marks and registered design protection; and thus to promote innovation and the international competitiveness of British industry and commerce through intellectual property rights.

Letter from John Hobday to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your Question of 28 March to the President of the Board of Trade in which you asked for information on expenditure on promotional activities by non-departmental public bodies and agencies for which he has responsibility.

The accounts Services Agency was created in October 1991, since when it has had no spending on television, radio or newspaper advertising. It had however spent some £26,000 on other promotional material and activities as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 5,600 |
| 1993–94 | 8,300 |
| 1994–95 | [1]12,100 |

[1]Estimated. None of the advertising was in respect of equipment. You will wish to know that the Accounts Services Agency ceased to be an agency on 31 March after which the services provided by it were contracted-out to the CSL Group Limited.

Letter from David Durham to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

You recently tabled a Parliamentary Question asking about the total expenditure on all forms of advertising, promotional materials and activities, by non-departmental public bodies and agencies since 1979.

Following the answer given by the President of the Board of Trade, I am replying as Chief Executive of Companies House which became an Executive Agency of the Department of Trade and Industry in November 1988.

Companies House Executive Agency advertising expenditure in £000 is as follows:

| Year | (a) TV | (b) Radio | (c) Newspapers | (d) Other | (e) Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1989–90 | 0 | 0 | incl. in D | 303 | 303 |
| 1990–91 | 0 | 0 | 224 | 174 | 398 |
| 1991–92 | 0 | 0 | 190 | 137 | 327 |
| 1992–93 | 0 | 0 | 332 | 168 | 500 |
| 1993–94 | 0 | 80 | 122 | 164 | 366 |
| 1994–95 | 0 | 0 | 174 | 205 | 379 |
| Total | 0 | 80 | 1,042 | 1,151 | 2,273 |
| The estimate for 1995–96 is: | 0 | 0 | 200 | 276 | 476 |

These figures include expenditure on advertising to raise the awareness of Late Filing Penalties and to inform and remind companies of the due dates for filing; on exhibitions, literature and leaflets, and on publications including the annual report to Parliament.

It is not possible to give precise figures on the amount of our budgets spent on recruitment advertising. While not included in the above figure, it is between 1% and 2% of the total at column (e). On the handful of occasions when a recruitment agency has been involved, the fee has covered advertising, sifting, preliminary interviews etc.

I hope this is helpful to you.

Letter from Peter Joyce to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your Question about expenditure on advertising and on other promotional materials and activities.

The Insolvency Service, which became an Agency in March 1990, does not place advertisements or produce promotional material of its functions. It does however publish an Agency Annual Report, at a cost of some £13,000 for the 1993–94 report.

Recruitment advertising is undertaken from time to time at both national and local level. Expenditure was devolved to the Agency from 1993–94. The amounts expended have been £14,900 for 1993–94 and £4,594 for 1994–95.

Official Receivers of The Insolvency Service are required to place in newspapers and other journals, notices concerning specific matters relating to individual insolvency cases, for example a notice of the making of a bankruptcy order. The cost of these are a charge on the estates of the bankrupts and companies in compulsory liquidation to which they relate.

Letter from W. Edgar to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

I refer to your Parliamentary Question to the President of the Board of Trade on the subject of advertising for each non-departmental public body and agency for which he is responsible. NEL has not incurred any expenditure on either television advertising or radio advertising. The total expenditure on newspaper advertising and other promotional materials and activities is shown on the attached schedule together with the proportion of that total which was spent on recruitment advertising. The period covered is from financial year 1992/93 which is when the data started being recorded in the detail you require.

I trust you will find the information satisfactory for your purposes.

Letter from Seton Bennett to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

EXPENDITURE ON ADVERTISING

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory to your question about expenditure on advertising.

While NWML takes every opportunity to bring its activities to the attention of interested parties, the use of paid advertising is rare and there has been no such expenditure since 1992. Expenditure in previous years, for which figures are not readily available, was limited to occasional advertisements in specialist journals. For 1995–96 advertising expenditure is likely to be £5,000.

For 1993–94 expenditure on promotional materials and activities was £8,245.67. In 1995–96, this is likely to increase to approximately £9,500.

Expenditure on recruitment advertising has been restricted to local newspapers and amounts to approximately £1500 over the last five years.

Letter from Dr. Peter Clapham to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 20 April 1995:

I am writing in response to your question to the President of the Board of Trade about expenditure on advertising and promotional activities by agencies for which he is responsible. NPL became an Executive Agency in July 1990.

NPL does not use television or radio advertising, and we record expenditure on recruitment advertising separately from expenditure on other forms of advertising and promotion. The table below sets out (i) NPL's annual expenditure on recruitment advertising; (ii) expenditure on publicity, which covers the external cost of advertisements in the technical press, exhibitions and other promotional activities and materials; and (iii) the approximate amount of expenditure within (ii) accounted for by paid advertisements in the print media. All figures are in £000.

[1]Agency expenditure only. Most publicity in 1990–91 was included in DTIs central publicity expenditure.

I hope this provides the information you require.

Letter from R.D. Worswick to Mrs. Ann Taylor, dated 5 April 1995:

Consultancy Brokerage Scheme

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will reconsider his specific proposals for a consultancy brokerage scheme following representations received about them. [18904]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I have received a number of representations from organisations and individuals in the consultancy industry about the DTI's consultancy brokerage service. My officials have also consulted widely within the industry and across a range of relevant interest groups. The concept of such a service has been generally welcomed. As with all new initiatives, I am willing to consider constructive proposals for its further development.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the President of the Boardof Trade how many consultants have to date joined the consultancy brokerage scheme; and if he will make a statement. [18905]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 18 April 1995]: As at 11 April 1995, 152 consultants had applied to join the DTI's consultancy brokerage service. Invitations to join the service were issued in late January and no deadline was set. We aim to recruit many more consultants and are actively considering how to speed up the pace of applications.

Government Funding

Mr. Cohen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what Government funding has been provided to (a) the Industrial Research and Information Services Ltd, (b) the Industrial Trust and (c) Kennington Industrial Company in each year since 1965; and for what purposes it was granted. [17259]

Mr. Page [holding answer 3 April 1995]: My Department has no knowledge of these companies and no record of having given the financial assistance.

TRANSPORT

Air Traffic Control (Privatisation)

Mr. Legg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in preparing the Civil Aviation Authority's air traffic control functions for privatisation and in preparing the timetable for privatisation. [18931]

Mr. Norris: Following discussion with interested parties, progress has been made in addressing the issues raised during the public consultation on privatisation of the CAA's air traffic control functions.

The chairman of the CAA has also instigated a number of management changes designed to secure a greater degree of separation between the national air traffic services and the CAA's other businesses.

Aircraft Regulations

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what regulations apply to cabin baggage on aircraft; how these are enforced; and if he will make a statement; [18971]

(2) how many reported accidents to airline passengers involving cabin baggage have occurred in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [18970]

Mr. Norris: Articles 29 (6) and 37 (2) (d) (ii) of the Air Navigation Order 1989 cover the safe carriage of cabin baggage in UK-registered aircraft and regulation 4 of the Air Navigation (General) Regulations 1993 covers the weighing of cabin baggage. Compliance with these requirements is enforced by the Civil Aviation Authority.

In addition, under UK aviation security requirements, all items of cabin baggage must be screened to a specified standard before they may be taken on board an aircraft. Airlines are also required to check to ensure that disembarking passengers have not left behind any baggage. Monitoring and enforcement of security requirements is carried out by my Department's aviation security inspectors.

Minor accidents involving cabin baggage are not reportable incidents under the Air Navigation Order. However, the Civil Aviation Authority advises me that in the past five years it has received five reports of incidents in which passengers have received minor injuries in accidents involving cabin baggage.

Airline Charges

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of comparative charges to airlines in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) the United States of America; and if he will make a statement. [19143]

Mr. Norris: I have not made any such assessment.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [1]Figures for previous years are included with the Central Department.

Data on sickness absence are submitted to the Occupational Health and Safety Agency and is not recorded separately for agencies. The total figure for the Department, including the agencies, is 153,507 days for 1992 and 145,391 days for 1993. Information relating to 1994 is not yet available. There is not reliable data available for a monetary equivalent to be calculated.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

National Lottery

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage for what reasons he does not judge it appropriate to permit national lottery tickets to be sold by independent licensed bookmakers; and if he will make a statement. [19000]

Mr. Dorrell: The national lottery is at the softest end of the gambling spectrum. Not allowing the sale of national lottery tickets on certain premises, including licensed betting offices, reflects the distinction between the lottery and other types of gaming.

Dr. Marek: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what information he has on the buying of national lottery tickets by people of different socio-economic groups. [19113]

Mr. Dorrell: I understand that Camelot Group plc carries out research as part of its programme to monitor the appeal of individual constituent games which make up the national lottery. This indicates that the profile of national lottery players broadly reflects the profile of the population as a whole.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19420]

Mr. Dorrell: My Department does not employ any political advisers. Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The following numbers by grade are full-time equivalent:

| Grade | Number |
|---|---|
| Grade 7 | 1 |
| Total | 2 |

National Museum of Photography, Film and Television

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what representations he has received about the closure on the education unit at the National Museum of Photography, Film and Television in Bradford; if he has authorised his officials to have discussions with the museum about the securing of funding to enable the unit to be reopened; and if he will make a statement. [19860]

Mr. Dorrell [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Since 1984, educational provision of the National Museum of Photography, Film and Television in Bradford has been generously supported by the city of Bradford metropolitan council. I understand this funding has now been withdrawn, reluctantly, at short notice and the education unit has had to be closed in consequence. I have not received any representations about the closure. My Department provides funding of £21.7 million to the National Museum of Science and Industry, of which the NMPFT is a part, and it is for the trustees of the National Museum of Science and Industry to decide how to spend this money. I understand, however, that the museum is currently reviewing its formal education programme of free direct teaching for educational visitors and that, when the necessary planning and preparation are completed, it expects to put in place a revised programme of education provision, as part of its long-term commitment to education as an integral part of its activities.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Natural Resources Institute

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in reaching a decision on the future ownership of the Natural Resources Institute. [20453]

Mr. Baldry: We announced on 20 December 1994 our intention to invite formal tenders for the future ownership of the Natural Resources Institute. A number of expressions of interest in assuming ownership of NRI were received.

Those being invited to prepare fuller bids are as follows:

Cranfield university
A consortium led by the university of East Anglia
University of Greenwich, in association with Edinburgh university, Imperial college and Wye college Universities of Nottingham and Leicester
University of Reading
Scottish agricultural college
Serco International Ltd. in association with university of Wales
University of Warwick

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Thursday 20 April. [18720]

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Thursday 20 April. [18718]

The Prime Minister: This morning I presided at a meeting of the Cabinet and had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in this House, I shall be having further meetings later today.

Public Sector Pay

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Prime Minster what revision he has made to his statement of 18 July 1994, Official Report, column 2, that directors should follow the lead that the Government have set for pay in the public sector; and if he will make a statement. [19039]

The Prime Minister: The Government's approach to public sector pay stands as a commendable example to directors and others in the private sector. However, the remuneration of directors is ultimately a matter for the companies themselves and their shareholders. I have welcomed the establishment of the Greenbury committee, which will be making recommendations shortly relating to the arrangements for remunerating directors.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Lord President of the Council how many statutory instruments were approved by the House in each Session or calender year since 1981; of these how many were of (a) general and (b) local application; and how many arise directly or indirectly from regulations or directives of the European Community.

Mr. Newton: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Upper Waiting Hall

Mr. Sims: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee if he has considered an application for an exhibition relating to the Central Council for Education and Training in Social Work to be displayed in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Administration Committee, arrangements have been made for the exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall from Monday 10 July to Friday 14 July 1995.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee if he has considered an application for an exhibition relating to Dadabhai Naoroji, India's Patriot: Britain's MP, to be displayed in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Administration Committee, arrangements have been made for the exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall from Monday 1 May to Friday 5 May 1995.

Disabled People

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Chairman of the Accommodation and Works Committee if he will make a statement on the provision being made for access for disabled people in the design and construction on the new parliamentary building.

Mr. Ray Powell: A ramp will be provided between the pavement at the main entrance and the main courtyard level, a rise of 0.5 m. The lifts at each corner of the courtyard will reach all floors of the building. The six Members' Rooms on the sixth floor are the only rooms not readily accessible to disabled persons, as they are reached from the floor below by spiral staircases. There are lavatories for disabled people on all the main floors.

Official Report

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Administration Committee if he will make the contents of the Official Report available digitally to the media as soon as possible.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: The Official Report is conducting a pilot project to make the electronic text of the Official Report available within the House. I understand that the Information Committee recently approved an expansion of the project, which includes the electronic delivery of the full text and an on-line database. In the first instance, the system is being developed to meet the needs of Members and the House generally, but, in planning to develop the service to serve a wider readership, the needs of the media will be taken fully into account.

Telephones

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee if he will make a statement on the exemption of telephones within the Palace of Westminster from British Telecom's 1471 call return system.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: As the BT 1471 call return system is available only to lines linked directly to the public exchange, it is not technically possible to connect the system to the Palace of Westminster telephone exchange.

Weddings

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee what consideration has been given to licensing Parliament for weddings under the Marriages Act 1994.

Mr. Martin J. Martin [holding answer 24 March 1995]: I am advised that the regulations made under the Marriages Act 1994 relate only to civil marriage. Approved premises must have no recent or continuing connection with religion or religious practices, be open to the public without charge, and be regularly available to the public for civil marriage. I do not therefore consider it appropriate for the House to be licensed under the Act.

Committee of Privileges

Mr. Steen: To ask the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed, as representing the House of Commons Commission, what has been the total cost of the inquiry by the Committee of Privileges regarding a complaint regarding an article in The Sunday Times of 10 July 1994 relating to the conduct of hon. Members; how many staff at the House were involved; what was the cost of publishing the report and annexes; and how many copies were printed.

Mr. Beith [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Committee of Privileges is staffed by existing staff of the Department of the Clerk of the House; consequently no significant additional staff costs arise. The Committee has one Clerk who is also Clerk of the Journals and has other responsibilities. He is assisted by a secretary and a chief office clerk, both of whom have other duties. The fees of the Official Shorthand Writer for transcripts of evidence taken by the Committee and tape recordings supplied by The Sunday Times amounted to £5,676. Other costs directly attributable to the Committee's inquiry and the preparation of the report amounted to approximately £1,400.

The cost to the House of copies of the report, evidence and appendices supplied for issue by the Vote Office is £16,800.

The cost to Her Majesty's Stationery Office of printing and publishing the report, evidence, and appendices is estimated by them to be £23,400. I understand that HMSO expects to recoup a substantial part of this cost in sales. The number of copies of the report, evidence and appendices printed so far is 1,400.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19673]

Mr. Nelson: The information is as follows:

|---|---|---|---|
| a) total hours overtime | | | |
| HM Treasury | 122,156 | 92,988 | 65,716 |

| Valuation Office | 54,017.0 | 60,176.0 |
| Total | 88,550.4 | 95,162.0 |

[1]Data provided by OHSA. A monetary figure equivalent to the total number of days lost to sickness is not appropriate as there are too many variables involved in this calculation and it would be difficult to rely on the accuracy of any such calculation. Data are not yet available for 1994.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19566]

Mr. Nelson: Expenditure on subsistence for travel both in the United Kingdom and overseas is shown in the table.

| | United Kingdom | Overseas |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 141,595 | 154,198 |

[2]Total expenditure on overseas travel and subsistence.

Advertising

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list, for 1992–93 and 1993–94, separate figures for the spending by his Department on (a) television advertising, (b) radio advertising, (c) newspaper advertising, (d) other promotions materials and activities, (e) the totals in each year of (a) to (d) and (f) the proportion of (e) that was spent on recruitment advertising; and what are his latest estimates for the years 1994–95 and 1995–96. [17625]

Mr. Nelson: The expenditure by Her Majesty's Treasury on advertising is shown. Figures are not held that split up the various forms of advertising other than recruitment advertising.

| Year | £ | Recruitment advertising percentage |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 314,471 | 84.5 |
| 1993–94 | 12,198,540 | 12.7 |
| 1994–95 | 8,402,420 | 3.4 |
| 1995–96 | 110,500 | 100.0 |

Figures for 1993–94 and 1994–95 include the advertising costs for the BT3 and the generating companies share sale.

Nurses' Earnings

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the effects of income tax at the rates of 1978 and 1995 on the average nurse's current earnings. [19119]

Sir George Young: On the basis of the level of average earnings for full-time nurses as at April 1994, a single nurse will pay over £22 a week less income tax in 1995–96 than under a 1978–79 indexed tax regime. For the purposes of the calculation, it has been assumed that the nurse has no tax allowances or reliefs except for the basic personal allowance.

Premium Bond Prizes

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to increase the number and value of premium bond prizes and to increase the maximum number of bonds which holders may purchase. [19466]

Mr. Nelson: Under the present prize structure, the number and value of prizes increase automatically in line with the number and value of bonds qualifying for the prize draws. For example, in April 1994 there were 222,380 prizes to a value of £14,454,700; in April 1995 there are 320,932 prizes to a value of £20,860,600. This reflects an increase in the value of eligible bonds over that period from £3,336 million to £4,814 million. I have no present plans to change the prize structure or to increase the £20,000 maximum holding limit.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19413]

Mr. Nelson: The Treasury does not employ political or economic advisers.

The Treasury does, however, employ two special advisers to Ministers whose salaries are negotiated individually in relation to their previous earnings and are confidential. They are normally paid on the special advisers' salary scale of 34 points, ranging from £19,503 to £65,609. Appointments are non–pensionable and the salary spine reflects this. Special advisers have the same conditions of service and are subject to broadly the same rules of conduct as other civil servants.

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. Their grades range from assistant economist to grade 1A, the chief economic adviser.

All London–based non–industrial full–time civil servants work a five–day week of 41 hours, including meal breaks.

Married Couples Allowance

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the number of households whose after–tax income will be reduced by the forthcoming restriction of tax relief on the married couples allowance from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent. [17179]

Sir George Young [holding answer 30 March 1995]: About 7 million married couples will have their after–tax income reduced after allowing for changes in allowances and thresholds. The increase in age–related allowances will offset the married couples allowance restriction for most taxpayers aged 65 or over. Married couples will pay almost £5 a week less in tax than most single people on similar incomes in 1995–96.

Green Policy

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will name the green Minister for his Department and list (a) the green initiatives taken by that Minister in respect of the Department's functions, (b) the representations made by the Minister in respect of functions carried out by other departments and (c) the input made by the Minister into consultations on the Environment Bill. [18644]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 5 April 1995]: I am the green Minister for the Chancellor's Departments, but all my ministerial colleagues take an interest in environmental issues as they affect their responsibilities. Treasury Ministers are responsible for fiscal measures, and play an active part in the consideration of all environmental initiatives with significant public expenditure or supply side implications; they have been closely involved in discussion of the measures set out in the Environment Bill. The Chancellor's last Budget announced his intention to introduce a tax on landfill waste, and reaffirmed the decision progressively to increase excise duty on fuel in real terms.

SCOTLAND

Cattle Plague

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many cases of cattle plague were reported in each year since 1985. [18615]

Sir Hector Monro: No cases of cattle plague have been recorded in Scotland since 1985.

Fatal Accidents

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the factors underlying the difference in fatal accident rates on (a) motorways and (b) trunk roads in (i) Scotland and (ii) England and Wales; and what action he will take to reduce the rates in Scotland. [19127]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: There are a number of possible reasons for the differences in fatal accident rates on motorways and trunk roads in Scotland compared with England and Wales, including weather, traffic density and longer hours of darkness. In order to examine this further, the Scottish Office has recently commenced an investigation into the impact of characteristics of the road network in Scotland on accident rates. This investigation is expected to be completed at the end of 1996.

The Scottish Office is taking a number of new initiatives in the fields of engineering, education and enforcement which are designed to improve safety on all roads in Scotland. These include, for trunk roads, route accident reduction plans, route action plans and the introduction of speed cameras to decrease vehicle speeds and so to reduce the incidence and severity of accidents.

Co-operative Sector

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the role of the co-operative sector in the economy of Scotland. [18981]

Mr. Kynoch: The co-operative sector continues to have a role to play in the economy of Scotland. This has been acknowledged by the Government and funding for a number of co-operative projects has been, and continues to be, available through the urban programme. Assistance is also available to co-operatives under a range of schemes designed to encourage the development of small and medium-sized businesses. In order to encourage the development of marketing co-operatives the Government have introduced a marketing development scheme, intended to help producers and processors improve their marketing and commercial expertise. The Scottish Agricultural Organisation Society also continues to receive Government funding. In the financial sector, it is intended that measures will be considered by the deregulation committee later this year to remove certain restrictions on credit unions and industrial provident societies. These measures should enable the organisations concerned to streamline their procedures and should encourage growth.

Local Government Finance

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the cost to both local and central government of administration involved with the collection of the poll tax across Scotland; how many staff were involved; what is the cost of administration involved in the collection of the council tax across Scotland and how staff are involved; what was the cost of administering the transition period between the poll tax and the council tax; and how many staff were involved. [19522]

Mr. Lang: The net cost to local authorities of collecting both the community charge and the council tax since the introduction of the community charge in 1989–90 is given in the table below. As local tax collection is purely a local authority function, no central Government staff or costs are involved. Information on the numbers of local authority staff involved in the collection process is not held centrally. Records of the costs incurred by local authorities in relation to the change from the community charge to the council tax are not held centrally and central Government costs cannot be separately identified.

|---|---|
| 1989–90 | 10,426 |
| 1990–91 | 25,817 |
| 1991–92 | 25,618 |
| 1992–93 | 29,595 |
| 1993–94 | 40,128 |
| 1994–95 | 28,800 |

Notes:
1. All expenditure figures are net of any related income and loan and leasing charges.
2. The figures for the year 1989–90 to 1993–94 are final outturns. The figure for 1994–95 is a budget estimate.

Rail Services

Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he was consulted by ScotRail over its proposal to include in its draft timetable additional passenger services involving Cowlairs north curve and south-west junction, Springburn junction and Cumbernauld; and if he will make a statement. [19831]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 18 April 1995]: No. Responsibility for railway matters rests with the Secretary of State for Transport on a Great Britain basis, and for rail services with British Rail and the train operating units.

HEALTH

Parliamentary Questions

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many parliamentary questions to her Department were transferred for answer to the chief executive or other senior official of a non-departmental public body or agency for which she has responsibility in each year since 1979–80 or for each year that the body or agency has been in existence; [18521]

(2) how many parliamentary questions to her Department that were transferred for answer to the chief executive or other senior official of a non-departmental public body or agency for which she has responsibility received an answer which was not printed in the Official Report in each year since 1979–80 or for each year that the body or agency has been in existence. [18522]

Mr. Sackville: Parliamentary questions are not transferred to non-departmental public bodies. The Department's first agency was established on 1 April 1991.

Five parliamentary questions were referred to agency chief executives in the 1992–93 parliamentary Session. Two parliamentary questions were referred to chief executives in 1993–94 and so far in the 1994–95 parliamentary Session 17 questions have been referred. The answers to all questions referred to the Department's agency chief executives have been printed in the Official Report. No parliamentary questions were referred to agency chief executives in the 1991–92 parliamentary Session.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recommendations have been received from the Advisory Committee on the Misuse of Drugs in relation to Temazepam since 1992; what action she has taken on these recommendations; if she will review the position of her Department in relation to these recommendations; and if she will make a statement. [19022]

Mr. Bowis: The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs reviewed the controls on temazepam in 1992–93 and recommended, subject to a wide public consultation exercise, that the drug should be rescheduled from schedule 4 to schedule 3 of the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985.

Following the public consultation exercise and consideration of the responses, the council recommended to the Home Office in July 1993 that control of the drug should be tightened.

My Department, in consultation with other Departments, has been considering the council's recommendation and we hope to be able to announce the outcome soon.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many advisers her Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19422]

Mr. Sackville: The Department of Health employs one special adviser. His salary and conditions of work are negotiated individually in relation to previous earnings, and are confidential.

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The following numbers by grade are full time equivalents:

| Grade | Number |
|---|---|
| Grade 3 level | 1 |
| Grade 5 level | 2 |
| Grade 6 level | 1 |
| Grade 7 level | 12 |
| Assistant Economist | 6 |

Diseases

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the number of recorded cases of (a) smallpox, (b) rickets, (c) leprosy, (d) cholera, (e) tuberculosis, (f) poliomyelitis and (g) scorbutus, per region, for each year since 1985. [19695]

Mr. Sackville: The information relating to leprosy, cholera, tuberculosis and poliomyelitis can be found in tables 5 and 6 of "Communicable disease statistics, England and Wales", series MB2, Numbers. 12–18, 1985–1992 HMSO 1987–1994, copies of which are available in the Library.

Data on rickets and scorbutus are not available centrally.

There have been no reported cases of smallpox in England and Wales since 1978.

Malnutrition

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the number of recorded cases of malnutrition, per region, of (a) those below 16 years of age and (b) those 16 years old and above for the last five years for which figures are available. [19696]

Mr. Sackville: Malnutrition is a term which covers a wide variety of single or combined deficiencies of nutrients and/or energy. The Department of Health does not collect information specifically about the incidence of malnutrition, but in conjunction with the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food it carries out dietary and nutritional surveys of groups of the population to gain information on the food and nutrient intakes and nutritional status of the population. Copies of the reports of these surveys are placed in the Library. Current surveillance indicates that on average children and adults in the United Kingdom are not malnourished in terms of energy or any specific nutrient, except iron.

GP Fundholders

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the average amount spent by fundholders out of savings in extending premises and the average amount of improvement grants given to non-GP fundholders in the latest available year. [15003]

Mr. Malone [pursuant to his reply, 20 March 1995, c. 37–38]: I regret that the first paragraph of my previous reply is incorrect. It should read as follows:

Information about the amount of savings spent by general practitioner fundholders on premises improvements is not available centrally. However, the National Audit Office report on GP fundholding estimates that about one third of GP fundholders surveyed had used savings to improve practice premises for the benefit of patients—for example, to provide a wider range of services.

EDUCATION

Surplus Places

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the Government's policy on those schools required to close by local education authorities as a result of having surplus places but which then seek to avoid closure by opting out; and if she will make a statement. [18688]

Mr. Robin Squire: We have made it clear that we will not normally approve proposals for self-governing status prompted by the threat of closure. Each proposal is decided on its individual merits taking account of that general policy.

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the Government's policy on local education authorities reducing surplus places in schools; and if she will make a statement. [18687]

Mr. Robin Squire: We continue to encourage all LEAs to remove surplus places as far as possible. We expect them—and the Funding Agency for Schools where appropriate—to keep under review opportunities for rationalisation of surplus capacity.

Standard Spending Assessment

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what account was taken of the economic index in determining Liverpool's education standard spending assessment; and if she will make a statement. [18939]

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many advisers her Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19427]

Mr. Forth: This Department employs one political adviser. Salaries for special advisers are negotiated individually in relation to their previous earnings, and are confidential. Working hours are normally 41 hours a week.

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The following numbers—full-time equivalents—of Government economic service economists are employed in my Department: one grade 5, 1.6 grade sevens and four economic assistants.

A48

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer of 3 April, Official Report, column 977, what consideration he is giving to the application of the principles of the private finance initiative to the proposed private road linking the University hospital of Wales, Cardiff and the Eastern avenue A48; what initiatives he will bring forward to reduce the amount of time taken in considering how to apply the tests required on applying the initiative; and if he will make a statement. [19253]

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. There is currently a full-time grade 5 and a full-time grade 7.

I have also been asked to reply for the Chief Whips' offices, which employ two political advisers and no economic advisers.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Turkey

Mr. Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what use has been made of United Kingdom supplied equipment, with particular reference to the Shorland S550 armoured personnel carriers and Land Rover vehicles, by the Turkish armed forces in their recent action against the Kurds. [19393]

Mr. David Davis: It is not possible to monitor the end use of such equipment. Proposed UK arms sales to Turkey are subject to stringent licensing procedures. We do not grant licences for the sale of equipment which we believe is likely to be used for internal repression.

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to raise the issue of the persecution of the Christian minority in Turkey with the Foreign Minister of Turkey during his forthcoming visit to the United Kingdom. [19496]

Mr. David Davis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs met the Deputy Prime Minister of Turkey for talks and lunch when he visited London on 6 April. He took the opportunity to raise again our concerns at Turkey's overall human rights performance.

Japan

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to ensure that the leader of the United Kingdom delegation to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty review and extension conference in New York from 17 April raises under the review of compliance with article I of the treaty the recent allegations that the Aum Shinri Kyo religious group in Japan had obtained certain technologies that could assist in the development of nuclear weapons in contravention of article I. [19331]

Mr. David Davis: Japan is a non-nuclear-weapon state party to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. We believe that Japan is in full compliance with all her obligations under the NPT.

Mehdad Ansari-Shirazi

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what capacity Mehdad Ansari-Shirazi was employed by Her Majesty's Government. [19132]

Mr. Goodlad: Mr. Ansari-Shirazi has never been employed by Her Majesty's Government.

Cyprus

Sir Peter Fry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he intends to take to persuade the Government of Cyprus to agree to the confidence–building measures proposed by the UN and accepted by the leadership of Turkish Northern Cyprus on 21 January. [19216]

Mr. David Davis: We continue to make clear to both communities in Cyprus our support for the package of confidence–building measures proposed by the United Nations Secretary-General. We fully support UN Security Council resolution 939 of 29 July 1994 which called for further efforts to secure implementation of the confidence–building measures.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the UK in each of the last three years. [19554]

Mr. Goodlad: The information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

UK Security

Mr. Gill: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of whether withdrawal from the European Union would jeopardise the UK's security; and from whence any consequent threats might arise; [19543]

(2) what is the basis for the Government's belief that the security of the UK depends upon membership of the European Union; [19545]

(3) when Her Majesty's Government embraced the doctrine that the UK's security was dependent upon membership of the European Community. [19554]

Mr. David Davis: The security of the UK is assured through strong defence, a successful economy and our membership of a number of international institutions, in particular NATO but also the Western European Union, the EU, the UN and the Organisation on Security and Co-operation in Europe. We have no intention of withdrawing from any of these institutions.

Allowances

The figures exclude (a) the costs of posting officers overseas and (b) the costs of moving officers within the United Kingdom when this has not been caused by relocation of work.

Angola

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which powers have offered the necessary transport to take the UNAVEM III—United Nations Angola unification mission—peacekeeping force to Angola when called upon. [19691]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The British logistic battalion supporting UNAVEM III is being deployed to Angola in British military and civilian transport provided against an undertaking by the UN to repay the costs involved. We understand that other contingents will be deployed in commercial transport organised by the UN secretariat or using national resources against UN reimbursement.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19685]

Mr. Goodlad: The number of hours of overtime worked in the diplomatic wing of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Wilton Park, an executive agency of the FCO, is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. The details for the Overseas Development Administration and the Natural Resources Institute are as follows:

| | ODA | NRI |
|---|---|---|

| 1992–93 | 4,942,219 | 12,166 | 198,561 | 10,667 |

A comprehensive system for collating sick leave information for the diplomatic wing and Wilton Park was started only in 1994 and is now being completed. Details of the total time lost through sickness and its monetary equivalent in each of the last three years could therefore be collated only at disproportionate cost. Details of days lost through sickness in the ODA and NRI are:

| 1993 | 11,744 | 2,641 |

Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994

15. Sir John Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effect the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 will have on the fight against crime; and if he will make a statement. [18369]

Mr. Howard: The Act will make a significant contribution to the fight against crime. As the Police Federation has said, it will > "enhance the stature and ability of the criminal justice system to reduce crime, bring criminals to justice and significantly reduce the fear of crime, thereby improving the quality of life for many members of our society".

As with any major new legislation, the implementation of its provisions will be monitored and evaluated.

Female Prisoners

16. Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the change in the number of women sent to prison in the last two years; and what assessment he has made of the reasons. [18370]

Mr. Maclean: Some 2,952 women were sentenced to immediate custody in 1994, compared with 2,158 in 1992.

The total female prison population is approximately 2,000 compared to the total male prison population of approximately 50,000.

The reason for the increase in the sentenced population of both groups is the rise in numbers sentenced to custody by the courts.

Boot Camps

18. Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to publish the report on boot camps produced by Prison Service officials after their visit to the United States of America in May 1994. [18372]

Mr. Howard: The report was commissioned as advice to Ministers. I have, therefore, no plans to publish it.

Betting and Gaming

19. Mr. John Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to deregulate betting and gaming. [18373]

29. Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to deregulate betting and gaming. [18383]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: We are reviewing the controls on gambling as part of the Government's deregulation initiative.

We have made a number of changes to the law relating to small lotteries and the football pools and have removed certain restrictions on betting shop facilities. In addition, Sunday racing with on and off-course betting was introduced in January

Earlier this month, we laid a draft deregulation order before Parliament to relax restrictions on betting at greyhound tracks. We have also gone out to consultation on proposals for an all-cash amusement-with-prizes machine in adult premises, including betting shops.

Finally, we have to consult in the next few months on proposals on casino and bingo gaming, which will also include a review of the restrictions on the advertising of commercial gambling.

Burglary

20. Mr. Hoon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement about the probability of any individual becoming a victim of burglary in (a) 1979 and (b) the last year for which figures are available. [18374]

Mr. Maclean: According to the general household survey one in 40 households in Great Britain experienced a burglary in a dwelling once or more in 1979 excluding attempts, and one in 22 in 1993.

Probation Officers (Training)

21. Mr. Soley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what consideration he is giving to changing the standards of training of probation officers. [18375]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: My right hon. and learned Friend published on 22 February a consultation document setting out proposals for reform of the present arrangements governing the recruitment and qualifying training of probation officers.

Ministerial Visits

22. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he next expects to visit East Anglia to tour the prisons in the region. [18376]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: My right hon. and learned Friend has no immediate plans to visit any of the prisons in East Anglia.

Prison Punishment

23. Mr. David Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he intends taking to introduce pain into punishment in prisons. [18377]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: None. The purpose of imprisonment is to punish offenders by depriving them of their liberty, to protect the public from the commission of offences by those in prison and to reduce the likelihood that they will reoffend on release.

Pub and Club Doorkeepers

24. Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidelines his Department issues to local authorities in respect of training to doorkeepers of pubs and clubs in their areas. [18378]

Mr. Maclean: None at present. We are considering issuing guidance to local authorities and the police on the setting up of local registration schemes for door supervisors.

Wheel Clamping

25. Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he expects to produce proposals regarding wheel clamping on private land. [18379]

Mr. Maclean: My right hon. and learned Friend shall introduce proposals when he has come to firm conclusions on the right way ahead.

Prisons (Hard Drugs)

26. Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the use of hard drugs in Her Majesty's prisons; and if he will make a statement. [18380]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The use of hard drugs in Her Majesty's prisons is monitored by the Home Office addicts index. During 1994, 4,784 hard drug addicts were reported to the index by prison medical officers.

Additional information on the extent of the use of all drugs will be provided by random drug testing which is being introduced into all prison establishments in England and Wales.

Merseyside Fire Brigade

27. Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has had about the level of service provided by the Merseyside fire brigade since the publication by the Merseyside fire and civil defence authority of its budget for 1995–96; and if he will make a statement. [18381]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Since the authority set its budget on 28 February, my right hon and learned Friend has received one letter from an hon. Member forwarding a copy of a letter sent to the Merseyside fire and civil defence authority on behalf of a local tenants' forum. My right hon. and noble Friend met a deputation from the Merseyside fire and civil defence authority on 30 March.

Drug Seizures

28. Mr. Jack Thompson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individual consignments of illicit drugs have been intercepted during

1994–95 to date; and what is the total estimated street value of those consignments. [18382]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: The latest year for which the information requested is available is 1993, and this is contained in table 1.1 of the Home Office "Statistical Bulletin", No 28/94, "Statistics of drugs seizures and offenders dealt with, UK, 1993", a copy of which is in the Library. The Home Office does not collate information on the monetary value of seized illicit drugs.

Metropolitan Police

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers are estimated to be on the beat full-time in the metropolitan area and at what cost to public funds; what were the figures (a) five and (b) 10 years previously; and if he will make a statement. [18719]

Mr. Maclean: I understand from the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis that in January 1995 there were 11,739 police officers on patrol in the Metropolitan police district—5,839 of these were assigned to foot patrol duties. The cost of this function is £485,115,000 per annum—£237,706,000 per annum for foot patrol officers.

Comparable figures are not available for the earlier years requested.

External Frontiers Convention

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make it his policy to use the unanimity rule under article K4.3 of the Maastricht treaty to refuse to sign any final text of the external frontiers convention which includes a two thirds majority rule under the proviso to article K3. [19482]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The Government do not accept the Commission's proposal that all the implementing measures for the external frontiers convention should be adopted by a two-thirds majority and have made their view clear in discussions of the draft text.

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make temazepam a schedule 3, rather than a schedule 4, drug; and if he will make a statement. [18996]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: We are considering in consultation with other Departments a recommendation from the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs to tighten the controls on temazepam, and hope to be able to announce the outcome soon.

Transferred Prisoners

Mr. French: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what is his policy on moving prisoners from one prison to another; [17725]

(2) what representations he has received about the treatment of prisoners known as ghosting; and if he will make a statement. [17724]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Douglas French, dated 20 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Questions about the movement of prisoners from one prison to another; and the representations he has received about the treatment of prisoners known as ghosting.

Prisoners are moved from one prison to another only when there are compelling operational reasons for doing so. Transfers can take place for a number of reasons, the usual considerations being the needs of security and control, the needs of the individual prisoner and the need to make the best use of all available accommodation.

Representations have recently been made by a number of organisations and individuals about cases where prisoners have been moved to other establishments without any prior notice being given, a practice described as 'ghosting' in some quarters. These cases involve Category A prisoners who, for security reasons, are not given notice of transfers to other prisons.

Bowbelle-Marchioness Collision

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which statements made by the crew members of the Bowbelle to officers of the Metropolitan police on 20 August 1989 in connection with its sinking of the Marchioness were sent (a) without request, (b) after request (c) were not sent at all to the inspectors of the marine accident investigation branch of the Department of Transport for the purposes of its inquiry; on what dates such statements, or a refusal to do so, were dispatched; and if such statements were sent in full. [19778]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis informs me that no statements were taken by his officers from crew members of the Bowbelle on 20 August 1989.

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make available to relatives of the deceased the file of evidence on the Marchioness disaster sent by the City of London police to the Crown Prosecution Service to enable it to consider whether or not the evidence contained therein was sufficient to provide a realistic prospect of conviction for an offence reflected in the loss of life; and if he will list the evidence not contained in that file which was accepted as proper evidence for the jury in the inquest recently concluded. [19777]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I understand that the police investigation in this case was carried out by the Metropolitan police, not the City of London police. It is not police practice to disclose evidence submitted to the Crown Prosecution Service. The conduct of the inquest is entirely a matter for the coroner.

River Thames (Breathalysers)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make arrangements for the Thames division of the Metropolitan police to be equipped with breathalysers for use on the tideway reaches of the River Thames within its jurisdiction for use when it has reason to believe port byelaws or rules of navigation have been disregarded. [19773]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: This is an operational matter for the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis.

Procedural Changes (Metropolitan Police)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what changes in procedure have been made by the Metropolitan police since August 1989 concerning procedures for the severing of hands from deceased persons for purposes related to police inquiries; in what circumstances and by whom such actions are currently authorised; and for what purposes. [19774]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis informs me that the procedures followed by his officers in these circumstance are being revised. Such action will in future be taken only in wholly exceptional circumstances, where all other means of identification have proved unsuccessful, and on the written authority of the coroner.

Miscarriages of Justice

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date his Department asked individual police forces to provide information to his Department on the costs involved in investigating alleged miscarriages of justice; when this information was received by his Department; and what costs (a) to individual forces and (b) in total were revealed by analysis of the returns. [19741]

Mr. Nicholas Baker [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Information was requested on a sample of 16 cases from 11 police forces in January 1995. Replies were received in respect of seven cases, the most recent on 30 March. The estimated total costs of the inquiries undertaken in each of these seven cases was as follows:

| | Estimated total costs £ |
|---|---|
| Case 1: Avon and Somerset constabulary | 5,541.02 |
| Case 2: Lancashire constabulary | 570.04 |
| Case 3: Northumbria police | 3,113.02 |
| Case 4: Devon and Cornwall constabulary | 122,386.28 |
| Case 5: West Midlands police | 98,610 |
| Case 6: West Midlands police | 18,072 |
| Case 7: Greater Manchester police | 192,913 |

It is not possible to estimate the overall costs of miscarriage of justice investigations to the police service or to individual forces.

EMPLOYMENT

Health and Safety Executive

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment when the Health and Safety Executive's office buildings in Bootle were last inspected by the relevant local authority to ensure they fully complied with all current legislation, with particular reference to toilet facilities, removal of all asbestos, canteen facilities and rest rooms and space standards; and what was the result of the inspection. [17310]

Mr. Oppenheim: Records held by the Health and Safety Executive's headquarters office in Bootle indicate that a full inspection of its buildings encompassing a check of their compliance with all current legislation, has not been undertaken by the relevant local authority within the last eight years. Records do not extend back beyond eight years.

Ms Church: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was the total budget for the Health and Safety Executive in (a) 1979, (b) 1985 and (c) each year since 1990; and what is the forecast budget for (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1997–98, and (iii) 1998–99. [19438]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Health and Safety Executive's grant in aid for each of the years requested is shown in the following table:

| Year | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1979–80 | 56 |
| 1985–86 | 93 |
| 1989–90 | 103 |
| 1990–91 | 120 |
| 1991–92 | 159 |
| 1992–93 | 173 |
| 1993–94 | 180 |
| 1995–96 | 187 |

Present planned provision for 1996–97 and 1997–98 is £187 million and £186 million respectively. Plans for 1998–99 depend on the outcome of the 1995 public expenditure survey.

Ms Church: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was (a) the average, (b) the median and (c) the mode number within the Health and Safety Executive for Health and Safety Executive inspectors in (a) 1979, (b) 1985 and (c) each year since 1990; what is the current average; and what is the estimated average for 1996. [19469]

Mr. Oppenheim: The available figures are shown in the following table:

| Year | Average | Median |
|---|---|---|
| 1979–80 | 1,435.5 | 1,435.5 |
| 1985–86 | 1,242.5 | 1,244.5 |
| 1990–91 | 1,264.5 | 1,244.0 |
| 1991–92 | 1,396.0 | 1,385.0 |
| 1992–93 | 1,507.5 | 1,508.0 |
| 1993–94 | 1,578.0 | 1,580.0 |
| 1994–95 | 1,530.5 | 1,537.0 |
| 1995–96[1] | 1,499.0 | 1,499.0 |

Because of the way in which inspector numbers fluctuate, it is not possible to calculate a mode statistic. The figures are not comparable, year to year, because there have been successive changes in the Health and Safety Executive's responsibilities.

Ms Church: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what was (a) the average, (b) the median and (c) the mode number of inspections an HSE inspector made in (i) 1979, (ii) 1985 and (iii) each year since 1990; and what is the estimate for (1) 1995, (2) 1996, (3) 1997 and (4) 1998. [19470]

Mr. Oppenheim: The average numbers of planned inspections completed by each of the Health and Safety Executive's operational division's field inspectors, for each of the financial years 1990–91 to 1993–94 are set out in the following table. Median and modal averages are not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Comparable figures for 1979 and 1985 are not available.

The table also indicates the average numbers of planned inspections divisions expected to achieve in 1994–95 and plan to achieve in 1995–96. Detailed estimates for the years 1996–97 and 1997–98 are not available.

[1] HSE assumed responsibility for offshore safety on 1 April 1991.[2] The railway inspectorate transferred from the Department of Transport on 3 December 1990.

Ms Church: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many Her Majesty's inspectors of factories there were in each grade in each year since 1979. [19437]

Mr. Oppenheim: The available figures for the number of factory inspectors employed by the Health and Safety Executive on 1 April for each year are as follows:

| | 1979 | 1980 | 1981 | 1982 | 1983 | 1984 | 1985 | 1986 | 1987 |

Ms Church: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many health and safety inspectors there were in (a) 1979, (b) 1985 and (c) each year since 1990; and what are the estimates for (i) 1996–97, (ii) 1997–98 and (iii) 1998–99. [19439]

Unemployment, Liverpool

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the unemployment rate in Liverpool; what is the long-term unemployment rate; how many children live in households where no parent works; and what are the corresponding national figures. [18944]

Mr. Oppenheim: The available information is given in the following tables:

Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what consideration he has given to proposals for the involvement of ACAS at the outset of an industrial dispute. [19311]

Mr. Oppenheim: The quinquennial review of ACAS conducted by the Employment Department in 1992–93, examined all aspects of the service's operations. It concluded that the current system of voluntary conciliation in industrial disputes worked well and there are therefore no plans to change this at present.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment with how many (a) small, (b) medium and (c) large organisations in terms of numbers employed, ACAS has been involved in attempting to settle disputes in each of the last five years. [19312]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service provides assistance in settling disputes through conciliation in collective industrial disputes and through conciliation in most individual employment rights cases, where complaints have been or could be made to an industrial tribunal.

In 1994, ACAS was requested to provide collective conciliation in 1,313 cases, as follows:

| Number of employees in establishment | Percentage of requests |
|---|---|
| 1–49 | 13 |
| 50–199 | 29 |
| 1,000+ | 21 |

I regret that it is not possible to provide a similar breakdown for previous years, but the total number of collective conciliation requests received in the previous four years is shown in the following list:

1993: 1,211
1992: 1,207
1990: 1,260

As regards individual conciliation cases, no records are kept of the size of the respondents' organisations. However, the following figures relate to cases completed in 1990–91 and derived from the Employment Department's 1992 survey of industrial tribunal applications. These show the distribution of industrial tribunal cases in four of the jurisdictions where ACAS conciliation officers were statutorily required to intervene, by size of organisation.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list the funding that ACAS has received in each of the last five years. [19166]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service received the following grant in aid for the last five years:

1990–91: £17,463,000
1991–92: £19,549,000
1992–93: £21,661,000
1993–94: £22,451,000
1994–95: £22,012,000

Construction Industry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what methods other than legislation exist to counter the problem of unfair payment practices for construction workers. [19315]

Mr. Oppenheim: Payment practices, like other terms and conditions of employment, are a matter for negotiation and agreement between employers and employees—or their representatives—subject to existing law.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many building workers are currently under contract not to be paid unless their employer receives the fee for the work concerned; and in what other sectors of the economy this practice is operated. [19307]

Mr. Oppenheim: We do not have such information, as contractual matters are for the parties to agree.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many workers have not been paid as their construction employers had become insolvent in each of the last five years. [19309]

Mr. Oppenheim: The information is not available.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what discussions he has had with the construction industry on workers' conditions of employment; and what were the results of these talks. [19308]

Mr. Oppenheim: I have had no such discussions. Terms and conditions of employment are matters for negotiation and agreement between employers and employees—or their representatives—subject to existing law.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what assessment he has made as to whether legislation in main competitor countries that all workers be paid for their work in main competitor countries has helped growth in the construction industry through attracting skilled workers. [19314]

Mr. Oppenheim: None.

Wages

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he plans to introduce legislation to guarantee that all workers would be paid for their work. [19313]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Wages Act 1986 already makes unauthorised deduction from due wages unlawful. Workers who have not received the wages to which they are entitled at the time when payment is due can make a compliant to an industrial tribunal.

Green Policy

Ms Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will name the green Minister for his Department and list (a) the green initiatives taken by that Minister in respect of the Department's functions, (b) the representations made by the Minister in respect of functions carried out by other departments and (c) the input made by the Minister into consultations on the Environment Bill. [18647]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 5 April 1995]: As the green Minister for the Department, I can inform the hon. Member that the Department's green initiatives are described in the 1995 departmental report, Cm 2805, at paragraphs 8.45 to 8.50, a copy of which is available in the Library.

I and all my ministerial colleagues share the common objective of promoting sustainable development, and I am consulted on relevant proposals and developments.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will publish the guidance in respect of the new incapacity benefit which is given to (a) Benefits Agency medical service doctors who will be administering the all-work test and the mental health test for the new incapacity benefit, (b) to adjudication officers and (c) to the medical assessors to the social security appeal tribunals; and if he will make a statement. [19133]

Mr. Hague: Guidance for BAMS doctors involved in assessing incapacity for work entitled "The Medical Advisers' Guide to Incapacity Benefit" has been issued. Copies have been placed in the Library. The chief adjudication officer published his guidance as an amendment to the adjudication officer's guide on 20 March. Copies of this are in the Library. Guidance to medical assessors is a matter for the president of the Independent Tribunal Service, His Honour Judge Bassingthwaighte. He will write to the hon. Member shortly.

Child Support Agency

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what proportion of absent parents deemed by the Child Support Agency to be paying child support maintenance for the first time are claiming one of the social security benefits prescribed in section 6 of the Child Support Act 1991; and what proportion are claiming any other state benefit or allowance; [18823]

(2) what proportion of absent parents who are deemed by the Child Support Agency to be paying child support maintenance for the first time claimed on the maintenance inquiry form that they were already paying child support maintenance; [18824]

(3) how many parents with care claim to be receiving no child support maintenance payments in cases where the absent parents have stated on the maintenance inquiry form that they are already paying child support maintenance. [18820]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for Miss Ann Chant, the chief executive. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Questions to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the proportion of absent parents on certain benefits and the proportion who were, or who were not already paying child maintenance when their cases were taken on by the Child Support Agency.

We estimate that 41 percent of all absent parents are in receipt of a social security benefit; 31 percent of all absent parents are in receipt of income support; and less than 2 percent are in receipt of family credit or disability working allowance.

We estimate from our sampling that of the cases taken on between April 1994 and February 1995, about 77 percent of parents with care were not receiving child maintenance.

Records of disputes between parents are not kept, but once an assessment is made, the Agency will resolve conflicting information concerning relevant payments of child maintenance.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of parents with care receiving child support maintenance which has been arranged by the Child Support Agency are in receipt of the lone parent premium or have indicated on the maintenance application form that they are lone parents. [18819]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security concerning the proportion of parents with care with maintenance arranged by the Child Support Agency who are lone parents.

We estimate that 92 per cent of parents with care (PWC) who have had their maintenance arranged by the Agency are lone parents. This figure includes PWCs who receive a lone parent premium within their benefit entitlement.

I hope this is of help.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the weekly income of absent parents who have been the subject of a child maintenance assessment by the Child Support Agency. [18827]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the weekly income of absent parents who have been the subject of a maintenance assessment by the Child Support Agency.

The average net weekly income for absent parents who have declared an income from employment is estimated to be just under £196.00.

I hope this is helpful.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many deduction of earnings orders have been issued by the Child Support Agency; how many of these orders have subsequently been withdrawn; and how many of these orders have been shown to contain errors. [18828]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about deduction from earnings orders (DEOs) issued by the Child Support Agency.

Since launch to the end of February 1995, the Agency has issued a total of 32,483 DEOs; 29,883 of which have been issued since April 1994.

No information is currently collected on the number of DEO's subsequently withdrawn or found to contain errors. The Agency is, however, investigating ways of measuring the effectiveness and quality of DEO's issued.

I hope this is of help.

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many child support maintenance assessments have been made by the Child Support Agency, broken down by the amount per week of the assessment. [18826]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the responsibility of the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the number of assessments made by the Child Support Agency and the amount per week of those assessments.

The table at Annex A shows the number of full maintenance assessments (FMA) and interim maintenance assessments (IMA) as at 11 March 1995, banded into weekly liability.

I hope this is of help.

War Pension Applications

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what assessment he has made of the number of staff needed to process war pension applications. [19075]

Mr. Arbuthnot: These are matters for Mr. Peter Mathison, the chief executive of the War Pensions Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Peter Mathison to Ms Joan Walley, dated 19 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the assessment of the number of staff needed to process war pension applications.

Resources allocated to the War Pension Agency are made in cash terms rather than specifically in numbers of staff. The amount allocated in 1995/96 for processing war pension applications is a total of £12.9 million, within which figure the number of staff has been assessed at 1072.

I hope you find my reply helpful.

Housing Benefit (Fraud)

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what instructions are issued by his Department to local authorities about the prevention of fraud with respect to payments of housing benefits. [19091]

Mr. Roger Evans: General housing benefit anti-fraud guidance has been provided for all local authorities since the introduction of the present housing benefit scheme in 1988. Expanded anti-fraud guidance was issued in 1991. The Department also collaborated with the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy, the Institute of Revenues Rating and Valuation and the Local Authority Investigation Officers' Group (UK) to issue an anti-fraud good practice guide for local authorities in 1991. The Department plans to issue a comprehensive fraud investigator's manual, giving detailed guidance on the investigation and prevention of fraud, to all local authorities later this year.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Landlord and Tenant Rights

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what has been the result of his period of consultation on the landlord and tenant rights and duties paper concerning reform of the law of privity of contract; if he is now in a position to support an amended Landlord and Tenant (Covenants) Bill containing the agreement made between the British Retail Consortium and the British Property Federation; and if he will make a statement. [20212]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Following a substantial response to the consultation in favour of the package, the Government will support such a Bill, provided that the principal change concerning controls over assignment of leases will not apply to purely residential tenancies or to farm business tenancies.

EMPLOYMENT

Youth Training

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many people were on (a) YT/youth credits and (b) modern apprenticeships (i) on average in 1994 and (ii) at the last date for which figures are available. [19938]

Mr. Paice: On average in 1994, there were 280,400 people on youth training, including youth credits, in Great Britain. In January 1995, the latest date for which figures are available, there were 287,100 people on YT, including youth credits, in Great Britain.

As modern apprenticeship prototypes did not begin until September 1994, it is not possible to give an average figure for 1994. As at 7 April 1995, the latest date for which figures are available, according to training and enterprise council estimates 1,393 young people had started modern apprenticeships in the 17 prototype TECs in England.

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the number and percentage of YT trainees who currently have employed status. [19940]

Mr. Paice: In the period April to December 1994, 38 per cent. of those leaving youth training in England and Wales had employed status at the time they left. As this figure is estimated from incomplete information, it is possible to give only the percentage of employed status leavers, not the actual number.

National Council of Vocational Qualifications

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what the National Council for Vocational Qualifications has cost to run in each year of its existence. [19944]

Mr. Paice: The National Council of Vocational Qualifications is funded through its co-sponsoring Departments of Employment, Education, Wales and Northern Ireland and from other sources—primarily national vocational qualification fees payable by awarding bodies and subscriptions to the national database of vocational qualifications. Grant in aid funding, which has contributed towards NCVQ's operating costs has been provided since it was established in 1986 is shown in the following table:

| 1986–87 | 520,000 |
| 1987–88 | 3,708,698 |
| 1988–89 | 3,750,000 |
| 1989–90 | 3,000,000 |
| 1990–91 | 2,621,000 |
| 1991–92 | 3,700,000 |
| 1992–93 | 3,900,000 |
| 1994–95 | 1,928,000 |

Other funding has been provided to NCVQ by the Employment Department and the Department for Education for specific activities to support Government activities. Details of NCVQ's other income are set out in the council's annual reports and accounts, copies of which are available in the Libraries.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19345]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 18 April 1995]: For a statement of Government policy on the preparation and publication of compliance cost assessments, I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Corporate Affairs on 19 April 1995, Official Report, columns 189–90.

Proposals from the Health and Safety Executive are accompanied by cost-benefit analyses rather than CCAs. CBAs compare the costs of compliance, both to the employer and to the economy, with the expected benefits of the measures proposed and include all the information required in a CCA. All CCAs and CBAs accompanying draft legislation are published. In the first three months of 1995, the Department has contributed to a CCA published by the Department of Social Security and two CBAs have been released into the public domain.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19359]

Mr. Oppenheim [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Only two of the statutory instruments made by the Employment Department in the first three months of 1995 introduced new regulations. These revoked seven previous sets of regulations as well as specified provisions contained in one statute and nine other sets of regulations.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Exhibitions

Mr. Bill Walker: To ask the Chairman of the Administration Committee if he has considered an application for an exhibition relating to overseas trade services to be displayed in the Upper Waiting Hall.

Mr. Michael J. Martin: I understand that, under procedures agreed by the Administration Committee, arrangements have been made for the exhibition to be held in the Upper Waiting Hall from Monday 24 April to Friday 28 April 1995.

ENVIRONMENT

Rents

Mr. Raynsford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the average percentage increase in rent levels registered by rent officers (a) in London and (b) in the rest of England together with the comparable increases and decreases in (i) the retail price index and (ii) average house prices in each of the years from 1988 to 1994. [18780]

Mr. Curry: The available information is given in the tables:

Registrations by rent officers 1988–1994
Percentage change on previous rent, unfurnished re-registrations

| Private | | Housing association | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| London per cent. | Rest of England per cent. | Year | London per cent. | Rest of England per cent. |

| 23 | 22 | 1993 | 21 | 20 |
| 22 | 19 | [1]1994 | 19 | 15 |

Rents are registered for a period of two years. The percentage changes on previous rent refer to this period.
[1] 1994 figures are based on data for January—September.

| 1988 | 106.9 | 4.9 | 83.8 | 25.6 |
| 1989 | 115.2 | 7.8 | 101.3 | 20.9 |
| 1990 | 126.1 | 9.5 | 100.0 | –1.3 |
| 1991 | 133.5 | 5.9 | 98.6 | –1.4 |
| 1992 | 138.5 | 3.7 | 94.9 | –3.8 |
| 1993 | 140.7 | 1.6 | 92.5 | –2.5 |
| 1994 | 144.1 | 2.4 | 93.9 | 1.5 |

Mr. Raynsford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many rent officer registrations have been referred (a) by the landlord and (b) by the tenant or another party to the rent assessment committee (i) in London and (ii) in the rest of England in each of the years from 1988 to 1994; and what proportion of these led to the fair rent being confirmed, increased or reduced by comparison with the rent officer's decision. [18715]

Mr. Curry: Information collected on referrals to rent assessment committees does not identify the applicant. Statistics on RAC decisions, including the proportion of cases where rents were reduced, confirmed or increased compared with the rent officer's determination, have been published quarterly in "Rent Officer Statistics" since 1990. Prior to this information was published half yearly in "Statistical Notes for Rent Officers". Both these series are available in the Library.

Construction Industry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he will announce his conclusions on the recommendations of the Latham report. [19316]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: I refer to the answer given to the hon. Member for Ilford, South (Mr. Gapes) on 5 April, Official Report, columns 1283–84. Further to that answer, a consultation document on proposals for legislation on liability and latent defects insurance was published on 12 April; we hope to publish a second consultation paper shortly on legislation to underpin Sir Michael's recommendations on fair construction contracts.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his policy on the Latham report's proposal of standard contract documents for the construction industry. [19310]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We shall be consulting shortly on proposals for legislation to underpin Sir Michael Latham's recommendations on fair construction contracts.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the interest receipts element in the all other services block of standard spending assessments for each district, borough and metropolitan council, including London, for the years 1993–94, 1994–95 and 1995–96. [19829]

Mr. Curry [holding answer 18 April 1995]: A table containing the information requested has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what interest receipts were earned by each district, borough and metropolitan council, including London, for 1993–94, separating the capital financing element from other receipts; and what are the budgeted estimates for interest receipts of these councils for 1994–95 and for 1995–96 where available. [19830]

Mr. Curry [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I have placed the available information in the Library of the House.

Housing Partnership Fund

Mrs. Maddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many applications were received in total by his Department for the housing partnership fund for 1995–96 in each region of England; and what was the total amount bid for (a) by successful bids and (b) by all bidders in each region. [19888]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The information is provided in the table.

| North West | 35 | 2,801,000 | 127 | 14,954,000 |

Mrs. Maddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many applications were received in total by his Department for the housing partnership fund for 1995–96 for (a) energy efficiency projects, (b) the re-use of empty property and (c) flats over shops schemes; and what was the total amount bid in each case. [19889]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: There were (a) 41 successful bids for energy efficiency schemes totalling £4,657,000, (b) 134 successful bids for re-use of empty property totalling £19,738,000 and (c) 39 successful bids for flats over shops schemes totalling £3,929,000. There is, of course, some overlap between these categories.

Information on the numbers of applications for different types of schemes is not held centrally.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what plans he has to raise at the forthcoming meeting of the Commission for Sustainable Development the rate of progress of Canada in meeting its target for carbon dioxide emissions in 2000. [19808]

Mr. Atkins: None. The question of carbon dioxide emissions and climate change is not on the agenda for discussion at the CSD meeting.

Community Charge

Mr. Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of uncollected community charge (a) nationally and (b) for each district council in Nottinghamshire. [19884]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The outstanding arrears of community charge in England as at 31 March 1994 were estimated to be £1,700 million, of which £217 million had been collected by December 1994. No data are yet available centrally on the amount of community charge written off between April and December 1994.

Estimates of uncollected community charge for each local authority, including the district councils in Nottinghamshire, are published regularly by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy: figures for 31 March 1994 are available in its revenue collection statistics 1993–94 publication, a copy of which can be found in the Library of the House.

Ordnance Survey

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what performance targets have been set for the Ordnance Survey executive agency in the year 1995–96. [20350]

Mr. Atkins: The following performance targets have been set for Ordnance Survey in 1995–96.

1. To recover at least 80 per cent. of the total costs incurred by the agency.

2. To offer customers national coverage of Superplan by 31 December 1995.

3. To increase progressively the percentage of major detail which is surveyed and available to customers in the national topographic database so that, by the year 2000, 99 per cent. is available at any one time. The target for 1995–96 is 95 per cent.

4. In order to provide a quality supply service to customers, to dispatch products in response to valid orders as follows:

   95 per cent. of Land-Line digital map units within six working days.

   90 per cent. of small-scale maps within five working days.

5. To increase by 6 per cent. the annual revenue earned per member of staff employed.

These targets require further improvements on good performance by Ordnance Survey in previous years and recognise the importance of customers to the success of the agency.

Environment Agency

Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what steps are being taken to appoint the chief executive of the proposed Environment Agency. [20810]

Mr. Atkins: Now that the Environment Bill has received a Second Reading in the Commons, thereby indicating parliamentary support for the principle of the Bill, I have informed the environment agency advisory committee that it may start the recruitment of the chief executive of the proposed Environment Agency. The successful candidate will not be formally appointed chief executive until the Bill has received Royal Assent.

Parliamentary approval to this expenditure will be sought in a summer supplementary estimate for the Department of the Environment's environmental protection and water vote—class VII, vote 3. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £55,000 will be met by repayable advances for the Contingencies Fund.

This expenditure is required to meet the cost of recruiting the chief executive. Its urgency arises from the need to have the chief executive in place as soon as possible after Royal Assent to ensure that public funds are properly protected and to enable rapid progress with the establishment of the agency.

Mr. Mans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he intends to issue a draft of the guidance to be provided to the Environment Agency on its objectives, including the contribution it is to make towards the achievement of sustainable development. [21032]

Mr. Gummer: Together with my right hon. Friends the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food and the Secretary of State for Wales, I am today issuing this draft guidance to inform debate on the Environment Bill. It expands on the draft outline scoping guidance issued by my right hon. Friend Lord Ullswater on 17 January 1995.

EDUCATION

Special Needs

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received on the new special educational needs code of practice; and if she intends to keep to the August 1995 deadline for the code of practice. [19883]

Mr. Forth: The code of practice came into effect in September 1994. It has been widely welcomed as reflecting existing best practice, although there are naturally concerns in some schools about the process of implementation. Schools are required to publish their special educational needs policy by 1 August 1995. There are no plans to extend this deadline.

Public Bodies

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education, pursuant to her answers of 30 March, Official Report, column 718, on public bodies, when she intends to write to the hon. Member for Bath with the information requested. [19976]

Mr. Boswell: A response to the question relating to the running costs of non-departmental public bodies sponsored by this Department was given to the hon. Member on 18 April 1995, Official Report, columns 50-52. Additional information is being obtained. I will write to the hon. Member with the information requested very shortly.

PRIME MINISTER

Dr. Martin Gilbert

Mr. Mandelson: To ask the Prime Minister under whose auspices and at whose cost Dr. Martin Gilbert has been travelling on the Prime Minister's official visit to America. [18977]

The Prime Minister: The cost of Dr. Gilbert's journey was met by the Washington Institute for Near East Policy.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Annual Reports

Mr. Matthew Taylor : To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20181]

Mr. Horam: This information is not held centrally and could be made available only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20182]

Mr. Horam: The compilation of material for the Cabinet Office departmental report involves, in many cases only briefly, a large number of staff throughout the Department, its agencies, HMSO and the Central Office of Information.

No record is kept of the amount of time spent.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19848]

Mr. David Hunt: This information is not available.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many Government agencies there are at present. [20063]

Mr. Horam: There are currently 108 executive agencies established under the next steps programme.

Market Testing

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library copies of each standard letter of guidance or set of instructions on issues of conflicts of interest arising from market-testing or contractorisation on the Government-owned, contractor-operated and Government-owned, Government-operated models. [20306]

Mr. Horam: Guidance is set out in paragraphs 6.10 to 6.12 and paragraph 6.16 of the Government's "Guide to Market Testing", which is available in the Library.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

AEA Technology

Mr. Carrington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what arrangements have been made to appoint advisers in connection with the privatisation of AEA Technology. [20813]

Mr. Page: I am currently considering bids from financial and legal advisers in connection with the privatisation of AEA Technology. Appointments will be made shortly.

Parliamentary approval to this new service is being sought in the main supply estimates 1995–96 for the Department of Trade and Industry vote; programmes and administration—class IV, vote 1. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £750,000 will be met by repayable advances from the Contingencies Fund.

Industry Council

Mr. Hendry: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting of the EC Industry Council held in Luxembourg on 7 April. [20973]

Mr. Eggar: I represented the United Kingdom at this meeting. The Council adopted three sets of conclusions: on industrial competitiveness, industrial co-operation with central and eastern Europe and high-technology industries. The meeting heard oral reports from the Commission on the implementation of competition policy in 1994 and on the monitoring of the six article 95 steel state aid decisions approved in December 1993. On the latter, I underline the importance of the conditions imposed by the Council being fulfilled and that we would want to look closely at the Commission's written report when it appears. The Commission gave a short oral report on the outcome of the G7 ministerial conference on the information society held in Brussels in February. Finally, there was a Commission presentation of its plans to establish common industry/research task forces within the Commission. No votes were taken on any of the issues on the agenda.

Companies House

Mr. Morgan: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance note dated 24 March 1995 from senior management to all staff at Companies House on conflicts of interest in the contractorisation process of Companies House. [20305]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: I have placed in the Library of the House a copy of the guidance on conduct which has been drawn to the attention of Companies House staff.

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make it his policy that any money given to Northern Ireland by the United States will count as extra resources and that the Government will not give less money to Northern Ireland as a result. [19874]

Sir John Wheeler: That is Government policy. Money from the United States does not affect public expenditure levels in Northern Ireland.

Animal Diseases

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of swine vesicular disease were reported each year since 1985. [19726]

Mr. Ancram: None. There has never been a case of swine vesicular disease in Northern Ireland.

Government Loans Fund

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the outstanding amounts from the Government Loans Fund for each of the Northern Ireland district councils; and what is the cost per head of population. [19733]

Sir John Wheeler [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The Government Loans Fund was abolished by articles 7 to 15 of the Financial Provisions (Northern Ireland) Order 1983 and its functions were transferred to the Consolidated Fund for Northern Ireland. The amounts owed to the Consolidated Fund at the year ended 31 March 1994 in respect of Government loans by each of the district councils are set out in the table:

| North Down borough council | 10,711,612 |
| Omagh district council | 4,862,266 |

This equates to approximately £79 per head of population of Northern Ireland.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19365]

Sir John Wheeler [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Forty-six rules and regulations were repealed by my right hon. and learned Friend in the first three months of 1995.

One hundred and thirty-eight new rules and regulations were introduced during the same period including:

14 which repealed earlier instruments or substituted a more favourable regime for business

24 which implemented EU obligations

Five which facilitated privatisations and competition

40 which updated fees and charges or related to local legislation

49 which, while not fitting any of the above categories, had no adverse impact on business.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many meters of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19847]

Mr. Moss [holding answer 19 April 1995]: The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland has bought 43.98 cu m of mahogany in the last five years, at a cost of £11,500, for use in the manufacture and repair of furniture. In line with existing policy, the use of mahogany is being reduced and it is now primarily purchased for repairs.

SCOTLAND

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years.

Mr. Lang: Information on the total number of hours overtime worked and the total amount paid in overtime is as follows:

| | The Scottish Office | | Scottish Prison Service | | Scottish Record Office for Scotland | | General Register Office for Scotland | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | £ | hrs | £ | hrs | £ | hrs | £ | hrs |
| 1994–95 | 3,227,331 | 504,735 | 288,728 | 42,379 | 36,480 | 6,021 | 32,736 | 4,264 |
| 1993–94 | 3,172,452 | 513,598 | 295,683 | 43,608 | 25,459 | 4,413 | 34,877 | 4,769 |
| 1992–93 | 3,296,869 | 547,691 | 272,469 | 41,661 | 67,896 | 11,931 | 43,951 | 6,021 |

The Scottish Office figures include all its agencies except the Scottish Prison Service. Individual information on these agencies cannot be provided without disproportionate costs in staff time.

The total number of days lost through sickness in 1992 and 1993, figures for 1994 are not yet available, is as follows:

|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1992 | 54,734 | 55,446 | 913 | 3,544 |

Again, the Scottish Office figures include all its agencies, except the Scottish Prison Service. Individual information on these agencies cannot be provided without disproportionate costs in staff time. Because of the variables involved in this calculation, it is not possible to give the monetary equivalent of days lost to sickness.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom, in each of the last three years. [19652]

Mr. Lang: Information is not held separately for domestic and overseas travel or for individual agencies in the Scottish Office.

The total subsistence allowance paid by the Scottish Office and its agencies in each of the last three years was as follows:

| 1992–93 | 2,184,177 |
| 1993–94 | 3,675,067 |
| 1994–95 | 2,895,091 |

This information excludes the costs and expenses appropriate to the Scottish Office Prison Service, which is unable to provide the information in respect of prison officer grades without disproportionate costs in staff time.

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19562]

Mr. Lang: Information on individual agencies and (b) and (c) cannot be provided without disproportionate costs in staff time.

The total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials in the Scottish Office and its agencies—excluding prison officer grades in the Scottish Prison Service, where it could not be provided without disproportionate costs in staff time—who were required to relocate as part of their employment in each of the last three years was as follows:

1994–95: £473,047

Glaucoma

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the estimated number of people aged over 17 years with glaucoma in Scotland. [19730]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Information on the prevalence of glaucoma is not held centrally.

TREASURY

Membership of the European Union

Mr. Gill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what quantified evidence he has on whether the United Kingdom would prosper outside the European Union. [19542]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Membership of the EU involves a balance of benefits and obligations, which cannot be quantified precisely. The benefits to the UK include increased bargaining power in world trade negotiations and the benefits from influencing the outcome of decisions taken at a Community level on a wide range of matters affecting our prosperity, including the single market and state aids.

Life Insurance

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the taxation of the life insurance business of friendly societies. [20814]

Sir George Young: Regulations will be laid before the House shortly which will, among other things, clarify the treatment of expenses in arriving at the taxable profits of a friendly society writing life insurance business.

Tax is charged on the investment income and gains referrable to such business, less the management expenses incurred by the society in the course of that business; but friendly societies enjoy an exemption from tax on the investment return from smaller policies.

This distinction between taxable and tax-exempt business was introduced in 1966. Before then, societies had been able to offer only small-scale tax exempt policies. At that time, it seemed self-evident, both to the Inland Revenue and to the friendly society movement represented by the Friendly Societies Liaison Committee, that to calculate the profits of the taxable business one should take the investment return and expenses related specifically to that new category of business.

This approach was incorporated into guidance issued to societies by the liaison committee and was universally followed in practice for more than 25 years, but recently it has been challenged. It is argued that there is no bar in law to a society setting against the income of its taxable life insurance business expenses incurred not only in that strand of its business but in the pursuit of all of its other activities.

Such an interpretation is clearly contrary to the intention of the 1966 legislation. It would overturn a basis of taxation that has applied across the board for a quarter of a century with universal acceptance and would produce unfair results as between one society and another.

Litigation on this point has recently been initiated and it may be some long time before we have a final judgment. It is not satisfactory to leave so fundamental a point uncertain and the regulations to be laid will put the long accepted basis of taxation beyond question. The regulations will also cover other deductions such as capital allowances on assets used only partly for the purposes of taxable life insurance business.

Because expenses in excess of income and gains can be carried forward without limit of time, the regulations will have to have retrospective effect, but the retrospection will not in practice result in the recalculation of any figures which have already been agreed. Where a society has embarked on litigation, and a hearing by the tax commissioners has begun before today, the amount of the losses available to carry forward will be determined by the courts and not by the regulations.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19837]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 19 April 1995]: I regret that information prior to the financial year 1992–93 is not available.

In the year 1992–93, the Treasury purchased some small tables with a mahogany veneer to a total value of less than £1,400. I am not aware of any such goods being purchased since. On 21 April 1993, the Treasury announced its environmental policy. This states that "wherever possible the department will avoid the purchase of goods which are manufactured or obtained in such a manner that the resource used to produce those goods is put under threat."

HOME DEPARTMENT

Specialist Support Unit

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reductions are being made in the Home

Office specialist support unit for training police officers in race and community relations matters; and if he will make a statement. [19512]

Mr. Maclean: The specialist support unit is contracted out to an independent training consultancy, Equalities Associates. I understand that the company is considering a reduction of two training staff in the forthcoming contract year, commencing in July 1995.

Prison Escapes

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the performance of the Prison Service on escapes in 1994–95, including privately managed court escort services and prisons. [20812]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: In 1994–95, the total number of escapes from prison and escorts outside prison, as a proportion of the average prison population, was 32 per cent. lower than 1993–94 and 49 per cent. lower than 1992–93, the last year before the Prison Service became an agency. The total of 202 escapes from prison and escorts in 1994–95 includes 15 from the privately managed court escort and custody service—compared with 26 in 1993–94 and one from the four contracted-out establishments.

The rate of escapes continued to decline during 1994–95, and in the second half of the year—October 1994 to March 1995—the rate of escapes was 67 per cent. lower than the same period in 1992–93. In the period October 1994 to March 1995, there were only three escapes from the privately managed court escort and custody service—less than 10 per cent. of the number under the previous arrangements provided by the police and the Prison Service. In this period, there were no escapes from contracted-out prisons.

Republican Prisoners

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received about the removal of basic privileges from 38 republican prisoners in prison in Britain; what representations he has received about such prisoners and visitors being stopped from talking in Irish; what instructions he or his officials have issued concerning these matters since 1 September 1994; and if he will make a statement. [17667]

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 3 April 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Derek Lewis to Mr. Max Madden, dated 21 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question asking what representations have been received about the removal of basic privileges from 38 republican prisoners; what representations have been received about such prisoners and visitors being stopped from talking in Irish; what instructions have been issued concerning these matters since September 1994.

Representations have been received from a number of organisations and individuals about the treatment of some Irish republican prisoners. Some of these representations have been about enabling a particular prisoner in Full Sutton prison to speak Irish during visits by his family. This he is permitted to do.

Governors of the prisons concerned are required to treat prisoners in accordance with Prison Rules, Standing Orders and any relevant instructions. No instructions have been issued to the Governors of the prisons concerned about the treatment of Irish republican prisoners. The regime under which the five Irish prisoners who escaped from the Special Secure Unit at Whitemoor in September 1994 are held in Belmarsh was approved by Prison Service headquarters.

TRANSPORT

Railways (Surplus Land)

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if the Radyr bridge depot and yard was listed in the schedule of previously operational land transferred as surplus to railway requirements to Railtrack Property to be disposed of. [20307]

Mr. Watts: Radyr bridge depot and yard is owned by Railtrack PLC and is managed by Railtrack Property. The majority of the site is now surplus to operational requirements and Railtrack has recently decided to dispose of it, subject to access over the adjoining railway lines.

Motorway Lane Discipline

Mr. Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to issue further guidance to motorists on motorway lane discipline; and if he will make a statement. [19943]

Mr. Norris: Advice on good lane discipline is already contained in the "Highway Code" and the Driving Standards Agency's "Driving" manual. We take every opportunity to emphasise the need for good lane discipline. A controlled motorway experiment will start on the M25 next month with the use of variable speed limits and camera enforcement. We believe that this will have beneficial effect on lane discipline as the traffic flow will be smoothed with well-disciplined speeds and a consequent reduction in the number of lane changes. We shall be monitoring the effectiveness of the new measures.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19565]

Mr. Norris: The information is not available in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

M25

Mr. Wilshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he hopes to be able to hold local exhibitions and meetings to explain the details of his new proposals for the M25 between junctions 12 and 16. [19241]

Mr. Watts: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. David Wilshire, dated 21 April 1995:

The Minister of State for Railways and Roads has asked me to write to you in response to your Parliamentary Question about the M25 widening between Junctions 12 and 16.

Following the Secretary of State's announcement on April 3, the Highways Agency have embarked on design work and an environmental assessment of the widening proposals. We shall do this as quickly as possible, but it will necessarily take some time. We hope to publish details of the scheme between Junctions 12 and 15 early next year, and will hold a series of local public exhibitions to provide an opportunity for people to see the proposals and discuss them with Agency staff.

A copy of the Non-Technical Summary of the Environmental Statement will be sent to all those who objected to or commented on the original link road proposals, together with details of the exhibitions.

Preparation of the scheme between Junctions 15 and 16 will take longer and the detailed proposals will follow at a later date.

BR Civil Engineering Design Offices

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people are employed at each of the British Rail civil engineering design offices in (a) Birmingham, (b) Croydon, (c) Glasgow, (d) Swindon and (e) York; how many bids in respect of each of these offices have been received by the BR vendor unit from organisations which wish to purchase them; and when he expects a decision on the bids will be made. [19751]

Mr. Watts: The number of staff currently employed at each of the civil engineering design offices is as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| a) Birmingham | 119 |
| b) Croydon | 180 |
| c) Glasgow | 63 |
| d) Swindon | 140 |
| e) York | 160 |

The number of bids received for the design offices is commercially confidential.

A decision on the bids will be made when negotiations are completed.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of for Transport how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19370]

Mr. Watts: Two rules and regulations were repealed in the first three months of 1995. In the same period, 17 rules and regulations were introduced—not including commencement orders, Orders in Council and instruments not subject to parliamentary procedure—of which:

two revoked earlier instruments or substituted a more favourable regime for business;

five implemented EU and other international obligations including measures to facilitate intermember state trade;

none facilitated privatisation and competition;

eight updated fees and charges or related to local legislation;

the remaining two are minor miscellaneous provisions which amend existing legislation and have no adverse impact on business.

Only two introduced new regulatory requirements which increased cost to business: the Merchant Shipping (Hours of Work) Regulations 1995 and the Road Vehicle (Construction & Use) (Amendment) Regulations 1995. Compliance cost assessments for both regulations have been placed in the House Library.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19355]

Mr. Watts [holding answer 18 April 1995]: In accordance with the guidance provided in the DTI publication "Checking the Cost to Business", my Department has agreed to produce compliance cost assessments for all rules and regulations which may have an impact on business. We have issued five CCAs in the first three months of this year, copies of which are in the Library.

The reply given by my right hon. Friend the President of the Board of Trade on 19 April, Official Report, columns 189–90, sets out the circumstances in which CCAs are required.

WALES

Local Authorities

Mr. Wigley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which local authorities in Wales have been identified by the Audit Commission as having a prima facie case against them of either corruption or maladministration; and if he will make a statement. [18877]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I will write to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Council Tax

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what powers he has for the overruling of a valuation tribunal in setting a council tax band for a domestic property. [18969]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: None.

Dental Services

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list those health authorities or family health services authority, or health commissions in Wales where the level of community dental provision is being reduced and the level of salaried dental provision is being increased in 1995–96. [20311]

Mr. Redwood: It is a matter for each health authority to determine, in the light of local circumstances, the appropriate level of community dental service provision for its area and information about this is not held centrally.

Family health services authorities can apply for permission to employ salaried dentists where and when they deem it necessary in accordance with local needs and circumstances. There are presently three salaried dentists in post in Wales. In addition, Dyfed family health services authority has recently been given permission to employ a second salaried dentist; Gwent family health services authority has approval in principle to appoint one; Gwynedd family health services authority has three vacant posts, and an application from Clwyd family health services authority is currently under consideration.

On 5 April, my right hon. Friend the Minister of Health announced the Government's plans for the reform of NHS dentistry following the consultation on the Green Paper "Improving NHS Dentistry". That announcement restated the Government's commitment to strengthen the safety net role of the community dental service to meet the needs of patients in areas of the country where there is difficulty obtaining NHS treatment under the general dental service.

I have made available an extra £2.5 million to improve dental services in the community. Proposals from health authorities are currently under consideration by the Welsh Office.

Disabled Drivers Assessment Centre

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what consultations he has had with the Wales disabled drivers assessment centre concerning the provision of a new integrated disabled drivers testing centre and test track; and if he will make a statement. [20310]

Mr. Redwood: Welsh Office officials have discussed with the Wales disabled drivers assessment centre—in connection with Welsh Office grant support—its wish to relocate. These discussions are continuing.

Cancer Care Services

Mr. Sweeney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to improve the provision of cancer care services. [20811]

Mr. Redwood: I have received the final report from the chief medical officers of England and Wales expert advisory groups on cancer "A Policy Framework for Commissioning Cancer Services", which sets out a strategic framework for cancer services.

I have accepted the recommendations in that report and a copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

It is essential that all patients with cancer have access to high-quality, safe and effective care, and that health authorities in Wales should work together, and across their boundaries, to provide such care and support to patients, their carers and professionals involved in delivering that care.

I am delighted that Professor Ian Cameron, provost of the University of Wales, college of medicine has agreed to lead an expert group to co-ordinate and support local action to implement the expert advisory group on cancer recommendations in Wales. I expect them to consult those affected and take local opinion into account.

DEFENCE

Chemical Weapons

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the burial sites on land for chemical weapon munitions recovered during the First World War which are known to his Department; and what remedial action is taking place as planned to decontaminate these sites. [19333]

Mr. Soames: Bramley training area—formerly Bramley central ammunition depot—is the only MOD site where first world war chemical warfare munitions are known to have been buried. Following the discovery in 1987 of CW munitions buried there, munition recovery and clearance work was carried out. Work on further searches is currently being undertaken at other locations within the site. Any CW munitions located will be removed, rendered safe and transported to the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, Porton Down for destruction.

Nuclear Warheads

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his oral answer of 28 March, Official Report, columns 817–18, whether the figures he cites on future deployment of United Kingdom nuclear warheads include all existing categories of British land, sea and air-launched nuclear weapons presently deployed by the Untied Kingdom or allocated to NATO. [19335]

Mr. Soames: The figures cited are for the total number of Untied Kingdom nuclear weapons, excluding only any awaiting final dismantlement.

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if, pursuant to his oral answer of 28 March, Official Report, columns 817–18, if he will specify on which year in the 1970s his figures for nuclear warhead capacity are based. [19334]

Mr. Soames: The figures are based on the point in the mid-1970s when United Kingdom nuclear force plans authorised in the 1960s were fully implemented.

Sub-strategic Nuclear Role

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when Trident is expected to take up a sub-strategic nuclear role; and if he will make a statement. [19330]

Mr. Soames: I refer the hon. member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for the City of Chester (Mr. Brandreth) on 4 April, Official Report, column 1097.

Hunting Licences

Mr. Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which hunts currently have a licence to hunt on Ministry of Defence land; and to which areas of land those licences apply. [18966]

Mr. Soames: The following hunts have been issued with licences by my Department for the 1994–95 hunting season in the areas shown:

| Hunt | Area |
|---|---|
| The North Shropshire Hunt | Nesscliffe training area |
| The West Shropshire Hunt | Nesscliffe training area |

| The Irfon and Towey Hunt | Sennybridge Army Field training area |
| The Glyn Celyn Beagles | Sennybridge Army Field training area |
| The Avon Vale Hunt | Salisbury Plain training area (West) |
| The Royal Artillery Hunt | Salisbury Plain training area (West) |
| The South and West Wiltshire Hunt | Salisbury Plain training area (West) |

Job Losses

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many naval (a) engineers, (b) nursing officers, (c) aircraft controllers, (d) accountants, (e) metallurgists, (f) architects and (g) clerical staff have lost their jobs in the last five years for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [19160]

Mr. Soames: Although information is not available in the precise form requested, the number of Royal Naval and Queen Alexandra's Royal Naval Nursing Service personnel who were made redundant between 1 April 1990 and 31 December 1994 is as follows:

Engineer officers and ratings in the engineering branch of the Royal Navy (including metallurgists)—2,621

Supply and secretariat officers and ratings in the writer branch (which will include accountants and clerical staff) in the Royal Navy—236

Nursing officers and rating aircraft controllers in the QARNNS and Royal Navy—0

Redundant Naval Personnel

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provision is made for re-training those Navy personnel who have lost their jobs; and if he will make a statement. [19158]

Mr. Soames: Naval personnel who leave the service on redundancy are eligible for resettlement training and advice to help them prepare for, and find suitable employment in, civilian life. Typically, this includes: an interview to assess experience and qualifications, and consider future employment and training options; up to four week's pre-release training or individual resettlement preparation either at a tri-service resettlement centre or civilian college or university, or an attachment with a prospective employer; and a wide range of career and personal counselling. The individual may also register with the services' employment network which provides a computer-based job-matching service.

We believe that resettlement services for members of the Royal Navy are comprehensive and effective and note that the independent review by Mr. Bett has made some recommendations in this area which will be studied carefully.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of those naval personnel who have lost their jobs in the last five years have subsequently gained employment outside the service; what steps his Department takes to monitor the extent to which staff are re-employed elsewhere; and if he will make a statement. [19161]

Mr. Soames: Although information is not held in the form requested, tri-service surveys show that 80 per cent. of ex-service personnel are either in employment or retraining within three months of discharge.

Surveys are conducted to evaluate the success of tri-service resettlement provision. These surveys include questions about employment gained. In addition, the Royal Navy has conducted its own study into attitudes and experiences of those who have recently left the service. More detailed and longer-term monitoring of leavers in all three service is being introduced.

Indonesian Students

Mrs. Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many students from Indonesia have visited the United Kingdom to receive training at United Kingdom military establishments in each year since 1990. [19745]

Mr. Soames: Although the UK has provided training for Indonesian students since 1990, details—including the numbers involved—are not normally disclosed as they are regarded as confidential between Governments.

NATO Officers

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his latest assessment of the number of serving officers holding (a) five star, (b) four star, (c) three star, (d) two star and (e) one star rank for each of the NATO countries, together with his estimate of the total current serving personnel. [20273]

Mr. Soames: The information requested is not held in my Department.

Mr. Jonathan Moyle

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons a thesis on Soviet conventional air attack on the United Kingdom, written by Jonathan Moyle while studying at the department of international politics, university of Aberystwyth, remains classified information; whether a shortened version of this thesis is declassified; if he will specify the past involvement between his Department and Mr. Moyle; what information his Department has received concerning the events surrounding Mr. Moyle's death in 1990; and if he will make a statement. [19980]

Mr. Soames: There is only one version of the thesis and it is not classified. While conducting research for this thesis, Mr. Moyle had access to largely historical MOD material appropriate to the subject of his research. Mr. Moyle served in the RAF as a commissioned officer from August 1980 to April 1988, after which his connection with this Department ceased. it is for the Chilean authorities to investigate the circumstances of Mr. Moyle's death. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has co-operated with them fully from the outset.

Gulf War Syndrome

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussion his Department has had with its American counterparts concerning experiments conducted by the Pentagon and toxicology experts at the Duke university medical centre in America concerning the results of experiments carried out into alleged Gulf war syndrome. [19978]

Mr. Soames: My Department is aware of media reports of research undertaken by the Pentagon and Duke university, North Carolina, and has requested further information from the American authorities.

HMS Vigilant

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what factors have led to the decision to delay the entry into service of HMS Vigilant until 1997. [19327]

Mr. Freeman: The planned in service date of Vigilant has for some years been 1998. She remains on course to achieve that date.

AS90 Howitzers

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects AS90 howitzers to be refitted with a 52 calibre gun barrel; what difficulties have been encountered in trials with existing L17 practice rounds; what plans he has for procuring extended range ordnance for rebarrelled AS90 howitzers; and if he will make a statement. [18793]

Mr. Freeman: We expect to issue shortly an invitation to tender to Vickers Shipbuilding and Engineering Ltd. for the development and production of a 52 calibre ordnance for AS90. On current plans, this will lead to the first howitzers being covered to extended range ordnance before the end of the decade. Trials with a prototype 52 calibre barrel firing inert L17 rounds have resulted in some cases of "engraving" of the projectile when it has been fired at the maximum range. This is being addressed as part of the risk reduction work already in hand by the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency and industry.

Surplus Equipment

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 27 March, Official Report, column 504, if he will give (a) the original cost of items listed as held for two years, (b) the date when they were commissioned and (c) an estimate of their current value. [19283]

Mr. Freeman: Further to my answer to the hon. Member for Leeds, Central, of 27 March 1995, Official Report, column 504, HMS Kent, a County class destroyer, was commissioned on 15 August 1963 and was last refitted more than 10 years ago prior to the Dockyard privatisation. The original cost was £16 million.

HMS Jupiter and HMS Hermione, Leander class frigates, were commissioned on 9 August and 11 July 1969 respectively and were last refitted during 1986–87. Their original cost was £7 million each.

The 120 mm Wombat anti-tank guns came into service in 1962. The 105 mm pack howitzers entered service in 1961–62. Records of the original cost of these two weapons, which are no longer in service, are not available.

The Spey engine entered service with the RAF in June 1965 in the Phantom aircraft. The original cost of the engines were part of the all-up price for the aircraft and are not separately identifiable.

Most, if not all, of the equipment listed, will shortly appear on the commercial market. It would not be appropriate to reveal likely expectations of sales prices.

Defence Export Services Organisation

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 30 November 1994 to the hon. Member for Nottingham, South (Mr. Simpson), Official Report, columns 777–78, how many hours per week Mr. Charles Masefield is contracted to work for the Defence Export Services Organisation. [19434]

Mr. Freeman: Mr. Charles Masefield's conditioned hours of work are 41 hours per week, for a five-day week, in accordance with the general conditions laid down for non-industrial civil servants. However, in order for Mr. Masefield to fulfil his role as Head of Defence Export Services he has, in practice, to work far in excess of these hours.

Land Mines

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ranger anti-personnel mines his Department possesses; when they were purchased; who they were purchased from; what was the total cost of the order; when they will need to be replaced; and if he will make a statement. [19983]

Mr. Freeman: The stocks my Department possesses were purchased from Thorn EMI Electronics Ltd., between 1970 and 1983, but we no longer retain a record of their cost. The quantity of Ranger anti-personnel mines, held by my Department is classified. No decisions have been taken on replacements.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department will establish (a) an engineering study and (b) a cost analysis study of the feasibility of fitting self-destruct mechanisms to his Department's anti-personnel mines. [19984]

Mr. Freeman: An engineering and costs analysis study of fitting self-destruct mechanisms to existing mines will take place when my Department next considers its future requirements and the most cost-effective way of meeting those requirements.

Departmental Travel

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration he has given to the privatisation of his Department's travel business; and if he will make a statement. [20061]

Mr. Freeman: The majority of MOD travel business is currently booked through the joint service travel centre which arranges flight bookings for MOD service and civilian personnel, their dependants and MOD contractors. Additionally, it arranges travel bookings by rail, ferry and through the channel tunnel.

The JSTC has been subject to review on a number of occasions by independent consultancies which have compared the service it provides with those available in the commercial market place. It is currently being examined as a part of the wider defence costs study. This review is being undertaken by a firm of independent consultants and their remit, which is wide ranging, and encompasses not only air travel but the provision of support services such as car hire, hotel bookings and the procurement of visas and passports. Until the study has been completed, and its findings analysed it would be premature of me to speculate on the suitability of further privatisation measures in the future.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes have been made to his Department's travel business in the last five years. [20062]

Mr. Freeman: The increased commitment by HMG to UN and out-of-area operations, such as the former republics of Yugoslavia and more recently Angola have placed heavy and persistent tasking levels on the RAF's fleet of transport aircraft. This pressure has resulted in my Department using commercial airlines for non operational airlift. This change of emphasis over recent years has resulted in the development of a sophisticated and cost-effective management approach in the commercial sector.

The Ministry of Defence has sought to reduce the cost of travel by taking advantage of commercial services for routine trooping purposes and have recently concluded negotiations with commercial airlines on a variety of routes; including the far east, northern Europe and the north Atlantic. An example is the trooping requirement between the UK and Germany where because of the distances involved and the frequency of service small to medium-size civil airliners provide the most cost-effective solution, thereby releasing the larger ATF aircraft—Tristars and VC10s—to meet long-range or operational tasks.

Use of commercial assets is also made for the movement of freight by road. This is achieved through the use of an enabling contract with a major freight carrier which also includes a requirement to support surges in movements arising from operational activity.

A further change has arisen through the placing of contracts with self drive car hire companies, the use of which is funded by individual budget holders within the department. The use of this service continues to increase as budget holders seek the most cost-effective means of meeting their travel requirements.

Arms Sales (Taiwan)

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's policy concerning the export of arms to Taiwan; and what changes there have been in arms export policy to Taiwan in the last five years. [19981]

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Eddisbury (Mr. Goodlad), on 4 April 1995, Official Report, column 981.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the implications for regional security tensions if Britain exported arms to Taiwan. [19982]

Mr. Freeman: Pursuant to the answer given on 4 April 1995 by the Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Eddisbury (Mr. Goodlad), Official Report, column 981, the implications for regional security tensions of the supply of defence-related equipment and technology to Taiwan are considered case by case.

Upholder Submarines

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Upholder submarines his Department has provided to Canada on extended loan; which submarines are on loan; what are the conditions of the loan; how much his Department is receiving from the Canadian Government; when the submarines first come into operational use with the Royal Navy; what was the total cost of each submarine; and for how long the submarines will be on loan. [19979]

Mr. Freeman: Since the MOD's decision in 1992–93, announced in Command 2270, to withdraw the four Upholder class submarines from RN service we have offered them for sale or lease to friendly or allied countries. We are in discussion with the Canadian Department of National Defence but no decisions have been taken.

The submarines of the Upholder class entered operational RN service as follows:

| Submarine | Commissioning date |
|---|---|
| HMS Upholder | December 1990 |
| HMS Unseen | July 1991 |
| HMS Ursula | June 1992 |
| HMS Unicorn | July 1993 |

The cost of the Upholder programme at 1993 prices is assessed at approximately £900 million.

Royal Dockyards

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the total amount spent to date for management consultants working on his Department's privatisation plans for the royal dockyards at (a) Rosyth and (b) Devonport; when he expects to make an announcement concerning the privatisation of the dockyards; what consideration he has given to the future pension provisions of the workers currently employed at the two sites; and if he will make a statement. [19977]

Mr. Freeman: During the period between 18 October 1993, when my right hon. and learned Friend the Secretary of State for Defence announced our policy towards the future management of the royal dockyards, Official Report, 18 October 1993, columns 39–41, and 28 March 1995, payments made or outstanding specifically for management consultancy advice given in relation to the proposed privatisation of the dockyards totalled some £3.1 million. Costs attributable to one dockyard or the other cannot be separately identified. Further announcements on the future management of the royal dockyards will be made as and when appropriate, but it is likely to be some months before any final decisions are taken. Full account will be taken of all relevant personnel issues, including those relating to the management and operation of the established dockyard company pension schemes, and consultation will take place as appropriate.

Phoenix Project

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is currently taking to test Israeli unmanned surveillance aircraft as an alternative to the Phoenix project. [20060]

Mr. Freeman: [Pursuant to his reply, 5 April 1995, Official Report, c. 1142]:, the Ministry of Defence has now agreed with GEC-Marconi Avionics an additional programme of work on Phoenix to resolve the remaining technical difficulties and to demonstrate satisfactory system performance. This work is expected to last about one year and, while it is in progress, we will examine potential alternative systems, in case it does not prove practicable to bring Phoenix up to an acceptable standard. Our examination of alternatives has already begun and will cover all systems, including Israeli ones, which are likely to provide a capability that comes reasonably close to the Army's requirement.

HEALTH

Temazepam

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is her latest estimate of the number of units of temazepam which are sold in the United Kingdom each year from known manufacturers and suppliers; what is her latest estimate of the number of units of temazepam required for prescription under the national health service during the same period; and if she will make a statement. [19006]

Table A: Summary of the 1993 annual returns for temazepam from Schedule 4 Authority holders under the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 1985 in the UK (kilograms)

| Quantity manufactured | Manufacturers' stocks at 31 December | Imports total | Exports total |
| 970.200 | 923.039 | 4,505.314 | 1,815.770 |

Temazepam dispensing in the family health services authorities in England 1993 (thousands).

| | Prescription items | Milligrams |
|---|---|---|
| Tablets | 2,765.3 | 1,307,399.5 |
| Capsules | 3,765.9 | 2,066,427.8 |
| Oral preparations | 119.8 | 60,665.5 |
| Total | 6,650.9 | 3,434,493.7 |

Total dispensing in the English FHSAs was therefore 3,434.5 Kilograms.

Research and Treatment Ratings

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what rating London has for treatment and research in each of the last five years, relative to comparable centres in other countries. [19703]

Mr. Malone: Ratings of treatment and research are not undertaken annually in London or in other towns and cities elsewhere in the country. The most recent research review in London, 1993, confined itself to the work of the former postgraduate special health authorities. No formal ratings were issued as a result of that exercise but the report referred to the international quality of much of the research undertaken by these SHAs. A copy of the report is in the Library.

Cancer Services

Mr. Congdon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to improve the provision of cancer care services. [10671]

Mrs. Virginia Bottomley: I have received the final report from the chief medical officers' of England and Wales expert advisory group on cancer "A Policy Framework for Commissioning Cancer Services" which sets out a strategic framework for cancer services. Copies of the report have been placed in the Library.

I have accepted the recommendations in that report.

They will provide the catalyst for change. They will, over time, build upon the excellent services already provided in many areas to ensure the delivery of a uniformly high level of cancer care based on a network of expertise covering primary care and secondary care, including the establishment of designated specialist cancer units and cancer centres.

I look to the national health service to make determined progress in this direction, and welcome the fact that many health authorities are already beginning to plan their cancer services around these recommendations.

Sir John Gorst: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for changes in the cancer treatment services in London; with whom she has consulted on this subject; what proposals exist (a) for alterations to the present functioning of the Royal Marsden hospital and (b) its closure; and which matters relating to cancer treatment in the London region are to be the subject of public consultation. [19942]

Mr. Malone: Proposals for any major changes in the pattern of cancer services in London and for the necessary public consultation are drawn up by local health authorities in discussion with provider units. There are no proposals for changes, or for closures, at the Royal Marsden hospital.

Waiting Times

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her answer of 28 March, Official Report, column 569, how many patients were waiting for treatment under one year in 1987 and at December 1994. [19810]

Mr. Malone: The information is shown in the table.

Patients waiting for inpatient or day case treatment

| | Number waiting under a year | Total number awaiting admission | Proportion waiting under a year Per cent. |
|---|---|---|---|
| At 31 December 1987 | 662,469 | 873,130 | 75.9 |
| At 31 December 1994 | 1,017,335 | 1,071,638 | 94.9 |

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the average waiting time for an ear, nose and throat appointment in each of the last five years. [19792]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Foetuses

Mr. Patten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research has been commissioned into whether foetuses feel pain while being aborted. [19746]

Mr. Sackville: A report on the subject of sensory development in the human fetus was prepared for the Department in 1988 by Dr. Maria Fitzgerald. A copy was placed in the Library.

NHS Number

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will give the Data Protection Registrar an undertaking that the NHS number will not be used for purposes not associated with health care; and if she will make a statement. [20041]

Mr. Sackville: Such an undertaking has been given by the Department to the Office of the Data Protection Registrar.

General and Acute Beds

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general and acute beds there were in each region in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95: [19811]

Mr. Sackville: Regional tables showing the average daily number of available beds in the general and acute sector for 1993–94 are published in "Bed availability for England, Financial Year 1993/94", copies of which are available in the Library. Comparative information for 1994–95 is not yet available.

Hearing Aids

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the (a) in-ear and (b) other hearing aids available on the NHS. [19789]

Mr. Bowis: A list of hearing aids available from central contract on the national health service in England via NHS Supplies will be placed in the Library. Hearing aid centres are also free to purchase and supply any other type of hearing aid if considered clinically necessary. Details are not kept centrally.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the average waiting time for a hearing aid clinic in each of the last five years. [19791]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not held centrally, but, from April 1995, one of the new standards introduced under the patient's charter is nine out of 10 people can be expected to be seen within 13 weeks when they are referred by their GP to a hospital consultant; everyone is expected to be seen by 26 weeks.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hearing aid clinics there were in the NHS in each of the last five years. [19790]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

Infertility Treatment

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will list the health authorities which are not purchasing IVF and GIFT infertility treatments plus the percentage of health authorities not purchasing this service; [19793]

(2) what guidance she has issued on the maximum age a woman should receive infertility treatment on the NHS; and if she will make a statement on health authorities which will not purchase IVF/GIFT treatment for women over the age of 35 years; [19794]

(3) if she will list the NHS centres providing IVF and GIFT in England; [19795]

(4) how many IVF/GIFT process treatments were given on the NHS in each of the last five years. [19746]

Mr. Sackville: Information on those health authorities providing IVF and GIFT treatments, the centres in which such treatment is provided, and the number of treatments provided on the national health service in each of the last five years, is not available centrally.

Advice on sub-fertility treatment provision is available to health authorities and clinicians in:

> The Effective Health Care Bulletin on "The Management of Subfertility" (August 1992), published for the NHS management executive by a consortium of Leeds and York universities and the research unit of the Royal College of Physicians.

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists has also published advice in:

> "Infertility—Guidelines for Practice" (RCOG Press 1992)

Copies of both publications are available in the Library.

Local health authorities are responsible for the provision of local health services, including the provision of infertility services. Decisions about the resources to be made available for these services must be left to individual health authorities as they are in the best position to determine priorities in the light of local needs and circumstances.

Prescriptions

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she gives for NHS general practitioners treating NHS patients wanting to give a prescription on a private prescription basis because it will be cheaper for the patient. [19798]

Mr. Malone: Current guidance was issued on 4 May 1994 under FHSL (94) 26, copies of which are available in the Library.

Primary Care Budgets

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the primary care budget for City and East London family health service authority for (a) 1993–94, (b) 1994–95, (c) 1995–96 and (d) 1997–98; and what is the general medical services budget for those years. [19799]

Mr. Malone: The level of primary care expenditure in any family health services authority is predominantly demand-led and will depend on the calls placed on services.

Visits

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the dates of her visits to (a) St. Bartholomew's, (b) Queen Elizabeth Children's hospital, (c) Hackney, (d) the Royal London hospital and (e) the London Chest hospital in each year since 1989. [19880]

One further project with a capital value greater than £1 million has been approved:

The other information requested is not available centrally.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Disability Discrimination Bill

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make a statement on the outcome of ministerial discussions with the National Association of Citizens Advice Bureaux on the role of citizens advice bureaux in the enforcement of the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Bill. [19116]

Mr. Hague: NACAB is unable to provide the specialist advice service that we propose. However, citizens advice bureaux will still have a role to play as the likely first port of call for many disabled people seeking advice. The Government are considering how best to provide more specialised advice and support, over and above the provision of basic information, to help disabled people secure their right of access to goods and services.

Income Support

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make it his policy to publish on a monthly basis the numbers of people refused income support because of the habitual residence requirement broken down into (a) Benefits Agency districts and (b) numbers of British nationals, EEA nationals and others affected. [17879]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information requested will be placed in the Library, on a monthly basis, for the year 1995–96, starting in May.

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the supplementary benefit or income support for (a) a couple with two children aged six and eight years and (b) a lone parent with one child aged six years as a proportion of average earnings for men and women in each year since 1970. [19937]

Notes:

1. For supplementary benefit it has been assumed for the couple that the ordinary scale rate for a married couple is in payment and for the lone parent that the long-term rate for a single householder is in payment. Appropriate child additions have been included for each family type but no additional requirements have been allowed for.
2. Income support replaced supplementary benefit in 1988. Entitlement for each family type includes appropriate personal and child allowances plus premiums. However, income support personal allowances and supplementary benefit scale rates are not entirely comparable. For example, income support includes an element for water charges whereas under supplementary benefit these could be met in full via the rate rebate scheme. No account has been taken of this.
3. Average earnings are for all occupations for full-time rates of pay and are taken from the new earnings survey.
4. Up to 1983 the earnings data relate to full-time workers aged 21 and over whose earnings are unaffected by absence. From 1983 the data are in respect of all full time workers on adult rates whose earnings are unaffected by absence.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list those authorities in which there have been inquiries into fraudulent claims for housing benefit in the last four years; and if he will make a statement. [19089]

Mr. Roger Evans: This information is not available. However, since April 1993, 447—96 per cent.—of local authorities achieved benefit savings as a result of their anti-fraud activities. Information for earlier years is not available.

Mr. Elletson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what has been the number of tenants in (a) the private rented sector, (b) council housing and (c) housing association properties receiving housing benefit in Blackpool in the last four years; and what has been the total expenditure in each category for the last four years. [19090]

Mr. Hague: The information requested regarding the subsistence for travel within the United Kingdom for the last three complete years—1991–92 to 1993–94—is set out in table 1.

The information available in respect of travel outside the United Kingdom does not separately identify subsistence allowances. The figures which are set out in table 2 combine both subsistence and travel expenditure.

Child Benefit

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the real value of benefits for children for a standard rate tax-paying family in each year since 1970. [19941]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is in the table.

From 1970 to 1976, provision for children was in the form of child tax allowances and family allowance. Family allowance was not payable for the first child and the tax allowances were age-related. Between 1977 and 1978, child tax allowances were phased out as child benefit, which replaced family allowance was phased in. From 1979 the figures in the table represent child benefit only.

Child Support Agency

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportion of absent parents deemed by the Child Support Agency to be paying child support maintenance for the first time live in the same household as the child for whom child support maintenance has been arranged. [18822]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ann Chant to Ms Liz Lynne, dated 20 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the number of absent parents who live in the same household as the qualifying child.

There is no liability for child maintenance where parents live in the same household, but we estimate that 6 per cent of absent parents who have had a maintenance assessment arranged by the Agency have the same postal address as the parent with care.

I hope this is of help.

HEALTH

Pay Offers

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list by region all health trusts for which she has departmental responsibility showing (a) pay offers made, to date, to staff covered by national pay review machinery and (b) in how many cases pay offers are linked with financial penalties for unjustified absence; and if she will make a statement. [19044]

Mr. Malone: The Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine recommended that there should be local negotiations on pay in addition to a 1 per cent. increase in national rates of pay and similar offers have been made to most staff groups covered by negotiations in various Whitley councils. Negotiations on local pay are a matter for individual national health service trusts but I understand that in some 120 NHS trusts which have made offers about 75 per cent. are of around 3 per cent. overall.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of trusts have made formal pay offers of 3 per cent. or more. [20619]

Mr. Malone: Negotiations on local pay are a matter for individual national health service trusts but I understand that in some 120 NHS trusts which have made offers about 75 per cent. are of around 3 per cent. overall.

Centre for Epilepsy

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the future of the Centre for Epilepsy in relation to the re-organisation of neurosciences at the Kings Healthcare trust in the south-east [20056]

Mr. Malone: The Centre for Epilepsy has a positive future as part of the major new neurosciences centre being developed at King's College hospital, announced on 4 April. ### Rehabilitation Equipment

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received claiming a conflict of interest or unfair competition in respect of the practice of local and health authorities in granting the procurement and servicing of rehabilitative equipment to a manufacturer or supplier of such equipment. [20260]

Mr. Sackville: Representations have been received from a supplier of disability aids alleging a conflict of interest within the industry. This claim is being considered.

Psychologists

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the steps taken to ensure that enough professional clinical psychologists are available to meet the demands of care in the community. [20258]

Mr. Bowis: It is for local employers to determine the staff needed to deliver the services that they have contracted to provide. Since 1991, the number of clinical psychologists employed by national health service trusts and the number of training places commissioned on their behalf by regional health authorities has continued to increase to meet the growing demand for clinical psychologists. Officials from the NHS executive and from regional health authorities meet regularly with representatives from the British Psychological Society to review progress.

GP Fundholding

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the four-partner practice at Hornsey Rise health centre, a first-wave fundholder, which is leaving the scheme. [20621]

Mr. Malone: It is regrettable that this practice feels unable to continue within fundholding, but the strength of fundholding is its voluntary nature. The fact is, however, that many more general practitioners are opting to enter the scheme, taking the population covered by a general practitioner fundholder to over 42 per cent.

Ministerial Meetings

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings there have been in (a) 1994–95, (b) 1993–94, (c) 1992–93 and (d) 1991–92 between herself, a health Minister or parliamentary private secretaries and representatives of private health insurance companies; and if she will make a statement on the content of these discussions. [20625]

Mr. Sackville: There have been numerous meetings to discuss a range of topics relevant to private medical insurance, including taxation policy, long-term care and advertising. The available information is shown in the table.

Appeals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doctors under notice of dismissal are awaiting appeal to her; and for how long they have been waiting. [20620]

Mr. Malone: Doctors subject to paragraph 190 of the national health service terms and conditions of service may appeal to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health if they consider that their appointment has been unfairly terminated for reasons other than personal misconduct. Appeals are determined by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State in the light of advice from a professional committee. Six appeals are awaiting determination: four were lodged within the last 12 months, one in June 1993 and one in September 1993.

Private Facilities

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the policy of patients in casualty being asked whether they will go into private facilities within that hospital. [20624]

Mr. Sackville: It is for the individual patient or their guardian to request private medical treatment. No pressure should be placed on patients in accident and emergency departments to be treated privately.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will give the number of acute private beds in England in 1993–94 in (a) NHS facilities and (b) in total. [20626]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

GP Appointments

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for health what representations she has received regarding the procedures for appointment of general practitioners to vacant practices; and if she will make a statement. [20535]

Mr. Malone: We have received representations on various aspects of the general practitioner appointments procedures from both the profession and the national health service. In response to that, we amended regulations on 1 April 1994 to allow family health services authorities to readvertise vacancies up to three times where the aggregated number of applications was fewer than 20. We will continue to consider any further representations that are received.

Healthcall

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will give the cost so far to the NHS of legal actions taken by Healthcall against family health service authorities. [20622]

Mr. Malone: None.

Queen Elizabeth Military Hospital

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for health if civilian staff currently employed by the Ministry of Defence at Queen Elizabeth military hospital will be offered employment on their current terms and conditions within the NHS when the hospital becomes a civilian NHS hospital; and if she will make a statement. [20533]

Mr. Malone: This is a matter for Greenwich Healthcare trust in consultation with interested parties. I understand that the hon. Member has already written to the trust, which will reply direct to him.

Patient Calls

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to require deputising services medically to triage calls from patients in the same manner as general practitioners. [20623]

Mr. Malone: None.

Extra-contractual Referrals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in each of the last four years what were the number and total cost of extra-contractual referrals requested from each district health authority, and in total; and what were the number and total cost of such referrals approved by each district health authority. [20627]

Mr. Malone: Information on the number of extra-contractual referrals requested and approved by health authorities is not available centrally.

Income Generation

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will itemise how much income has been received by NHS bodies since the introduction of the income generation initiative. [20404]

Mr. Sackville: Information is contained in the annual national health service national summary accounts, copies of which are available in the Library and which set out income receipts by health authorities and trusts under a number of headings.

Nurses' Pay

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the methods by which nurses' pay has been determined between 1974 and 1995 [17561]

Mr. Malone: For the period 1974 to 1983 nurses' pay was negotiated between the sides of the Nurses and Midwives Whitley council. In July 1983 the independent Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine was set up to advise my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on remuneration. Since the review body was established all 12 reports have been accepted in full by the Government. Settlement levels over the period to 1994 increased by over 130 per cent. in a period when inflation rose by less than 69 per cent.

Patient Transfer (Kent to Southampton)

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to publish the report on the transfer of a patient from Maidstone to Southampton referred to in the report of south Thames region concerning the transfer of a patient from Queen Mary's hospital, Sidcup to Leeds. [20534]

Mr. Sackville: Mid Kent Healthcare national health service trust published the detailed conclusions and an action plan arising from its investigation of this incident on 5 April.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Public Appointments

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, pursuant to his answer of 5 April, Official Report, columns 1174-75, concerning public appointments, if he will list the names and positions of the four people who have been appointed in consultation with the Prime Minister and the name of the person appointed in consultation with the Government Chief Whip. [20317]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The four people appointed in consultation with the Prime Minister were:

Lord Griffiths, MC, as chairman of the Advisory Committee on Legal Education and Conduct in October 1990;

Lord Justice (now Lord) Steyn as chairman of the Advisory Committee on Legal Education and Conduct in October 1993;

Sir Tim Chessells as member of the Legal Aid Board in January 1995 and as chairman from May 1995.

Mr. David Sumberg MP was appointed to the Advisory Council on Public Records in November 1992 in consultation with the Government Chief Whip.

A Member of Parliament from each of the main parties serves on the Advisory Council on Public Records, but only Mr. Sumberg was appointed in the period covered by the question.

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the current total number of positions held and the number of new appointments, retirements and resignations in the last five years with respect to (a) the Judicial Committee of the House of Lords, (b) the Court of Appeal, (c) the High Court Bench, (d) the Circuit Bench, (e) the Industrial Tribunal, (f) the social security appeal tribunal, (g) the immigration appeals tribunal and (h) valuation tribunals. ## ENVIRONMENT

Road-side Advertising

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what plans he has to alter the planning law on road-side advertising; and if he will make a statement. [19748]

Sir Paul Beresford: My right hon. Friend has no plans to amend the provisions of the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) Regulations 1992 controlling road-side advertising. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport is consulting publicly on proposed changes to the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 1994 with regard to traffic signs for tourist destinations and facilities.

Swinden Quarry

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received about the proposed extension of Swinden quarry at Cracoe in the Yorkshire Dales national park; and whether he intends to call in and review the planning decision on this matter. [19752]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Secretary of State has received approximately 70 representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals; a petition has also been received.

In exercise of his powers under article 14 of the Town and Country Planning Act General Development Order 1988, the Secretary of State has directed the planning authority not to grant planning permission on this application without specific authorisation.

This direction has been issued to enable the Secretary of State to consider whether he should direct under section 77 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 that the application should be called in for his own decision. No decision has yet been reached.

Car Ban, Athens

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will obtain regular reports on the environmental effects of the ban on private cars in the centre of Athens and consider the implications for traffic policy in British cities. [19988]

Sir Paul Beresford: I am advised that the Athens experiment is scheduled to last three months. I will study reports as and when they become available.

Government Office for London

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the total staffing level of the Government office for London. [20237]

Sir Paul Beresford: Three hundred and thirty-seven.

Subsidence

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment his Department has made of the effects of subsidence on housing in mining areas caused by mining operations in the last 10 years; what action his Department has taken to limit the effects of subsidence on housing in mining areas caused by mining operations; and how many letters he has received concerning subsidence on housing in mining areas. [19835]

Sir Paul Beresford [holding answer 19 April 1995]: My Department has carried out a number of general assessments of mining subsidence in the last 10 to 15 years under the planning research programme and derelict land grant. The Review of mining instability in Great Britain, published in 1992, gave a broad general picture of the extent of mining in Great Britain and its effects on land use and development; regional, technical and case study reports provide a concise summary of the mining and mining-related subsidence events and the methods of investigation, monitoring and remedial measures that are available. In addition, specific assessments have been made in a number of areas such as the black country, the Wrekin district of Shropshire, south Wales and Norwich.

Derelict land grant has also been used to fund investigations and remedial measures, principally the limestone mines of the black country but also in the sand mines in West Yorkshire and Surrey, chalk mines in Norwich, Reading and Bury St. Edmunds, metal mines in Cornwall and Shropshire, salt mines in Cheshire and stone mines in Bath.

Planning guidance issued in 1990 advised local planning authorities and developers of the need to take account of the possibility of subsidence when considering all development in past, present and future mining areas.

There is no central record of the number of letters received concerning subsidence on housing in mining areas.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Tanzania (Aid)

31. Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what aid is being given to Tanzania to cope with the influx of refugees from Rwanda. [18656]

Mr. Baldry: In addition to the substantial and continuing bilateral emergency aid that we have been providing for Rwandan refugees in Tanzania, we are also seeking to help local affected Tanzanians. We are designing a project with Help Age International to support Tanzanian elderly and disabled people in the region.

South Africa

32. Mr. Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what aid provision is being made for the development of sport in South African townships. [18757]

Mr. Baldry: We are currently funding, in conjunction with the British Council, an initiative with the United Kingdom Sports Council to develop sports administration and coaching, and we are about to embark, with Voluntary Service Overseas, on a two-year sports development pilot programme. Both projects are aimed specifically at disadvantaged communities in the townships and rural areas.

Aid Targeting

33. Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what measures he is taking to ensure that aid is targeted towards those people most in need. [18758]

Mr. Baldry: The whole of the aid programme already has a strong poverty focus. In 1993–94 over two thirds of our bilateral aid went to the poorest developing countries. We are increasing our assistance through non-governmental organisations and have strengthened our capacity to design and implement projects of direct benefit to the poor.

Kenya

34. Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what level of aid is currently given to Kenya; and if he will make a statement. [18759]

Mr. Baldry: British bilateral aid to Kenya amounted to £31.3 million in 1993–94, the last year for which figure are available.

Bilateral Debt Commitments

35. Mr. Eastham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what additional resources the Overseas Development Administration is making available to severely indebted countries to help them meet their bilateral debt commitments. [18761]

Mr. Baldry: Aid is not used to finance bilateral debt commitments directly. However, the United Kingdom has converted £1.1 billion of bilateral aid to grants and links its programme aid to adjustment programmes, which often involve rescheduling of other bilateral debt.

Liberia

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of current humanitarian needs of Liberia; what is being done by the international community to meet those needs; and what is Britain's contribution. [19915]

Mr. Baldry: We are closely monitoring the situation in Liberia and remain ready to consider further support. The UN is seeking US$65.3 million this year for emergency relief programmes which can be implemented under existing security constraints.

We have provided £500,000 in response to this appeal to agencies working in the agriculture, food security and health sectors, thereby increasing our emergency aid to Liberia to over £900,000 since April 1994.

Nepal

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what British aid is being given to Nepal for forestry projects, designed to ameliorate flooding. [18963]

Mr. Baldry: British aid for forestry in Nepal addresses two main issues. Through our community forestry project we are helping the Government of Nepal to develop a community-based approach to sustainable forest management for the benefit of people living in the hills. At the same time, our support for forestry research is helping to provide the information needed to develop and improve sustainable forest management interventions. Neither project is designed primarily to ameliorate flooding but both will help by slowing water run off and reducing soil erosion in the hills of Nepal.

Afghan Refugees (Pakistan)

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what additional bilateral aid Her Majesty's Government intend to make available to the Government of Pakistan from September when UNHCR stops all funding of Afghanistan refugees in Pakistan, including food and schools; what discussions Her Majesty's Government are undertaking with EU states to assist Pakistan in supporting Afghan refugees, including the supply of wheat; and if he will make a statement. [19989]

Mr. Baldry: Our assistance to Afghan refugees is channelled through NGOs and international agencies, rather than through the Pakistan Government. In the past year we have provided approximately £3 million for Afghan refugees in Pakistan, and in March 1995 we provided £1.28 million of food aid through CARE for relief programmes inside Afghanistan. We will consider further contributions during the course of the year.

The EU has for many years been one of the main providers of food aid for refugees in Pakistan and those returning to Afghanistan. A joint UNHCR—World Food Programme food assessment mission arrived in Pakistan on 21 April. It will discuss its findings with representatives of donors, including EU member states, in Islamabad.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations were made by Her Majesty's Government against decisions by UNHCR to reduce and, from September, to stop all aid to refugees from Afghanistan in Pakistan except to those families deemed vulnerable; and what representations were made by Her Majesty's Government against a decision to stop funding all schools for Afghan refugee children in Pakistan from September. [19987]

Mr. Baldry: UNHCR has made no decision to stop all funding of Afghan refugees in Pakistan, including food and schools, from September.

However, last year's joint UNHCR—World Food Programme food assessment mission concluded that the across-the-board care and maintenance programme should not continue after 30 September 1995. Aid will continue to be targeted at those most in need, the food assessment mission having found that many Afghan refugees in Pakistan were self-reliant and enjoyed a higher economic and nutritional status than rural Pakistanis. This year's food assessment mission is due to review the situation about now. We and other donors support the view that more UNHCR emphasis should be placed on rehabilitation efforts inside Afghanistan in order to encourage refugees to return home.

UNHCR has no plans to cease primary education for all Afghan refugee children in Pakistan.

Desertification Convention

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what obstacles there are for the ratification of the desertification convention by the United Kingdom. [19807]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 21 April 1995]: We intend to ratify in concert with other EU and OECD countries in the light of further progress in the intergovernmental negotiating committee on various provisions of the convention, including administrative arrangements.

Tropical Rainforests

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the principal reasons for the general failure of initiatives taken so far, including the tropical forestry action plan and the International Tropical Timber Organisation, not to prevent the destruction of tropical rainforests. [19803]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 21 April 1995]: Much forest loss is caused by local land use pressures which are not subject to resolution through international initiatives. TFAP and ITTO have assisted and encouraged Governments to develop and implement sustainable forest management policies in their own countries, but they cannot replace the overriding importance of national action and local political commitment.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the willingness or otherwise of the British public to pay, through taxation, for additional measures to conserve tropical rainforests. [19806]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 21 April 1995]: Sustainable management of tropical rainforests is principally the responsibility of the Governments of the countries in which they occur. It is not evident that measures taken by them would be directly assisted by taxation levied in the United Kingdom. In due course, producer countries might aim to fund forest conservation partly from a premium on tropical timber certified as being from a sustainable source, but there are differing views on the willingness of consumers to pay such premiums.

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the United Kingdom Government's policy regarding the involvement of the UN Food and Agriculture Organisation in the issue of tropical rainforest conservation. [19805]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 21 April 1995]: FAO is responsible within the UN system for forest issues and has considerable expertise in forestry. We believe that FAO should increase the proportion of its existing resources which it devotes to assisting the sustainable development and conversation of forests.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19367]

Mr. Hague: In the first three months of 1995; 32 statutory instruments were laid, not including commencement orders, Orders in Council and instruments not subject to parliamentary procedure, of which five introduced new regulatory requirements which had costs for business. Compliance cost assessments were published and copies have been placed in the Library. These statutory instruments also repealed eight rules and regulations.

Competitive Tendering

Mrs Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many competitive tendering exercises carried out by his Department in each of the last two years were caught by the provisions of the public services directive but were not subsequently advertised in the Official Journal of the European Union in compliance with the relevant regulations. [19227]

Mr. Arbuthnot: All contracts for services awarded by this Department since the public services directive came into effect on 1 July 1993 have been awarded in compliance with the relevant regulations.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many representations he has received expressing opposition to the new incapacity benefit; and what plans he has to review the working of this benefit. [20371]

Mr. Hague: I have received a number of letters about incapacity benefit since the changes were announced in December 1993. We will closely monitor the effects of the changes but we have no plans to review the benefit.

Mr. Stephen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security when the revised charter for national insurance payers will be published. [20757]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I have today published the revised contributor's charter. It highlights the progress the Contributions Agency has made since its launch four years ago. It demonstrates the agency's continuing commitment to providing a quality service. I am particularly pleased to see that the charter's complaints section has been revised. Customers now have access to an independent adjudicator and are clearly directed to other sources of independent advice. The agency is now better placed to deal with customers dissatisfaction effectively and positively.

Self-Employed Farmers

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to provide injury benefit to self-employed farmers who paid class 2 national insurance contributions and who are now suffering from organophosphorous poisoning as a result of the compulsory use of organophosphorous dips. [20259]

Mr. Hague: Injury benefit was abolished in 1983. Disablement benefit may be payable under the industrial injuries scheme to employed earners who suffer organophosphorous poisoning as a result of their work. We have no plans to extend the industrial injuries scheme to the self-employed in agriculture. However, incapacity benefit is available to self-employed farmers who satisfy the relevant incapacity and contribution conditions.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Annesley Bentinck Colliery

Mr. Garnier: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the future of Annesley Bentinck colliery. [21001]

Mr. Page: Discussions with Coal Investments plc on its proposed acquisition of Annesley Bentinick are at an advanced stage and we hope to complete the sale very shortly.

The bid has been subject to a detailed process of clarification and negotiation since Coal Investments was selected as preferred bidder in October 1994. Agreement has now been reached, subject to contract, that Coal Investments will acquire Annesley Bentinck colliery, which has been on care and maintenance since February 1994, for a nominal consideration of £1. Coal Investments will take over British Coal's substantial liabilities in relation to the colliery—for example, in relation to site restoration when production ceases. In order to conclude the transfer at the earliest opportunity so as to minimise the on-going costs currently being incurred by British Coal, the Government will pay Coal Investments a contribution of up to £270,000 towards continuing care and maintenance costs for a limited period.

The Department will shortly lay a minute before the House describing certain limited warranties which it proposes to give in relation to the sale.

Exploration Licences

Mr. Cohen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if the fee paid by Canuk Exploration Ltd. for the exploration licence covering the Windsor area will correlate to the proceeds of any oil discovery; and if he will make a statement. [20042]

Mr. Page: Application fees and rental payments for all petroleum licences are not related to future proceeds from any oil discovery but are charged on a standard basis. All third round licensees, including Canuk Exploration Ltd., paid a standard application fee of £1,000 and a non-recurrent rental of £75 per square kilometre when it was awarded exploration licences. The rental paid by Canuk amounted to £7,500. Licensees wishing to develop any discoveries would need first to apply for an appraisal licence, which currently attracts a non-recurrent rental of £75 per square kilometre, and then a development licence, for which the charge is £1,500 per square kilometre per year. Licence fees and rentals are agreed with the Treasury prior to each licensing round and are currently being reviewed. I hope to announce the new rental structure shortly.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what criteria are used to access the adequacy of the financial and technical resources of applicants applying for oil exploration licences. [20043]

Mr. Page: Before awarding an onshore exploration licence, my officials make the necessary checks to ensure that applicants have sufficient technical resources to perform their proposed work programmes and have access to the funding required to enable these to be carried out.

Crown Post Offices

Dr. John Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the Crown post offices in Britain which are earmarked for conversion to agency status and the constituencies within which they lie. [19483]

Mr. Heseltine: I understand from the Post Office that it has begun or completed consultation on the conversion of the following Crown post offices in Britain to agency status but has either not yet taken a decision to proceed or has not yet proceeded with the conversion.

Raytheon

Dr. John Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he has written to the chief executive of Raytheon asking him to meet representatives of the Raytheon campaign. [19956]

Mr. Heseltine: Ministers at the DTI and the Welsh Office have written to the chief executive of Raytheon asking him to meet representatives of the Raytheon campaign.

Public Information Telephone Line

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the public information telephone inquiry lines operated by his Department, in each case indicating the costs of establishing, operating and publicising these lines and the number of calls made to them up until this point; when they were established; and what assessment his Department has made of their effectiveness. [17456]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 3 April 1995]: The information requested is as follows.

Environment Helpline 0800 585 794

The Environmental Helpline is a freephone service which provides up to two hours of free advice to firms on environmental issues affecting their business. Until 1994, it was run by the DTI's Warren Spring Laboratory. Since June 1994, it has been run by the National Environmental Technology Centre (NETCEN) as part of DTI/DOE Environmental Technology Best Practice Programme, for which it is the first point of contact. The figures below for the period 1990–91 to 1993–94 relate to the cost of operating the helpline, excluding any DTI staff involved, and to the number of calls received during this period:

| Year | Costs (£) | Calls |
|---|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 2,076 | 5,052 |
| 1991–92 | 3,311 | 6,735 |
| 1992–93 | 4,184 | 6,441 |
| 1993–94 | 2,262 | 2,962 |

Since the transfer of the helpline service to NETCEN as part of the Environmental Technology Best Practice Programme, the full cost of providing the helpline service, including the provision of a site visit advisory service and the associated staff costs relating to this are available. For 1994/95, a total of 6,322 calls were handled by the helpline service, at a total cost to the Department of £259,793.

Business in Europe Hotline (0117 944 4888)

The Business in Europe Hotline superseded the Single Market Helpline in April 1993 and was further streamlined, with consequent cost savings, in May 1994.

This Hotline now concentrates on taking orders for free publications, providing names of government contacts for specific areas of legislation and signposting to private sector sources of advice. Cost since the changeover and the number of calls to date are as follows:

| Year | Costs (£) | Calls |
|---|---|---|
| 1993–94 | 94,850 | 30,169 |
| 1994–95 | [1]26,129 | 19,986 |

Innovation Enquiry Line 0800 44 2001

The line provides a single point of contact for those seeking information about the Department's innovation services; it signposts enquirers to other sources of help and advice, and takes orders for the despatch of relevant literature.

Costs (excluding staff costs) since inception and the number of calls to date are as follows. The 1994–95 call figures reflects steps taken to discourage irrelevant enquiries.

|---|---|---|
| 1991–92 | 3,700 | 7,980 |
| 1992–93 | 3,700 | 7,430 |
| 1993–94 | 5,400 | 9,584 |
| 1994–95 | 4,100[1] | 4,872 |

Services for Business Line (0800 500 200)

The Services for Business line (formerly known as the Enterprise Initiative Helpline) provides a signposting and publication-ordering facility across a wide range of the Department's business services. From April 1995 it will be known as the Business Link Hotline. Costs and number of calls to date are as follows:

| Year | Costs (£) | Calls |
|---|---|---|
| 1987–88 | 67,000 | 44,971 |
| 1988–89 | 106,700 | 43,413 |
| 1989–90 | 163,600 | 38,496 |
| 1990–91 | 166,400 | 37,606 |
| 1991–92 | 120,500 | 26,833 |
| 1992–93 | 124,200 | 31,009 |
| 1993–94 | 118,000 | 26,608 |
| 1994–95 | [1]112,000 | 21,513 |

A Biotechnology Means Business Helpline (0800 432 100) was launched on 22 March 1995 as part of a three-year awareness initiative but it is too early to make an assessment of its effectiveness.

These lines provide a valuable and necessary function in enabling the Department to measure and respond to interest generated by its various awareness-raising marketing campaigns and in most instances provide gateways into various DTI best-practice programmes and services.

The costs, call levels and nature of inquiries are under constant assessment and subject to periodic formal review and, where necessary, appropriate steps are taken to improve value for money. Such steps include contracting out, streamlining services, changing service suppliers and screening out inappropriate calls.

Patent Office

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what quality standards he will require when the marketing and information technology section of the Patent Office is opened to competitive tenders. [20028]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The Patent Office will require prospective tenderers to demonstrate commitment to quality standards as part of their proposals and quality standards will be incorporated in the specifications. Deciding the nature and scope of appropriate standards will form part of the process of drawing up those specifications.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he intends to invite tenders for Patent Office work including the marketing section and duties undertaken by the London Front section. [20027]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The Patent Office will seek to contract out activities wherever this is compatible with its statutory role and good value for money. It is currently assessing the scope for contracting out and some candidates have been identified. Before tenders can be invited, operational requirements need to be assessed and specifications drawn up. In the case of marketing and the London Front office, it is likely that consultants will be appointed in May to help with this stage of the work, on which the subsequent timetable depends.

Scott Inquiry

Mr. Gunnell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he is now expecting the house to receive the findings of the Scott inquiry. [18746]

Mr. Heseltine: Sir Richard Scott has advised me that he hopes to publish his report in late June or shortly thereafter.

Electro-shock Equipment

Mr. Harvey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will set up an inquiry into the extent to which British companies have been involved in the export or arrangement for sale of electro-shock equipment since 1984. [19510]

Mr. Ian Taylor [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The export of portable anti-riot devices for administering an electric shock and specialised components therefore has been controlled since 1984 under the terms of various Export of Goods (Control) Orders which have applied since and before that date. In considering any applications for licences for the export of such equipment the Department of Trade and Industry and advisers in other Government Departments would take special care and consider very carefully the political and military implications of allowing such goods to be exported. Particular attention is paid to proposed exports to countries with poor human rights records, where the equipment might be used for internal repression. Evasion of UK export controls is a criminal offence and investigation of such evasion is a matter for Customs and Excise; any evidence that evasion may have taken place should be supplied to that Department. Controls on the exports of such goods from outside the United Kingdom are the responsibility of the appropriate authorities in the countries from which the goods are supplied. In these circumstances I do not think that inquiry is necessary or appropriate.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will give the number and location of Accounts Services Agency, Companies House, Insolvency Service, Laboratory of the Government Chemist, National Engineering Laboratory, National Physical Laboratory, National Weights and Measures Laboratory, Patent Office and Radiocommunications Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20299]

Mr. Heseltine: One clerical post in Radiocommunications Agency was transferred to Scotland during the period in question. No other work carried out by any of the Department's executive agencies has been transferred to or from Scotland from or to the rest of the UK during the period.

Regional Selective Assistance

Mr. William Powell: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list those companies in the Corby area which have qualified for regional selective assistance since 1991–92, together with the total value of such selective assistance in each year. [20277]

Mr. Page: Discussions about regional selective assistance grants are confidential between the company concerned and my Department. I am, therefore, unable to provide a full list of companies which received RSA during the period in question. However, where RSA exceeds £75,000, details are published in the Employment Gazette once the first payment has been made.

I can provide figures which show the total amounts of RSA approved for projects in the Corby travel-to-work area from financial year 1991–92 onwards, and these figures are as follows:

| Financial year | Number of offers | Amount offered £000s |
|---|---|---|
| 1991–92 | 4 | 553 |
| 1992–93 | 6 | 588 |
| 1993–94 | 11 | 1,295 |
| 1994–95 | 4 | 843 |

As my hon. Friend is aware, Corby lost its development area status when the new assisted area map was published on 1 August 1993. The above totals for 1993–94 and for 1994–95 include figures for projects which were submitted to my Department prior to 1 August 1993 but which were not officially approved until after that date.

Business Links

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the viability of Business Link outlets which have already been created. [18106]

Mr. Page: All Business Links which are open have convinced a national assessment panel that they have sound financial plans, including their long-term viability.

Business Links are private sector companies. It is for their boards to ensure that they remain solvent and that they keep their expenditure within their income. This includes, for 1995–96 alone, £38.5 million from the Government for pump priming, in addition to £50 million which will be provided for services. The amount available for services will be known three years in advance in a rolling programme for funding. Over and above Government funding, there will be additional funding from other partners, membership fees, charges for services and sponsorship income.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Debates

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Lord President of the Council what debates have been held in the past year as a result of requests made by hon. Members at business questions.

Mr. Newton: Alongside a wide range of other factors, representations at business questions frequently have considerable influence on the content and timing of the business scheduled. Examples of debates where this has been particularly clear so far this year are the Commonwealth, civil service, tourism and Hong Kong.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Lord President of the Council what proportion of written parliamentary questions were answered (a) directly by Ministers and (b) in letters from officials of executive agencies in the first three months of (i) 1993, (ii) 1994 and (iii) 1995.

Mr. Newton: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Dewsbury (Mrs. Taylor) on 5 April, Official Report, column 1131.

Pension Fund

Mr. Ray Powell: To ask the Lord President of the Council, pursuant to his answer on 5 April Official Report, column 1132, to the right hon. Member for Manchester, Wythenshawe (Mr. Morris), on what date the report by the Government Actuary on the valuation of the parliamentary contributory pension fund, placed in the Vote Office on 4 April, came into operational effect, as it affects hon. and right hon. Members' contributions to the fund.

Mr. Newton [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The report of the Government Actuary on the valuation of the parliamentary contributory pension fund as at 1 April 1993 covers the general financial position of the fund and, as required by legislation, recommends the Exchequer contribution needed to meet the balance of the cost of the scheme.

The Government Actuary Department's report will not affect the contribution payable by hon. and right hon. Members. The Exchequer contributions rate recommendation is in respect of the financial year beginning after the Actuary's report is made, in this case, 1 April 1995.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL

Drugs

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will make a statement on the work in which he has been involved aimed at tackling the problems related to drug misuse in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Newton: I chair the ministerial sub-committee on the misuse of drugs which has co-ordinated a series of reviews of the Government's strategies to tackle drug misuse in the United Kingdom

A new drugs strategy for England for the period 1995–98 will be set out in a White Paper to be published shortly. The White Paper is a revised version of the consultative document "Tackling Drugs Together", which was published in October 1994. In Scotland, work is underway to implement the recommendations of the report "Drugs in Scotland: Meeting the Challenge" produced by the ministerial drugs task force, which was also published in October 1994. In Wales, a strategy on drug and alcohol misuse is being prepared. It is intended to set up a Welsh drug and alcohol unit to oversee the implementation of the strategy. The Northern Ireland committee on drug misuse has reviewed existing drug policies in Northern Ireland and last month issued a new policy statement for consultation.

Overtime and Sickness

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Lord President of the Council, if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years.

Mr. Newton: The information requested under (a) could not be provided except at disproportionate cost. As to (b), overtime costs incurred by the Privy Council Office were as follows: 1992–93 £36,000 (estimate), 1993–94 £34,121, and 1994–95 £41,137. The total number of days lost through sickness in the PCO was 100 in 1992 calendar year and 237 in 1993. Figures are not yet available for 1994. It is not possible to attribute accurate monetary equivalents to days lost through sickness.

I am not responsible for any agencies.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years.

Mr. Newton: No relocation expenses were claimed by staff of the Privy Council Office in the years in question. I am not responsible for any agencies.

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Lord President of the Council if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years.

Mr. Newton: Separate figures for subsistence costs incurred by the Privy Council Office in 1992–93, when such costs were aggregated with travel costs, are not available. Subsistence costs in 1993–94 and 1994–95 were as follows:

| | UK £ | Overseas £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1993–94 | 680 | — |
| 1994–95 | 747 | 202 |

I am not responsible for any agencies.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Asil Nadir

25. Mrs. Roche: To ask the Attorney-General if he will make a statement about progress in the case of Asil Nadir. [18747]

26. Mr. Winnick: To ask the Attorney-General when he now expects Asil Nadir to return to this country to face the charges against him [18749]

The Attorney-General: A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Asil Nadir. The Crown is ready to proceed as soon as he returns or is returned to the jurisdiction.

Witnesses

Mr. Dowd: To ask the Attorney-General what plans he has to review the procedure by which the Crown Prosecution Service informs its witnesses of the scheduling of the court case in which they have to appear. [18744]

The Attorney-General: Witness warning has been recently under review. Two independent reports have recommended that it should continue to be carried out by the police who already have the necessary liaison with both victims and witnesses and are currently best placed to do the job effectively.

Government Departments

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Attorney-General what arrangements exist for liaison between his Office and the Crown Office in Scotland; and if he will make a statement.

The Attorney-General: There are established procedures for liaison and consultation on matters of mutual interest to Government Departments. Close co-ordination between the English and Scottish law officers ensures effective contact between my office and the Crown Office.

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr. Simon Hughes: To ask the Attorney-General what percentage of charges prosecuted by the Crown Prosecution Service has resulted in conviction in each of the years of the Crown Prosecution Service's existence.

The Attorney-General: Crown Prosecution Service records are based on the number of defendants whose case results in a conviction, rather than the number of charges resulting in conviction.

Since 1987, expressed as a proportion of all defendants whose case proceeded to a hearing, the percentage convicted in magistrates court proceedings has been 97 per cent. each year. In the Crown court, the percentage was 91 per cent. between 1987 and 1991, and 90 per cent. thereafter.

PRIME MINISTER

Lockerbie

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 28 March, Official Report, columns 545–46, and to his letter to the hon. Member for Linlithgow of 10 April, what response he has had from the United States authorities as to the authenticity or otherwise of a signal, a copy of which was sent to him and to the US embassy in London, by the hon. Member for Linlithgow, purporting to be a threat to the life of Major Charles McKee, who died over Lockerbie by the agencies of the United States Government. [20316]

The Prime Minister: The United States authorities' examination of the document concerned is continuing. They have not yet been able to establish its authenticity.

Nursery Places

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Prime Minister what are the total number of workplace nursery places provided by each Government Department; and what plans there are to increase this provision [20292]

The Prime Minister: Information on individual Departments and agencies' number of workplace nursery places is not collected centrally in the form requested. However, as detailed in the childcare bulletin, to be published by the Cabinet Office later this month, 39 Departments, agencies and non-departmental public bodies are currently involved in 71 workplace nurseries, in which there are over 1,800 places. Copies of the bulletin will be placed in the Library of the House.

It is for Departments and agencies to decide whether to increase their childcare provision in the light of their own circumstances, provided they can justify this in value-for-money terms and contain costs within their existing budgets. I am aware of plans for two further workplace nurseries—in Falkirk, 30 places, and in York, 33 places.

VE Day (Poland)

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what representations have been made to Her Majesty's Government alleging disparity of treatment between Poland and other allied countries in respect of Poland's exclusion from the principal allies Heads of States and Heads of Governments visits to allied countries in and around the days of commemorating victory in Europe; and if he will make a statement. [20227]

The Prime Minister: We have had no such representations. Her Majesty's Government invited the Polish Head of State, President Walsea, to attend the United Kingdom's VE day commemorations. The Polish Foreign Minister, Wladyslaw Barotszewski, will attend as his representative. It is for other countries to decide who to invite to their commemorations.

Kashmir

Mr. Cox: To ask the Prime Minister if he will state the policy of his Government on the existing United Nations resolutions on Kashmir; and if he will make a statement. [20370]

The Prime Minister: Britain supported, and both India and Pakistan agreed, the United Nations resolutions of 1948 and 1949, which provided the basis of a possible solution of the Kashmir disputes. Neither side fully implemented those resolutions which have, to some extent, been overtaken by events. The 1972 Simla agreement represents the most recent formal agreement between India and Pakistan on the handling of the dispute. It envisages settlement through bilateral negotiations or other peaceful means mutually agreed between them. We believe this to be the best way forward.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purpose and the costs. [19839]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 19 April 1995]: None.

Security Vetting

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 15 December 1994 on security vetting, Official Report, column 764, where civil servants who undergo vetting are informed as to why they have been refused security clearance; whether they are given an opportunity to contest the accuracy of information held against them; whether they are informed of any appeals process; and if he will make a statement. [19104]

The Prime Minister: Under the security vetting system introduced on 1 January 1995, civil servants in post must always be informed of the outcome of their vetting. An individual who is refused security clearance will be informed of the reasons for this. In a small number of exceptional cases, considerations of national security and maintaining the confidential nature of the information provided by referees may limit disclosure. If a clearance has been denied on the grounds of criminal convictions, or as a result of financial inquiries, the individual will be shown the information on which the decision was based and will have the opportunity to correct any inaccuracies. Under the grievance procedures provided for in the civil service management code, it is open to civil servants to appeal against any management decisions which affect them adversely, including vetting decisions.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 15 December 1994 on security vetting, Official Report, column 764, if he will outline the safeguards he has put in place to protect those who are vetted; and if he will make a statement. [19105]

The Prime Minister: All candidates for security vetting are asked to complete a security questionnaire which explains the purpose of the procedure and invites them to provide the personal details required for the necessary checks to be carried out. Only the checks listed in my statement to the House of 15 December 1994 are carried out. All information given for the purpose of the vetting process is treated in confidence and protected accordingly.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 15 December 1994 on security vetting, Official Report, column 764, to what extent the basic check involves the use of criminal records and criminal intelligence to ensure that potential recruits are reliable and trustworthy; whether contractors, needing to carry out basic checks, will be able to access information from police sources to access whether potential recruits are reliable and trustworthy; and if he will make a statement. [19103]

The Prime Minister: The basic check is designed to assure Departments that potential recruits are reliable and trustworthy primarily through the verification of identity, the taking up of character references and self-declaration of unspent criminal convictions. In some exceptional cases, however, it may be decided, with Cabinet Office—Office of Public Service and Science approval, that additional checks are necessary. This may involve a check against the national collection of criminal records. Contractors are not able to access these records and the department or agency placing the contract conducts this part of the check.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Prime Minister how many advisers his department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19418]

The Prime Minister: My Department employs seven political advisers. Their salaries and conditions of work are negotiated individually in relation to their previous earnings and are confidential. My department employs no professional economists; economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns.

Acceptance of Gifts

Mr. Alton: To ask the Prime Minister if the Government have been approached during the last 15 years for advice on the suitability of accepting any financial gift, payment or commission by a Minister, a relative of a Minister, an hon. Member or a relative of an hon. Member. [19447]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Advice to Ministers on the acceptance of gifts by themselves or by members of their families is contained in "Questions of Procedure for Ministers". Advice on specific cases sought by and given to individuals is private.

Hon. Members are guided in these matters by the rules of the House.

Ministers (Car Hire)

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to his answer of 5 April, Official Report, column 1131, if he will publish the rules governing the use by members of the Government of private hire cars at public expense. [20309]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 21 April 1995]: I have nothing to add to the answer given on 5 April. There are no rules governing the use of private hire cars.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years; [19561]

(2) if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years; [19653]

(3) if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19678]

The Prime Minister: For this purpose, my office is part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service and Science on 20 April, Official Report, columns 258–61.

Correspondence

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Prime Minster what is the target time that each Government Department aims to take in replying to letters from right hon. and hon. Members and if he will give the reasons for variations; and if he will make a statement. [18987]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service and Science, to the hon. Member for Chorley (Mr. Dover) on 18 April, Official Report, columns 21–24.

The nature of correspondence varies greatly between Departments. In some Departments, for example, a high proportion of correspondence requires reference to individual casework before a reply can be sent. Targets are set to reflect the particular circumstances of Departments and consequently target times may differ.

Departmental Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report; [20203]

(2) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what the figures were for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20202]

The Prime Minister: For this purpose, my office is part of the Cabinet Office. I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary, Office of Public Service and Science on 21 April, Official Report, column 290.

SCOTLAND

Drugs-related Crime, Strathclyde

Mr. Mcmaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on recent levels of drugs-related crime and violence within the 'K' Division of Strathclyde police; and what measures he has put, is putting or will put in place to support the police and the local community in their endeavours to tackle these problems. [19034]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: My right hon. Friend fully understands the concerns of Paisley residents about increased drugs-related crime, which often involves violence, in their areas. He trusts that the police will receive the support of the local community in the actions which they are taking to curb such incidents and to bring the perpetrators to justice. He fully supports the chief constable of Strathclyde police in the mounting of "Operation Dragon", which will, it is to be hoped, result in the arrest and conviction of those responsible for the recent spate of shootings. My right hon. Friend will continue to seek to ensure that the police have adequate resources and equipment to tackle the full range of policing requirements for which they have responsibility.

Scottish Homes

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what safeguards exist to prevent Scottish Homes giving without permission the names and addresses of their tenants to organisations other than registered housing associations; [20281]

(2) if he will list the occasions since its inception on which Scottish Homes has been requested to give the names of its tenants to organisations other than registered housing associations and the occasions on which it supplied this information; [20283]

(3) if Scottish Homes sought permission from its tenants in Strathkelvin before giving their names to Gemini housing association. [20282]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is a matter for Scottish Homes. I have asked its chairman, Sir James Mellon, to write to the hon. Member.

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19366]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Rules and regulations made by the Scottish Office cover a very broad field of activities, and many have little or no consequence for business. The total number of statutory instruments, including orders, schemes, rules and regulations which were repealed in the first three months of 1995 was 45. In the same period the number introduced by my Department, but excluding instruments made jointly with other Departments, was 77.

Compliance Cost Assessments

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what requirements there are for officials in his Department to introduce a compliance cost assessment for all rules and regulations coming before him and his Ministers; and how many compliance cost assessments have been issued in his Department in the first three months of this year. [19352]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 18 April 1995]: Scottish Office officials are required to comply with the procedures which were agreed by Ministers and informally introduced on 1 April 1993 and which were subsequently formally agreed with the House authorities in October 1993. The Scottish Office has issued one compliance cost assessment in the period January to March of this year.

Ferguslie Park

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the directors and nominating organisations of the board of Ferguslie Community Business Securities, their holding companies and predecessors. [20223]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Mr right hon. Friend is not involved in the running of these companies and so cannot supply the detailed information requested which should be available from Companies House. However, through the involvement of the Scottish Office in the Ferguslie Park partnership, he understands that Strathclyde regional council, Renfrew district council and the Ferguslie Park Training, Employment and Enterprise Development—TEED—Company Ltd. are entitled to nominate directors to the board of Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. The directors appointed by the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd. have been members of the Ferguslie Park business support group appointed to offer business expertise in the running of the company's affairs in line with the recommendations of management consultants' report prepared in 1989.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will arrange for an inquiry into the accounts of Ferguslie Park Community Business Securities, its holding company or companies and their predecessors; if he will ensure that the scope of the inquiry includes employment practices and accounting procedures; and if he will make a statement. [20225]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: My right hon. Friend has no involvement in the management of the companies and has no locus to establish such an inquiry.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the number, and sources, of representations received by him, or by the Ferguslie Park partnership, into the activities of Ferguslie Community Business Securities, their holding companies and predecessors. [20224]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: No such representations have been received by my right hon. Friend or the Ferguslie Park partnership.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will place a copy of the annual report of (a) FCB Securities, (b) FCB holding companies and (c) Ferguslie Park partnership in the Library. [20222]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: My right hon. Friend has no involvement in the management of either FCB Securities or Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. and does not, therefore, hold copies of their annual reports. These should be available from Companies House. The Ferguslie Park partnership is a voluntary grouping of parties dedicated to the regeneration of Ferguslie park. As such, it does not produce annual reports. Members of the partnership agreed in 1989 to establish a limited company, the Ferguslie Park Training, Economic and Enterprise Development Company Ltd., to promote the economic regeneration of the area. I shall arrange for a copy of the most recent annual report of that company, relating to the year ending 31 March 1994, to be placed in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) if he will make a statement on the involvement of (a) the Scottish Office, (b) Ferguslie Park partnership, (c) Strathclyde regional council and (d) Renfrew district council with Ferguslie Park Community Business Securities, their holding companies and their predecessors; [20226]

(2) if he will list the amount of money deriving from Scottish Office sources including Ferguslie Park partnership which has been made available to FCB Securities, its holding companies or its predecessors before its establishment or since its establishment. [20216]

(3) if he will specify any changes in status or structure which have been made to F.C.B. Securities, its holding companies or their predecessors since the formulation of the Ferguslie Park partnership; and if he will make a statement. [20217]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The Scottish Office is not and has not been involved in the running of any of these businesses.

Over the period 1980–81 to 1983–84 Flagstone Enterprises (Ferguslie) (Manufacture and Service) Ltd. received urban programme grant of £80,174 for establishment, management and administration costs. Over the period 1986–87 to 1992–93 Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. received urban programme grant of £132,610 for acquisition and improvement of premises and purchase of equipment and £270,294 for management and administration costs. The purpose of these urban programme grants was to create and sustain jobs for local people in an area of high unemployment. Seventy-five per cent. of these costs were met by the Scottish Office, 25 per cent. by Strathclyde regional council.

In 1990 the Ferguslie Park Training, Economic and Enterprise Development—TEED—Company Ltd., which was established by members of the Ferguslie Park partnership in 1989 to promote the economic regeneration of the area, provided a grant of £62,500 to Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd., as part of a rescue and restructuring process. This followed preparation of a management consultants' report which had identified trading difficulties and a number of management issues to be addressed. As part of this restructuring, the company's board of directors was augmented by representatives of the Ferguslie Park business support group, who were in a position to offer their business expertise to the board. Since the restructuring of the business, the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd. has bought services from the business—including security services—on a commercial basis. As part of its training services, which are available to all employers of Ferguslie park residents, the Ferguslie Park—TEED—Company Ltd. has offered assistance to the business in the training and development of its staff.

The contribution of £62,500 to the rescue and restructuring of Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. was matched by an equivalent contribution from Strathclyde regional council which, as noted, also provided 25 per cent. of the urban programme grant to the company and its predecessor. Apart from this, the Scottish Office is not in a position to comment on the involvement of Strathclyde regional council and Renfrew district council in these companies.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will name the external auditors of (a) Ferguslie Park partnership, (b) FCB Securities, (c) FCB Holding Companies and (d) their predecessors. [20214]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The Ferguslie Park partnership is a voluntary grouping of parties dedicated to the regeneration of the area. As such, it does not produce annual accounts and so there is no external auditor. Members of the partnership agreed in 1989 to establish a limited company, the Ferguslie Park Training, Economic and Enterprise Development TEED Company Ltd., to promote the economic regeneration of the area. The external auditors of the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd., are J. Bruce Andrew and Co., chartered accountants, Paisley. My right hon. Friend is not and has not been involved in the running of Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd., or its subsidiary companies and the external audit of these companies is therefore not a matter for which he has responsibility.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the findings of inquiries into the operation of FCB Securities its holding companies or their predecessors with regard to their compliances with the laws and regulations governing insolvency or bankruptcy. [20218]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: My right hon. Friend is not aware of any such inquiries.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the findings of reports made to him by the Accounts Commissioners for Scotland into (a) FCB Securities, (b) FCB holding companies, or their predecessors and (c) Ferguslie Park partnership. [20220]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: No such reports have been made to my right hon. Friend.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will give (a) the date, (b) the purpose and (c) the participants of each ministerial visit to the Ferguslie Park partnership since its establishment or the most recent period for which information is available; if he will highlight any of the visits which involved Ferguslie Community Business Securities, its holding companies or predecessors; and if he will make a statement. [20221]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: Details of the visits by Ministers to the Ferguslie Park partnership are set out in the table:

| Date | Visitor | Purpose of visit |
|---|---|---|
| March 1989 | Right hon. Malcolm Rifkind QC MP, Secretary of State for Scotland | Launch of Ferguslie Park Partnership |
| January 1990 | Mr. Ian Lang MP, Minister of State, Scottish Office | General visit to Partnership Offices. |

| November 1990 | Mr. Richard Needham MP, Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, Northern Ireland Office | Overview of work of Partnership. |
| February 1991 | Mr. Robert Key MP, Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, Department of Environment | Overview of work of Partnership. |
| March 1991 | Mr. Allan Stewart MP, Minister for Industry and Local Government in Scotland | Official opening of community workspace units. |

| October 1993 | Right hon. Ian Lang MP, Secretary of State for Scotland and Lord James Douglas-Hamilton MP, Minister for Education and Housing in Scotland | Launch of "Progress in Partnership" consultation paper and turf cutting for new Civic Centre. |

The visit by my hon. Friend the Member for Eastwood (Mr. Stewart) in March 1991 involved the opening of workspace units operated by a subsidiary company of Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. The visit by myself in July 1993 included the official opening of the Glencoats lodge, part of which is occupied by Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the job titles of employees or secondees of the Ferguslie Park partnership who have been or are responsible for the supervision of FCB Securities, its holding companies, or its predecessors since their establishment; and if he will make a statement. [20215]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: There are no employees of or secondees to either the Ferguslie Park partnership, or the Ferguslie Park Training, Employment and Enterprise Development Company Ltd. who have been or are responsible for the supervision of these companies.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will specify the role of the Ferguslie Park partnership in (a) establishing and (b) supervising Ferguslie Community Business Securities; when the most recent audit or check was carried out; if he will publish the finding of the check or audit; if he will list (a) the average number of employees each week during that period, (b) the number of employees required for FCB Securities to fulfil its trading obligations each week during the same period; and if he will make a statement. [20219]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: Both Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. and its subsidiary company providing security services were established some years before the formation of the Ferguslie Park partnership. Neither the partnership nor the Ferguslie Park Training, Economic and Enterprise Development (TEED) Company Ltd., a company established by partnership members in 1989 to promote the economic regeneration of the area, has any role in the supervision of FCB Securities or its parent company. As part of the rescue and restructuring of Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Ltd. in 1990, the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd. agreed to commission a monitoring report six months after the injection of additional funds into the company. This report established that the company was operating on a commercial basis and to the satisfaction of the funders, namely the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd. and Strathclyde regional council. Neither the Ferguslie Park partnership nor the Ferguslie Park TEED Company Ltd. has any role in auditing the company nor do they have access to the detailed information on employment levels and requirements requested.

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement on the scope of investigations and inquiries which (a) have been and (b) are being conducted by the Charity Commissioners into FCB Securities or its holding companies; and when the reports will be published. [20213]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The supervision of charities in Scotland is the responsibility of the Lord Advocate and the supervision legislation is implemented by the Scottish charities office. No investigations have been or are being conducted into Ferguslie Park Community Holdings Limited by the Scottish charities office.

EMPLOYMENT

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if, in cases where jobseeker's allowance claimants do not have right of appeal, this will be made explicit when the agreement is being drawn up and before the claimant is required to sign.

Miss Widdecombe [holding answer 6 February 1995]: There will be no circumstances in which the claimant will not have the right to ask for his case to be reconsidered, by way of either review or appeal. The conditions under which a claimant is entitled to benefit, and the consequences of failure to meet those conditions, will, however, be made clear to the claimant when the agreement is being drawn up at the beginning of his claim.

Ms Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many days' training will be given to (a) adjudication officers and (b) Employment Service advisers about the requirements and procedures associated with the jobseeker's allowance prior to its introduction in April 1996; what timetable will be followed to ensure that all the appropriate staff will receive the training prior to the date of implementation; and if he will make a statement. [19754]

Miss Widdecombe: A wide variety of modular training courses, based on a detailed analysis of training needs, are being developed for staff who are to deliver the jobseeker's allowance, depending on the duties that they are to perform. Current plans are that existing, trained adjudication officers in the Employment Service will receive five days training on JSA rules and their effect on adjudication procedures. Existing, trained ES advisers will receive 16 days training which will cover additional interviewing skills, use of new IT systems and policy and procedural changes arising from the introduction of JSA. All the training needed to ensure that JSA is delivered effectively will take place before April 1996, but training courses will continue to be run after that date to help staff further develop their knowledge and skills, as part of an overall move towards multi-skilling. Training for managers has already started and training for all staff will run from now until well into 1996.

Parliamentary Questions

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) how many parliamentary questions to his Department that were transferred for answer to the chief executive or other senior official of a non-departmental public body or agency for which he has responsibility received an answer which was not printed in the Official Report in each year since 1979–80 or for each year that the body or agency has been in existence; [18546]

(2) how many parliamentary questions to his Department were transferred for answer to the chief executive or other senior official of a non-departmental public body or agency for which he has responsibility in each year since 1979–80 or for each year that the body or agency has been in existence; [18545]

(3) how many times in each year since 1979–80 his Department has given a reply to a parliamentary question which has resulted in the information requested being placed in the Library and not printed in the Official Report. [18543]

Miss Widdecombe: The information requested is a matter of public record but it could be extracted in the form requested only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many parliamentary questions requesting an ordinary written answer were received by his Department in each year since 1979–80; and how many such questions received a substantive answer within 10, 15, 20 days or longer. [18541]

Miss Widdecombe: The information requested is available only from 1 January 1991 and is detailed in the following table:

| Year | Total number of questions for ordinary written reply | Questions answered within (working days) 10 | 15 | 20 | 20+ |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1991 | 834 | 824 | 3 | 4 | 3 |
| 1992 | 861 | 857 | 2 | — | 2 |
| 1993 | 966 | 954 | 6 | 3 | 3 |
| 1994 | 1,090 | 1,044 | 21 | 3 | 22 |
| 1995[1] | 470 | 468 | — | 1 | 1 |

Restart

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many restart interviews were carried out at the jobcentre in Corby; and what evaluation he has made of their impact to date on (a) jobs, (b) other benefits, (c) signing off and (d) enrolment on Department of Employment programmes. [20271]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Mr. William Powell dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about Restart interviews carried out at the Employment Service (ES) Jobcentre in Corby.

All ES local offices provide a structured and coherent advisory and information service which is aimed at helping clients back into work as soon as possible. This service is based on regular interviews with an adviser, at which clients are able to discuss their situations, consider the options available and agree a course of action which will offer the best prospects of finding employment.

Those who remain unemployed for six months are required to attend a Restart interview during which employment and training programmes specifically designed to help longer term unemployed are discussed. Programmes discussed include Jobclub, Training For Work, Jobplan Workshop, and Restart courses. These interviews are carried out on an ongoing basis at six monthly intervals.

The following table provides a breakdown of Restart interviews carried out at the Corby Jobcentre over the last 2 financial years.

| | 12 months to April 1995 | 12 months to April 1994 |
|---|---|---|
| Number of Restart Interviews | 3,476 | 3,104 |
| Clients gaining employment | 100 | 41 |
| Clients entering ED programmes | 888 | 893 |
| Clients claiming other benefits | 148 | 57 |
| Clients signing off | 267 | 33 |

I hope this is helpful.

Departmental Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment (1) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report; [20197]

(2) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20196]

Miss Widdecombe: The annual presentation of Departments' expenditure information contained in reports meets a Government undertaking to Parliament. The preparation of the report is part of the normal duties of officials within the Department and as such no record is kept of the amount and costs of staff time involved in either the preparation of individual contributions or editing the report. However, three staff in the Department were involved in editing and preparing the report for publication between November 1994 and March 1995 as part of their normal duties.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will give the number and location of Employment Services offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as a result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20045]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the transfer, loss or gain of jobs and opening or closure of Employment Service offices in Scotland due to the movement of agency work throughout the United Kingdom.

There has been no transfer of Employment Services (ES) agency work into to or out of Scotland.

The network of local offices nationally and in Scotland was reviewed in 1990 as part of the ES's integration programme, which seeks to merge Jobcentres and Benefit Offices into a single location where possible.

The location of the ES Jobcentres is decided on the basis of how the best possible service can be provided to clients taking economic, demographic and geographic factors such as travel to work patterns into account.

I hope this is helpful.

Consultants

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 9 March, Official Report, column 335, how much in total was spent by his Department on consultancy in 1993–94; and if he will list the 10 most valuable consultancy contracts issued that year, indicating the nature of the work undertaken, the body awarded the contract and the fee paid in each case. [19996]

Miss Widdecombe: Information in the form requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

South Thames Training and Enterprise Council

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment when new arrangements will be in place in the South Thames TEC area. [21052]

Mr. Paice: I am very pleased to announce that contracts have now been signed with central London TEC to provide training and enterprise council services from 24 April 1995 for the London boroughs of Lambeth and Southwark and with South London TEC to provide TEC services from 24 April 1995 for the London boroughs of Greenwich and Lewisham. This will ensure the delivery of Government programmes in the area and provide a sound base for the future. I know that CENTEC and SOLOTEC are keen to play a full part in the wider economic regeneration of the area as soon as possible.

EDUCATION

Departmental Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20199]

Mr. Forth: The production of the departmental report is co-ordinated by the finance and information branches of the Department. Much of the work, however, comprises relatively brief contributions from branches across the Department, This work is submerged in the annual financial planning of individual divisions and is not identified as a separate item in the Department's resource planning exercise.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what the figures were for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20198]

Mr. Forth: Figures are not available for staff time spent on preparing the departmental report. Work on the report takes place across the Department, and is submerged in the annual financial planning of individual divisions.

Free School Meals

Ms Estelle Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what proportion of children in voluntary aided schools are entitled to free school meals in each local authority; [20287]

(2) what proportion of children in grant-maintained schools are entitled to free school meals in each local authority; [20287]

(3) what proportion of children in selective schools are entitled to free school meals in each local education authority; [20287]

(4) what is the proportion of secondary age children who are entitled to free school meals in each local education authority. [20287]

Mr. Robin Squire: The percentages of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals in each of the categories requested are shown in the table.

Administration Costs

Mrs. Peacock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the average cost per local education authority school in Kirklees for administration in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95; and what is the forecast for 1995–96.

Mr. Robin Squire: The average LEA expenditure on administration per local authority maintained school in Kirklees is as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1993–94 (outturn figure) | 13,480 |
| 1994–95 (budget estimate) | 13,050 |
| 1995–96 (budget estimate) | 14,245 |

These figures are derived from statements published by Kirklees LEA under section 42 of the Education Reform Act 1988 in respect of schools included in the authority's scheme for the local management of schools. For reasons of comparability the 1993–94 figure therefore excludes expenditure on administration for special schools which were formula funded under LMS from 1 April 1994. In 1993–94, the LEA expenditure on administration for special schools amounted to £30,030 per school according to LEA returns published under section 50 of the Education Reform Act.

No outturn figures for 1994–95 are yet available. No data for LEA nursery schools or pupil referral units are available.

Class Sizes

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what percentage and how many primary school pupils were in classes of over 30 in January in each local education authority and in total; what was the change in numbers compared with January 1994 in each local education authority and in total; and what the change in numbers between January 1994 and January 1995 represents as a percentage change in each local education authority.

Mr. Robin Squire: Information on pupils in classes of 31 and over in maintained schools in January 1994 is shown in the table. Information for January 1995 will not be available until the autumn.

Taxation

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list all the changes made to (a) increase taxation and (b) decrease taxation since May 1992. [20064]

Sir George Young: Details of all recent tax changes are shown in successive editions of the "Financial Statement and Budget Report", copies of which are in the Library of the House.

European Monetary Committee

Mr. Cash: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement about the work of the European Union's monetary committee; for what reasons its activities are closed to the press; what is its policy regarding press inquiries about its activities; and if it is examining the design of notes and coins for the new monetary system. [17510]

Mr. Nelson: The present monetary committee was established under article 109c of the EC treaty. Its tasks include advising the Council and the Commission on EMU. Member states and the Commission each appoint two members of the committee.

Its policy regarding the press is a matter for the monetary committee. As part of its tasks in preparation for EMU, the committee helps prepare for ECOFIN's discussions on ecu notes and coins.

Earnings, Sutton and Cheam

Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what was the change in the proportion of total pay taken home in Sutton and Cheam by a single man in the bottom 10 per cent. of earnings (a) between 1979 and the latest year for which figures are available and (b) between 1974 and 1979. [19151]

Sir George Young: No reliable figures are available for the lowest 10 per cent. of earnings in Sutton and Cheam.

However, the position of single men at the lowest decile of earnings in Great Britain has improved. The proportion of their gross earnings taken home, after income tax and national insurance contributions, has risen by just over four percentage points since 1978–79, compared with a fall of around three percentage points between 1973–74 and 1978–79. Real take-home pay for this group fell slightly between 1973–74 and 1978–79, but it has risen by around a quarter since then.

Inland Revenue Office, Leicester

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the estimated costs in each of the first three years of operation of the office in Leicester being established as a result of the decision to tax incapacity benefit; and if he will define the range of work being undertaken there and give the number of staff employed there. [19284]

Sir George Young: An Inland Revenue tax office, Leicester 4, has been opened to deal with the tax records of claimants in receipt of incapacity benefit who do not have another source of income currently subject to pay-as-you-earn and who therefore have a tax code applied to their benefit by the Benefits Agency.

About 10,000 recipients are expected to have tax deducted by the Benefits Agency. The Leicester office will also maintain records in 1995–96 for around 100,000 claimants who are not expected to have a tax liability for that year, but whose tax position may change in future years.

The office will review the tax codes operated, finalised those claimant's tax liabilities each year, and deal with inquiries. It will also act as a liaison office with the Benefits Agency.

There are presently 34 staff, but the final figure for 1995–96 will be dependent on the number of claimants whose records are handled by that office.

The projected running costs for the first three years of operation are as follows, but are subject to the number of records which are handled by the office and the number of staff employed:

1995–96: £593,100
1996–97: £788,900
1997–98: £963,900

Crown Estate Commission

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the proceeds received by the Crown Estate Commission in the last year for which figures are available; from what sources they derived; how they are distributed; and to which bodies. [20055]

Mr. Aitken: The Crown Estate Commissioners operate under the provisions of the Crown Estate Act 1961. They do not distribute their proceeds. Under the terms of the Civil List Act 1952, their surplus revenue, after deducting operating costs, is surrendered direct to the consolidated fund each year. In 1993–94, the amount was £78.9 million. Details of the Crown Estate's financial performance is contained in the commissioners' annual report to Parliament, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House.

WALES

Inward Investment

17. Mr. Sweeney: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many jobs have been created in Wales since 1979 as a result of inward investment from (a) Japan, (b) The European Union and (c) the United States of America. [18738]

Mr. Redwood: Figures in the form requested are not readily available. However, over 68,000 people are now employed by overseas-owned manufacturing companies in Wales. Almost 30,000 of these are employed by companies from the United States; over 14,000 by companies from the European Union and almost 12,500 by companies from Japan.

Casualty and Surgical Services

18. Mr. Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his strategy for casualty and surgical services in Wales. [18739]

Mr. Richards: The provision of casualty and surgical services in Wales is a matter for health authorities and individual trusts. However, a Welsh office working group is reviewing accident and emergency provision across Wales. Advice from this group should assist health authorities and provider trusts in planning future services.

Cardiff Bay Barrage

19. Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the progress of the Cardiff bay barrage. [18740]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Good progress has been made to meet the target my right hon. Friend has set the corporation of completing 54 per cent. of the construction of the barrage by 31 March 1996.

The current final cost forecast of the barrage project is £191 million. After allowing for £15.4 million for preliminary design work and the presentation of the Bills to Parliament and £5.7 million for bird compensation measures, this forecast is consistent with the costs indicated to Parliament in October 1992 converted to outturn prices.

Manufacturing Skills

20. Sir Wyn Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to ensure that there is an adequate supply of suitably qualified young people to meet the needs of manufacturing industry in Wales. [18741]

Mr. Redwood: Improving the supply of suitably qualified young people to meet the needs of manufacturing industry in Wales is one of my priorities. My plan to strengthen the supply of skilled workers at both craft and technician levels is set out in "People and Prosperity—an Agenda for Action in Wales", which was published on 20 March.

Deprivation Payments

Mr. Rhodri Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) what consultations he has had with (a) chairmen of the Welsh family health services authorities, (b) representations of the medical profession and (c) community health councils concerning the relative merits of postcodes and electoral wards as the basis for awarding deprivation payments to general practitioners; [19875]

(2) what representations he has received concerning the relative remits of postcodes and electoral wards as the basis for awarding deprivation payments to general practitioners. [19876]

Mr. Redwood: I have held no specific consultation with the three bodies mentioned, nor have I received any representations from them. I have recently received seven representations from individual GPs in South Glamorgan.

The present deprivation payments scheme was negotiated and agreed with the representative body of the profession in Wales. My officials have discussed the merits of the scheme with representatives of family health services authorities on several occasions. My officials have also been involved in discussions between health departments and the negotiating team of the General Medical Services Committee about the deprivation index. Both parties put forward evidence to the independent Doctors and Dentists Review Body on pay and the Government have accepted its recommendation that payments should be based on the 1991 census Jarman scores.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proposals he has to base deprivation payments to general practitioners on electoral wards. [19877]

Mr. Redwood: Since the inception of the deprivation payments scheme in 1990, payments to GPs in Wales have been based on the under-privileged area scores relating to electoral wards in accordance with an index of deprivation that was negotiated and agreed with the representative body of the profession in Wales. With effect from April 1995, payments to GPs will be updated using the 1991 census data.

Swine Vesicular Disease

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many cases of swine vesicular disease were reported in each year since 1985. [19728]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: No cases of swine vesicular disease have occurred in Wales since 1985.

Glaucoma

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the estimated number of people aged over 17 years with glaucoma in Wales. [19731]

Mr. Richards: The information requested is not held centrally.

Planning Policy Guidance

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what progress he has made in respect of the introduction in Wales of planning policy guidance operating at present in England but not in Wales. [19895]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Work continues on the preparation of draft planning policy guidance for Wales and consultation with Welsh interests will follow.

General Development Order

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he intends to issue a consolidated version of the General Development Order of the Town and Country Planning Act 1988. [19896]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Two separate orders, the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995 and the Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995, were laid before Parliament on 6 March 1995 and come into force on 3 June 1995.

Dental Services

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will publish for each district council area (a) the list of all dentists in Wales and (b) those dentists accepting NHS patients. [20044]

Mr. Richards: The information is not available centrally in the form requested. Family health services authorities maintain local directories of general dental practitioners and are best placed to provide up-to-date information on the availability of NHS dental services in their areas.

Ambulance Trusts

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what mechanism exists to enable the newly established ambulance trust to absorb Powys in order that coterminosity is established with the new geographical boundaries of the health authorities. [19932]

Mr. Richards: Either or both of the NHS trusts concerned may propose to me a reconfiguration of their boundaries. Neither has yet done so. Any such proposals would be subject to public consultation under existing legislative arrangements.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will institute a review into the operational boundaries of the South East Wales ambulance trust and the Mid Glamorgan ambulance trust. [20527]

Mr. Redwood: I have no plans to do so and have received no such request from either of the NHS trusts concerned.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what consultations he has had with the chairman of the South-East Wales ambulance trust and the chairmen of the South Glamorgan, Gwent, and Powys health authorities concerning cash transfers from the health purchasers to the ambulance trust with respect to reassessment of the financial set-up costs of the trust; and if he will make a statement. [20529]

Mr. Redwood: None. I understand that the trust has reached agreement with Gwent, South Glamorgan and Powys health authorities.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what representations he has had concerning the financial viability of the South-East Wales NHS ambulance trust. [20528]

Mr. Redwood: None. The financial performance of all NHS trusts in Wales is the responsibility of the trusts and is monitored by my Department.

Local Government Reorganisation

Mr. Barry Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to visit the Alyn and Deeside district council office to discuss the future of chief officers and their staffs consequent upon the 1996 reform of local government; and if he will make a statement. [20342]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: My right hon. Friend and I have no such plans.

The future of staff depends mainly on decisions to be taken by the new authorities. The Staff Commission for Wales has a duty to advise the Secretary of State on the steps necessary to safeguard the interests of staff.

Religious Education

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many schools in Wales have changed their religious tuition following his request for an increased Christian content in the curriculum. [20024]

Mr. Redwood: In accordance with my statement, I have asked the Curriculum and Assessment Authority for Wales to prepare guidelines for the revision of locally agreed religious education syllabuses. The guidelines will assist local authorities and their standing advisory councils on religious education over the next statutory syllabus reviews. They will also reflect the important place that Christianity holds in the religious traditions of this country.

Union Flag

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many schools in Wales flew the Union flag following the advice of his predecessor. [20025]

Mr. Richards: The information is not held centrally.

Rural White Paper

Mr. Dafis: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales for what reason section 19 of "This Common Inheritance—UK Annual Report 1995", on rural White Papers, refers to Scotland and England, but not to Wales. [19804]

Mr. Redwood [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The Welsh Office's rural policies were brought together in December 1991 in the publication "The Rural Initiative" which set out the Department's principal policy objectives for rural communities in Wales. Those objectives remain valid and continue to inform the activities of the Department and its agencies.

I am keeping in close touch with the development of the White Paper in England and Scotland and Welsh Office officials are fully informed on the discussions which are under way. I will be considering whether any further consequential action is required in Wales in the light of progress in England.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Draft Legislation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the proposal to allow the private sector to draft legislation. [18751]

Mr. David Hunt: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 23 February 1995, Official Record, column 298, and to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Financial Secretary to the Treasury on 14 March 1995, Official Report, columns 463-65.

Administrative Staff

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many new posts were vacant at administrative assistant and administrative officer level in each quarter between September 1993 and April 1995 available for internal appointment. [20589]

Mr. Horam: Individual Departments and agencies are responsible for filling their own posts at administrative assistant and administrative officer level. Within my Department, no posts at administrative assistant or administrative officer level for which staff have been sought have remained vacant for any significant period of time.

Conflicts of Interest

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how and where declarations of possible conflicts of interest involving special advisers and civil servants formally are recorded. [20403]

Mr. David Hunt: Civil Servants, including special advisers, must declare conflicts of interest to their Department or agency and comply with any subsequent instructions regarding the retention, disposal or management of such interests.

Special Advisers

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the standard terms and conditions for appointment for special advisers. [20477]

Mr. David Hunt: I am placing a copy of a model appointment letter for special advisers in the Library.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Torture Equipment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what joint international action he is proposing to curb the production of torture equipment; [20294]

(2) what discussions he has had with his European and United States colleagues to curb the British manufacture of torture equipment; [20295]

(3) what discussions officials and Ministers have had to curb the manufacture of torture equipment with colleagues at the United Nations and the European Union. [20297]

Mr. David Davis: There have been no discussions on curbing the manufacture of torture equipment.

Officials at the European Union working group on conventional arms transfers have recently held preliminary exchanges on information on export control practices covering these kinds of weapons. These discussions are on-going.

A wide variety of innocuous equipment could conceivably be misused for torture, including goods which it is not practical to control. Prohibited weapons are controlled under section 5 of the Firearms Act 1968, as amended. They cannot be manufactured, possessed or sold without the authority of the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report; [20193]

(2) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20192]

Mr. Goodlad: None. All Government Departments are required to present departmental reports to Parliament. The report therefore forms part of the normal FCO—diplomatic wing and ODA—work load. Accordingly, no separate assessment of the costs and staff implications of compilation is prepared.

Kashmir

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last discussed Kashmir with the Pakistan Government; and if he will make a statement on the issues which were discussed. [19948]

Mr. Baldry: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs discussed Kashmir most recently with the Pakistani Government during his visit to Pakistan in January this year. The main topics of discussion were the prospects for elections in Kashmir and violence in Kashmir. I also discussed Kashmir during my visit to Pakistan last month.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last discussed Kashmir with the Indian Government; and what issues were discussed. [19949]

Mr. Baldry: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs discussed Kashmir most recently with the Indian Government during his visit to India in January this year. The main topics of discussion were the prospects for elections in Kashmir and human rights issues.

Liberia

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UNOMIL military observers there were in Liberia in October 1994; how many there are now; and for what reasons the number changed. [19914]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: There were 98 UNOMIL military observers in Liberia on 31 October 1994 and 77 as at 31 March 1995.

In October 1994, the UN Secretary-General recommended that the number of UNOMIL military observers should be reduced because the worsening security situation and ECOMOG's inability to provide the necessary protection for the observers meant that UNOMIL was unable to carry out many of its mandated activities.

Expatriate Civil Servants (Hong Kong)

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he is able to provide figures on the cost of arrangements for expatriate civil servants currently based in Hong Kong on the resumption of sovereignty by China. [20210]

Mr. Goodlad: Members of Her Majesty's Overseas civil service who worked in Britain's dependent territories received compensation and pension protection when British sovereignty over these territories came to an end. We intend to provide Hong Kong HMOCS with compensation, and a scheme to give members and former members of HMOCS some protection against a decline in the value of their pensions. The proposed compensation scheme would cost about £40 million at 1992 prices.

Slovakia

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the subjects discussed and outcomes reached during his visit to Slovakia. [20250]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs had valuable discussions with President Kovac, Prime Minister Meciar and Foreign Minister Schenk. These covered bilateral relations, Slovakia's political and economic Development and its relations with the EU and NATO. He expressed strong support for the consolidation of the new Slovak democracy and for Slovakia's movement towards full membership of the EU and NATO. He agreed with Prime Minister Meciar to take further steps to strengthen bilateral co-operation.

Human Rights (Iraq)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations about human rights in northern Iraq he made to the deputy Prime Minister of Turkey during his visit to London. [19907]

Mr. David Davis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs met the Deputy Prime Minister of Turkey for talks and lunch when he visited London on 6 April. He took the opportunity to repeat our call for the early withdrawal of Turkish troops from northern Iraq. He reminded Mr. Cetin of the need to honour the Turkish commitment not to harm non-combatants in the region or disrupt relief activities.

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government will suspend all military deliveries and subsidies to Turkey in light of its recent actions against the Kurdish population in northern Iraq. [20323]

Mr. David Davis: Turkey is a NATO ally with legitimate defence requirements. Proposed United Kingdom arms sales to Turkey are subject to stringent licensing procedures. We do not grant licences for the sale of equipment which we believe is likely to be used for internal repression.

Human Rights Violations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information he has received from embassies and other sources as to the use of British-made equipment for human rights violations. [20293]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We do not issue licences for the export of equipment likely to be used for internal repression. When considering applications for licences we pay particular attention to human rights in the countries concerned. We take account of all relevant information received from our embassies and other sources.

Military Personnel Costs

Mr. Michael Jopling: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the costs of posting military personnel to embassies and high commissions falls on his Department; and what is the total cost. [19959]

Mr. Goodlad: The FCO normally meets the following costs of service attachés and their UK-based support staff who serve at our diplomatic missions overseas:

residential accommodation, furniture and maintenance;
office accommodation, furniture and maintenance;
office utilities;
office telephone, fax and secure communications.

This expenditure is not recorded separately but included with that for all other diplomatic service staff. It would therefore be possible to identify it only by incurring disproportionate cost.

Other costs of service attachés, including pay, fall to the Ministry of Defence.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will give the number and location of Natural Resources Institute and Wilton Park offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20301]

Mr. Baldry: No Natural Resources Institute or Wilton Park offices have been opened or closed, and no jobs have been lost, transferred or gained over this period as a result of the transfer of agency work from or to Scotland.

Conventional Forces in Europe Treaty

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Russia is meeting its obligations under the conventional forces in Europe treaty in the Caucasus; and if he will make a statement. [20475]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The conventional armed forces in Europe treaty was signed in 1990 and establishes numerical limits for different types of military equipment in different regions of Europe. These limits are to be achieved by this November. We are working with our NATO allies and with Russia to ensure that this target is met.

Transport Costs

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff from his Department based overseas rely upon (a) bicycles, (b) horses or other equines, (c) private cars or (d) other means for local transport; at what estimated cost in each case; and if he will make a statement. [18760]

Mr. Goodlad: The FCO and ODA have some 2,600 UK-based and 7,100 locally engaged staff serving overseas. Information about the mode and cost of local transport is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Immigration

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many applications have been made to the United Kingdom post in Islamabad in the last three years, to date, by applicants from Mirpur for (a) visits to and (b) settlement in the United Kingdom; and how much time on average entry clearance officers in Islamabad have allocated to interview applicants applying for (c) visits to and (d) settlement in the United Kingdom. [19986]

Mr. Baldry: As Islamabad does not record visa applications by locality the information requested in parts (a) and (b) of the question could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The proportion of ECOs' time allocated to settlement and non-settlement interviewing is subject to fluctuations but, on average, the respective proportions are 30 per cent. and 40 per cent. The remaining 30 per cent. is spent on related work—writing explanatory statements, making local enquiries and so on.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of improved standards of customer service applicants from Mirpur in Pakistan for visas to the United Kingdom post in Islamabad for (a) visits to and (b) settlement in the United Kingdom from establishing temporary facilities for checking application forms and documentation by entry clearance officers being available for parts of each year in Mirpur; what enquiries have been made of the Government of Azad Kashmir about the availability of suitable offices; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Baldry: I have asked the high commission at Islamabad for details and shall arrange for the hon. Member to receive a substantive reply from the migration and visa correspondence unit as soon as possible.

Antarctic Treaty Secretariat

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what bilateral talks have been held with Argentina concerning the location of the Antarctic treaty secretariat. [20235]

Mr. David Davis: The location of the Antarctic treaty secretariat has been raised periodically during the course of UK-Argentine bilateral meetings on other matters.

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent representations he has received from other countries concerning the location of the Antarctic treaty secretariat; what form these took; and what meetings have been held; [20234]

(2) what discussions have been held with other signatory states to the Antarctic treaty concerning the location of the secretariat authorised by the treaty. [20236]

Mr. David Davis: The Argentines regularly promote their candidacy of Buenos Aires for the location for the Antarctic treaty secretariat. Several of the Antarctic treaty parties have raised the issue during bilateral talks on Antarctic issues. Specific aide memoires were delivered to the FCO by representatives of Belgium, Germany, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the United States in December and January on this subject.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Meat Inspections

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how many inspectors his Department employs to visit meat wholesalers; how many visits each inspector makes; and how many visits each supplier expects a year; [19486]

(2) if meat wholesalers are notified in advance of visits by his Department's meat inspectors; [19487]

(3) if he will list the number and types of incidents in meat wholesalers detected by his Department's inspectors for the last year for which figures are available. [19489]

Mrs. Browning: The Agriculture Departments are responsible for licensing fresh meat premises—abattoirs, cutting plants and some cold stores, all of which could be considered wholesalers—under the Fresh Meat (Hygiene and Inspection) Regulations 1995. Visits for licensing purposes are carried out by officers of the State Veterinary Service. At end 1994, there were 1,580 licensed premises in Great Britain and SVS time spent on visits to meat plants is estimated at 58 man years in 1994–95. Some SVS visits to licensed premises are unannounced.

The purpose of SVS licensing visits is to monitor standards and to advise on remedial action where deficiencies are identified. Information on SVS assessments of hygiene standards was given in my reply to the hon. Member for Worcester (Mr. Luff) on 1 March 1995, Official Report, columns 626–28, and my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland's reply to the hon. Member for Ayr (Mr. Gallie) on 14 March 1995, Official Report, columns 480–82.

On 1 April 1995, responsibility for meat inspection and hygiene enforcement in Great Britain transferred from local authorities to the Meat Hygiene Service, an executive agency of the Department. The MHS currently employs 817 meat hygiene inspectors and 42 official veterinary surgeons, and also obtains vet services and relief cover for meat inspection through contract. MHS personnel are present in abattoirs on a daily basis and make regular visits to cutting premises and cold stores.

Premises are notified in advance of the overall level of supervision to be expected but will not always know the precise timing of the visits.

Until this month, day-to-day hygiene enforcement in fresh meat premises was the responsibility of local authority environmental health departments, and the Department does not hold records of incidents detected by their inspectors.

Mr. Nigel Griffiths: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what investigations his Department's inspectors carry out on the accuracy of date labelling by wholesale meat suppliers to supermarkets. [19488]

Mrs. Browning: Date-marking requirements apply to pre-packed foodstuffs which are ready for sale to the ultimate consumer or a catering establishment. Enforcement of these requirements is the responsibility of local authorities. Inspectors from local authorities will check on compliance with date-marking requirements as part of their routine duties.

Bovine Offal

Mr. Campbell-Savours: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 21 March, Official Report, column 156, which industrial organisations and individuals made representations to the Government regarding the collection and disposal of specified bovine offal prior to their consideration of the need to require specified bovine offal to be stained with a specified dye and for changes to be made concerning collection and disposal of offal. [19568]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 16 April 1995]: In the course of discussions on aspects of the controls on specified bovine offals, representations were made to the Department on a confidential basis by individuals and bodies from various sides of the industry with a direct concern in this issue.

In line with the Department's policy on openness, responses to the public consultations on these new controls were sought on the basis that they would be made publicly available unless respondents clearly indicated a wish to be excluded from the arrangements. The results of the consultation letters are in the House Library and copies of the responses are available in the MAFF library at Whitehall place.

Sheep Exports

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many sheep were exported to Spain between 1 October 1993 and 30 September 1994; how many of these had an export certificate (a) for slaughter and (b) for further fattening; where the sheep exported to Spain with an export certificate for further fattening were slaughtered; and under what conditions. [19701]

Mrs. Browning: During the period, export health certification was issued for 28,423 sheep for further fattening, and for 630 sheep for slaughter. Bi-lateral arrangements with the Spanish veterinary authorities aim to ensure, by a system of spot-checks, that transport arrangements are satisfactory and that the sheep for further fattening reach their declared final destinations. We have no information on the places of slaughter for sheep exported for further fattening.

Milk Marque

Mr. McAvoy: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will provide figures arising from the survey commissioned from the Office of Fair Trading on the impact of the establishment of Milk Marque on 1 November 1994, on the provision of milk to the marketplace and its impact on the consumer in terms of (a) prices, (b) quantity and (c) delivery, including the likely impact on doorstep delivery; and if he will make a statement. [19453]

Mr. Jack: The Office of Fair Trading has not commissioned a survey on the impact of the establishment of Milk Marque.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19429]

Mr. Jack: The Department currently employs one political adviser whose salary and conditions of work have been negotiated individually in relation to previous work and earnings and are confidential. Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants, who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The numbers by grade in full-time equivalents are:

|---|---|
| Grade 3 | 1 |
| Grade 4 | 1 |
| Grade 5 | 3 |
| Grade 6 | 1 |
| Grade 7 | 8 |
| Assistant Economist | 13 |

Common Fisheries Policies

Mr. Gill: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if it is within the remit of the common fisheries policy review group to question the principle of equal access to a common resource. [19546]

Mr. Jack: I shall want the review group to look at any constructive and realistic proposals for improving the common fisheries policy.

Bovine Somatotropin

Mr. Ieuan Wyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to lift the moratorium on bovine somatotropin at the end of 1995; and if he will make a statement. [19499]

Mrs. Browning: At its meeting in December 1994, the Council of Agriculture Ministers decided, by a qualified majority, to extend the moratorium on bovine somatotropin until 31 December 1999. Although the UK voted against that decision, as it was without scientific justification, it applies in all member states. It is for the Council of Agriculture Ministers to consider any change to that decision. I am not aware that it has any plans to reconsider the subject.

Swine Vesicular Disease

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of swine vesicular disease were reported in each year since 1985. [19727]

Mrs. Browning: The last case of swine vesicular disease in England was in 1982.

Organophosphorous Sheep Dips

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what consideration he is going to pay in compensation for individuals harmfully affected by the use of organophosphorus sheep dips; and if he will make a statement on compensation claims in respect of his policy on harmful effects of organophosphorus dips. [19787]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The question of compensation for those who claim to be affected by exposure to organophosphorous sheep dips is a matter between the individuals and pharmaceutical companies concerned.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what further controls his Ministry plans on the use of organophosphorous sheep dips; and what steps his Ministry is taking to enforce the present regulations. [19788]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 21 April 1995]: I have no plans for further controls on the use of organophosphorous sheep dips at this stage. It is important to give the new certificate of competence arrangements, which only came into full effect on 1 April 1995, sufficient time before coming to any judgment over their effectiveness. The arrangements will continue to be kept under review, and I will be taking stock of the position at the end of the year. If they are not found to be working properly, then changes will be considered in the light of any further advice the Veterinary Products Committee might offer. Enforcement of the controls on sales of organophosphorous sheep dips is carried out by the Royal Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain, and on their use by the Health and Safety Executive under the Control of Substances Hazardous to Health Regulations 1998.

Common Agricultural Policy

Dr. Strang: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will set out his reasons for excluding from the common agricultural policy review group a representative of consumer interests. [19615]

Mr. Waldegrave: In deciding upon whom to invite to become members of the CAP policy group, I chose people who would make their contributions according to their own individual ideas rather than as representatives of particular organisations or sectors. I am always concerned to have a consumer view on the CAP, and have already made this the main agenda item for my next meeting with consumer organisations on 13 June.

Artificial Insemination

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture Fisheries and Food what steps he is taking to encourage the use of separated sperm to reduce the number of surplus male calves; and if he will make a statement. [19817]

Mrs. Browning: Recent research has shown that the use of separated sperm is feasible but that at present it is not economic for the technique to be used for commercial insemination purposes.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Danny Aloysius Riley

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what reasons were given by the governor of Durham prison for not sending Danny Aloysius Riley to Wakefield magistrates court; and if he will make a statement; [17131]

(2) if he will investigate the circumstances in which his Department was unable to establish in which prison Danny Aloysius Riley was being held when he was due to appear at Wakefield magistrates court; [17135]

(3) on what grounds a prison governor can decline to send a prisoner awaiting trial to court; and if he will make a statement. [17134]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the director general of the Prison Service who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Mr. Derek Lewis to Mr. Martin Redmond, dated 24 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me to reply to your recent Question about the grounds on which a prison governor can decline to send a prisoner awaiting trial to court, the reasons given by the governor of Durham prison for not sending Danny Aloysius Riley to Wakefield Magistrates' Court and the circumstances in which the Department was unable to establish in which prison Danny Aloysius Riley was being held when he was due to appear at Wakefield Magistrates' Court. The prisoner you refer to is Danny Aloysius Reilly.

Where there is a warrant or court order addressed to the governor of a prison requiring him to produce a prisoner, such a warrant must be obeyed unless alternative arrangements have been made with the court. This is usually in cases where the prisoner is ill or, where there are serious difficulties in meeting the production date, perhaps because of distance or staff availability.

In the case to which you refer, a production order was received at Durham prison on 13 March 1995 to produce Mr. Reilly at Wakefield Magistrates' Court on 23 March. The governor considered that it would cause staffing difficulties with security implications at Durham prison to produce Mr. Reilly on that date. The matter was therefore discussed with the court on 17 March and the court agreed to reschedule the hearing for 20 April. Arrangements have been made to transfer Mr. Reilly to Leeds for production on that date.

The prisoner referred to was charged and convicted under the name of Reilly and his name is recorded as such on his prison records. On 23 March, Durham prison contacted with a query from the Yorkshire Post about a Mr. Aloysius Riley. A check was carried out using the spelling Riley. No Aloysius Riley could be found. As it was known that the prisoner being traced was serving a life sentence, it was suggested that enquiries be directed to Frankland prison, which as a dispersal prison, holds a large number of prisoners serving life sentences. Enquiries at Frankland proved fruitless and Durham prison was contacted again about half and hour later. This time the records were checked using the spelling Reilly and Mr. Danny Aloysius Reilly was identified.

There was no question of the Prison Service being unable to trace Mr. Reilly but rather a need to establish the full and correct name.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the number and location of Fire Service College, Forensic Science Service, United Kingdom Passport Agency and HM Prison Service offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the last five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19971]

Mr. Howard : None.

Subsistence Allowance

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19556]

Mr. Howard: Following is the available information about expenditure by my Department on subsistence allowances for travel:

£000

Note:

Information in respect of the Fire Service College is not available in the form requested.

Overtime and Sickness

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list for each agency and central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19683]

Mr. Howard: The available information on overtime, taken from the Home Office pay computer, is as follows:

| | Central Home Office | Prison Service | United Kingdom Passport Agency | Fire Service College | Forensic Science Service |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Number of hours of overtime for which payment has been made | | | | | |
| 1993–94 | 1,623,028 | 3,586,949 | 210,052 | 7,230 | 36,368 |
| 1994–95 | 1,548,521 | 3,820,594 | 180,843 | 9,726 | 19,736 |
| Total amount in paid overtime | | | | | |

| 1994–95 | 10,013,139 | 18,488,256 | 1,042,150 | 46,759 | 233,828 |

Information is not available for the financial year 1992–93. The overtime figures include all premia payments in respect of rostered weekend or rest day working, payments for additional hours worked and travel time. There may also be some overtime claims for 1994–95 still being processed.

The total number of working days lost through sickness in 1992 and 1993 in the Home Office, including its agencies, is as follows:

Data for 1994 are not yet available. Neither separate comparable information for the Home Office agencies, nor the monetary equivalent of the total number of days lost through sickness absence, is available.

Sentencing Policy

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effects of taking into account individual defendants' past behaviour on sentencing policy. [18748]

Mr. Maclean: A special exercise was undertaken to monitor the effects of the Criminal Justice Acts 1991 and 1993. It found that there was a rise in the proportionate use of custody for adult males at both magistrates and Crown courts—most noticeably for property offences—following the implementation of the provisions of the 1993 Act which, among other things, restored to courts their power to take account of the previous convictions of offenders and their responses to previous sentences. This rise was most significant for offenders sentenced for property offences who had between six and 20 previous convictions. The rise effectively restored the proportionate use of custody for these offenders to the level evident prior to the implementation of the 1991 Act. The exercise also suggested that for adult males sentenced at the Crown court there appeared to have been an increase in the length of sentences given to those sentenced for all types of offences where they had between six and 20 previous convictions.[1]

A comparison of the sentencing of a sample of offenders with and without previous convictions in 1991 taken from the offenders index is included in "Criminal Statistics England and Wales 1993". Information about offenders convicted in 1993 will be available later this year.

[1]Home Office Statistical Bulletin Issue 20/94 "Monitoring of the Criminal Justice Acts 1991 and 1993—Results from a Special Data Collection Exercise".

Cameras, Shoreham

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) video and (b) still cameras are currently used by the Sussex police; how many are specifically dedicated to the monitoring of protestors at Shoreham port; and what is the cost of this latter category as a proportion of the police force's overall cost on cameras. [19816]

Mr. Maclean: These are operational matters for the chief constable.

Law and Order Pack

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total production and distribution cost of the "Action Against Crime (Strategy on Law and Order)" pack; how many copies were produced; and to whom they were distributed. [20253]

Mr. Howard: The total production cost, including value added tax, was £12,168. Distribution cost to date is £346.

The primary purpose of the pack is to provide information for members of the public who inquire about law and order policies. Distribution costs will therefore be restricted to postage.

The print run included 2,000 packs, each containing printed sheets covering eight law and order subjects; 8,000 wallets; a stock of blank insert sheets. The latter will be used as stock for updating information as necessary.

A complete pack was sent to all Members representing constituencies in England and Wales.

Marchioness

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements were made for distribution of the transcript of the proceedings of the resumed inquest into the deaths of some of the passengers drowned in the Marchioness disaster, during its sittings between 13 March to 7 April; and if he will make arrangements for a transcript of the proceedings to be made available to those legally represented at the inquest, and a copy to be placed in the Library, and be available for public inspection at a convenient location in central London. [19776]

Mr. Nicholas Baker [holding answer 18 April 1995]: This is entirely a matter for the coroner who conducted the resumed inquest. Coroner's actions are governed by the Coroners Act 1988 and the Coroners Rules 1984 which require the coroner only to take notes of the evidence at the inquest and which contain no requirement to provide a transcript of the proceedings to any person.

TRANSPORT

Air Traffic Control

Sir Russell Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what has been the cost of air traffic control services in the highlands and islands area in each of the last three years for which figures are available.

Mr. Norris: The cost to Highlands and Islands Airports Ltd. of the provision of air traffic control staff both employed and contracted from Civil Aviation Authority, together with the cost of engineering and technical support to the company for the last three years was:

|---|---|---|---|
| 1. CAA Sumburgh | 480 | 529 | 499 |
| 2. Employed ATC | 590 | 732 | 768 |
| 3. Engineering | 437 | 455 | 397 |
| 4. Technical Support | 222 | 147 | 96 |

Driving Test Centre, Rhyl

Mr. Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many driving tests Mr. John Morris of the Driving Test Standards Agency stated were held annually at the Rhyl driving test centre at a meeting in Rhyl on 18 November 1994; [18924]

(2) how many representations have been received with regard to the closure of the Rhyl driving test centre (a) since 30 November 1994 and (b) in total. [18923]

Mr. Norris: These are operational matters for the Driving Standards Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Bernard L. Herdan to Mr. David Hanson, dated 18 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your questions about the Rhyl Driving Test Centre.

My letter to you of 7 February advised that some 25 individuals and organisations responded to our public consultation exercise which concluded on 30 November 1994. Since that date a further 13 responses have been received, including 2 petitions with 110 signatures.

John Morris, who attended the meeting with the local driving instructors on 18 November 1994 indicated as a rough guide that the maximum potential for tests at Rhyl, and its outstation at Llandudno, was 5760, i.e. 3 examiners conducting 40 tests per week for 48 weeks.

Gospel Oak to Barking Line

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what compensation will be available to passengers on the Gospel Oak to Barking line whose trains have been cancelled through delays caused by Railtrack or the train operator; and if he will give passengers parity with freight customers in respect of the imposition of penalties when trains are delayed. [18700]

Mr. Norris: Under British Rail's passengers charter, season ticket holders are entitled to a discount on renewal if average performance over the previous year has been below the advertised standard by more than a small margin. For non-season ticket holders, British Rail offers an ex-gratia system in response to all claims, and each is treated on its merits. In addition, North London Railways is currently offering ex-gratia compensation to season ticket holders affected by the severe disruption to Gospel Oak to Barking services on 27 and 28 March.

Any compensation from BR to freight customers is a contractual matter between BR and the individual customer.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains have been delayed for more than five minutes on the Gospel Oak to Barking line since 1 March. [18702]

Mr. Norris: During the period 5 March to 1 April, 108 trains have been delayed for more than five minutes on the Gospel Oak to Barking line.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what remedial works to bridges and other structures on the Gospel Oak to Barking line Railtrack has completed to permit the passage of trains with wagons of tare weight of 100 tonnes with 25 tonne axle loadings over the weight restricted section of railway between south Tottenham and Woodgrange park; and if he will make a statement on the safety implications of currently operating such trains over that section of railway. [18699]

Mr. Norris: I understand that after reassessment, Railtrack's engineers have concluded that it is safe to run freight trains on this line subject to some restrictions, such as limiting access to some bridges to one freight train at a time.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains have been cancelled on the Gospel Oak to Barking line since 1 March. [18701]

Mr. Norris: During the period 5 March to 1 April, 101 trains have been cancelled on Gospel Oak to Barking line.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if train services on the Gospel Oak to Barking line since 1 March meet his standards laid down under the passengers charter in respect of delays and cancellations. [18703]

Mr. Norris: Passengers charter performance standards are set by the British Railways Board and apply to route groups, not to individual lines. The Gospel Oak to Barking line is part of the North London lines route group. The latest BR performance figures for the period up to 3 March, show that north London lines are failing to meet both their punctuality and reliability standards.

Second Severn Crossing

Mr. Legg: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will consider the merits of the complete privatisation of free–standing or potentially free–standing projects, with special reference to the second Severn Valley bridge. [18843]

Mr. Watts: We are always willing to consider the scope for new projects to be taken forward entirely within the private sector. The second Severn crossing however is subject to both legislative and contractual arrangements which we do not intend to amend.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria are currently being used to purchase properties along the line of the channel tunnel rail link that are blighted but are outside the area defined in safeguarding directions; and if he will place all relevant information in the Library. [18692]

Mr. Watts: For residential owner-occupied property which is outside the safeguarded areas for the channel tunnel rail link, Union Railways is operating a discretionary purchase scheme. This applies, in particular, where the property is expected to be affected by operational noise above the proposed threshold for noise insulation regulations in cases of serious hardship. New guidelines for the operation of the scheme will be published following completion of the current review of discretionary purchase arrangements in the light of the Owen judgment and a copy of those guidelines will be placed in the Library.

Road Programme

Mr. Olner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the national road programme scheme milestones that were achieved in 1994–95 and the date they were achieved. [18663]

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will publish the national road programme summary of milestones for 1995–96. [19072]

Mr. Watts: The summary of milestones for 1995–96 will be contained in the Highways Agency's 1995–96 business plan to be published shortly.

Mr. Robert Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if the success of the Highways Agency is to be measured (a) against the original list of milestones or (b) against the revised list. [19073]

Mr. Watts: The success of the Highways Agency in achieving its milestone target in 1994–95 will be measured against the revised list published on 2 March.

Newbury Bypass

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many representations he has received since Christmas (a) in favour of and (b) against the building of the proposed Newbury bypass; and if he will make a statement on his proposals. [18088]

Mr. Watts: Between 19 December 1994 and 7 April 1995 we have received some 440 letters and 2,770 pre-printed postcards in favour of proceeding with the Newbury bypass. Most of these came from the local Newbury area. We have also received two petitions in favour of the bypass, containing a total of 10,700 signatures. During the same period we have received some 320 letters and 50 pre-printed postcards opposing the bypass. The majority of these came from outside the local area.

Road Accident Fatalities

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many days after a road accident fatalities are still counted as road deaths for his Department's statistics; what is the basis for this length of time; and what consideration his Department has given to extending it. [19535]

Mr. Norris: A fatality resulting from a road accident is defined as a road death if the death occurs within 30 days of the accident. This definition arose from the Convention of Road Traffic (Vienna 1968) and is adhered to by most European countries. My Department has no plans to extend this definition to a longer time period.

Dangerous Goods Advisers

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 21 March, Official Report, column 145, to the hon. Member for Harborough (Mr. Garnier), how member states voted on the draft directive on dangerous goods advisers at the Transport Council on 14 March. [19511]

Dr. Mawhinney: As reported in the previous answer, the United Kingdom voted against this proposal in the Council. I now understand that Sweden also voted against the draft directive and Luxembourg abstained. Other member states supported the proposal.

Advisers

Ms Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many advisers his Department employs broken down to show (a) political advisers and (b) economic advisers; at what grade and salary they are employed; and what are their minimum working hours in each case. [19414]

Mr. Norris: My Department employs one political adviser. His salary and conditions of work were negotiated in relation to his previous earnings and are confidential.

Economic advice is obtained from career civil servants who may be employed on a variety of working patterns. The following professional economists are employed in my Department:

| | Number | Salary range £ |
|---|---|---|
| Grade 4 | 1 | 47,043 to 56,953 |
| Grade 5 | 4 | 38,341 to 56,953 |
| Grade 6 | 6 | 29,482 to 48,879 |
| Grade 7 | 15 | 25,837 to 40,012 |
| Senior Economic Assistants | 5 | 13,144 to 24,139 |
| Economic Assistants | 4 | 13,144 to 24,139 |

Departmental Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990; [20173]

(2) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20174]

Mr. Norris: Publication of the annual transport report is a parliamentary requirement. A large number of staff contribute to the report, but no separate records are kept of the total staff time involved: a meaningful estimate could be made only at disproportionate cost.

Blood Alcohol Limit

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations his Department has received regarding the present blood alcohol limit in the last two years. [20009]

Mr. Norris: The Department regularly receives representations on this subject from individuals and organisations, the majority calling for a reduction in the present limit.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to reduce the blood alcohol limit. [20010]

Mr. Norris: None at present, but this is a matter we keep regularly under review.

North Circular Road

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what improvement to the A13 between the north circular road and Butcher row are currently being undertaken; at what cost; when will they begin; and when they will be completed. [20266]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Highways Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to my hon. Friend.

Letter from Lawrie Haynes to Mr. William Powell, dated 24 April 1995:

The Minister for Transport in London has asked me to write to you about your question in the House about improvement to the A13 between the North Circular Road and Butcher Row.

The following major improvement schemes are currently being undertaken in the National Trunk Roads Programme for that length of the A13:

| Scheme | Estimated cost £ million | Programme start | Completion |
|---|---|---|---|
| A117 Junction Improvement | 26.3 | Autumn 1997 | Autumn 1999 |
| A112 Prince Regent Lane Junction Improvement | 37.0 | Summer 1997 | Summer 1999 |
| Ironbridge—Canning Town Junction Improvement | 55.5 | Summer 1996 | Summer 1999 |
| Blackwall Tunnel/Cotton Street Junction Improvement | 11.9 | May 1994 | Spring 1996 |

For the schemes on which work has yet to commence the programmes are subject to the satisfactory completion of outstanding statutory procedures and the availability of funds.

In addition to the major schemes for this length of the A13 the Agency has in its 1995–96 programme of Regional Schemes a proposal to resurface the westbound carriage of the A13 between Noel Road and the North Circular Road and a small number of low-cost minor improvements.

Motorcycle Accidents

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) drivers and (b) motorcyclists were (i) killed or (ii) injured in road traffic accidents in each of the last 10 years. [20339]

Number of drivers and motorcyclists killed and injured in road accidents: GB 1984–93

Driving Tests

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many driving examiners were injured whilst conducting driving tests in each of the last five years; [20334]

(2) how many days were lost due to driving examiner sickness in each of the last five years; [20335]

(3) what was the pass rates for driving tests in each of the last 10 years: [20336]

(4) what was the driving test fee in each of the last 10 years; [20337]

5) how many candidates took driving tests for each of the last five years. [20338]

Mr. Norris: These are operational matters for the Driving Standards Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Bernard L. Herdan to Ms Joan Walley, dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to the Questions you raised on:-

a. the number of driving examiners injured whilst conducting driving tests in each of the last five years;
b. the number of days lost due to driving examiner sickness in each of the last five years;
c. the pass rates for driving tests in each of the last 10 years;
d. the driving test fee in each of the last 10 years; and
e. the number of candidates who took driving tests for each of the last five years.

The information for the first two questions is as follows:

| Calendar year | Number of examiners injured | Numbers of days lost due to examiner sickness |
|---|---|---|
| 1990 | 271 | 16,869 |
| 1991 | 262 | 16,338 |
| 1992 | 281 | 17,749 |
| 1993 | 277 | 25,891 |
| 1994 | 308 | 29,965 |

The information for car tests for the next three questions is as follows:

| Financial years | Pass rate percentage | Car test fees £ | Number of applications received |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1985–86 | 48.5 | 14.40 | — |
| 1986–87 | 49.2 | 14.40 | — |
| 1987–88 | 50.0 | 15.00 | — |
| 1988–89 | 52.0 | 16.50 | — |
| 1989–90 | 52.2 | 18.00 | — |
| 1990–91 | 52.4 | 19.50 | 1,905,412 |
| 1991–92 | 50.8 | 21.50 | 1,774,938 |
| 1992–93 | 49.8 | 23.50 | 1,602,778 |
| 1993–94 | 47.9 | 26.00 | 1,578,232 |
| 1994–95 | — | 27.50 | 1,536,630 |

The pass rate information for the whole of 1994–95 is not yet available but for the first 9 months it was 47.2 per cent. We do not collate data on the number of candidates applying for a test, only on the volume of applications. Clearly many candidates apply more than once in the course of a year.

Road Building

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his answer of 14 February, Official Report, column 560, what estimates are available from the regional aggregate working parties of the tonnage or road stone required for the next 10 years of road building. [17873]

Mr. Watts [holding answer 5 April 1995]: None.

DEFENCE

Armament Sales (Nigeria)

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what make of armaments the Government have sold to the Government of Nigeria since June 1993. [20324]

Mr. Freeman: None.

Makhzoami Brothers

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those occasions on which the right hon. Member for Thanet, South (Mr. Aitken) had meetings with the Makhzoumi brothers or their representatives while a Minister in his Department, (a) in property owned or occupied by the Ministry of Defence and (b) elsewhere. [20325]

Mr. Freeman: Our records show that the right hon. Member for Thanet, South, while he was Minister for Defence Procurement, met Mr. Fouad Makhzoumi on 25 February 1993 at a dinner held at the Dorchester hotel in honour of the Lebanese Minister of Information; on 20 October 1993 in the Ministry of Defence, main building,Whitehall; and on the 17 November 1993 when he briefly joined a dinner party at the Dorchester hotel given in honour of the Lebanese chief of the naval staff. Officials were present on all these occasions.

Other meetings with the Makhazoumi brothers or their representatives, not on MOD business, held outside property owned or occupied by the Ministry of Defence and without civil servants, are a matter for the right hon. Member for Thanet, South.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which contracts notified to his Department, for the export of military or security-related equipment from Britain to the Lebanon, the Makhzoumi brothers have been involved as principals or intermediaries, since 1 January 1992. [20326]

Mr. Freeman: My Department has no record of export contracts for licensable military or security equipment with the Makhzoumi brothers or any of their companies. It is for companies to decide on whether and whom to employ as advisers or intermediaries.

Arms Sales

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what discussions have taken place since 1 January 1992 between (a) Alvis and (b) Racal and his Department concerning the export of security-related equipment from Britain to the Lebanon; and if he will make a statement. [20327]

Mr. Freeman: As part of their normal duties of promoting the sale of British defence equipment, officials from the Defence Export Services Organisation have had numerous discussions with Alvis, Racal and a number of other companies about the prospects for the sale of defence equipment to Lebanon.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the role of Future Management Services in the promotion of arms sales to the middle east; and if he will make a statement. [20328]

Mr. Freeman: Future Management Services has discussed export prospects to the middle east for UK companies with DESO officials on a number of occasions.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates between April 1992 and July 1994 Ministers in his Department met Mr. Fouad Makhzoumi to discuss arms sales; which Ministers were involved; and if civil servants were present during such meetings. [20486]

Mr. Freeman: My right hon. Friend the Member for Thanet, South met Mr. Makhzoumi on several occasions between April 1992 and July 1994 to discuss the prospects for the sale of defence equipment to Lebanon and I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Cunninghame, North (Mr. Wilson).

There are no records of meetings between other Ministry of Defence Ministers and Mr. Makhzoumi between April 1992 and July 1994.

Asturion Foundation

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he authorised the receipt of hospitality from the Asturion Foundation by the right hon. Member for Thanet, South (Mr. Aitken); and if he will make a statement; [20329]

(2) what information his Department has on the work of the Asturion Foundation. [20330]

Mr. Freeman: The MOD has no information about the Asturion Foundation.

Old Sarum Airfield

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the purchaser of Old Sarum airfield will be required to maintain on the property an operational airfield for civilian and military use. [20368]

Mr. Freeman: The terms of the 999-year lease of the airfield have been carried forward into the terms of the current sale. Neither the lease nor the sale terms carry an obligation for the maintenance of an airfield for civilian and military use, although my Department retains in the lease and sale documents the right to land military helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft on no more than 150 occasions per year, and has been exercising that right. Any change of use by the purchaser of the property would be subject to the usual planning laws in the ordinary way.

Defence Evaluation and Research Agency

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which official or officials within the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency are responsible for marketing test ranges and the capabilities of the work force on each range. [20521]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Nick Ainger, dated 24 April 1995:

In today's written answer the Minister of State for Defence Procurement informed you that I would be replying to your question (No 20521) about which official or officials within the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency are responsible for marketing test ranges and the capabilities of the workforce on each range.

Within DERA, the test ranges are managed by the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO), one of the four constituent divisions of the Agency. Marketing of DTEO and its capabilities is the responsibility of the Managing Director and his management team.

I hope that this information is helpful.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which officials of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency have the responsibility for allocating tests and trials between ranges for customers within ranges. [20523]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Nick Ainger, dated 24 April 1995:

In today's written answer the Minister of State for Defence Procurement informed you that I would be replying to your question

(No 20523) about which officials of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency have the responsibility for allocating tests and trials between ranges for customers within ranges.

Within DERA, the test ranges are managed by the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO), one of the four constituent divisions of the Agency. Trials are offered to the customer at the range with the ability to perform the trial. Where more than one range can conduct the trial there is normally a site which specialises in this kind of trial and this would generally be the one offered. The decision on which site to use is taken by the customer, not DTEO, on a value for money basis.

I hope that this information is helpful.

Sea Dumping (Munitions)

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will list the position of the sites of current and disused sea dumping grounds for (a) explosives and (b) chemical weapons; [20525]

(2) if he will list the tonnage and type of (a) explosive and (b) chemical weapons which have been dumped at sea since 1965 in each of the current and disused dumping grounds. [20524]

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 31 March to the hon. Member for South Shields (Dr. Clark) Official Report, column 875.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times a customer's preference for a particular range has not been agreed to by officials of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. [20526]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Nick Ainger, dated 24 April 1995:

In today's written answer the Minister of State for Defence Procurement informed you that I would be replying to your (No. 20526) about how many times a customer's preference for a particular range has not been agreed to by the officials of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency.

I am aware of no such cases. In any event, DTEO, like the rest of the Agency, is dependent upon customers to pay for its services. If a customer is unhappy with the service offered, the decision rests with the customer as to whether to proceed.

I hope that this information is helpful.

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which officials within the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency allocate projects to ranges when a customer has expressed a preference for a particular range to carry out trials and tests. [20522]

Mr. Freeman: This is a matter for the chief executive of the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency. I have therefore asked him to reply.

Letter from John Chisholm to Mr. Nick Ainger, dated 24 April 1995:

In today's written answer the Minister of State for Defence procurement informed you that I would be replying to your question (No 20522) about which officials within the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency allocate projects to ranges when a customer has expressed a preference for a particular range to carry out trials and tests.

Within DERA, the test ranges are managed by the Defence Test and Evaluation Organisation (DTEO), one of the four constituent divisions of the Agency. Where a customer has expressed a preference for a particular range this is taken into account by the assignment manager responsible for the particular customer's programme. If the proposed location is not suitable the customer would be appraised of this. If the customer's trial is one for which more than one range is suitable he would be made aware of any additional costs associated with performing the trial at any alternative site. Since DTEO is part of an Agency its trading status ensures it places great emphasis upon customers' preferences.

I hope that this information is helpful.

Queen Elizabeth Military Hospital

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will make a statement on the matters raised by the hon. Member for Woolwich in his letter of 19 April concerning civilian staff at Queen Elizabeth military hospital, Woolwich; [20531]

(2) what representations his Department has received from civilian staff at Queen Elizabeth military hospital, Woolwich, about their future; and what was the response. [20530]

Mr. Freeman: My noble friend the Under Secretary of State for Defence will write to the hon. Member shortly answering fully the points raised in his letters.

Royal Arsenal, Woolwich

Mr. Austin-Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the most recent position regarding the future of the site of the former Royal Arsenal, Woolwich. [20532]

Mr. Freeman: The future of the site at the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich is the subject of detailed negotiations between my Department and the Urban Regeneration Agency and English Partnerships. The east site is still occupied by the Defence Research Agency, who will vacate the site this summer. Disposal options are being discussed with the local planning authority, the London borough of Greenwich.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19654]

Sir John Wheeler: The information is not fully available in the Northern Ireland Office or in all the Northern Ireland Departments in the form requested. However, the information available is as listed.

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. ### Job Losses

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many jobs have been lost with the final run-down of the towns' gas industry in Northern Ireland; and how many of these will be replaced by jobs in the natural gas industry in Northern Ireland. [19867]

Mr. Ancram: At 31 March 1985, the gas undertakings in Northern Ireland employed some 980 staff and the last undertaking closed in May 1993. It is too early to estimate the number of jobs that could be provided by a natural gas industry.

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many jobs were lost after disbanding the Northern Ireland Housing Executive's direct labour organisation; and how many of those made redundant secured employment in the private sector in the same field of work. [19872]

Mr. Moss: This is a matter for the Northern Ireland Housing Executive. I understand from the chief executive that its direct labour organisation was not disbanded; it was, however, scaled down from 749 employees, permanent and temporary, in January 1993 to its current complement of 127 employees. Details of how many staff subsequently took up employment in the private sector are not available.

Natural Gas Industry

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if proposals have been completed by the Department of Economic Development for regulations to govern the natural gas industry in Northern Ireland. [19866]

Mr. Ancram: It is planned to publish a proposal for a draft gas order to facilitate the development and regulation of a natural gas industry in Northern Ireland by early summer of this year.

Footpath Resurfacing

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Department of the Environment in Northern Ireland has been able to fulfil its aims to resurface 22 km of urban footpaths every year. [19868]

Mr. Moss: The Department aims to resurface 220 km of urban footpath each year and over the past three years this has been achieved.

Arts Councils

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals the Arts Council of Northern Ireland has to increase arts contacts with (a) Scotland (b) the Republic of Ireland; and if he will make a statement about the present policy of the Arts Council towards the promotion of co-operation with similar bodies within the United Kingdom. [19757]

Mr. Ancram: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 10 January 1995, Official Report, column 11.

The Arts Council of Northern Ireland has no specific plans to increase arts contacts with Scotland and the Republic of Ireland.

Magpies and Crows

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the threat to sheep and lambs by magpies and grey-backed crows; what proposals he has to reduce the presence of magpies and grey-backed crows; and if he will make a statement. [19755]

Mr. Moss: Information is not available on the threat posed to sheep and lambs by magpies and grey-backed, or hooded crows.

There are no proposals to reduce the presence of magpies and grey-backed crows; existing controls under the wildlife legislation are considered to be adequate.

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what change has occurred (a) in the population of magpies and grey-backed crows and (b) in the number of attacks on young lambs by magpies and grey-backed crows in the last five years; what is the impact of the species on song bird populations; what proposals he has to control numbers of magpies and grey-backed crows; and if he will make a statement. [19920]

Mr. Moss: Specific information in relation to Northern Ireland for the past five years is not available. Overall UK figures for 1992–93 indicate an increase in the populations of magpies and crows as follows:

| Species | Population size in Northern Ireland 1993 | Annual rate of change in Northern Ireland 1992–93 (per cent.) | Annual rate of change in UK 1992–93 (per cent.) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Crow | 49,500 | n/a | +4.7 |
| Magpie | 58,900 | +2.3 | +2.5 |

n/a = not available.

Information is not available on the number of attacks on young lambs by magpies and grey-backed, or hooded, crows in the last five years.

Recent research in England and Wales has shown that there is no correlation between the number of magpies and the breeding success of song birds. No similar research has been carried out in Northern Ireland, but population densities of magpies and song birds are similar and there is no reason to believe that the situation is different from that in Great Britain.

There are no proposals to reduce the presence of magpies and grey-backed crows; existing controls under the wildlife legislation are considered to be adequate.

Green Economy Working Group

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the names of the industrialists and environmentalists which make up the working group set up to advise the Government on environmental issues in business and industry in Northern Ireland under the initiative of the Department of Economic Development in Northern Ireland, "Growing a Green Economy", launched in March 1993; and what initiatives it has recommended to the Government since the establishment of the group. [19861]

Mr. Ancram: The names of the members of the green economy working group and their recommendations to Government and industry are included in the working group's report, which was published on 1 December 1994 and copies of which are available in the Library.

European Aid Conference

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons were invited to the conference in Newcastle on Wednesday 29 March about the Delors package of European aid for Northern Ireland; how many were invited in their capacity as local government elected members; how many hon. Members were invited; and if he will make a statement. [19758]

Sir John Wheeler: A total of 248 invitations were issued for the conference in Newcastle on 29 March on the Delors package of European aid for Northern Ireland, 52 of which were sent to the chief executives of district councils. Councils were free to use these places as they wished for local government elected members or officials with functional responsibility. Members of Parliament were not invited because the purpose of the conference was to give local people on the ground the opportunity to make their views known. The decision to focus the conference in this way took account of the fact that elected representatives have the opportunity to meet Ministers to discuss matters such as the Delors package of European aid.

Homelessness

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the number of homeless people in Northern Ireland. [19871]

Mr. Moss: It is not possible to estimate the number of people who are homeless in Northern Ireland. I am advised by the chief executive of the Northern Ireland Housing Executive, however, that at 31 March 1995 the number of households living in temporary accommodation secured for them under the homeless provisions of the Housing (Northern Ireland) Order 1988 was 1,747.

Balmoral Avenue—Malone Road Junction

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the cost, so far, for the road scheme at Balmoral avenue-Malone road junction. [19744]

Mr. Moss: In-house staff costs incurred to date are not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Other costs incurred to date relate to the public inquiry into the scheme and amount to approximately £23,000.

Fisheries

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what consideration the Government have given to allocation in any potential extra funding following the recent ceasefire to the fishing industry. [19922]

Mr. Ancram: Such funding could be available under the European Union's proposed "Special Support Programme for Peace and Reconciliation in Northern Ireland". However, that programme has yet to be fully negotiated with the EU in conjunction with the Republic of Ireland. It is too early to predict who exactly the beneficiaries will be.

TREASURY

Child Benefit

Mr. Wicks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue raised from taxing child benefit where either parent is a higher rate taxpayer and the administrative cost of doing this. [19698]

Sir George Young: The Government are committed to maintaining child benefit, which recognises that all families with children face additional costs.

Now that husbands and wives are taxed independently, it would be administratively complex to tax child benefit in a way which fairly reflected family circumstances.

However, were child benefit to be taxed, the yield for 1995–96 from taxing it at the higher rate for lone parents who are higher rate taxpayers, and for married couples where either the husband or wife is a higher rate taxpayer, would be about £320 million.

The cost of administration would depend on the method used to collect the tax.

Whitehall Buildings

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish detailed plans for the sale or lease of part of the Treasury's Whitehall buildings including full calculations of the economic justification of such plans or decisions. [19892]

Mr. Nelson: In his speech to the private finance panel conference on 24 January, my right hon. and learned Friend announced that the redevelopment of the Treasury building in Great George street will be taken forward under the private finance initiative. The process to define our requirement and conduct the competition to find a consortium to take the project forward is continuing. My right hon. and learned Friend will consider what information can be published at the appropriate time.

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer will submit to Parliament for its approval or rejection any plans to sell or lease part of the Treasury's Whitehall buildings; and, under what other auspices such a transaction might be concluded. [19893]

Mr. Nelson: It has not yet been decided exactly how the redevelopment of the Parliament street building will be taken forward. When the decision is taken, Ministers will consider how the House should be informed.

Public Sector Construction

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of the Secretary of State for the Environment of 4 April, Official Report, column 1052, what view his Department has put to the working groups as to the desirability of a single exclusive register for public sector work. [20209]

Mr. Nelson: HM Treasury has expressed no view to the working groups on the desirability of a single register for public sector construction work. It is awaiting the outcome of the study by Capita Management Consultancy Ltd. before reaching conclusions. It has, however, indicated to the working groups that it doubts whether excluding certain companies from bidding for public sector work merely because they were not on a register could be justified on value-for-money grounds.

Value Added Tax

Dr. Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to resist any proposals for the European Commission to prevent member states from continuing to exempt those goods and services which are currently zero-rated for VAT when the transitional period agreed under the sixth VAT directive expires. [20388]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The Government have consistently made it clear that, as a condition of any move to a definitive system for VAT within the European Community, provision must be made for the UK to continue to apply those zero rates which are in force at the time any new system is introduced.

Valuation Office

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what targets will be set for the Valuation Office executive agency for the year 1995–96. [21194]

Mr. Nelson: I have set the following key targets for the agency in 1995–96:

| | Key Targets |
|---|---|
| Operational targets | |
| Council tax | to clear 240,000 appeals against the council tax valuation lists |
| Non-domestic | to clear 330,000 appeals in aggregate against the 1990 and the 1995 rating lists |
| Direct taxes | to undertake 70,000 valuation cases for the Inland Revenue for capital gains and inheritance tax purposes |
| Financial performance and cost efficiency | to ensure the agency's net operating cost before cost of statutory non-chargeable work is at least fully covered by receipts |
| | to break even from year to year within each business segment, after charging for the full cost of chargeable services including notional interest of 6 per cent. on the average working capital |
| | to achieve efficiency savings of 6 per cent. on the agency gross expenditure |
| Quality of Service | to reply to 100 per cent. of correspondence within 35 days of receipt |
| | to achieve specified time limits in 96 per cent. of cases undertaken |
| | to achieve a specified valuation quality standard in 84 per cent. of cases carried out |

Further details are set out in the agency's business plan for 1995–96, copies of which will be placed in the Library of the House on publication.

Central Statistical Office

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 19 January, Official Report, columns 594-95, whether he and his right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health have decided whether the Central Statistical Office and the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys should be merged. [21274]

Mr. Kenneth Clarke: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and I have concluded that there would be benefits from such a merger. Subject to the views of other interested parties, we propose that on 1 April 1996 the two organisations should merge to form a new next steps agency which would be accountable to me.

I am placing in the Library a document setting out the functions and responsibilities of the proposed new agency and the benefits which we believe would arise from the merger. Copies of this document will shortly be sent to those known to have a close interest in the work of the two organisations, with an invitation to make any comments on the proposals within three months.

A decision on the proposed merger will be announced as soon as possible after that.

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what has been the outcome of the review of the agency status for the Central Statistical Office. [21226]

Mr. Nelson: I announced on 18 November 1994, Official Report, column 12, that a review of the agency status of the Central Statistical Office was being undertaken by a small team representing a cross-section of interest in the CSO and its statistics. Since then, the performance of the CSO has been evaluated and CSO activities have been subjected to the prior options tests set out in "Next Steps Review", Cm 2430. A wide-ranging consultation exercise has been carried out and the views received have been incorporated in the team's report. The team recommended that the CSO remain an agency and the Government have accepted this recommendation. A copy of the review team's report is being placed in the Library. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has announced today that the Government propose that, subject to the views of other interested parties, the CSO should merge with the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys from 1 April 1996. We therefore propose to take forward the outcome of the CSO agency review in that context.

Official Statistics

Mr. Straw: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what guidance is given by the Head of the Government Statistical Service as to the maximum advance notice to be given to Ministers of the publication of regular statistical series; [18897]

(2) what advance notice Ministers are given of the publication of the main monthly economic statistical series. [18896]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 18 April 1995]: The practice followed by the Central Statistical Office is set out in the open government White Paper, Cm 2290, and was announced previously by the then Chancellor of the Exchequer. The code of practice for official statistics, a copy of which is in the Library, was released earlier this month by the Head of the Government Statistical Service.

Data are made available to all users at the same time, although Ministers, officials and the Governor of the Bank of England may receive copies of key statistical information at 5 pm two working days before publication on a strict need-to-know basis.

In the case of the retail prices index, although the main release of the RPI does conform to standard release practices, Treasury Ministers, named officials and the Governor of the Bank of England receive an early unpublished projection about a week in advance of the first release.

African Development Bank

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he has a vote in the election for the presidency of the African development bank; and which candidate he supports. [19916]

Mr. Baldry: I have been asked to reply.

The president of the African development bank is elected by a majority of the total voting power of its members, including a majority of the voting power of regional members. We are giving careful consideration to the five candidates nominated for the post.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Child Care Facilities

Mr. Corbyn: To ask the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed, as representing the House of Commons Commission (1) what child care facilities are currently available in the House of Commons;

(2) what studies he has undertaken of child care facilities in other Parliament buildings; and what conclusions he has drawn from this;

(3) what is his estimate of the number of pre-school child care places needed in the Palace of Westminster by (a) staff and (b) hon. Members; and what surveys have been done to determine likely need.

Mr. Beith [holding answer 24 April 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to the debate on child care facilities held on 12 January, Official Report, columns 323–45, and to the report on potential demand for child care facilities published by the House of Commons Commission in July 1994. Following the debate, the commission considered its policy on child care facilities and decided to implement a child care voucher scheme for staff of the House of Commons Service under arrangements set out in my reply to the hon. Member for Christchurch (Mrs. Maddock) on 2 March 1995, Official Report, column 637. No studies of child care facilities in other Parliament buildings have been undertaken.

Staff of the House have now been circulated with details of the voucher scheme, which will operate with effect from 1 April 1995.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the number and location of Chessington Computer Centre, Civil Service College, HMSO, Occupational Health Service, Recruitment and Assessment Services Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19966]

Mr. Horam: Of the agencies listed, only HMSO and the Occupational Health and Safety Agency have had offices in Scotland during the last five years. As the question concerns operational matters, I have asked the chief executives of HMSO and OHSA to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Letter from Paul Freeman to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 21 April 1995:

I have been asked to reply, in respect of HMSO, to your question tabled on 18 April (No. 196) regarding offices opened and closed and the numbers of jobs lost from and gained in Scotland.

HMSO Scotland trades in a dynamic environment and provides a wide range of services to Scottish public sector customers from its South Gyle, Edinburgh, headquarters. The picture over the past five years shows a net gain of 13 jobs. The detail is as follows:

| | Posts | Work transferred |
|---|---|---|
| Jobs lost | | |
| Bookshop Assistant | 1 | Standing orders for HMSO Books and the supply of non-Scottish titles to HMSO Agents transferred to our Publications Centre in London to obviate double-handling and service delays. |
| Jobs gained | | |
| Accountant and Assistant | 2 | Responsibilities devolved from Norwich HQ to increase local control of business operational decisions. |
| Debt Management Staff | 2 | |
| Information Systems Bureau Staff | 5 | |
| Customers Services Staff | 5 | North of England office supplies order processing: closer proximity to customers. |
| | 14 | |

No offices were opened or closed as a result of these changes, but three existing premises ie warehouse, printing press and offices were replaced by the new HQ building at South Gyle in 1993.

Letter from J. L. Gordon to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 24 April 1995:

I have been asked to reply to your question on behalf of Dr. McCloy, Chief Executive of the Agency, who is on sick leave.

Since the Agency moved its Headquarters function from London to Edinburgh in 1989, to join the existing Regional Office, there have been no further moves into or out of Scotland.

Prior to 1980, six (6) staff were based in Scotland, and the relocation of the Headquarters unit brought an additional nineteen (19) posts. Although OHSA is a relatively small agency the intervening period has seen a modest increase, including senior posts, and the number of staff now based in Edinburgh is thirty-one (31) with a further medical officer due to take up post later this year. There is one post located in Glasgow.

"Official Report"

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the institutions which subscribed to the Official Report in the 1978–79 Session and in the 1993–94 Session; and what were the prices of annual subscriptions in 1978–79 and 1993–94 in cash terms and at constant prices. [20016]

Mr. Horam: HMSO does not keep lists of subscribers to the Official Report other than for current dispatches. Details for 1978–79 and 1993–94 cannot therefore be provided.

The price of the annual subscription to the daily Official Report in 1978–79 was £93 and in 1993–94 £1,275. The sum of £93 is equivalent to just over £265 in 1993–94 prices. The subsidy needed in 1978–79 to maintain Hansard at this artificially low price was £2.4 million, equivalent to over £6.8 million in 1993–94. The actual subsidy in 1993–94 was nil.

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what profit or loss was made from producing and publishing the Official Report in 1978–79 and in 1993–94. [20017]

Mr. Horam: In 1978–79, the subsidy voted to reimburse HMSO for losses arising from the sale of the Official Report of both Houses at less than the costs of production and distribution stood at £2.4 million. This subsidy was systematically eliminated between 1983—when it had reached £6 million—and 1991, by a combination of productivity improvements and price increases.

The financial position in 1993–94 was distorted by significant investments in new technology and redundancy payments, following HMSO's successful in-house bids for two Hansard market tests; as a result, there is now the prospect that a profit may be made on Hansard for the first time ever next year.

Market Testing

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidelines he has issued with respect to in-house bids in market-testing exercises and the circumstances in which there should not be in-house bids in such exercises. [20867]

Mr. Horam: Guidance on in-house bids is set out in the "Government's Guide to Market Testing", a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. Examples of the circumstances in which in-house bids might not be considered are set out in the White Paper "Taking forward Continuity and Change", Cm 2748. They include occasions when a Department judges that the private sector is clearly better equipped to deliver a specific service, has a better understanding of market needs or has a capacity to invest in new technology or where an activity is relatively small and peripheral to a department's functions. It is, however, for individual Departments to decide in each case whether or not to consider an in-house bid.

Departmental Reports

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list for each annual departmental report, the estimated cost of printing and publishing last year the total sales to (a) the Department and (b) other buyers; and if HMSO covered its costs. [20187]

Mr Horam: Sales to the author Department and to other buyers for each 1994 departmental report are as follows:

The printing costs result from competitive tendering undertaken by HMSO and are therefore commercially confidential. Printing and publishing costs were borne by HMSO, which aims to recover these from the sales revenue.

Research Council

Ms Quin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the ways in which his Department disseminates information from EU Research Council meetings to potential beneficiaries in British industry. [20242]

Mr. Horam: My Department, the Department of Trade and Industry and other Departments concerned inform British companies about the opportunities available under the framework of EU research programmes agreed by the Research Council, principally by means of publications, supported by a programme of information days and seminars.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20493]

Mr. Horam: The executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the Office of Public Service and Science are as follows:

Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council
The Council for the Central Laboratory of the Research Councils
Economic and Social Research Council
Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council
Medical Research Council
Natural Environment Research Council
Particle Physics and Astronomy Research Council.

The research councils are responsible to my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Each council is required under the terms of the Science and Technology Act 1965 to publish an annual report and annual accounts. None of the councils is required to publish minutes or agendas of council meetings or registers of its members' interests.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20652]

Mr. Horam: The executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the Office of Public Service and Science are as follows:

Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council
Council for the Central Laboratory of the Research Councils
Economic and Social Research Council
Medical Research Council
Natural Environment Research Council
Particle Physics and Astronomy Research Council

The research councils are responsible to my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

(a) The councils are subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner;

(b) the councils are not subject to scrutiny by the Audit Commission;

(c) the councils are subject to scrutiny by the National Audit Office;

(d) there are no statutory provisions, but the code of practice on open government applies to all councils; each council is required, under the terms of the Science and Technology Act 1965, to publish an annual report and annual accounts.

(e) the councils publish performance indicators in their annual corporate plans;

(f) the councils are encouraged to adopt charter principles.

HEALTH

Prescriptions

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what provision the national health service makes for patients awaiting organ transplants requiring multiple prescriptions who are disqualified from free prescriptions because they are above income support levels, what plans she has to revise the specified conditions list to make patients awaiting organ transplants exempt from prescription charges either totally or above a specified level; and if she will make a statement; [19038]

(2) when the last review of the specified conditions list was carried out; on what date changes resulting from this review were implemented; how the review and its implementation impacted on those awaiting organ transplants; how the review and its implementation impacted upon those whose medical condition precludes the reasonable prospect of an organ transplant; and if she will make a statement. [19036]

Mr. Malone: Patients awaiting organ transplants who are not otherwise exempt or entitled to charge remission may qualify for free prescriptions if they have any one of the specified medical conditions, including a permanent fistula requiring continuous surgical dressing or an appliance, and hold an exemption certificate issued by a family health services authority. The specified medical conditions were last reviewed in 1993 as part of the fundamental review of health expenditure and we have no plans for change. Prescription prepayment certificates continue to offer real savings for anyone not entitled to free prescriptions who needs frequent or extensive medication. Coupled with the wide-ranging arrangements for charge exemption and remission, they ensure that no one need be deterred from obtaining necessary prescribed medication for financial reasons.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the total amount paid by her central Department and each agency for which she is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19555]

Mr. Sackville: The amounts paid by the Department and its agencies in subsistence allowances for travel in the United Kingdom and outside for 1992–93 to 1994–95 were as follows:

£000s

| | 1992–93 | | 1993–94 | | 1994–95 | |

| Agencies | | | | | | |
| NHS Estates[2] | 148 | 3 | 260 | — | 221 | 28 |
| Medicines ControlAgency[2] | 78 | 158 | 85 | 252 | 92 | 173 |
| NHS Pensions Agency | 12 | — | 26 | — | 23 | — |
| Medical Devices Agency[3] | — | — | — | — | 21 | — |

Notes:

[1] This figure includes the cost of foreign travel as well as subsistence as these were not separately identified in 1992–93.

[2] The figures for NHS Estates and the Medicines Control Agency include the cost of travel as well as subsistence as these are not separately identified.

[3] The Medical Devices Agency was established on 27 September 1994. The figures for 1994–95 reported for the agency were for 27 September 1994 to 31 March 1995 only. Prior to this, its figures were included in those for the central Department.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will give the number and location of Medicines Control Agency, NHS Estates and NHS Pensions Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if she will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20302]

Mr. Sackville: None.

Asbestos-related Diseases

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her answer of 31 March, Official Report, column 816, what representations have been made to her about the difficulties experienced by sufferers from asbestos-related diseases in obtaining such diagnosis as an explanation of their health problems. [19927]

Mr. Sackville: We have received no such representations.

Private Finance Initiatives

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what response her Department has received to health service schemes under the private finance initiative. [19962]

Mr. Sackville: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the right hon. Member for Derby, South (Mrs. Beckett) on 21 April, Official Report, columns 312–13.

Confidentiality

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish a further paper concerning the confidentiality of health information; and if she will make a statement. [20040]

Mr. Sackville: Draft Guidance, "Confidentiality, Use and Disclosure of Personal Health Information", was issued for consultation in August 1994. The consultation period closed on 9 December. We are considering the many responses received and will be making any appropriate revisions to the guidance in due course.

Hospital Matrons

Mr. Critchley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will re-establish the position of matron in NHS hospitals. [19902]

Mr. Sackville: The exact titles and responsibilities of senior nurses are for local decision. The title of matron may be used if appropriate. Every national health service trust is required to have a senior nurse as an executive director.

Health Authority Allocations

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what 1995–96 cash allocation has been made to each district health authority, including fundholding GP practices within the authority's area for hospital and community health services. [20022]

Mr. Sackville: The 1995–96 recurrent allocations for resident population to district health authorities for hospital and community health services will be placed in the Library.

Hepatitis C

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information her Department has on the number of people in England and Wales affected by hepatitis C as a result of contaminated blood prior to the introduction of screening in 1991. [20284]

Mr. Sackville: This information is not available centrally.

Food Safety

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what progress has been made by her Department's working group into research regarding the bacteria strain in beef which has caused deaths; [20462]

(2) if she will list the members of the committee that was set up to investigate health hazards in respect of bacterium, E coli 0157; what are the members' qualifications; when the report will be published; and if she will make a statement. [20727]

Mr. Sackville: The report of the Advisory Committee on the Microbiological Safety of Food on verocytotoxin-producing Escherichia coli—VTEC—will be published shortly with the Government's response to its recommendations. Details of the membership of the ACMSF and its working group on VTEC are contained in the ACMSF's annual report 1993, copies of which are in the Library.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations she has received from doctors about the bacteria strain linked to beef responsible for deaths; and what trends there have been in the number of deaths caused. [20461]

Mr. Sackville: We have received no such representations. Information on deaths associated with verocytotoxin-producing Escherichia coli is not available centrally. However, available evidence does not suggest a change in the mortality associated with infection.

Clinical Grading Appeals

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what circumstances interest is payable on back pay arising from clinical grading appeals which are upheld. [20618]

Mr. Malone: Retrospective payments to national health service staff do not attract interest.

NHS Trusts

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will require all NHS trusts to display on the exterior hospital name boards the names and home telephone numbers of the chairman and chief executive. [20692]

Mr. Malone: The provision of the names and office telephone numbers of board members and senior officers of national health service trusts is detailed as an example of good practice in the new code of openness in the NHS published in April.

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many national health service trusts have (a) completed contracts with purchasers for the year 1995–96 and (b) not yet completed contracts for 1995–96; and how many in the latter category are in the process of arbitration. [19880]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Pension Scheme

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take action to ensure that the fee obtained by the Paymaster General for sending private pension correspondence to NHS pensioners is paid into the NHS benevolent fund. [20677]

Mr. Sackville: No.

Bristol Royal Infirmary

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice was given by her Department to the Bristol royal infirmary on the future programme of paediatric cardiac surgery for (a) switch, (b) atrial ventricular canal, (c) ventricular septal defects and (d) tetralogy of fallow. [20508]

Mr. Sackville: A protocol covering the future performance of all complex paediatric cardiac surgery in United Bristol Healthcare trust hospitals has been agreed jointly between my Department, the Director of Public Health Medicine for the south and west region, South and West regional health authority and the UBHT pending the arrival of the newly appointed paediatric cardiac surgeon.

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps her Department has taken to continue to monitor the success rate of paediatric cardiac surgery at the Bristol royal infirmary; and what steps she has taken to satisfy herself that the procedures are carried out correctly. [20510]

Mr. Sackville: Monitoring the results of treatment is an integral part of clinical audit and as such is the responsibility of health professionals. Audit methodology is continually improving, but there are at present no agreed national standards for paediatric cardiac surgery. Improved audit arrangements for paediatric cardiac surgery are being agreed between the United Bristol Healthcare trusts and Avon Health. In addition, my Department has just provided funding for a pilot project to assess the feasibility of establishing a national central cardiac audit database to enable cardiac surgeons and cardiologists to monitor the outcome of all cardiac interventions against agreed standards.

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action her Department recommended following the visit by Stewart Hunter, Sir Keith Ross, Sir Terence English and David Hamilton in 1992 to investigate the Bristol royal infirmary's paediatric cardiac record. [20512]

Mr. Sackville: No such visit took place.

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information she has received on the reasons why the Senning operation was carried out in much larger numbers at the Bristol royal infirmary as compared to switch operators in the 1990s and on the relative life expectancies and success rate. [20509]

Mr. Sackville: These were matters of clinical judgement.

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she was informed of the record of open heart surgery on children at the Bristol royal infirmary in the 1990s. [20511]

Mr. Sackville: My Department was informed in July 1994 that there was a difference of professional opinion about the results of an audit of paediatric cardiac surgery at Bristol royal infirmary. The United Bristol Healthcare trust management was asked to resolve the matter.

Fluoridation

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment she has made of the 1976 Royal College of Physicians study of fluoridation in 1976; and if she will order an inquiry as to the safety of fluoride in humans. [20797]

Mr. Malone: The 1976 report "Fluoride, Teeth and Health", from the Royal College of Physicians of London, concluded that fluoridation is safe and effective in reducing dental caries, and recommended

> "fluoridation of water supplies in the United Kingdom where the fluoride level is appreciably below 1 mg per litre".

Government policy continues to be in line with this recommendation. Water fluoridation at 1 mg per litre is considered, on the scientific evidence currently available, to be safe for humans, and is an effective way of improving oral health. The Department of Health will continue to monitor information relevant to the safety and efficacy of fluoridation of drinking water.

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

Sir Peter Tapsell: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 25 April. [19504]

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Prime Minister if he will list his official engagements for Tuesday 25 April 1995. [19506]

The Prime Minister: This morning I had meetings with ministerial colleagues and others. In addition to my duties in this House, I shall be having further meetings later today.

Downing Street Admissions

Mr. Tony Banks: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many individuals accompanying delegations of hon. Members were refused admission to Downing street on 19 April; and on what grounds they were refused entry; [20364]

(2) what dress restrictions govern admission of individuals to Downing street; [20365]

(3) when the decision was taken to restrict delegations to 10 Downing street to six people; who took it; and if he will list all restrictions applying to hon. Members. [20363]

The Prime Minister: Three members of the public were refused entry to Downing street on 19 April because they were dressed as foxes.

Since 1980s, if petitioners have wished to wear costume, it has been the practice to restrict admission to those wearing national dress or working uniforms. This is to maintain the dignity of the street and its surroundings. Delegations are normally restricted to six people in order to ensure the staff in the street can cope during busy periods.

There are no written restrictions on access to the street by hon. Members, but entry must remain at the discretion of the police on duty.

VE Day Commemorations

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister if he will state which of the VE commemorations Her Majesty the Queen will be participating in the United Kingdom and overseas as (i) Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, (ii) head of all those countries of which she is Head of State, (iii) Head of the Commonwealth and (iv) on which combination of (i) to (iii) above; and if he will make a statement. [20856]

The Prime Minister: Her Majesty the Queen, who is Head of the Commonwealth, will be participating in the VE day commemorations in the United Kingdom as Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Her Majesty will not participate in VE day commemorations outside the United Kingdom.

Governor-Generals

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister on whose advice governor-generals make visits in their capacity as representatives of Her Majesty the Queen to overseas countries; and if he will make a statement. [20860]

The Prime Minister: Governor-generals make official visits to overseas countries in their capacity as representative of Her Majesty the Queen on the advice of her Ministers in the realm concerned.

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister if the governor-generals of the countries of which Her Majesty is Head of State are deemed for the purpose of the VE commemorations to be Head of State in their own right; and if he will make a statement. [20855]

The Prime Minister: The only governor-general of Her Majesty's other realms who is expected to attend the VE day commemorations in London on 6 and 7 May is the Governor-General of Jamaica. He will attend in his capacity as Her Majesty's representative in Jamaica on behalf of the people of that country.

Her Majesty the Queen

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister (1) if a state visit made by an overseas Head of State to Britain is a visit to (a) Her Majesty the Queen as Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, (b) Great Britain hosted by Her Majesty the Queen, (c) Her Majesty the Queen as Head of State of all those countries of which she is Head of State, (d) Her Majesty the Queen as Head of the Commonwealth or (e) in a combination of the above. [20857]

(2) if on the occasion of the state visit of (a) the President of Zimbabwe in May 1994 and (b) the King and Queen of Norway in July 1994, the Queen received these guests in her capacity as (i) Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, (ii) Head of State of all those countries of which she is Head of State, (iii) as Head of the Commonwealth on (iv) or which combination of (i) to (iii) above; and if he will make a statement. [20858]

The Prime Minister: State visitors to the United Kingdom are invited by Her Majesty the Queen, who is Head of the Commonwealth, as Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, on behalf of the nation as a whole following consultation with her Ministers in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister (1) by what method and which Heads of government the Queen is advised before and during an official visit to republics where she is making the visit as Head of State and not merely as the Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [20861]

(2) on the occasion of the visit by Her Majesty the Queen to Russia in October 1994 and South Africa in March 1995, if the Queen was received in her capacity as (i) Head of State of Great Britain and Northern Ireland,

(ii) Head of State of all those countries of which she is Head of State, (iii) as Head of the Commonwealth, or (iv) on which combination of (i) to (iii) above; and if he will make a statement. [20859]

The Prime Minister: Her Majesty the Queen makes official visits overseas in her capacity as Head of State of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, on the advice of her Ministers in the United Kingdom unless the visit is to one of Her Majesty's other realms. In those latter cases, her visit is as Head of State of the realm concerned, and is made on the advice of her Ministers in that realm.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Rwanda

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the factors which have led to World Food Programme trucks not reaching their targets in Rwanda; and what international action is being taken to allow them to progress to camps for Rwandan refugees in Zaire. [20251]

Mr. Baldry: The rapid response from the UK and other donors to a recent World Food Programme—United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees appeal means that supplies are now assured until October. However, Rwanda's landlocked position has made it difficult to gauge the amount needed in the supply pipeline so as to ensure a continuous flow of food at the required level to people in need. On the question of access to camps in Zaire, we are in close touch with the WFP to see if we can help find a solution to the closing of the border. In the meantime, WFP is actively exploring alternative routes.

Botswana

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action is being taken by Her Majesty's Government and by the international community to alleviate drought in Botswana. [20252]

Mr. Baldry: No formal appeal for assistance has been made by the Government of Botswana, but we have had discussions on the drought with them, and other donors, and are ready to consider a request for assistance. There is unlikely to be a need for food aid as Botswana, in a non-drought year, already imports some 90 per cent. of its food requirements. It is therefore likely that any UK assistance will focus on technical and logistical support for food distribution to vulnerable communities.

Kenya

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in what ways the Government of Kenya (a) meet and (b) do not meet the yardstick of good governance for the receipt of bilateral or multilateral aid. [19909]

Mr. Baldry: Kenya's governance has improved significantly over recent years, which have seen the restoration of multi-party politics, serious discussion of issues of substance in Parliament and a much freer press. But concerns remain on a number of issues, including the status of the Government of Kenya—United Nations Development Programme displaced persons programme, the frustration by some officials of legitimate political activity, the arrests of opposition MPs, and corruption. The continuation of our substantial aid programme at current levels will depend on further progress on these and other governance issues.

India

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance he is giving to India to raise environmental standards of coal-fired power stations.

Mr. Baldry: We are helping the Indian authorities to improve environmental auditing and dry ash disposal. In collaboration with the World bank, we have also funded work on environmental management of coal-fired power stations in Singrauli; and are contributing to a programme in Orissa which includes renovation of existing thermal generation and construction of new capacity to current environmental standards. Other projects are under consideration.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Business Link Outlets

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many civil servants from his Department have been seconded to, or are otherwise employed within, business link outlets. [18110]

Mr. Page: Thirty-nine civil servants have been co-located in business link outlets as at 31 March 1995. Annexe A gives a regional breakdown by Government office of staff co-locations to business links.

| Government office for: | Number of staff co-located |
|---|---|
| East Midlands | 8 |
| London | 0 |
| South East | 1 |
| Yorkshire and Humberside | 4 |
| South West | 1 |
| East | 2 |
| North West | 6 |
| West Midlands | 13 |
| North East | 2 |
| Merseyside | 2 |

Franchising

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to protect franchisees from false claims by franchisers. [20029]

Mr. Page: Franchising in the United Kingdom is subject to the general law of contract and other general laws applying to commercial relationships. There are no current plans to introduce specific legislation for franchise agreements.

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many actions were taken by his Department, against franchisers, for false claims in 1994. [20030]

Mr. Page: This information is not held in the form requested.

The Department records only action taken under the Companies Act 1948 and 1985. These figures are not broken down by type of business.

Mr. Pickthall: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much of his Department's grant was made available to the franchise centre. [20031]

Mr. Page: The franchise centre received £10,000 regional selective assistance in 1993 to aid the establishment of 6.5 permanent jobs.

Manufacturing Company Wages

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what has been the average percentage increase in real wages since 1979 of chairs of the top 500 United Kingdom manufacturing companies. [20558]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: The Government do not compile statistics of the type requested by the hon. Member.

Murvi Motorcaravans

Mr. Steen: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he expects to complete his investigations into the matters raised by the hon. Member for South Hams in his letters to him of 4 April and 13 April regarding the refusal of his office in Plymouth to award a regional selective assistance grant to Murvi Motorcaravans. [20590]

Mr. Page: My investigations into this case are complete and I replied to my hon. Friend on 24 April 1995.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Allowances

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Iran

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what specific recent representations have been made to Iran regarding its nuclear programme. [20362]

Mr. David Davies: We have made no specific representations to Iran regarding its nuclear programme, but we have made public our concerns at reports that Iran is seeking to develop nuclear weapons. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made it clear in his evidence to the Foreign Affairs Committee on 18 January that the US assessment indicating that Iran could possess a nuclear explosive device within seven to 15 years gave serious cause for concern.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements Her Majesty's Government intend to make to permit international safeguards inspectors to verify the United Kingdom's cessation of production of fissile material for explosive uses. [20384]

Mr. David Davis: The announcement that the UK has ceased production of fissile material for explosive purposes was made to show our commitment to the negotiation of a treaty banning such productions. We anticipate that negotiations will begin in June at the conference on disarmament in Geneva. We intend that the treaty should include appropriate verification arrangements.

Russia (Nuclear Safeguards)

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals he has to fulfil the commitment made by the European Union Energy Commissioner on the nuclear safeguards conference in St. Petersburg on 10 April that the European Union would assist the countries of the Commonwealth of Independent States in developing a regional safeguards system; and whether he raised this matter, in regard to its relevance to combating illicit trafficking in nuclear materials, with his Russian counterpart at the nuclear non-proliferation treaty conference in New York.

Mr. David Davis: The UK—through the DTI, British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. and the AEA—has been closely involved in international programmes of safeguards collaboration with nuclear authorities and facility operators in both Russia and Kazakhstan. UK efforts initially focused on the provision of training seminars covering a wide range of safeguards issues. Direct collaboration between UK and Russian and Kazakh operators on facility specific safeguards systems is now being developed as a result of these seminars. The Russian Foreign Minister was not in New York at the time of the Foreign Secretary's visit.

Nagorno-Karabakh

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in establishing Organisation on Security and Co-operation in Europe monitors of the ceasefire in the Nagorno-Karabakh dispute following the decision of the Budapest summit last November; what is the United Kingdom's contribution to it; and if he will make a statement. [20474]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: The Budapest summit of the OSCE in December 1994 decided that an agreement between the parties on the cessation of hostilities in the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict would be a necessary precondition for the deployment of a multi-national peacekeeping operation. Although a ceasefire has now been in place for almost a year, no agreement has yet been reached. The OSCE Minsk group is actively engaged, with our full support, in efforts to promote an agreement.

We have offered to send a team of signallers to a monitoring mission, if required. We are providing personnel for the high-level planning group which is working in Vienna on a possible peacekeeping operation.

Azerbaijan

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on relations with Azerbaijan; and what plans he has to visit the country in the near future. [20472]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We enjoy excellent relations with Azerbaijan. Bilateral trade is increasing rapidly. We have provided substantial humanitarian aid and we have a programme of technical assistance through the know-how fund.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs does not at present have plans to visit Azerbaijan.

Non-proliferation Treaty Conference

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of his speech to the non-proliferation treaty conference in New York on 18 April. [20382]

Mr. David Davis: A copy has been placed in the Library.

Smoking

Mr. Peter Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what facilities are provided and arrangements made for the well-being and comfort of staff who (a) smoke and (b) do not wish to be affected by smoking at (i) the work-station and (ii) rest, recreation and refreshment facilities at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, King Charles street, London.

Mr. Goodlad: There are designated smoking areas, and smoking is permitted in single-occupancy offices.

Smoking is not permitted in shared offices, or at meetings, or in other common areas apart from designated smoking areas.

In general, rest, recreation and refreshment facilities either have smoking and no-smoking areas or do not permit any smoking.

Leader of the Opposition (Briefing)

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was the extent of the briefing Foreign Office officials or Ministers provided to the right hon. Member for Sedgefield (Mr. Blair) for this trip to Washington in 1986. [20610]

Mr. Baldry: We have no record of any such briefing.

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what briefing the United Kingdom ambassador to the United States of America provided to press during the right hon. Member for Sedgefield's visit to Washington in 1986 as to whether the visit was official. [20581]

Mr. Baldry: None.

Georgia

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on relations with Georgia; and what plans he has to visit the country in the near future. [20471]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We enjoy excellent relations with Georgia. A British embassy will open in Tbilisi later this year; Georgia intends to open an embassy in the UK soon. Head of State Eduard Shevardnadze visited the UK as a guest of Government in February. We have provided substantial humanitarian aid, and are developing a programme of technical assistance through the know-how fund.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs does not at present have plans to visit Georgia.

Armenia

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on relations with Armenia; and what plans he has to visit the country in the near future. [20473]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We enjoy excellent relations with Armenia. A British embassy will open in Yerevan later this year. We have provided substantial humanitarian aid for Armenia, and are developing a programme of technical assistance through the know-how fund.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs does not at present have plans to visit Armenia.

Unitary Tax Campaign

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if Her Majesty's ambassador attended all the official meetings held by the three hon. Members in Washington DC in May 1986 as part of the unitary tax campaign; and what was the purpose of such attendance. [20611]

Mr. Baldry: A visit by parliamentary supporteurs of the unitary tax campaign took place on 19 and 20 June 1986. We no longer have records of which, if any, of the delegation's official meetings the ambassador attended.

European Union Legislation

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals he is considering for changing the system of comitology in EU decision making; and if he will make a statement. [20245]

Mr. David Davis: None. Comitology was re-examined as recently as last year. In December, the Council, Commission and European Parliament agreed to a limited EP role in comitology measures stemming from co-decision legislations. It was agreed that the European Parliament should be able to give an opinion on the few measures of general application which are proposed under the Commission's delegated powers in co-decision legislation, when, following a negative opinion, these measures are referred by the relevant comitology committee back to the Council for decision.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20497]

Mr. Goodlad: The answer for non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the FCO, including the Overseas Development Administration, is shown in the table:

Tibet

Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he last discussed Tibet with the Government of the People's Republic of China; and if he will make a statement on the issues which were discussed. [20798]

Mr. Goodlad: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs raised Tibet with the Chinese Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister Qian Qichen in New York on 18 April during discussions on a broad range of bilateral and international issues.

Ambassadors' Pay

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the pay of the most senior ambassadors.

Mr. Hurd: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister told the House on 9 February, Official Report, columns 345-47, that parallel arrangements to those established for the pay of permanent secretaries would be made for the most senior ambassadors—that is, those with a rank equivalent to permanent secretary.

A remuneration committee has now been established to advise me on the pay of those ambassadors. The full terms of reference are given. Although the final decisions on the pay of individual ambassadors will be for me to take, I would expect normally to accept the recommendations of the committee.

As in the case of the remuneration committee dealing with permanent secretaries' pay, there will be five members of the committee, three from the private sector, the head of the diplomatic service and the chief clerk of the diplomatic service. The recommendations made to me will be those of the three private sector members and the terms of reference provide that the chairman be drawn from their number.

Sir Denys Henderson has agreed to be the first chairman of the committee. Sir Michael Perry and Mr. Allan Gormly have also agreed to serve on it. I am grateful to all of them. The presence of Sir Michael Perry, who is also chairman of the Senior Salaries Review Body and of the Committee on Permanent Secretaries Pay, will help ensure that awards made to senior ambassadors are in balance with those made to permanent secretaries.

The salaries of individual ambassadors will be published in £5,000 bands in the departmental report each year.

TERMS OF REFERENCE OF THE REMUNERATION COMMITTEE

Membership

1. There shall be a committee on the pay of grade 1 ambassadors of whom the members will be:

—Three members drawn from the private sector, including —One member of the Senior Salaries Review Body

—the head of the diplomatic service

—the chief clerk of the diplomatic service.

2. The chairman of the committee will be one of the private sector members.

Remit

3. The purpose of the committee is for the private sector members to make proposals to the Secretary of State on the pay of individual grade 1 ambassadors save in so far as their pay is determined by the terms of an individual appointment.

4. The pay of grade 1 ambassadors will be accommodated within the pay range of permanent secretaries to be determined from time to time by the Government. The committee may not propose other forms of remuneration or benefit than pay falling within this range.

5. In making proposals the committee shall take the following factors into account in relation to individuals:

—the relative level of responsibility of the post occupied;

—the performance of the embassy in meeting its objectives and executing the policy of Ministers and, in particular, the personal contribution the individual has made in terms of policy advice and efficient management, including where appropriate meeting the measured objectives of the embassy;

—the particular demands placed on the individual, including those stemming from his or her public role;

—the experience of the individual in the present post or in others occupied at grade 1 level;

—in the case of those newly promoted, the level of pay in their previous post;

—the individual's own assessment of his/her achievements and the main requirements of the job.

6. The committee shall also take into account these wider factors:

—the pay levels of permanent secretaries in the home civil service and of other senior staff in the diplomatic and civil services, and in particular those immediately below grade 1/permanent secretary;

—the increase recently given, or likely to be given in the period ahead, to DS staff and civil servants generally, and the pay progression available to them;

—the extent of the change for any individual as well as the absolute level of pay, and the presentation of both;

—any movement in the pay range as a whole;

—the nature and terms of the civil service pension scheme;

—any statements made by the Government on public sector pay;

—the maintenance of the confidence on the individual, that recommendations have been properly and fairly determined;

—the need to ensure recommendations are consistent with the Government's equal opportunities policies.

Kenya

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Kenya about arrests of opposition members of Parliament. [19908]

Mr. Baldry: We have made clear to the Kenyan authorities at the highest level our concerns at the arrest of opposition members of Parliament, and the damage such actions do to Kenya's image in the international community.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will support the representations made to the Government of Kenya by the American ambassador in Nairobi about the arrest of six trustees of the Mzangaza Trust. [19910]

Mr. Baldry: Our high commission in Nairobi contacted the Kenyan authorities at a high level to register our strong concern at these arrests as soon as they heard the news. The six trustees were released shortly thereafter.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the views expressed in the Catholic bishops' recent pastoral letter in Kenya are in accord with the reports he receives from the high commission in Nairobi. [19928]

Mr. Baldry: We receive regular reports from our high commission in Nairobi. They cover various issues including those raised in the Catholic bishops' recent pastoral letter. We have noted the concerns expressed by the bishops, many of which are widely shared.

Sierra Leone

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals have been put forward by the United Nation's special envoy to Sierra Leone for making progress to a peaceful settlement. [19912]

Mr. Baldry: None. The Special Representative of the UN Secretary-General continues his good offices mission.

Mr. Worthington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if it is his policy to support the facilitation by the international community of the establishment of a Government of national unity in Sierra Leone prior to the holding of free and fair elections. [19911]

Mr. Baldry: It is our policy to support efforts to bring about a peaceful solution to the conflict. We also look to the Sierra Leone Government to press ahead with the transition to civilian democratic rule.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Thames Valley Police

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the cost to the Thames Valley police force of security provided for Ministers and members of the royal family; and what additional allocation of resources from his Department the Thames Valley police force receives in relation to these responsibilities. [19886]

Mr. Howard: For security reasons, it is not the practice to disclose the cost to individual police authorities of carrying out protection duties. Thames Valley police's known security commitments were taken into account under the police funding formula for 1995–96.

Police Resignations

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list separately for each of the last six years for which figures are available the number of police officers in England and Wales who (a) resigned after criminal charges had been preferred against them but before such proceedings were completed, (b) resigned after disciplinary charges had been preferred against them but before such proceedings had been completed, (c) were under suspension at the time of their resignation and (d) resigned while under investigation for disciplinary matters. [20032]

Mr. Maclean: Figures for the number of officers in England and Wales, excluding the Metropolitan police, who resigned after criminal or disciplinary charges were preferred but before such proceedings were completed are set out in the table. Information collected centrally in respect of officers who resigned while under suspension is restricted to those resignations before disciplinary charges were preferred.

In 1993, there were 56 officers in England and Wales who resigned while under investigation for disciplinary matters but before disciplinary charges were preferred, including 13 in the Metropolitan police. Figures for earlier years are not available centrally.

Police Complaints

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give the number of police complaints, or cases of complaint, in each of the last five years for which figures are available which led to police officers being charged with (a) a criminal offence, or, if the information is held or recorded in a suitable form, (b) a non–traffic criminal offence, and (c) a traffic offence, and in each caste, the number of police officers convicted. [20033]

Mr. Maclean: The information on complaints resulting in criminal proceedings, for England and Wales, excluding the Metropolitan police, is shown in the table. Information held centrally does not show the number of convictions resulting from complaints.

Number of substantiated complaints by type of criminal proceedings

| | 1989 | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 | 1993 |

| Other criminal offences | 15 | 27 | 8 | 7 | 21 |
| Total complaints resulting in proceedings | 20 | 27 | 12 | 7 | [1]23 |

[1] Two complaints resulted in proceedings for both traffic and other criminal offences.

Mr. Sedgemore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will give the total number of police officers in England and Wales, including the Metropolitan police, against whom disciplinary charges were brought in each of the last six years for which figures are available showing (a) in the case of discipline charges arising out of a complaint from a member of the public (i) the number of officers charged and (ii) the number of officers against whom charges were proved, (b) in the case of discipline charges arising out of other circumstances (i) the number of officers charged, (ii) the number of officers against whom charges were proved and (c) the total of (a) and (b) (i) charged and (ii) proved. [20034]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is set out in the table, with the exception of figures for the Metropolitan police, which were not collected centrally before 1993. Revised collection criteria introduced from 1993 also mean that figures for the number of disciplinary charges arising in circumstances other than from a compliant are no longer available centrally.

Police officers charged—found guilty of disciplinary offences arising from a complaint or other circumstances—England and Wales excluding Metropolitan police.

Unemployment and Crime

Mr. Straw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list research carried out since 1979 by his Department on any link between unemployment and crime. [20488]

Mr. Howard: Since 1979, the following research studies bearing on any link between unemployment and crime have been carried out by my Department:

Tarling, R. (1982). "Unemployment and Crime", Home Office Research Bulletin 14.

(1983). "Unemployment, Crime and Sentencing: Some Time Series and Cross Sectional Studies for England and Wales", unpublished internal Home Office report.

Field, S. (1990). "Trends in Crime and their Interpretation", Home Office research study No. 119.

Orme, J. (1994). "A Study of the Relationship between Unemployment and Recorded Crime", Home Office Statistical Findings 1/94.

Miscarriages of Justice

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 20 April, Official Report, column 271, if he will place in the Library full details of the responses to his Department's inquiries into miscarriages of justice, including the nature of the allegation, the nature of the inquiries undertaken, the recommendations made by the investigating officer and the decision made on each case by him. [21038]

It is not the responsibility of an investigating officer to make recommendations as to what action my right hon. and learned Friend should take on a case. In cases Nos. 2, 3, 5 and 6 my right hon. and learned Friend decided not to refer the case to the Court of Appeal. The remaining cases are still being considered, or are the subject of further inquiries.

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research projects or investigations have been undertaken by his Department or on behalf of his Department into the costs of investigating alleged miscarriages of justice, and what conclusions were arrived at. [21036]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Information about the present and possible future costs of investigating alleged miscarriages of justice is contained in the explanatory and financial memorandum to the Criminal Appeal Bill. Information about the costs of police inquiries carried out in seven such cases was obtained in a recent survey whose results were reported in my reply to the hon. Member of 20 April, Official Report, column 271.

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 20 April, Official Report, column 271, (1) if he will list the four police forces from which replies are still awaited in respect of investigations of alleged miscarriages of justice; [21044]

(2) if he will list the 11 police forces from which information in regard of miscarriages of justice was requested; and how many cases were raised with each force. [21035]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Information was requested from the following forces:

| | Number of cases |
|---|---|
| Avon and Somerset constabulary | 1 |
| Lancashire constabulary | 1 |

[1] These forces were unable to provide the information requested. Greater Manchester police were able to provide the information in one of the two cases concerned.

Mr. Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research projects or investigations have been undertaken by his Department or on behalf of his Department into international comparisons of the costs of investigating miscarriages of justice. [21037]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: None.

Prisons (Drugs)

Mr. Merchant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the Prison Service drugs strategy. [21217]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: I have today arranged for copies of the Prison Service drugs strategy to be placed in the Library.

The Prison Service drugs strategy has been developed as part of the Government's strategy against the misuse of drugs, as set out in the Green Paper "Tackling Drugs Together". The presence of drugs in prisons is unacceptable and leads to bullying, violence and intimidation, while undermining regimes. Dealing with this problem is, therefore, being given high priority by the service.

Local drugs strategies will be developed which will have the objective of:

- reducing the supply of drugs
- reducing the demand for drugs
- rehabilitating drug misusers, and
- reducing the potential for damage to the health of prisoners, staff and the wider community, arising from the misuse of drugs.

Mandatory drugs testing is an important part of the strategy. The first phase of implementation has already started in eight establishments—Lindholme, Wakefield, Feltham, Stoke Heath, Pentonville, Bristol, Holloway and Wayland. This phase will be carefully monitored and evaluated and the results will provide the basis for testing throughout the Prison Service. Prisoners who test positive will be liable to the usual range of disciplinary action on adjudication including additional days, loss of privileges and fines. Other measures to be taken will include imposition of closed visits and removal of home leave. Prisoners who test positive will be offered treatment for their drug misuse problem.

A wide range of other measures is being taken to prevent drugs entering prisons. These include the increased use of drug dogs; more effective searching of prisoners, staff and visitors; the use of closed circuit television cameras during visits; and the imposition of closed visits for prisoners found guilty of drug offences in prison.

The Prison Service is also committed to providing help to prisoners who misuse, have misused or are at risk of misusing drugs. A senior manager will be responsible for the through-care of drug misusers in each establishment, and will co-ordinate procedures for the identification, support and treatment of drug misusers whilst in custody. Preventive education programmes will be made available to all prisoners with the objective of informing prisoners about the dangers of drug misuse, instructing them in ways of minimising health risks, providing information about local treatment and support initiatives and who to contact if they require further help. A health care standard on the clinical management of drug misusers was issued to all establishments on 12 April 1995.

This year, the Prison Service will be expanding substantially the number and types of drug treatment programmes. These programmes include therapeutic communities; three-month treatment programmes; intensive counselling and education services; detoxification units; and community linked through-care programmes. Careful monitoring and evaluation of these programmes will help to determine the development of drug treatment in other establishments.

The Prison Service is also committed to improving its working relationship with community drug agencies to ensure continuity of care for prisoners with drug misuse problems upon release from prisons.

National Lottery

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the terms of reference of his officials' monitoring exercise on the impact of the national lottery on charities and charity lotteries. [20985]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The Government have undertaken to monitor changes in charitable income following the introduction of the national lottery. The most effective methods of doing this are currently under consideration.

Port Talbot Bail Hostel

Mr. John Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what decisions have recently been made as to the future and management of the bail hostel at Port Talbot; and if he will publish the report of the inspector who evaluated the role and functions of the hostel. [20351]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No decisions have yet been taken as a result of the recent review by HM inspectorate of probation. The inspectorate's report will be published in due course.

Fixed Penalty Charges

Mr. Sheerman: To as the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what guidelines his Department gives to police forces regarding fixed penalty charges; [20005]

(2) what plans he has to introduce a standardised national charging system for fixed penalty charges; [20007]

(3) what representations he has received regarding fixed penalty charges imposed by police forces in the last two years. [20006]

Mr. Maclean: The national levels of fixed penalties for road traffic offences are set by my right hon. and learned Friend under section 53 of the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988. Chief officers of police have been advised that the national rates in England and Wales are £40 for offences involving obligatory endorsement and £20 for non-endorsable offences including illegal parking, with the exception of illegal parking in London. For London, which is defined as the Metropolitan police district and the City of London, the following differential rates were set in view of the particular problems of congestion:

- £40 for illegal parking on a red route;
- £30 for illegal parking elsewhere in London

No representations have been received regarding the current levels of fixed penalty, which came into force on 1 April 1992.

Fire Service Pensions Scheme

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the latest progress made by his Department's review body of the fire service pensions review; and if he will make a statement. [20050]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The review group is producing a consultation paper suggesting new arrangements for the fire service pensions scheme. The consultation document will be circulated as soon as possible.

Police Diving Teams

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will publish the information his Department holds on the performance and expenditure by police authorities on police diving teams. [19933]

Mr. Maclean: This information is not held centrally.

Data Protection Directive

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement concerning progress towards agreement on the European Union's data protection directive; if he will indicate those areas where the United Kingdom Government still have major concerns; what plans he has to oppose implementation of the data protection directive; and if he will make a statement. [20038]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The Council adopted a common position on the directive on 20 February. The United Kingdom abstained. The directive is currently before the European Parliament, where it has been referred to the Legal Affairs and Citizens Rights Committee. The Government hope that the directive will be further improved in its application to manual records, political canvassing, and financial and other commercial regulation, and by the removal of the requirement for prior checking of certain categories of processing operation. The Government's position is described in a briefing paper on the directive which has been sent to United Kingdom Members of the European Parliament. I am placing a copy of this paper in the Library.

Decisions on how the directive should be implemented in national law will be taken when its final form is known.

Firefighters

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been undertaken by his Department's scientific research and development branch into the exposure of firefighters to diesel exhaust emissions from fire appliances in fire stations. [20046]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No research has been undertaken by the Home Office on this topic.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been promulgated by his Department to local fire authorities and brigades on post-traumatic stress disorder among fire service personnel. [20054]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: We have received no requests for such guidance, but it is for individual fire authorities to decide what arrangements—for example, for the provision of professional counselling—might be appropriate in particular circumstances.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been promulgated by his Department to local fire authorities and brigades on the wearing and use of extended duration breathing apparatus by firefighters. [20052]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Technical and procedural advice to the fire service on the use of breathing apparatus in the course of duty is contained in "Technical Bulletin", 1/1989, and in book 6, "Breathing Apparatus and Resuscitation", of the "Manual of Firemanship". The guidance is subject to monitoring and review.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been undertaken by his department's scientific research and development branch into the effects of radiation on firefighters. [20049]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No research has been undertaken by the Home Office on this matter. Comprehensive operational and procedural guidance on the role of the fire service at incidents involving radioactivity is contained in "Technical Bulletin", 2/1993, "Incidents Involving Radioactive Materials", which is published by HMSO, ISBN 0 11 341034 4.

Police Funding

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what factors his Department is considering using in the funding formula for police authorities to reflect the additional costs of policing rural counties; [20019]

(2) when his Department intends to introduce changes to the funding formula for police authorities to reflect the additional costs of policing rural counties. [20020]

Mr. Maclean: My right hon. and learned Friend has asked the allocation formula working group to advise him whether the police funding formula in England and Wales takes adequate account of any extra police costs in both densely and sparsely populated areas. The group is following a unit costing approach, and will have access to the expertise of external consultants. If there is a sound statistical basis for changes to the formula, we will introduce these as soon as we can.

London Fire Brigade

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans the London fire and civil defence authority has to equip fire rescue unit appliances in the London fire brigade with geiger counter equipment. [20051]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I am informed by the chief fire officer that fire rescue units, of which there are six strategically located across London, are currently equipped with radiation detection devices based on the geiger principle.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action has been taken by the London fire and civil defence authority to implement the recommendations of the Hidden inquiry report into the 1988 Clapham rail disaster as regards the London fire brigade. [20047]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I am informed by chief fire officer that eight of the 93 recommendations resulting from the investigation into the Clapham Junction railway accident conducted by Mr. Anthony Hidden QC had implications for the London fire and civil defence authority and that all these recommendations have been met.

Fire Research

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been undertaken by his Department's scientific research and development branch on flashover and backdraught. [20053]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: In 1992, the Home Office fire research and development group commissioned the fire research station to undertake a study into what was known about flashovers and backdraughts. This was completed in 1994 and issued as FRDG publication No. 5/94. Following this research, a supplement to the manual of firemanship entitled "The Behaviour of Fire—Compartment Fires" was published in February 1995. Further research is being undertaken by the fire experimental unit of the FRDG into the feasibility of producing a small-scale compartment fire simulator for use as a training tool for firefighters.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research has been undertaken by the fire research station into flashover and backdraught. [20048]

Sir Paul Beresford: I have been asked to reply.

The fire research station, part of the Building Research Establishment of DOE, has studied, over many years, the transition of small fires, through flashover, to fully developed conditions. The work has included experimental fires in compartments, the development of mathematical models to describe smoke and fire spread and studies of real fires. Results of the work have been used in the development of regulations and supporting codes and standards.

FRS has recently completed a review for the Home Office to define the technical conditions of "backdraught" where the rapid ignition of partially burnt combustion products may place the lives of firefighters at risk when a compartment is ventilated.

Prison Suicides

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department has had with coroners courts conducting inquests on prison suicides about measures to reduce such suicides. [19951]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: We have drawn the attention of coroners to Prison Service guidance on a range of matters, including measures aimed at reducing the number of prison suicides. The issues were also discussed at a seminar for coroners on deaths in custody.

Deceased Persons (Severed Hands)

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will place in the Library the documents relating to the procedures authorising the severance of hands from deceased persons in mortuaries, or elsewhere, extant in August 1989, stating the purposes for which such action was authorised, the criteria used for assessing its necessity, compared to procedures in situ, and the rank of those making decisions in respect of any individual case. [19775]

Mr. Nicholas Baker [holding answer 18 April 1995]: I am not aware of the existence of any written procedures, extant in 1989, governing the removal of hands of deceased persons for identification purposes.

Hospital Crime

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes were committed in national health service hospitals in each of the last five years; and if he will break down the figures by type of crime. [20628]

Mr. Maclean [holding answer 24 April 1995]: This information is not collected centrally.

Extradition

Mr. Molyneaux: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will give an assurance that persons wanted for questioning in connection with murders in the United Kingdom continue to be the subject of arrangements for extradition for the Irish Republic; [20013]

(2) if he will give an assurance that persons wanted for questioning in connection with murders in the United Kingdom continue to be the subject of arrangements for extradition from the Irish Republic. [20012]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Extradition between the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland takes place under the Backing of Warrants (Republic of Ireland) Act 1965 and the corresponding legislation of the Republic of Ireland. As with all extradition arrangements, the legislation makes no provision for extradition solely for the purposes of questioning, but makes provisions for the extradition of those who are either unlawfully at large having been convicted of a crime, or for whom an arrest warrant has been issued so that they may stand trial. It remains Her Majesty's Government's policy, wherever possible, to seek the return of those who have escaped from justice.

Tokyo Subway Chemical Agent

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for increased numbers of experiments at Porton Down on antidotes to chemical warfare agents following the Tokyo subway attack; and what plans he has to use animals in such experiments. [19725]

Mr. Freeman: I have been asked to reply.

We currently have no plans to increase experiments on the agent reportedly used in the attack on the Tokyo subway.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Claimants' Mail

Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what considerations underlay the contracting out of the opening by non-DSS staff of mail form claimants; and if he will make a statement. [19128]

Mr. Roger Evans: This is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the acting chief executive of the Benefits Agency, and he will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. David Marshall, dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question regarding the opening of Departmental post by private sector companies.

The "Competing for Quality" White Paper set out the Government's policy for extending choice and competition in the public sector in order to secure better services and better value for money. Market testing is one of the ways in which the Government aims to extend competition and achieve more effective, more accountable and more business-like management in the public sector. This does not mean that work is automatically contracted out to the private sector. Main elements of the market testing process are to review the existing in house service, to establish precisely the standard of service that the customer requires, and to encourage and support the existing staff in seeking ways to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of their work. The work will only be awarded to an external contractor if the existing staff cannot provide the required service at best value for money for the taxpayer.

As part of this initiative the Benefits Agency has market tested a number of accommodation and office services including typing, security guarding, messengers and post opening operations. The work was grouped in geographical packages before being market tested. The outcome of the tests has been a mixture of wins by in-house and external suppliers. Some of the successful in-house bids were made in partnership with the Royal Mail and in the Tyne/Tees, North and West Yorkshire, Scotland, East Midlands, Wales, Greater Manchester and South East areas the Royal Mail now open and sort post under contract to the Benefits Agency.

All mail is opened under careful supervision in a separate, secure area which is locked at all times and only staff directly involved in the contract will be allowed access to this area. Whilst the post is being opened and sorted no one is allowed to enter or leave the room. Any mail marked "Private", "Personal" or "Confidential" is left unopened. The sorted mail is then placed in sealed bags and delivered to the Agency's District Offices each morning.

Benefits Agency contracts with external suppliers contain all the safeguards that are normally applied to Civil Servants including the requirement to sign a declaration acknowledging the provisions of Section 123 of the Social Security Act 1992 which makes it a criminal offence to disclose personal information needed to establish benefit entitlement.

This is a highly complex operation run by well-trained staff, who previously had to be removed from benefit work to attend post opening. This method of operation cost the Benefits Agency a considerable amount of staff time and money and the new arrangements free staff to deal with benefit work. Typically the revised operation frees the equivalent of 2 extra staff in an average office, and also guarantees that the mail is ready to be dealt with by staff, on average, 1½ hours earlier than had previously been the case. This presents a real opportunity for enhanced customer service. Savings, in simple cost terms, have also been achieved for the tax payer.

The Benefits Agency has ensured that in seeking to provide better value for money in the delivery of public services the highest standards of quality and confidentiality will be maintained.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit

Mr. Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many claims for industrial injuries benefit in respect of chronic bronchitis and emphysema were made in Nottinghamshire up to 31 March; and how many were successful. [19882]

Mr. Hague: The administration of industrial injuries disablement benefit is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the acting chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member shortly.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Paddy Tipping, dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the number of claims for Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit made in respect of chronic bronchitis and/or emphysema in Nottinghamshire up to 31 March 1995.

The information is not available in the precise format requested. Statistics are maintained by Benefits Agency Branch Offices and Districts whose boundaries do not corresponded exactly with those of counties. However, figures are quoted in the attached appendix for the three main benefit offices in the area; North, East and West Nottinghamshire. It is possible that these figures will include some people living outside Nottinghamshire.

I am afraid that, whilst collating the present data, it was discovered that the figures supplied in the reply to your previous Parliamentary Question (Hansard Reference: Vol 245 Col 186/187) were incorrect and I apologise for any inconvenience this may have caused. The corrected figures are also shown in the attached appendix.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Benefits Agency Business Plan

Ms Primarolo: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total production and distribution cost of the Benefits Agency 1995–96 business plan; how many copies were produced; and to whom they were distributed. [20254]

Mr. Roger Evans: The production, distribution and associated costs of the Benefits Agency 1995–96 business plan is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the acting chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Ian Magee to Ms Dawn Primarolo, dated 24 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the production and distribution costs of the Benefits Agency (BA) 1995–96 Business Plan.

The design, printing and distribution costs of the Business Plan totalled £14,775 for the production of 15,000 copies.

The Business Plan is distributed to Ministers, the Permanent Secretary, Opposition Spokespersons, Members of Parliament, the Social Security Advisory Committee, National Audit Office and Her Majesty's Treasury. It is also distributed externally to Local Authority Housing Benefits Departments and to BA Customer Organisations. There is also an internal distribution to managers in the Department of Social Security and the BA.

Copies of the Business Plan are available in the House of Commons Library and can be freely obtained from the Agency by members of the public upon request.

Attendance Allowance

Mr. Bill Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will make a statement on implementing the fallow period when the delay for late payment of attendance allowance is due to administrative error. [16159]

Mr. Hague: Under the DSS special payments arrangements, compensation may be considered where payment of benefit has been delayed unduly as a result of clear official error.

The fallow period is the period which must elapse before consideration can be given to the payment of compensation. The fallow period until 1993 was one year for all benefits, including attendance allowance.

The fallow period for AA and disability living allowance was reduced to eight months from 1 April 1995.

Child Benefit

Mr. Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what would be the rate of child benefit at April 1995 if it were uprated from its value on introduction in 1975 (a) in line with the retail prices index and (b) in line with average earnings. [19699]

Mr. Burt: The information requested is in the table. Child benefit was not introduced until 5 April 1977.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the most recently available figure for each security benefit, including pensions, paid by or on behalf of this Departments in Northamptonshire. [20276]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is not available in the form requested. Social security expenditure for Great Britain is shown in the 1995 departmental report, Cm 2813, published in March 1995.

War Widows Pensions

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many pensions are currently being paid to war widows; and how many of these relate to service up to 30 September 1921. [20265]

Mr. Arbuthnot: As at 31 March 1995 the number of war widows pensions in payment was 48,405; of those, 1,643 have been awarded in respect of death due to service up to 30 September 1921.

Housing Benefit Central Register

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security in relation to the current pilot scheme involving the cross-matching of council tax and housing benefits data, obtained from London local authorities, with data held by his Department, if he will indicate the anticipated saving arising from the exercise; what estimate he has made of the number of records to be matched, anticipated mismatches and withdrawn applications for benefits; and if he will make a statement. [20058]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave him on 1 December 1994, Official Report, column 883. A full evaluation of the housing benefit central register pilot has taken place and is currently under consideration.

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security in relation to his intention to cross-match council tax and housing benefits personal data with personal data held by his Department, whether he has issued advice to London boroughs concerning the need to protect claimants from false accusations based in inaccurate data; and if he will make a statement. [20059]

Mr. Arbuthnot: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave him on 28 November 1994, Official Report, column 521.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20177]

Mr. Hague: The information is not collected and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20178]

Mr. Hague: The Department is required to publish a report to Parliament accounting for the stewardship of public funds and spending plans. This is also an opportunity, within the spirit of open government, to make available to the public information about the Department's work and activities. There is a common core of information that all Departments must include to present a consistent picture of public spending across all programmes. Above that, the Department has relative freedom to determine the style and content of the report.

The Department controls costs by allocating budgets for items of expenditure to managers rather than costing specific processes, such as preparation of reports. In preparing the departmental report the Department strives to produce a clear and comprehensive document which represents good value for money.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will give the Data Protection Registrar an undertaking that the national insurance number will not be used for purposes unconnected with the tax and benefits system; and if he will make a statement. [20057]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The Data Protection Registrar has been advised that it is departmental policy to restrict the use of the national insurance number of national insurance, tax and social security benefit related purposes.

Myalgic Encephalomyelitis Association

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) when he next intends to meet with representatives of the Myalgic Encephalomyelitis Association to discuss the entry on ME in the disability living allowance handbook; [20556]

(2) what representations he has received on the accuracy of the entry in the disability living allowance handbook on ME in relation to the stance of the national task force on CFS/PVFS/ME; and if he will make a statement. [20555]

Mr. Hague: A small number of representations have been received concerning the revised entry on CFS/ME in the disability handbook. A full reply has been sent to the ME Association, extending an invitation for a meeting with departmental officials to discuss the association's concerns further.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20504]

Mr. Hague: The Occupational Pensions Board is the only executive non-departmental public body sponsored by this Department. No such information is published.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20664]

Mr. Hague: The only non-departmental public body that fits these criteria is the Occupational Pensions Board, which is:

(a) not currently subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration, although arrangements to bring the OPB within the jurisdiction of the Parliamentary Commissioner, by means of an Order in Council, are well advanced;

(b) not subject to scrutiny by the Audit Commission;

(c) subject to scrutiny by the National Audit Office, under the National Audit Act 1983;

(d) not currently subject to the statutory provisions for open government, which apply only to those bodies within the ambit of the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration;

(e) not subject to published performance indicators;

(f) committed to the principles of the citizens charter, which apply to all public services.

The board and its members are not public servants, although the administrative staff in the executive office are. In line with the principles of the citizens charter, the OPB published its charter standard statement and code of practice in July 1994, setting out the standards of service the public can expect and telling customers what they can do to obtain help and advice from the OPB. In addition, this publication also incorporates the OPB's enforcers code, published as part of the "Working with Business—a Code for Enforcement Agencies" initiative.

Benefits Uprating

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what would be (a) the current value and (b) the estimated value for next year of those benefits which have never been uprated since they were (i) introduced and (ii) announced, if they were now uprated. [20261]

Mr. Hague: The information is in the table:

| Benefit/allowance | Current rate | Rate if uprated by April 1995 uprating only £ | Estimated rate if uprated by April 1995 and projected 1996 uprating £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| Christmas bonus | 10.00 | 10.20 | 10.50 |
| Income support—amounts for meals where these cannot be obtained within the accommodation (daily rates): | | | |
| Breakfast | 1.10 | 1.10 | 1.10 |
| Midday/evening meal | 1.55 | 1.60 | 1.65 |
| Maternity allowance—higher rate (weekly) | 52.50 | 53.65 | 55.25 |
| Pneumoconiosis, byssinosis and miscellaneous diseases scheme—death benefit | 300.00 | 306.60 | 315.80 |
| Retirement pension—age 80 addition (weekly) | 0.25 | 0.25 | 0.25 |
| Widows payment | 1,000 | 1,022 | 1,052.66 |

Notes:
1. Amounts are rounded to the nearest 5p.
2. Uprated amounts for 1995 are based upon the movement in retail prices Index in the year up to September 1994. The all items index has been applied for benefits other than income related benefits; to which the Rossi index—all items except housing—has been applied.
3. Estimated rates for 1996 are based upon the assumptions for planning public expenditure in the Treasury's annual financial and budget report 1995–96.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20501]

Mr. Dorrell: All of my Department's NDPBs are required, under their founding statute, charter, or other instrument of corporation, to publish reports, although not necessarily on an annual basis, and to publish annual accounts. None of my Department's executive NDPBs is required to publish minutes or agendas of meetings, although some may issue public statements about decisions taken at meetings. Such arrangements are voluntary. My Department has asked each of its executive NDPBs to adopt a code of practice for board members. This recommends that boards should consider establishing a register of members' interests which should be open for public inspection and published at least once a year. A number of bodies are currently considering how to implement the code. There are no statutory requirements to compile and publish a register of members' interests.

Children's Play

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what organisations will be represented on the panel which will assess the bids to carry out work on children's play. [20989]

Mr. Sproat: Assessment of any bids to do work on children's play will be made by my Department in consultation with the Sports Council.

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what funding he is making available to the National Voluntary Council for Children's Play in 1995–96. [20827]

Mr. Sproat: For the period April to September 1995, the National Children's Bureau is receiving a grant of £13,500 from the Sports Council Trust Company for the National Voluntary Council for Children's Play.

Interested organisations will shortly be invited by my Department to bid for funds to carry out work in certain specified areas of children's play from October 1995. Future funding of the NVCCP will depend upon the outcome of that process.

Sports Bodies

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what local authorities representation there is on (a) the new United Kingdom Sports Commission and (b) the new English Sports Council. [20997]

Mr. Sproat: Local authorities are not directly represented on either body. Ministerial nominees, to be appointed in each of the regions of the English Sports Council, will bring a further range of experience and expertise to the council's work, including that of local government.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what percentage of (a) the new United Kingdom Sports Commission and (b) the new English Sports Council are females. [20995]

Mr. Sproat: The United Kingdom Sports Council will have 10 members, one of whom is female. The Sports Council for England will have 15 members, one of whom is female.

Broadcasting

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what assessment he has made of the advantages and disadvantages of removing responsibility for transmission from the BBC. [20004]

Mr. Dorrell: I am currently considering the options for the future ownership of the BBC's transmission service.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what estimate he has made of the number of people in the United Kingdom who can pick up satellite television but who are unable to receive terrestrial television. [20003]

Mr. Dorrell: None.

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what plans he has to reassess the provisions of the Broadcasting Act 1990 with regard to the protection of universal television coverage of sporting events in the United Kingdom in respect of News Corporation's bid for the rights to television coverage of rugby football league. [20247]

Mr. Dorrell: None. With the Broadcasting Act 1990, the Government decided that it was right to liberalise the market for the benefit of rights holders, who should not without good reason find themselves prohibited from disposing of their rights in the way they choose. This remains the Government's position.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20186]

Mr. Dorrell: Consistent with its obligation to publish an annual report, my Department takes all necessary measures to keep the cost and staff implications of compiling material to a minimum.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1992. [20185]

Mr. Dorrell: Staff time and the estimated cost of officials who were directly involved in producing my Department's annual reports in the years since it was established are as follows:

| | Total staff years | Cost (£'000) |
|---|---|---|
| 1993 | 0.21 | 18.9 |
| 1994 | 0.26 | 20.9 |
| 1995 | 0.27 | 19.0 |

Other staff throughout the Department also participate in providing material for the report, as part of their normal duties.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the National Heritage if he will list the number and location of Historic Royal Palaces Agency and Royal Parks Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19968]

Mr. Sproat: Neither the Historic Royal Palaces Agency nor the Royal Parks Agency has ever had any offices or jobs located in Scotland.

Monuments

Mr. Key: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will list the amendments made to the schedule of monuments under the ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979, as amended, in each of the past 10 years, by name and location and with the reason for revision of the scheduled area of each monument.

Mr. Dorrell [holding answer 3 April 1995]: In the mid-1980s there were roughly 12,500 entries in the schedule, representing some 18,000 individual sites. By the end of February 1995, there were 15,346 entries, representing some 22,000 individual sites. The number of amendments to the schedule per year since 1989 is shown in the table. Amendments agreed by the Secretary of State comprise the addition of new monuments, revisions of existing schedule entries, and the deletion of monuments from the schedule. Figures for 1985 to 1989, and the name, location and reason for each amendment since 1989, cannot be provided in view of the disproportionate cost involved.

| | Recommendations by English Heritage | Number of scheduling decisions by the Secretary of State | Number of decisions involving revisions of areas | Increase in number of monuments in the schedule |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1989–90 | 304 | 310 | 52 | 132 |
| 1990–91 | 403 | 328 | 136 | 189 |
| 1991–92 | 1,138 | 900 | 295 | 534 |
| 1992–93 | 1,020 | 1,280 | 446 | 655 |
| 1993–94 | 1,240 | 1,203 | 507 | 598 |
| 1994–95 (to end of February 1995) | 1,672 | 1,626 | 688 | 884 |

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has bought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19850]

Mr. Dorrell [holding answer 19 April 1995]: My Department was established in April 1992. Neither my Department nor its agencies has purchased any mahogany or products containing it.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fair Employment

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what further action has been taken against firms for non-compliance with orders of enforcement from the Fair Employment Tribunal since the introduction of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989; [19852]

(2) how many breaches of its orders of enforcement have been certified by the Fair Employment Tribunal to the High Court; and of these how many were subject to fines or committal penalties for contempt of that court; [19855]

(3) what cash penalties were imposed by the Fair Employment Tribunal for breaches of its orders of enforcement; and what firms were subject to such fines since the inception of the Fair Employment Tribunal. [19851]

Mr. Ancram: No orders of enforcement have been issued by the Fair Employment Tribunal since the introduction of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what firms or employers have been debarred from tendering for contracts as a result of non-compliance with orders of enforcement from the Fair Employment Tribunal since the introduction of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989. [19853]

Mr. Ancram: Since the introduction of the Fair Employment Act 1989 no firms have been debarred from tendering for contracts as a result of non-compliance with an order of enforcement from the Fair Employment Tribunal.

Glaucoma

Mr. Chidgey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is the estimated number of people aged over 17 years with glaucoma in Northern Ireland. [19732]

Mr. Moss: The information is not available.

Income Support

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent representations he has received from the Northern Ireland Citizens Advice Bureaux concerning the number of people dependent on income support; and what action the Government will take to reduce poverty levels in Northern Ireland. [19854]

Mr. Moss: I am not aware of any recent representations from the Northern Ireland Citizens Advice Bureaux concerning the number of people dependent on income support.

The Government continue to give priority to targeting resources on areas and people in greatest need. Social security in Northern Ireland maintains parity with the rest of the United Kingdom and income-related benefits such as income support provide assistance to the least well-off.

Pollution Repairs

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proportion of the total repair budget of the Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland is used in repairs to roads, buildings, etcetera which have sustained damage as the result of environmental pollution. [19870]

Mr. Moss: The Department of the Environment for Northern Ireland has not identified any damage to roads, buildings, etcetera, specifically caused by environmental pollution which has required repair expenditure. It is estimated, however, that approximately 4 per cent. of the roads services total bridge maintenance budget of £5 million for 1993–94 was spent on repairing damage caused by chloride attack.

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the causes of chloride attack on bridges and other structures in Northern Ireland; and what proportion of the £3.2 million spent on repairs to bridges and other structures during 1993–94 was needed to repair damage from chloride attack. [19869]

Mr. Moss: The main cause of chloride attack on bridges is rock salt which is used for winter gritting.

While no exact figures are available to show the costs incurred in repairing damage caused specifically by chloride attack, it is estimated that this accounts for approximately 4 per cent. of the total bridge maintenance budget which, in the 1993–94 financial year, stood at £5 million.

No expenditure has been incurred on repairs to other structures.

Sport

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what proposals the Sports Council of Northern Ireland has to increase sporting contacts with (a) Scotland and (b) the Republic of Ireland; and if he will make a statement about the present policy of the Sports Council towards promotion of co-operation within the United Kingdom. [19756]

Mr. Ancram: The Sports Council for Northern Ireland has no proposals to increase sporting contacts with Scotland or the Republic of Ireland, as arrangements already in place are felt to be appropriate and adequate.

The policy of the Sports Council for Northern Ireland is to promote co-operation within the United Kingdom, both in general and in relation to specific issues. Accordingly, the chairman and chief executive attend the meetings of the Great Britain Sports Council, and bilateral contacts with individual home country sports councils are pursued as appropriate on specific issues.

Local Enterprise Development Unit

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many of the small businesses created with the assistance of the Local Enterprise Development Unit in Northern Ireland since 1989 are currently still trading. [19863]

Mr. Ancram: In the period between December 1989 and December 1993, LEDU assisted the creation of 3,302 new firms. At December 1993, 2,909 of these companies were still in existence. Information on LEDU's performance during 1994–95 is not yet available and will be published at the end of May.

(2) what investigations his Department's inspectors carry out on the accuracy of date labelling by wholesale meat suppliers to supermarkets; [19492]

(3) if he will list the number and types of incidents in meat wholesalers detected by his Department's inspectors for the last year for which figures are available; [19493]

(4) if meat wholesalers are notified in advance of visits by his Department's meat inspectors. [19522]

Road Side Advertising

Mr. Galbraith: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what plans he has to alter the planning law on road side advertising; and if he will make a statement. [19749]

Mr. Kynoch: My right hon. Friend has no immediate plans to alter the planning law on road side advertising. However, the Scottish Office Environment Department is currently reviewing the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) (Scotland) Regulations 1984, with a view to amending and updating this legislation. A public consultation document on this subject will issue later this year.

Separately, the roads directorate of the Scottish Office Industry Department has, in conjunction with the Scottish tourist board, been reviewing the provision of tourist signposting in Scotland, and has now issued a consultation document, proposing changes to the Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 1994. The results of this consultation will be known during the summer.

Sir Hector Monro: This information is not available.

Business Rates

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what guidelines, information or instructions were issued by his Department to assessors in respect of the most recent rating revaluation of business properties in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [20596]

Mr. Lang: New primary and secondary legislation was drawn to assessors' attention by means of departmental circulars. In carrying out their statutory responsibilities, assessors are not subject to policy direction by my Department.

Highlands and Islands Veterinary Services Scheme

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what expenditure was incurred by his Department in funding the highlands and islands veterinary services scheme in 1991–92, 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; and what is the estimated expenditure on the scheme for the current year. [20591]

Mr. Lang: The information requested is set out in the table:

| Year | Expenditure £000 |
|---|---|
| 1991–92 | 245 |
| 1992–93 | 253 |
| 1993–94 | 259 |
| 1994–95 | 266 |

The expenditure in the current financial year will depend on the outcome of negotiations which are in progress with the British Veterinary Association.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when officials of his Department last met representatives of the British Veterinary Association to discuss future arrangements for the highlands and islands veterinary services scheme. [20592]

Mr. Lang: Officials last met BVA representatives on 19 April. Discussions were very positive and I hope that we will be able to introduce revised arrangements in the near future.

Non-domestic Rates

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list, in respect of each islands and district council area in Scotland, the total net rateable value of non-domestic property (a) prior to and (b) since 1 April. [20593]

Mr. Lang: Information on the rateable value of non-domestic property, in respect of each islands and district council area in Scotland, at 1 April 1994, which is the latest date for which the information is available, is given in table 1. Information is not, at present, available centrally on the rateable value of non-domestic property at 1 April 1995. Table 2 gives estimates of the average percentage increase in rateable value in each region and islands area following the 1995 revaluation of non-domestic rates. The estimates are based on a sample survey of estimated outcomes of revaluation which was conducted last year.

Atmospheric Emissions

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many installations in Scotland require consent from Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution for atmospheric emissions; and if he will list them. [20844]

Sir Hector Monro: In Scotland HM industrial pollution inspectorate is the designated enforcing authority for part A processes under the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Integrated pollution control for such processes is being introduced in stages. As of 24 April 1995, 159 authorisations had been issued to 121 operators of prescribed processes. Further applications for authorisations will be required in accordance with the timetable in schedule 3 to the Environmental Protection (Prescribed Processes) Regulations 1991, as amended.

Details of both applications and authorisations, including requirements relating to emissions to the atmosphere, may be examined on public registers maintained by the inspectorate and by river purification authorities and district councils in respect of processes operated in their respective areas.

Local Enterprise Companies

Mr. Bradley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what was the amount in cash terms, and as a percentage of the total, of public funds under the control of local enterprise companies. [19939]

Mr. Kynoch [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The allocation of local enterprise company budgets is an operational matter for Scottish Enterprise and Highlands and Islands Enterprise. I have asked the chairmen to write to the hon. Member.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make it his policy that nuclear industry wastes will not be disposed of within the boundaries of Central region. [19885]

Sir Hector Monro [holding answer 24 April 1995]: No. It would not be appropriate for policy on this matter to be constrained by local authority boundaries. The Government's policy will be set out later this year when they publish the conclusions to their review of radioactive waste management policy, on which a consultation document was issued in August 1994.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will list the jobs that have been lost to agencies in his Department in the past two years that have (a) been taken over by contractors and (b) disappeared. [18333]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 4 April 1995]: I have asked the chief executives of the agencies for which my Department is responsible to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Alan W. Ramage to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

I have been asked to reply, in relation to Registers of Scotland Executive Agency, to your question to the Secretary of State for Scotland about jobs lost to Agencies in the past two years.

There have been no jobs lost over the past two years due to the employment of contractors. Overall staff numbers in the Registers of Scotland have declined from 1257.5 on 1 April 1993 to 1065.5 on 1 April 1995. Reductions in staff numbers have resulted from a range of efficiency saving measures and the need to align the size of the organisation to match the market demand for our services.

Letter from K. MacRae to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

I refer to the Parliamentary Question which you tabled recently to the Secretary of State for Scotland seeking information on the loss of jobs in Agencies during the past two years.

I have been asked to reply in respect of the Student Awards Agency for Scotland which was launched in April 1994. In 1994–95, no jobs have been lost to the Agency due to the employment of contractors or otherwise.

I trust this represents the information which you were seeking.

Letter from Graeme N. Munro to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Scotland has asked me to reply on behalf of Historic Scotland to your recent question about jobs which have been taken over by contractors or have disappeared in the last 2 years.

Since April 1993 23.5 posts (full-time equivalents) have been given up in Historic Scotland. Of this total 4 posts have been contracted out, with the staff either being redeployed elsewhere within the Agency or retiring. Of the remaining 19.5 posts, 15 were saved as a consequence of the market testing process where the decision was to retain the service in-house. The remaining 4.5 posts were saved by withdrawing staffing from 5 of the least frequently visited monuments in care.

I hope this information meets your needs.

Letter from Andrew Macleod to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

I have been asked to reply in respect of the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Scotland concerning the loss of jobs in executive agencies of The Scottish Office in the past 2 years.

During the financial year 1993–94 and 1994–95 no jobs in the Agency have been taken over by contractors. The average number of staff employed by the Agency during 1993–94 was 266, compared with 265 in the previous year. The final figure for 1994–95 will be published in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts. We estimate that average employment for the year was around 260.

I hope this information is helpful.

Letter from E. W. Frizzell to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Scotland has asked me to reply, in respect of the Scottish Prison Service, to your question about the loss of jobs in agencies over the last two years as a result of contracting out of work.

In the Scottish Prison Service market testing has been confined to the part of the Service that maintains buildings and services. A total of 10 establishments have been market tested and in-house teams have been successful in 9 competitions. The number of Scottish Prison Service staff involved in this area has been reduced by seventy-four over the period from 348 at 1 April 1993 to 274 at 1 April 1994. The reduction in numbers of staff largely reflects a reorganisation and restructuring of the in-house teams within the SPS. No staff were made redundant as a consequence of contractors being successful in winning the contract at one establishment.

Letter from Norman MacLeod to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995.

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your Question about jobs lost to Scottish Office Agencies in the past two years, so far as the Scottish Office Pensions Agency is concerned.

No jobs have been lost to the Agency as a result of work being taken over by contractors but measures to improve efficiency, mainly through better use of information technology, have removed the need for 5 posts. In the same period, however, a number of new posts have been created to deal with new work.

Letter from Patrick Cadell to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

In reply to your question on the number of jobs lost to agencies, I have to say that no jobs have been lost, and no jobs have disappeared as a consequence of our becoming a Next Steps Agency.

Letter from Dr. R. K. M. Hay to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply on behalf of the Scottish Agricultural Science Agency (SASA) to your recent question about jobs which have been taken over by contractors or have disappeared in the last 2 years.

In the last 2 years, 4 Security Guard posts in SASA have been taken over by contractors. To date, no posts have disappeared.

Arable Area Payments Scheme

Dr. Strang: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many claims were made in Scotland (1) for set-aside and (2) in total under the arable area payments scheme in (i) 1993–94 and (ii) in 1994–95 of (a) between £0 and £5,000, (b) between £5,001 and £10,000, (c) between £10,001 and £15,000, (d) between £15,001 and £20,000, (e) between £20,001 and £25,000, (f) between £25,001 and £50,000, (g) between £50,001 and £75,000, (h) between £75,001 and £100,000, (i) between £100,001 and £150,000, (j) between £150,001 and £200,000, (k) between £200,001 and £1 million and (1) over £1 million; and what is his latest estimate of the number of claims that will be made in 1995–96 in each value band. [18632]

Sir Hector Monro [holding answer 5 April 1995]: The numbers of claims made by farmers in Scotland under the arable area payments scheme in the scheme years 1993 and 1994 were as follows:

ENVIRONMENT

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report; [20195]

(2) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20194]

Sir Paul Beresford: Contributions to the annual report are prepared by all sections of the Department. Staff time spent on this activity is not separately recorded, and it is not therefore possible to give a valid estimate of the costs involved.

Public Sector Housing (Northamptonshire)

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list for each district authority in Northamptonshire the total discounted value of public sector flats and houses sold in each year since 1991–92. [20279]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The latest information on total discounted values of dwellings sold by local authorities in Northamptonshire between April 1991 and December 1994 is given in the table. Actual cash receipts in any year will depend on the extent to which sales were financed by loans from the authorities.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is his latest estimate of the number of local authority tenants not in receipt of housing benefit for each local authority in Northamptonshire. [20267]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Based on returns from local authorities for 1994–95, the Department's latest estimates for the numbers of local authority tenants not in receipt of housing benefit in each local authority in Northamptonshire are as follows:

| Local authority | Council tenants not on housing benefit |
|---|---|
| Corby | 3,500 |
| Daventry | 1,600 |
| East Northampton | 1,800 |
| Kettering | 1,700 |
| Northampton | 5,600 |
| South Northampton | 1,500 |
| Wellingborough | 2,500 |

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will publish the total number of households accepted by each local authority in Northamptonshire for each year since 1992–93 for securing permanent accommodation under the homeless provisions of the Housing (Homeless Persons) Act 1977 and subsequent legislation. [20278]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Local authorities report the number of households for whom they accept responsibility to secure permanent accommodation under the homelessness provisions of the 1985 Housing Act in their quarterly P1(E) returns.

I refer my hon. Friend to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government, Housing and Urban Regeneration gave for the information covering the years 1992 to 1994 to the hon. Member for Greenwich (Mr. Raynsford) on 4 April 1995, Official Report, column 1049.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the total usable receipts held by each local authority in Northamptonshire on 30 March for each year since 1983. [20270]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The total usable capital receipts held at 31 March in each year from 1990 onwards are given in the table. Information is not available on a comparable basis for years prior to the introduction of the current capital control system in 1990.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many dwellings were owned by each district council in Northamptonshire at the time the right to buy was introduced; how many are owned at the latest date; what percentage that is of the original figure. [20268]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Local authorities in England report the number of dwellings they own on their annual housing investment programme returns. The numbers of dwellings reported by each local authority in Northamptonshire at 1 April 1980 have been compared with those at 1 April 1994, the latest information available.

| Local authority | (1) Stock of dwellings at 1 April 1994 | (2) Stock of dwellings at 1 April 1980 | (1) as a percentage of (2) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Corby | 7,631 | 13,628 | 56.0 |

| South Northamptonshire | 3,667 | 5,745 | 63.8 |
| Wellingborough | 5,845 | 7,750 | 75.4 |

Right to buy was introduced in October 1980. Changes in local authorities' dwelling stocks include other losses and gains apart from sales through the right to buy. In the case of Northampton district council, the 1994 stock reflects the acquisition of some 6,400 dwellings from the Commission for the New Towns in April 1985.

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many people were employed by each local authority in Northamptonshire (a) full time and (b) part time in each year since 1983. [20272]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The available information is given in the table.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give the number and location of Building Research Establishment, Ordnance Survey, Planning Inspectorate, Security Facilities Executive and Buying Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20304]

Sir Paul Beresford: One Ordnance Survey post in Edinburgh has been lost as the result of work transferring from Scotland to England during the past five years.

Construction Industry

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his answer of 4 April, Official Report, columns 1052–53, which other Departments have submitted their views to the consultants regarding a single test for contractors and consultants for public sector projects. [20208]

Mr. Robert. B. Jones: During the course of its commission, Capita Management Consultancy Ltd. has consulted representatives from the following Government Departments and agencies: Her Majesty's Treasury, the Ministry of Defence, the Prison Service, the Scottish Office, the Houses of Parliament, the Parliamentary Works Directorate, the Benefits Agency, NHS Estates, the Department of Transport, the Department of the Environment and Cadw: Welsh Historic Monuments.

Housing Renewal Programmes

Mr. Rooker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he expects to announce the result of his consultation on private housing renewal programmes. [20349]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: In due course.

Renewal Areas

Mr. Rooker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what considerations led his Department to commission a review of the operation of renewal areas; who is carrying out the review; and when it is expected to report. [20348]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: We wish to establish what local authorities have done to progress declared renewal areas, what they have achieved and whether any further guidance from the Department would be helpful. The research project is being undertaken by Austin Mayhead and Company Ltd., which is due to report in July.

LIFE Programme

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement on the scope of the EC LIFE programme on the environment over the period 1996 to 1999, indicating how it has changed from the first phase and those areas where the United Kingdom or British-based companies can benefit from the LIFE programme. [20383]

Mr. Atkins: The Commission of the European Communities adopted a proposal for the second phase of the LIFE programme on 12 April 1995. This proposal will now go through the Council of Ministers and the European Parliament under the co-operation procedure. Until this process has been completed, the scope of the programme cannot be known for certain, but it seems likely that United Kingdom companies will continue to be able to benefit in areas such as new cleaner technologies.

Corncrake

Ms Quin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will make a statement regarding the disappearance of the corncrake from mainland Britain and what proposals he has to encourage its reintroduction to the countryside. [20244]

Mr. Atkins: The population of the corncrake started to decline in the 19th century and current figures suggest that there are between 500 and 600 pairs in Britain. The present population is primarily concentrated in Scotland where they nest in pasture and rough grassland.

Since 1991, the Government have been involved in schemes in Scotland to provide financial incentives to landowners and farmers to introduce farming methods which are more conducive to breeding corncrakes. The corncrake is a candidate species under consideration by the biodiversity steering group for an individual action plan to improve its conservation status. The steering group will report later this year.

Unitary Authorities

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment to what extent his proposal to establish a unitary authority for Wokingham is consistent with his proposals to create unitary authorities in other shire county areas. [20794]

Mr. Curry: In taking our decisions for each county we sought to achieve a structure which would best combine effective and convenient local government in the area with a reflection of local identities and interests. With regard to our decisions on Berkshire, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 21 March 1995 to my hon. Friend the Member for Eastbourne (Mr. Waterson), Official Report, columns 123-28.

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many representatives he has received (a) in support of and (b) against his proposals to establish six unitary local authorities in Berkshire. [20796]

Mr. Curry: Prior to our announcement on the future local government structure in Berkshire we received some 5,400 letters, two petitions totalling some 14,300 signatures and 135 pro-forma leaflets. Many of the opinions expressed did not directly relate to our proposal for a six unitary structure. Since the announcement on 21 March, we have received 13 letters, three of which are in favour of the proposal and 10 against.

Electoral Registration Officers

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list (a) the budget available to and (b) the actual expenditure by electoral registration officers in each individual council area, for the most recent year for which figures are available. [20489]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: I have placed the available information in the Library of the House.

Capital Expenditure (Housing)

Mrs. Maddock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what was the sum total in constant prices of allocated housing capital expenditure, including housing investment programme allocation, approved development programme allocation, additional credit approvals, specified capital grants and expenditure on housing within the single regeneration budget, and any equivalent schemes and allocations which have previously existed, for (a) 1978–79, (b) 1994–95 and (c) 1995–96 in (i) each region and (ii) each housing authority area in England. [19887]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Information on housing investment programme allocations for 1978–79 for each local authority in England is available in the Library.

For housing investment programme and approved development programme allocations in England in 1994–95 and 1995–96 I refer the hon. Member to my answer to her question on Thursday 16 February 1995, Official Report, column 799.

For the housing partnership fund, the cash incentive scheme and the flats over shops scheme allocations for 1994–95, I refer the hon. Member to my answer to her question on Thursday 16 February 1995, Official Report, column 799.

Allocations for the housing partnership fund and the cash incentive scheme for 1995–96 have now been made and I have placed in the Library copies of the Department's press notices which announced allocations by English local authority area for these schemes in 1995–96.

The GDP market price deflator given in the table can be used to exclude the effect of general inflation.

| | GDP deflator 1978–79 = 100 |
|---|---|
| 1978–79 | 100.0 |
| 1994–95 | 292.3 |
| 1995–96 | 301.8 |

The single regeneration budget challenge fund promotes an integrated approach to local regeneration and it is not possible to identify separately the resources directed at housing. However, we estimate that about 70 of the schemes approved in the first round have a significant housing content and these schemes are expected to receive about £80 million of SRB resources in 1995–96. In addition, the SRB also provides resources for continuing commitments under the estate action programmes and for housing action trusts.

Local authorities also fund capital expenditure on housing from usable capital receipts and revenue contributions to capital. A number of the programmes lever in additional resources from the private sector.

Environmentally Sensitive Areas

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what amount of environmentally sensitive area grant budget for 1994–95 is still uncommitted (a) in cash and (b) as a percentage of the budget; and if he will make a statement on underspending in environmentally sensitive areas budget for 1993–94 and 1994–95. [19965]

Mr. Jack: I have been asked to reply.

Expenditure in 1994–95 on payments to farmers in English ESAs was, provisionally, £20.1 million, which represents 65 per cent. of the total provision of £31 million.

Six new ESAs were launched in 1993 and a further six in 1994, in respect of which first payments will be made in 1995–96. This brings the total in England to 22. Participation is voluntary and interest in the new schemes is growing as farmers become more familiar with the requirements.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20496]

Sir Paul Beresford: Details of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by my department are listed in the Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 1994". A copy is available in the House of Commons Library. In addition to the bodies listed in that publication the Department now sponsors two further executive non-departmental public bodies. These are:

Stonebridge housing action trust, Brent
The National Forest Company

Each of these organisations produces and publishes an annual report and accounts. Production of the annual report is a statutory requirement except for the Letchworth Garden City corporation and the UK Eco-Labelling Board. Production of the annual accounts is a statutory requirement in all cases.

Housing action trusts voluntarily make the agendas and minutes for their meetings, except for confidential items, available to the public. Letchworth Garden City corporation voluntarily provides summary minutes available to the public. The minutes and agenda of meetings of the National Rivers Authority statutory committees—the flood defence, rivers advisory and fisheries advisory committees—are open to inspection by members of the public who attend meetings of these committees.

From 1995, registers of members' interests will voluntarily be made available for public inspection by all of the listed organisations with the exception of Letchworth Garden City corporation, the London residuary body, the Joint Nature Conservation Committee and the British Board of Agrement.

Dr Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators, and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20656]

Sir. Paul Beresford: Details of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by my department are listed in the Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 1994". A copy is available in the House of Commons Library. In addition to the bodies listed in that publication the Department now sponsors two further executive non-departmental public bodies. These are:

Stonebridge housing action trust, Brent
The National Forest Company

All these 33 organisations are subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner with the exception of the Audit Commission, the British Board of Agrement, Letchworth Garden City corporation, the National Forest Company, the six housing action trusts and the London Pensions Fund Authority. The six housing action trusts and the London Pensions Fund Authority are subject to investigation by the Commission for Local Administration.

The London Pensions Fund Authority and the London residuary body are subject to scrutiny by the Audit Commission.

All the organisations can be subjected to scrutiny by the National Audit Office.

All the Departments' executive non-departmental public bodies are expected to adopt the Department's code of practice on open government or adopt a similar code of their own. This is not a statutory code. They are all expected to have key performance measures and targets, information on which is reported in their annual reports; and to abide by the citizens charter.

EMPLOYMENT

Parliamentary Questions

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many parliamentary questions to his Department in each year since 1979–80 requesting a priority written answer or answer on a named day, were answered within three days; how many received a holding reply; and how many of those which received a holding reply then received a substantive answer within a further five, 10, 15, 20 days or longer. [18542]

Miss Widdecombe: The information requested is available only from 12 November 1990 and is detailed in the following table:

| Total number of priority and named day questions answered | Total number of questions answered within 3 days | Questions answered (where a holding reply has been sent) within (working days): 5 | 10 | 15 | 20 | 20+ |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| [1]3,439 | 3,037 | 361 | 17 | 9 | 9 | 6 |

[1] Information provided up to and including 31 March 1995.

Mrs. Ann Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many times in each year since 1979–80 his Department has written to a right hon. or hon. Member correcting an answer to a parliamentary question. [18544]

Miss Widdecombe: The information requested is available only from 1 January 1992. The Department has written to right hon. or hon Members on 12 occasions to correct answers to parliamentary questions. The information is detailed in the following table:

| Year | Number of replies issued correcting an answer to a parliamentary question |
|---|---|
| 1992 | 1 |
| 1993 | 6 |
| 1994 | 3 |
| 1995[1] | 2 |

[1]Information provided up to and including 6 April 1995.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Ms Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 22 March, Official Report, column 247, what will be the maximum number of hours unemployed people receiving the jobseeker's allowance will be able to undertake on training and education courses provided by those independent European social fund courses not directly funded by the Further Education Council; and if he will make a statement. [19724]

Miss Widdecombe: People claiming jobseeker's allowance will be able to undertake part-time courses, provided they remain available for and actively seek employment. That carries forward existing arrangements. The rules will, however, be updated to reflect changes in education definitions. Until recently, further education courses were classed by colleges as full or part time, with a threshold of 21 hours per week of supervised study, which could include some private study. Each case was looked at on its merits. This system has now changed, however, and courses funded by the Further Education Funding Council are organised on the basis of guided learning hours. The JSA rules will take account of this change and claimants will be able to undertake FEFC–funded courses of up to 16 guided learning hours per week. Jobseekers will be able to undertake private study in addition to this, as long as they remain available for work and are actively seeking employment. This is designed to allow the same number of claimants to undertake courses as do so under the current arrangements. There will be no such change for courses that are not funded by the FEFC, including any funded by the European social fund. For these, the upper limit will generally continue to be 21 hours per week, with, as now, each case being decided on its merits.

Health and Safety Executive

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what advice he will give to the Health and Safety Executive in light of its recommendation that the production of refractory ceramic fibre should cease. [20015]

Mr. Oppenheim: The Health and Safety Executive has not recommended that the production of refractory ceramic fibres should cease. The European Commission is preparing a proposal for the classification of refractory ceramic fibres which would require an appropriate hazard warning label to be used when those materials are supplied.

Safety Reports

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what considerations have led to full safety reports prepared pursuant to the requirements of the Control of Industrial Major Accident Hazards Regulations 1984, S.I.,1984, No. 1902, as amended, for the Health and Safety Executive not being made publicly available on request. [20381]

Mr. Oppenheim: Safety reports are relevant information for the purposes of section 28 of the Health and Safety at Work, etc., Act 1974, whose disclosure is permitted only in specified circumstances.

Relevant information may be disclosed with the consent of the person who supplied it or for use in court proceedings or where its disclosure would be for the purposes of the Health and Safety Executive's functions. None of these would allow the general public availability of these reports.

Any environmental information in a safety report will be made available on request under the Environmental Information Regulations 1992, subject to the excepted categories of information in those regulations.

Seveso Directive

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what information Her Majesty's Government have received from the European Commission in regard to the recent submission by Friends of the Earth United Kingdom to the Commission requesting that the United Kingdom be prosecuted for non–compliance with the Seveso directive, 80/501/EEC. Mr. Oppenheim: None.

Pay Increases (Engineering Industry)

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what has been the average percentage increase in real pay of workers in the engineering industry since 1979. [20560]

Mr. Oppenheim: The average percentage increase in real pay for mechanical engineering, since 1979, is 44 per cent.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20655]

Miss Widdecombe: The following executive non-departmental public bodies are sponsored by the Department:

All the organisations listed, except for Remploy, are subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner. EOC and NCVQ are subject to scrutiny by the Audit Commission.

All the organisations listed are subject to scrutiny by the National Audit Office. All except for Remploy and IiP UK are subject to statutory provisions for open government in one form or another. HSC/E, EOC, Remploy and IiP UK are subject to performance indicators. All the organisations listed have published citizens charter service standards with the exception of the EOC, which intends to do so, NCVQ and Remploy.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20495]

Miss Widdecombe: The following executive non-departmental public bodies are sponsored by the Department:

Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service
Commissioner for the Rights of Trade Union Members
Commissioner for Protection Against Unlawful Trade Union Action
Construction Industry Training Board
Engineering Construction Industrial Training Board
Equal Opportunities Commission
Health and Safety Commission and Executive National Council for Vocational Qualifications
Remploy Ltd.
Investors in People (IiP) UK

All the organisations listed, except for Remploy and IiP UK, are required by statute to publish annual reports and accounts and Remploy and IiP UK also do so. None of the organisations listed publishes the agendas and minutes of meetings. Remploy voluntarily produces a register of directors' interests which can be inspected at its registered office.

EDUCATION

Adult Education

13. Mr. Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received regarding local authorities' provision of adult education in 1995–96. [19180]

Mr. Boswell: My right hon. Friend has received a number of such representations.

Parental Choice

14. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps she is taking to promote parental choice; and if she will make a statement. [19181]

Mr. Forth: Parental choice is promoted by the publication of information in comparative performance tables and school prospectuses, by giving parents the right to express a preference for their choice of school and to vote for their school to become grant-maintained, by the establishment of city technology colleges, by enabling schools to become specialist technology and language colleges, by greater diversity in admission arrangements, and by the assisted places scheme.

Administration Expenditure (Local Authorities)

15. Sir Roger Moate: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment she has made of the adequacy of her powers to control expenditure on administration by local education authorities. [19183]

Mr. Robin Squire: It is for individual local education authorities to determine their own spending priorities within the resources available to them. It is to the local electorate that they must justify their decisions. I expect, however, that they will choose to give priority to front-line services, including schools.

Further Education Colleges

16. Mr. Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will make a statement on the funding of sixth form colleges and other colleges of further education. [19184]

Mr. Boswell: The funding available for FE colleges in 1995–96 will increase by 4 per cent. compared with 1994–95.

Pupil Exclusions

17. Mr. Congdon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will make a statement on the level of permanent exclusions from schools. [19185]

Mr. Forth: The Department has recently commissioned a survey to look at how local education authorities are discharging their new duty to provide education for pupils out of school by reason of exclusion or otherwise. This survey will also collect figures for permanent exclusions for the academic year 1993–94 and the period September to December 1994. The results should be available within the next month.

School Performance

18. Mr. Merchant: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessments he has made of the comparative performance of grant-maintained schools and local education authority schools. [19186]

Mr. Robin Squire: On average, grant-maintained primary schools achieve better results at key stage 1 than LEA primary schools, and grant-maintained comprehensive schools achieve better GCSE results and higher attendance rates than their LEA counterparts. These comparisons remain true even when socio-economic differences in the schools' intakes are discounted.

Older Students Allowance

19. Mr. Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many students are currently entitled to the older students allowance. [19187]

Mr. Boswell: About 32,000 students were eligible for the allowance as a part of a mandatory award in 1992–93, the latest year for which figures are available.

24. Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received regarding the withdrawal of the older students allowance. [19192]

Mr. Boswell: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations, including those from university administrators and student unions.

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many mature students were allocated the full amount of the mature students grant. [20791]

Mr. Boswell: Provisional figures for the academic year 1993–94 show that local education authorities in England and Wales made 40,000 older students' allowances as part of mandatory awards to students domiciled in their areas. The older students' allowance forms part of the mandatory award for eligible students, but because the award is means-tested it is not possible to identify how many students received the full value of the allowance within the payable award.

Technical and Mathematical Education

20. Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received from Japan about technical and mathematical education in the United Kingdom; what response she is making; and if she will make a statement. [19188]

Mr. Forth: We have received no formal representations from Japan about technical and mathematical education.

Student Financial Support

21. Mr. Canavan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent representations she has received about financial support for students; and if she will make a statement. [19189]

Mr. Boswell: My right hon. Friend has received a number of representations about financial support for students.

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list the level of grant available to students in (a) further and (b) higher education in each European Union member state for each year since 1990; and what percentage increase or decrease this represents compared to the previous year; [21007]

(2) what information she has on the projected level of grant available to students in (a) further and (b) higher education for each of the five years for each of the European Union member states; and what percentage increase or decrease this represents relative to projection for the previous year. [20869]

Mr. Boswell: Systems of financial support for students undertaking further and higher education courses vary widely across the EU, and the information requested is not available in a comparable form. The guide "The Main Systems of Financial Assistance for Students in Higher Education in the European Community", published by EURYDICE, provides a useful summary of the system in each member state. Copies were placed in the Library last year.

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what sources of funding are available to students who undertake degree courses as mature students. [20792]

Mr. Boswell: Mandatory awards and student loans are available as of right to personally eligible mature students on most full-time higher education courses. There are also various postgraduate bursary schemes. Local education authorities can make discretionary awards to mature students who are not personally eligible for mandatory awards. Access funds are available for full-time mature students and certain students have retained eligibility for some benefits.

Education, Derbyshire

22. Mr. Barnes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what representations she has received this year concerning education in Derbyshire; and if she will make a statement. [19190]

Mr. Robin Squire: Ministers have received a number of letters, covering various topics, both from the hon. Members representing Derbyshire and their constituents. In recent weeks, I have met separate delegations about capital funding for the authority's schools, one led by my hon. Friend the Member for Erewash (Mrs. Knight) and the other led by the hon. Member for Bolsover (Mr. Skinner).

School Standards

25. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what measures she is taking to boost overall standards in schools. [19193]

Mr. Robin Squire: One of the most important forces for improving standards and raising expectations is the national curriculum and its assessment. The independent schools inspectorate has confirmed that both are already helping to raise standards. The revisions to the national curriculum approved by my right hon. Friend, which come into effect from this autumn, will continue our drive for further improvement.

Other Government policies are also aimed at higher standards, including the regular inspection of publicly funded schools, the promotion of choice for parents and of greater diversity among schools, the publication in performance tables of more information about schools' attainments, and a wider-ranging programme to raise teacher training standards.

Grant-maintained Schools, East Sussex

26. Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many grant-maintained schools there are in East Sussex. [19194]

Mr. Robin Squire: None. More than 98 per cent. of parents in East Sussex have not yet had the opportunity to vote in a ballot on GM status for their children's schools.

School Funding

27. Mr. Rendel: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans she has to safeguard the funding of schools in the new unitary authorities. [19195]

Mr. Robin Squire: Each new authority will receive its fair share of the national standard spending assessment totals. It will be for the new authorities themselves to decide priorities between different services within the total resources available. The Department will be ensuring that these authorities are adequately briefed on their education responsibilities, including local management of schools.

School Places

28. Mr. Cyril D. Townsend: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans she has to amend the regulations governing the priority to be given to proximity and local authority area in the allocation of school places. [19196]

Mr. Robin Squire: Circular 6/93 advises that admission arrangements should be fair and objective, and must of course respect any judgments of the courts. The criteria that may be used in the event of oversubscription are not the subject of regulation.

Class Sizes

29. Mr. Raynsford: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the average class size in (a) private schools and (b) schools run by local education authorities for (i) primary schools and (ii) secondary schools in England. [19197]

Mr. Robin Squire: In January 1994 the average sizes of single-teacher classes in primary and secondary schools in England maintained by local education authorities were 26.9 and 21.5 respectively. These figures do not include grant-maintained schools.

Information on class sizes in independent schools is not collected centrally.

Schools' Financial Forecasts

Mr. Harry Greenway: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps she is taking to ascertain the validity of individual schools' predicted deficits or surpluses for the coming year: and if she will make a statement. [19505]

Mr. Robin Squire: The Department collects no information on individual schools' forecasts, as distinct from actual surpluses and deficits.

Higher Education Review

Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many submissions she has received to her Department for review of higher education; if she will list the organisations and individuals who have submitted evidence; and if she will publish this evidence. [19991]

Mr. Boswell: My right hon. Friend has received almost 100 submissions to her review of higher education, including copies of comments submitted to my right hon. Friends the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Wales. A list of the organisations and individuals who have commented is being placed in the Library. Subject to their agreement, we intend shortly to make their submissions publicly available.

Publications

Mr. Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list the publications she has sent to (a) primary, (b) secondary and (c) grant-maintained schools in 1994–95. [20405]

Mr. Robin Squire: During the financial year 1994–95, the DFE sent the following publications to schools.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meeting and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20491]

| Name of Body | Annual Reports | Annual Accounts | Minutes of Meetings | Agendas of Meetings | Registers of Members' interests |

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20654]

Mr. Boswell: The information requested is being collected. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

Foreign Language Teaching

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what provision is currently available in each European Union member state for the teaching of foreign languages to children under 12 years of age. [21003]

Mr. Forth: My Department does not collect information about the teaching of foreign languages in other European Union countries. I understand that relevant information can be found in the EURYDICE publication "The teaching of modern foreign languages in primary and secondary education in the European Community", which is available from the Eurydice Unit London, National Foundation for Educational Research, The Mere, Upton Park, Slough, Berkshire, SL1 2DQ.

In England and Wales, the national curriculum requires that all children must learn a modern foreign language from the first year of secondary education, that is, when the majority of pupils are 11 years old. Primary schools in England and Wales are not required to teach modern foreign languages and my Department does not collect information on the matter.

The hon. Gentleman may be interested to know, however, that the Centre for Information on Language Teaching and Research recently carried out a survey, "Modern Foreign Languages in Primary Schools", which covered England, Wales, Northern Ireland, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man. Fifty-three out of 125 local education authorities responded. The results showed that some 1,919 primary schools, or 22 per cent. of those in the sample, provided some foreign language tuition.

Questions about educational provision in Scotland and Northern Ireland should be addressed to the Secretaries of State for Scotland and for Northern Ireland.

North Yorkshire Council Education Department

Mr. Robert Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the numbers of full-time and part-time staff employed in the education department of the North Yorkshire county council for each of the last 10 years. [20831]

Mr. Robin Squire: The information is not available. Information on staff employed by local authorities is collected in a survey conducted by the Local Government Management Board, but the survey does not distinguish between staff employed in schools and those employed elsewhere.

Student Loans

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what percentage of student loan borrowers whose payments have been deferred on grounds of level of income earn (a) one half of national average earnings or less and (b) two thirds of national average earnings or less; and what percentage of those borrowers are unemployed. [20828]

Mr. Boswell: This information is not collected centrally or held by the Student Loans Company.

Pupil-teacher Ratios

Mr. David Martin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what was the pupil-teacher ratio in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Hampshire in 1979; and what are the current figures. [20789]

Pupil-teacher ratios in maintained primary and secondary schools in Hampshire local education authority area in 1979 and 1994
Position in January each year

| | Primary schools | Secondary schools |
|---|---|---|
| 1979 | 24.6 | 17.4 |
| 1994 | 22.4 | 16.4 |

Sir Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will state (a) the pupil-teacher ratio and (b) the average class size in (i) 1965, (ii) 1975, (iii) 1985 and (iv) 1995. [20393]

Mr. Robin Squire: Available information on pupil-teacher ratios and classes sizes is shown in the table. Provisional information for 1995 will be available in July.

Pupil: teacher ratios and average class sizes in maintained primary and secondary schools in England

Position in January each year

| | Pupil: teacher ratios | | [1]Average size of single teacher classes | |

[2] Figures shown for 1985 exclude sixth form colleges which ceased to be classified as schools in April 1993. Data which excludes sixth form colleges for years 1965 and 1975 are not readily available.
[3] Comparable information not available.
[4] The latest year for which information is available.

Youth Credits

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what guidance has been issued to colleges regarding the national implementation of youth credits. [20777]

Mr. Boswell: Earlier this month, the Further Education Funding Council circulated a letter to colleges clarifying the position of young people already on courses at colleges. The Department for Education, the Employment Department, the TEC National Council and the Further Education Funding Council are currently finalising a joint note containing more extensive guidance which will be circulated to colleges shortly.

University Careers Service

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the cost to her Department of the University Careers Service. [20559]

Mr. Boswell: This information is not collected centrally. Individual universities decide what careers advice services to provide for their students from within their overall resources.

National Vocational Qualifications

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will make a statement on the relative merits and successes of general national vocational qualifications and national vocational qualifications. [20575]

Mr. Boswell: General national vocational qualifications provide a broad vocational education, as a preparation for employment, further training or higher education. They are proving a great success, with over 160,000 new registrations this year. Evidence from Ofsted and the Further Education Funding Council inspectorate shows that GNVQs are motivating students of all abilities to achieve and succeed. The Government are making available an additional £29 million over the next three years to develop and improve the qualifications further, and to ensure that they are rigorous enough to claim parity of esteem with more familiar qualifications.

Substantial progress has also been made with NVQs, which are the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Employment: 86 per cent. of the employed population is now covered by NVQs and almost 765,000 have been awarded. The Government are determined that all NVQs should be of consistently high quality; to that end, a survey of the top 100 NVQs is being carried out this year, with all NVQs being reviewed by March 1998.

DEFENCE

BMARC

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information he has on the export of arms to (a) Iran and (b) Iraq by BMARC between 1988 and 1991. [19081]

Mr. Freeman: No licences were granted for the export of defence equipment from BMARC to Iran between 1988 and 1991. The question of the export of defence equipment to Iraq between 1984 and 1990 is being considered by Sir Richard Scott's inquiry and it would be inappropriate for me to comment until Sir Richard has reported. A trade and economic embargo against Iraq prohibited the export of such equipment from 8 August 1990.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department was first informed of allegations that Singapore was a conduit for arms exported by the company BMARC to Iran. [19078]

Mr. Freeman: As far as can be ascertained, the Ministry of Defence first became aware of these allegations during evidence given to the Trade and Industry Select Committee, HC 86-x 1991-9.

Porton Down Experiments

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what occasions his Department has paid financial compensation to individuals as a consequence of experiments carried out at Porton Down, which experiments resulted in the payment of compensation; and how much compensation was paid. [20848]

Mr. Freeman: None. In no case over the past 40 years has injury or illness been shown to have resulted from participation in studies at Porton Down.

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will specify the total number of people who have been used in (a) radiological, (b) chemical and (c) biological experiments by his Department in each of the last 30 years. [20850]

Mr. Freeman: A small number of volunteers have taken part in ethically supervised studies, involving the low intake of short-lived radio-isotopes, over many years. The total number involved is not held centrally. The number of volunteers participating in experiments at the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment in each of the last 30 years was set out in the answer given to the hon. Member for Leeds, Central (Mr. Fatchett) on 20 March, Official Report, column 77.

Nuclear Weapons

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what experiments his Department have undertaken to determine the extent and effect of a nuclear attack on a British city. [20972]

Mr. Freeman: Studies have been conducted over many years to assess the effects of nuclear weapons.

Official Service Residences

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the number of overnight guests staying at each of his Department's official service residences during the last five years. [20849]

Mr. Freeman: The number of overnight guests staying at official service residences are shown in the table, but information is available only for the periods shown in the table. A number of OSRs, particularly those in London, are not large enough to accommodate guests. In addition, the number of overnight stays may be understated in some cases because records have not always been retained, particularly where a change of occupancy has occurred.

Grade 7: 1
Senior economic assistant: 1

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 9 March, Official Report, column 349, how much in total was spent by his Department on central consultancy contracts in 1993–94; and if he will list the 10 most valuable central consultancy contracts issued that year, indicating the nature of the work undertaken, the body awarded the contract and the fee paid, in each case. [19997]

Mr. Freeman: The number and value of consultancy contracts are not recorded centrally; thus the information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Trident

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Trident D5 II missiles have been procured; and how many more he intends to procure; [19107]

(2) how many MK6 guidance systems for Trident missiles are to be procured for the United Kingdom. [19109]

Mr. Freeman: The UK has procured 44 Trident D5 missiles to date. Final decisions have yet to be taken on how many more missiles are to be procured. The intention is to procure sufficient guidance sytems to support the eventual number of UK missiles.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretaryof State for Defence if the United States authorities have made any increase in the price of D5 missiles due to reductions in the overall rate of manufacture of these missiles; and if he will make a statement. [19108]

Mr. Freeman: Price negotiated for the next order of Tirdent D5 missiles will not be finalised until late this year, following the annual US authorisation and appropriations process.

Mr. Home Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many spare MK6 guidance systems are to be deployed in each United Kingdom Trident submarine. [19110]

Mr. Freeman: Each UK Trident submarine will generally carry one spare MK6 guidance system per four missiles.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20492]

Mr. Freeman: The information requested in respect of MOD's executive non-departmental public bodies is as follows:

(a) and (b) there is a statutory right for the public to inspect the annual accounts for all the service museums, held by the Charities Commission; and for the annual report and accounts in respect of the Services Sound and Vision Corporation, held at Companies House and the Oil and Pipelines Agency. The OPA's annual report and accounts are also laid before each House of Parliament.

(c) and (d) the public do not have a statutory right to attend board meetings or to inspect the minutes of meetings of any of MOD's executive NDPBs.

(e) appointees for the OPA and SSVC are required to declare any personal interests and records are maintained. In the case of the SSVC any director's disclosures are also registered at Companies House.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20653]

Mr. Freeman: Although none of my Department's executive non-departmental public bodies are subject to (a) or (b), they are all subject to the remaining provisions.

University Air Squadrons

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many undergraduates are currently flying members of each university air squadron in 1994–95. [20846]

Mr. Freeman: The number of undergraduates who were flying members of each university air squadron on 1 March is as follows:

|---|---|
| Aberdeen, Dundee and St. Andrews | 42 |
| Birmingham | 47 |
| Bristol | 51 |
| Cambridge | 45 |
| East Lowlands | 47 |
| East Midlands | 53 |
| Glasgow and Strathclyde | 36 |
| Liverpool | 43 |
| London | 88 |
| Manchester and Salford | 47 |
| Northumbrian | 48 |
| Oxford | 54 |
| Queen's | 46 |
| Southampton | 57 |
| Wales | 43 |
| Yorkshire | 54 |

Squadron commanders are encouraged to recruit slightly in excess of the student pilot establishment at the start of each academic year to allow for those who subsequently drop out from training.

RAF Valley

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received with respect to the decision not to submit an in-house bid in the market-testing exercise for the support services at RAF Valley during the current financial year. [20863]

Mr. Freeman: The proposal for contractorisation of support services at RAF Valley without an in-house bid is currently the subject of national consultation. Consultation started on 20 April 1995 and ends on 5 June 1995. No representations have yet been received.

Market Testing

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what proportion of market-testing exercises under his Department's rubric in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95 have not been accompanied by in-house bids; what is the anticipated proportion of market-testing exercises without in-house bids during 1995–96. [20865]

Mr. Freeman: Market testing is an integral part of the wider "Competing for Quality" process, and involves testing the efficiency of an in-house service by exposing it to competition with commercial bidders.

In the 12-month period from 1 October 1993 to 30 September 1994, 42 defence support activities were subjected to the "Competing for Quality" process, of which five were market-tested and two were won by the in-house bid.

From 1 October 1994 to date, of the 23 activities examined only one has been subject to a market test. This was won by a commercial bidder.

It is not known what the anticipated proportion of market-testing exercises will be in 1995–96. This will depend on the outcome of feasibility studies which determine how best activities can be exposed to competition from the private sector.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what guidelines he has issued to the Royal Air Force with respect to the circumstances in which the Air Force (a) will and (b) will not submit in-house bids in market-testing exercises for support services at RAF stations. [20864]

Mr. Freeman: No guidelines have been issued to the Royal Air Force with respect to the submission of in-house bids in market-testing exercises for support services at RAF stations. The circumstances of each activity or function will differ and each is looked at individually under the "Competing for Quality" procedures. Market testing is encouraged wherever it is the appropriate way forward.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State of Defence what target has been set for out-of-house successes in bids under market-testing procedures undertaken during the present financial year. [20866]

Mr. Freeman: No targets are set for out-of-house successes in bids under market-testing procedures in any financial year. The outcome of a market test is based solely on the merits and value for money and quality of service demonstrated by competing bidders.

Aircraft Leases

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many aircraft have been leased overseas in each of the last 10 years; and if he will specify the type of aircraft leased. [18296]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 4 April 1995]: The only lease of MOD aircraft in the last 10 years to 31 March 1995 for which records can be found was of VC10 K3 tanker aircraft to the Italian air force on one occasion in 1987 and twice in 1988.

TRANSPORT

Foreign-registered Ships

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many British-owned ships, excluding ferries, are registered under foreign flags; and under which flags they are registered. [19295]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is as follows:

United Kingdom owned vessels[1] registered under foreign flags[2] at 31 December 1994

| | Number of vessels of 100 gross tons and over | | |

[1] Excluding ro-ro cargo and ro-ro passenger vessels.
[2] This is excluding ships registered in the UK, Crown dependencies, and dependent territories.
[3] Such as fishing vessels, tugs and offshore support vessels, together with passenger or cargo vessels deemed to be non-trading because of their current use.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many ferries operating from British ports are registered under foreign flags; and under which flags they are registered. [19297]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of foreign flagged ferries operating from ports in the United Kingdom.

As of 6 April 1995, there were 42 foreign registered ferries sailing from ports in the UK under the following flags:-

Bahamas
Belgium
Cyprus
Denmark
Eire
Faeroes
France
Greece
Netherlands
Norway
Sweden

Shipping Safety

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to delegate to classification societies (a) hull and machinery surveys on ferries and (b) any other inspections currently carried out by the Marine Safety Agency. [19296]

Mr. Norris: Regulations to allow the delegation of hull and machinery surveys on passenger ships are expected to be laid before Parliament shortly. These will not include delegation of hull and machinery surveys for roll-on roll-off ferries which will continue to be conducted by surveyors from the Marine Safety Agency. Pending the completion of work on ferry safety currently being undertaken in the International Maritime Organisation following the loss of the Estonia, it has been decided not to delegate these surveys to the originally planned timescale. There are no plans to delegate inspections currently carried out by the Marine Safety Agency.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many ships, excluding ferries, have been prevented from sailing by the Marine Safety Agency because they have not met safety standards over the last two years; which flags they were sailing under; and in which respects they failed to meet the standards. [19298]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of foreign flagged ships, excluding ferries, which have been prevented from sailing by the Marine Safety Agency (MSA) over the last two years.

Between January and December 1993 the Surveyor General's Organisation (as the MSA then was) detained 174 foreign flagged ships. Over the same period in 1994, the MSA detained 224 vessels. The ships were registered with the following states.

Flag state
Antilles Netherlands
Antigua and Barbuda

Azerbaijan
Bahamas
Belize
Bulgaria
Union of Myanmar
People's Republic of China
Cyprus
Denmark
France
Germany
Greece
Guinea-Bissau
Honduras
Iceland
India
Ireland
Italy
Latvia
Lebanon
Liberia
Lithuania
Luxemburg
Malta
Mexico Morocco
Netherlands
Nigeria
Norway
Pakistan
Panama
Peru
Philippines
Poland
Portugal
Romania
Russia
Spain
St. Vincent and Grenadines
Sweden
Syria
Taiwan
Tunisia
Turkey
Ukraine
Vanuatu
Venezuela

In general, vessels were detained for failure to meet the standards for life saving, fire detection and fire fighting equipment, contravention of the load line provisions, deficiencies in radio installation, navigational equipment and the ship's structure. Detention was also imposed for failure to meet manning requirements and poor operational procedures. A summary of the defects which led to the detention of a ship can be found in the list of ships under detention in UK ports which has been published by the MSA each month since June 1994.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many ferries have been prevented from sailing by the Marine Safety Agency because they have not met safety standards over the last two years; which flags they were flying under; and in which respects they failed to meet the standards. [19299]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of ferries prevented from sailing by the Marine Safety Agency (MSA) over the last two years.

One ferry has been detained by the MSA in the last two years. In October 1994, during the inspection campaign conducted by the MSA after the loss of the ESTONIA, the Danish registered WINSTON CHURCHILL was detained when her stern door was found to be leaking after a hose test, due to failure of the rubber seal.

Marine Safety Agency

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what was the budget of the Marine Safety Agency for the last two years; and what are the estimated budgets for this year and the next two years. [19300]

Mr. Norris: The gross budgets for the Marine Safety Agency for the financial years 1993–94 to 1997–98 are as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1993–94 | [1]28.5 |
| 1994–95 | 31.7 |
| 1995–96 | 30.8 |
| 1996–97 | 30.0 |
| 1997–98 | 30.0 |

[1] The Marine Safety Agency was not launched until 1 April 1994. The figure given for 1993–94 relates to the part of the Department of Transport which preceded the agency.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what controls the Marine Safety Agency has over ships sailing in British waters which do not dock in British ports. [19301]

Mr. Norris: International law limits the right of coastal states to interfere with foreign-flagged ships exercising the right of innocent passage through territorial waters or transit passage through straits used in international navigation. Only if the ship has been involved in an accident or poses a threat of pollution or threatens the peace or security of the coastal state can the coastal state intervene.

The position of foreign-flagged ships anchored or operating in territorial waters, and not on innocent or transit passage, is different, and Lord Donaldson's report, "Safer Ships, Cleaner Seas", recommended that we should extend our powers in respect of such ships to the maximum extent allowed under international law. The Department will shortly issue a consultation paper on how this can be achieved. The consultation paper will take account of changes stemming from the recent adoption of an EC directive on port state control which provides for the inspection and, if appropriate, detention of foreign-flagged vessels anchored near a port or offshore installation.

Ferries (Evacuation Procedures)

Mr. Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State how many ferries operating out of British ports do not have facilities for 100 per cent. dry shod evacuation. [19302]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Mr. Paul Flynn, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your question about the number of ferries operating with facilities for 100% dry-shod evacuation.

At present there are 49 vessels of British registry operating out of United Kingdom ports and of these 45 have 100% dry-shod evacuation capability.

With regard to the 45 foreign vessels the information requested is not available but the vessels must comply with the International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS). Under that convention those constructed since 1 July 1986 will have the facility for over 100% dry-shod evacuation. As older ships are replaced the number with less than 100% dry shod evacuation will reduce.

Herald of Free Enterprise Report

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the long-term recommendations of the Herald of Free Enterprise report have not yet been implemented; and when he expects these to be implemented. [19303]

Mr. Norris: All of the recommendations of the court of inquiry into the loss of the Herald of Free Enterprise have been taken forward. Of the long-term recommendations, after consultation and consideration, two were considered unnecessary and two others were addressed in alternative ways.

The Government believe that there are no recommendations left to be implemented. All have been considered and action taken where appropriate.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the recommendations of the report into the Herald of Free Enterprise which to date have not been implemented and the target dates for implementation. [19388]

Mr. Norris: All the recommendations of the court of inquiry into the loss of the Herald of Free Enterprise have been taken forward. After consultation and consideration, one recommendation was not supported at the time and some others were not developed further in the light of subsequent technical appraisal, or were taken forward in ways different to those recommended by the inquiry for reasons of technical practicality or because of international developments.

The Government believe that there are no recommendations left to be implemented. All have been considered and action taken where appropriate.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20506]

Mr. Norris: The information is as follows:

(a) The London Regional Passengers Committee and Traffic Director for London, each under a statutory requirement.

(b) The Traffic Director for London publishes annual accounts under a statutory requirement. My right hon. Friend is required by statute to lay before Parliament the accounts of the general lighthouse fund which consolidate the accounts of the general lighthouse authorities; the Corporation of Trinity House, the Commissioners of Northern Lighthouses and the Commissioners of Irish Lights. On a voluntary basis, the LRPC's accounts will, for the first time, be published in the annual report for 1994–95.

(c) Minutes of LRPC meetings are voluntarily circulated to interested organisations and made available to members of the public who attend meetings and to anyone else on request. As a statutory requirement, the LRPC sends minutes of meetings to my right hon. Friend, the Rail Regulator and the Central Rail Users Consultative Committee.

(d) The LRPC voluntarily circulates agendas of meetings to the press, local authorities and transport user groups and makes them available to members of the public on request.

(e) None.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20666]

Mr. Norris: The information is as follows:

(a) Traffic Director for London
Northern Lighthouse Board
Trinity House
London Regional Passengers Committee.

(b) and (c) Information on audit arrangements for all four bodies in (a), except the London Regional Passengers Committee, is set out in "Public Bodies 1994". From 1994–95 the LRPC is to be subject to NAO scrutiny.

(d) As for (a), where this is regarded as meaning compliance with the code of practice on open government.

(e) Performance indicators have been set for the Traffic Director for London. The London Regional Passengers Committee sets its own performance targets. A system of indicators for the general lighthouse authorities is under discussion.

(f) All bodies are encouraged to follow the principles of the citizens charter.

Road Accidents (Over-60s)

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what were the quarterly figures for deaths in road accidents for people aged 60 years and over in Birmingham for 1990 to 1994; and what were (a) the national figures for 1990 to 1994 and (b) the figures for his Department's baseline years of 1991 to 1985. [20800]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is shown in the following table. Data for 1994 are not yet available.

Road accidents fatalities to people aged 60 and over: Birmingham metropolitan district council and Great Britain 1990–1993

Fatalities

Transport Security Report

Mr. Hawkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will publish the 1993–94 annual report of the Director and Co-ordinator of Transport Security. [21195]

Mr. Norris: I am today placing copies of this report in the Library of the House.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will give the number and location of Coastguard, Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Driving Standards Agency, Highways Agency, Marine Safety Agency, Transport Research Laboratory, Vehicle Certification Agency and Vehicle Inspectorate offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as a result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the UK over the same period. [20298]

Mr. Norris: No Coastguard, Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Driving Standards Agency, Highways Agency, Marine Safety Agency, Transport Research Laboratory, Vehicle Certification Agency and Vehicle Inspectorate offices have been closed or jobs lost or transferred from Scotland as a result of agency work transferring to the rest of the UK over the past five years; and no offices have been opened or jobs gained in Scotland as a result of agency work transferring to Scotland over the same period. Changes in the organisation of the Driving Standards Agency's work led to a reduction of 7.5 posts in the Department's traffic area office in Edinburgh and an increase of five posts in the agency's Newcastle office.

Transport Research Laboratory

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the secretary of State for Transport, how many jobs he estimates will be lost as a consequence of the sale of the Transport Research Laboratory. [20562]

Mr. Norris: No jobs will be lost as a consequence of the sale of the Transport Research Laboratory. Staffing levels at the laboratory will continue to reflect management's view of the skills and resources required to meet the future demand for its services.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if it is his intention to make the information memorandum on the sale of the Transport Research Laboratory publicly available; and what are the reasons for his decision on this matter. [20585]

Mr. Norris: It is not my right hon. Friend's intention to make the information memorandum on the sale of the Transport Research Laboratory publicly available, because it will contain commercially confidential information, the disclosure of which would be prejudicial to the sale process and the laboratory's competitive position.

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport, pursuant to his statement on the privatisation of the Transport Research Laboratory, what is the nature and duration of the guarantees of future work. [20584]

Mr. Norris: The Government intend to offer the Transport Research Laboratory contracts for future research work, subject to the delivery of high-quality, independent and impartial research at competitive prices. Details of the proposed guarantees will be included in the information memorandum which is expected to be available to interested parties by the end of June.

Metropolitan Railway Grant

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to ensure that the former metropolitan railway grant, now to form part of standard spending assessments, will be transparent. [29484]

Mr. Watts: My right hon. Friend proposes to replace the current temporary arrangements with an enhancement of the standard spending assessment "bolt on" grant, with effect from 1996–97. That proposal has been set out in a consultation paper, which was circulated to the passenger transport executives in March.

The final formula for the distribution of the "bolt on" between individual PTEs will be made available to the passenger transport authorities and the constituent metropolitan district councils. The "bolt on" allocated for each PTE will be published in the local government finance report. The allocation of the "bolt on" for each PTE to constituent metropolitan district councils will continue to be on the basis of total resident population. The Department will also be prepared to write to any individual constituent metropolitan district council to confirm its allocation of the "bolt on", and to state that it has resulted in a corresponding increase in its SSA, and therefore a corresponding increase in revenue support grant for that authority.

Bull Bars

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what is his Department's estimate of the additional deaths and serious injuries a year caused to pedestrians by crash bars fitted to vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [20469]

Mr. Norris: Experimental research has suggested that the increased fitting of bull bars could lead to 35 additional deaths and 350 additional serious injuries in the United Kingdom each year by 1996. We do not, however, yet have any accident-based evidence. Pedestrian injury accidents involving bull bars are currently being identified by the police for investigation by the Transport Research Laboratory. We will have a fuller picture when the reports of these accidents have been analysed towards the end of this year.

London City Airport

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will include London city airport within the scope of the study that he announced recently on rail links between London's airports. [20485]

Mr. Norris: Yes.

Stansted Airport

Mr. Haselhurst: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice he has received from the Civil Aviation Authority regarding the earliest possible year under all conventional scenarios which they are now forecasting for Stansted airport to reach a passenger throughput of 8 million passengers per annum. [20820]

Mr. Norris: The last detailed advice produced by the CAA was CAP 570 which was published in 1990. This indicated that Stansted airport was likely to reach a throughput of 8 million passengers per annum some time between 1995 and 2000. The report of—RUCATSE—the runway capacity to serve the south-east working group, which was published in 1993 and in which the CAA played a major role, forecast that Stansted would reach a throughput of 8 million passengers per annum soon after the year 2000.

Comparative Safety Assessments

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessments he had made, prior to the accident in the Channel Islands on 17 April, of the comparative safety of (a) roll-on roll-off vessels, (b) catamarans and (c) the channel tunnel. [20023]

Mr. Norris [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The safety of each mode of transport is assessed separately. While safety regimes take various forms, their common aim is to provide the highest practicable level of safety.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

New Forest Buckhounds

Mr. Denham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the relationship between the staff of the New Forest Buckhounds and of the Forestry Commission; and what guidelines apply in respect of Forestry Commission staff accepting awards from hunt organisations. [19290]

Mr. Jack: All Forestry Commission staff are subject to the civil service rules of conduct.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will review urgently the current policy where Forestry Commission staff, acting as harbourers for the New Forest Buckhounds, choose the deer to be hunted. [19289]

Mr. Jack: No. The commission's keeper chooses a deer which would otherwise have been culled as part of the commission's deer management programme.

Mr. Denham: To ask the minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will suspend the licence given to the New Forest Buckhounds to hunt deer pending an investigation into its activities and the involvement of Forestry Commission staff. [19291]

Mr. Jack: No.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what action he intends to take regarding the incident in the New Forest on 10 March where a deer was killed by the New Forest Buckhounds and regarding a further incident on the same day where eye witnesses saw a deer attacked and bitten by hounds before its death. [19288]

Mr. Jack: The Forestry Commission investigated this incident, concluded that the New Forest Buckhounds had failed to maintain the high standards required by its licence to hunt, and penalised it accordingly.

Surplus Milk

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list, by county, the amount of surplus milk thrown away in each month since January 1992. [19823]

Mr. Jack: The information requested is not available.

Executive Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will give the number and location of Agricultural Development Advisory Service, Central Science Laboratory, Central Veterinary Laboratory, Intervention Board, Pesticides Safety Directorate and Veterinary Medicines Directorate offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20300]

Mr. Waldegrave: ADAS, the Intervention Board, Pesticides Safety Directorate and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate have not operated from Scotland during the last five years. In this period, there have been no changes in office or job numbers at the Central Veterinary Laboratory and Central Science Laboratory sites in Scotland as a result of agency work transferring between Scotland and the rest of the United Kingdom.

Environmentally Sensitive Area Payments

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many farmers in England received environmentally sensitive area payments greater than (a) £100,000, (b) £50,000, (c) £10,000, (d) £5,000 or (e) £1,000 in the last year for which figures are available. [19999]

Mr. Jack: In 1994–95 English environmentally sensitive area payments to farmers in each band were as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| Greater than £100,000 | 0 |
| Greater than £50,000 | 15 |
| Greater than £10,000 | 382 |
| Greater than £5,000 | 1,035 |
| Greater than £1,000 | 3,382 |

The figures in each band are accumulative of those in the higher payment bands.

In addition, 824 scheme participants received payments of less than £1,000.

Lame Dairy Cows

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the level of lameness in the dairy herd, showing the number and proportion of dairy cows that were lame in (a) 1970, (b) 1975, (c) 1980 and (d) each year since 1990. [20035]

Mrs. Browning: The information, in the form requested, is not available.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food which of the non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agenda of meetings and (e) a register of members' interests; and if in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20494]

Mr. Jack: The annual reports and accounts of the following executive non-departmental public bodies, for which my right hon. Friend is responsible, are published:

Apple and Pear Research Council
Food from Britain
Home-Grown Cereals Authority
Horticultural Development Council
Horticultural Research International
Meat and Livestock Commission
Royal Botanic Gardens (Kew)
Sea Fish Industry Authority
Wine Standards Board of the Vinters' Company

Legislation requires, in each case, that the annual report and accounts are published.

Minutes and agendas of executive non-departmental bodies meetings are not published. There is no statutory requirement to do so.

None of the executive non-departmental public bodies publishes a register of members' interests. There is no statutory requirement for such a register. However, details of those filling many posts are published, or are available at the time of appointment.

Veal Exports

Dr. Wright: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what advice he has received on the legal entitlement of the Government to ban the veal export trade; when that advice was received and by whom it was supplied; and if he will publish that advice under the open government provisions.

Mrs. Browning: My right hon. Friend the Minister has written to all members with a summary of the conclusions that emerge from the legal advice available to him. We believe that this is the most helpful way in which to explain the legal position. It is not usual for the details of legal advice to the Government to be made public.

Mahogany

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many metres of mahogany or products containing it his Department has brought in the last five years; and if he will list the purposes and the costs. [19840]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 19 April 1995]: From records held centrally, it is not possible to calculate how many metres of mahogany or products containing it the Department has brought in the last five years, its purposes and costs. The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

WALES

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his oral statement to the Welsh Grand Committee on 4 April Official Report, Welsh Grand Committee, column 3, in relation to the placing of Breast Test Wales and the artificial limb and appliance service, Wales into health trusts, if he will place a copy of the consultation process documentation in the Library. [19221]

Mr. Redwood: I have arranged for copies of the responses to consultation on DGM(95)4 and copies of DGM(95)51 which announced my decision to be placed in the Library of the House. ## Surplus Milk

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list, by county, the amounts of surplus milk thrown away in each month since January 1992. [19820]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: This information is not available.

Local Authority Councillors

Mr. John Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what were the total numbers of councillors originally proposed by his Office for the whole of Wales following local government reorganisation; to what number this was subsequently increased and for what reasons; and what number he now proposes for the whole of Wales and for what reasons. [20372]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Welsh Office officials had informal consultations with the local authority associations in summer 1993 on the basis of proposals for between 1,085 and 1,137 members to be elected at the first elections to the new authorities.

My right hon. Friend decided to increase this number to 1,273, on the basis of a methodology devised by the Council of Welsh Districts which sought to preserve as much as possible of the existing district ward structure and levels of representation to provide an element of continuity for electors during the first years of the new authorities.

My right hon. Friend has proposed no total figure for Wales in subsequent elections; it will be for the Local Government Boundary Commission for Wales to make proposals for optimum council sizes with regard to the directions which my right hon. Friend will issue to it in due course.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether in each case this is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20490]

Mr. Redwood: The answers to each point are as follows:

(a) All—under statute, charter or other controlling documents. The report of work by the agricultural wages committees is included in the annual report of the agricultural wages board;

(b) All except the Royal Commission on the ancient and historical monuments of Wales and the agricultural wages committees—under statute or charter;

(c) None;

(d) None;

(e) At present the majority do not publish a register of members' interests. All are, however, in the process of adopting a code of practice based on the code of best practice for board members of public bodies published by Her Majesty's Treasury in June 1994, and will then publish or make available such a register.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20668]

Mr. Redwood: The answers to each point are as follows:

(a) The agricultural wages committees, the Arts Council of Wales, the Cardiff Bay development coporation; the Countryside Council of Wales; the Development Board for Rural Wales; except for housing functions; Housing for Wales; the local government residuary body; the Sports Council for Wales; the Wales tourist board; and the Welsh Language Board. Jurisdiction extends to other NDPBs when their administrative actions are undertaken on behalf of the Welsh Office or another Government Department;

(b) The residuary body for Wales;

(c) The Comptroller and Auditor General is the external auditor of al Welsh executive NDPBs except the Wales Youth Agency, the residuary body for Wales, Housing for Wales and the Cardiff Bay development corporation, to whose books and papers he nevertheless has access a) under the National Audit Act 1983 for the purpose of carrying out examinations on value for money, and b) by agreement, and subject to prior consultation in each case with the Welsh Office, for the purpose of examining questions of regularity and propriety;

(d) All are encouraged to adopt procedures under the code of access to government information;

(e) All are required to identify, publish and report on progress against key performance measures in their annual report;

(f) All are subject to the provisions of the citizens charter.

Atmospheric Emissions

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many installations in Wales require consents from Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution for atmospheric emissions; and if he will list them. [20840]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: I will write to the hon. Member with this information as soon as possible and place a copy of my reply in the Library of the House.

Marine Discharges

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many installations in Wales require consents for marine discharges; and if he will list them. [20842]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: All discharges into the marine environment require consents. Public registers of consents are maintained under part VIII of the Water Resources Act 1991; part II of the Environmental ProtectionAct 1990; part II of the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985; and section 39 of the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 and are available for inspection.

Health Purchasing Authorities

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance note to NHS health purchasing authorities requiring them to have regard to the financial viability of the trusts from which they purchase services. [20868]

Mr. Redwood: No such guidance has been issued, as it is standard practice for health authorities to take account of the financial viability of their main providers when making decisions on the purchase of services.

Large Combustion Plant Directive

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many installations in Wales are covered by the large combustion plant directive; and if he will list them. [20839]

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20500]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department sponsors two such bodies: the Legal Aid Board and the Authorised Conveyancing Practitioners Board. However, the latter has been inactive since March 1992 when the Lord Chancellor announced his decision to postpone implementation of the authorised practitioners scheme.

The Legal Aid Board publishes annual reports which are laid before Parliament. Annual accounts are included in that report, as is information about the background of board members. The board does not publish the agendas or minutes of meetings of the board or its committees. There are statutory requirements for the board to publish information as to the discharge of its functions in relation to legal aid and for the Lord Chancellor to lay before each House of Parliament a copy of every statement of accounts and report of the auditors sent to him in accordance with requirements under the Legal Aid Act 1988.

Dr. Wright: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open govnerment, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [10660]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department sponsors two such bodies: the Legal Aid Board and the Authorised Conveyancing Practitioners Board. However, the latter has been inactive since March 1992 when the Lord Chancellor announced his decision to postpone implementation of the authorised practitioners scheme.

The Legal Aid Board is not subject to scrutiny by the Audit Commission, but (a) and (c) to (f) all apply to the board.

Morpeth County Court

Mr. Beith: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans there are to close the district offices of the Morpeth county court at Alnwick and Berwick. [19086]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. A. J. Beith, dated 24 April 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your question about any plans to close the court offices at Alnwick and Berwick.

As you may know, the Circuit Administrator and his Courts Administrators have responsibility for assessing the changing needs of users of the Court Service. One way of doing this is to conduct a survey of the customers who call at court offices. On the North Eastern Circuit, a survey of callers at Berwick, Alnwick and Blyth County Courts began in March and will continue for a period of two months. The survey is intended to identify the reason for attending the court office and the place from which the customer has travelled. The results of the survey will be analysed by the Courts Administrator's Office.

I should explain that surveys of this type do not necessarily lead to a case being put to the Lord Chancellor for the closure of a court. Indeed, a similar survey conducted in these courts six years ago resulted in no further action being taken. However, where the results of such a survey indicate that consideration should be given to closing a court, the approval of the Lord Chancellor must be obtained for full public consultation to take place before a final decision is made by him. Careful account is, of course, taken of any representations made during the public consultation process. Closure is only considered where the Lord Chancellor is satisfied that neighbouring courts can offer an appropriate standard of service which meets the needs of court users.

Pensions Appeal Tribunals

Ms Walley: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what resources he currently allocates to pensions appeal tribunal units. [19076]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The expenditure on the pensions appeal tribunals in the financial year 1995–96 is expected to be approximately £1.6 million. This figure includes the fees of judicial members and the salaries of the administrative staff, as well as other administrative costs.

At present, there are 19 staff in post, and the following part-time judicial members:

Legal Chairmen: 11
Medical Members: 29
Service Members: 25

Ms Walley: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what is the average waiting time for war pension appeals to be heard; what action he will take to reduce the delay period, and if he will make a statement. [19077]

Mr. John M. Taylor: At present, once the parties have indicated readiness to proceed, the pensions appeal tribunals are able to arrange a hearing, on average, within eight to nine months.

Additional staff have been recruited for the pensions appeal tribunals to give administrative support. Also, extra judicial members have been appointed and additional tribunal sittings have been arranged to help reduce waiting times.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list for each agency and central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19681]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor has responsibility for four agencies: the Court Service, HM Land Registry, the Public Record Office and the Public Trust Office. As the question concerns a specific operational matter, I have asked the chief executives of HM Land Registry and the Public Record Office to reply direct. However, as the Public Trust Office and the Court Service are only recently established agencies, it has been agreed that the Department should take the lead in this answer. It has not been possible to separate information in relation to each area.

The total hours of overtime worked for the 1992–93 financial year was 336,995 hours; for 1993–94 it was 222,821 hours; and for 1994–95 it was 219,947 hours.

The total amount paid in overtime was £1,916,111, £1,376,050 and £1,352,297 respectively.

The total time in days lost through sickness in 1992 was 132,855.5 days; and in 1993 was 153,966.4 days. No figures are available for 1994–95. It would be impossible to rely upon the accuracy of calculating the monetary equivalent of the total number of days lost to sickness as there are too many variables.

Letter from Duncan Simpson to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

In the absence of the Chief Executive on leave I have been asked by the Lord Chancellor's Parliamentary Secretary to reply to your following three questions, notified on 5 April 1995.

Number 237

(a) The total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made in each of the last three years is:

1992–93: 21,427 hours

1993–94: 23,412 hours

1994–95: 20,678 hours

(b) The total amounts paid in overtime in each of the last three years is:

1992–93: £120,796.97

1993–94: £138,637.12

1994–95: £116,378.17

(c) The total number of days lost through sick absence in each of the last three years is:

1992: 6021

1993: 5278

1994: This figure is not yet available

It is impossible to rely on the accuracy of calculating the monetary equivalent of the total days lost to sickness as there are too many variables.

Number 239

The Public Record Office has paid the following total amounts in subsistence allowances for travel in each of the last three years:

| | (a) Within the United Kingdom | (b) Outside the United Kingdom |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | £63,519 | £8,961 |
| 1993–94 | £72,848 | £7,712 |
| 1994–95 | £75,192 | £3,484 |

Number 240

The Public Record Office has not paid any removal costs and associated expenses in the last three years.

Letter from John Manthorpe to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, to reply to your recent question concerning, over the last three years, the total hours worked and the amount paid in overtime by HM Land Registry and the total time and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness. I can provide the following information:

| | 1992 | 1993 | 1994 |
|---|---|---|---|
| (a) Total hours of overtime worked | 46,803 | 16,299 | 18,112 |
| (b) Total amount paid in overtime | £683,000 | £220,000 | £340,000 |
| (c) Total time in days lost through sickness | 117,727 | 114,427 | [1]— |

[1]The data on staff sickness is derived from the statistics compiled centrally by the HM Treasury and the Occupational Health Service Agency. The data for 1994 is not yet available. No figure has been supplied for the monetary equivalent of days lost as the number of variables involved in this calculation are too many to enable any reliance to be placed on its accuracy.

There is no relationship between overtime worked and sickness absence in the Land Registry. It may nevertheless be helpful to relate the data provided above to the staffing levels for the Land Registry, indicated below:

|---|---|---|---|
| Average staff in post | 9,648 | 9,141 | 8,717 |
| Equivalent in days | 2,450,592 | 2,312,673 | 2,196,684 |

I do hope that this answers the points raised with the Parliamentary Secretary but please contact me if I can be of any further assistance.

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19559]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor has responsibility for four agencies: the Court Service, Her Majesty's Land Registry, the Public Record Office and the Public Trust Office. As the question concerns a specific operational matter, I have asked the chief executives of the Land Registry, the Public Record Office and the Public Trust Office to reply direct. However, as the Court Service's inception as an agency did not take effect until 3 April this year, this answer deals with expenditure in the Court Service and the central Department.

As departmental financial management systems do not distinguish between expenditure on travel and expenditure on subsistence or travel within and outside the United Kingdom, only overall expenditure figures can be given. Total expenditure on travel and subsistence in the 1992–93 financial year was £7,669,575; in 1993–94, £7,142,412. Final figures for 1994–95 are not yet available, but spend to end of February 1995 was £6,283,198.

The Public Record Office has not paid any removal costs and associated expenses in the last three years.

Letter from Julia Lomas to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary of the Lord Chancellor's Department has asked me to reply to you as part of the Lord Chancellor's Department's response to your Parliamentary question, listed on 5 April 1995, regarding subsistence allowances for travel in the last three years (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom.

The figures you require are as follows:

| | (a) United Kingdom £ | (b) Outside the United Kingdom £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 16,744.01 | 493.99 |
| 1993–94 | 18,753.40 | 629.60 |
| 1994–95 | 20,601.53 | nil |

Letter from John Manthorpe to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, to reply to your recent question concerning the total amount paid by HM Land Registry in subsistence allowances for travel within and outside the United Kingdom for the last three years. I can provide the following information:

| | 1992–93 £ | 1993–94 £ | 1994–95 £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| a) Travel within the UK | 521,159 | 405,385 | 445,926 |
| b) Travel outside the UK | 6,726 | 3,780 | 5,383 |

These statistics include the cost of travel as well as subsistence. The two can only be separated at disproportionate cost.

I do hope that this answers the point raised with the Parliamentary Secretary but please contact me if I can be of any further assistance.

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment (b) the amount of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19656]

Mr. John Taylor: The Lord Chancellor has responsibility for four agencies: the Court Service, HM Land Registry, the Public Record Office and the Public Trust Office. As the question concerns a specific operational matter, I have asked the chief executives of HM Land Registry and the Public Record Office to reply direct. However, as records of relocation expenses are kept centrally for staff of the central Department, the Public Trust Office and the Court Service, it has been agreed that the Department should take the lead in this answer. It has not been possible to separate this information in relation to each area.

Total expenditure on cases where staff moved their homes for 1993–94 was £641,520; the average cost of payments in each case was £5,832. The three highest costs incurred in individual cases settled in this year, including payments made in previous years, were £89,130, £88,994 and £84,324. No information is available in relation to expenditure in 1992–93. In 1994–95, total expenditure was £384,656; the average cost of payments in each case was £3,495. the three highest costs involved in individual cases settled in this year, including payments in previous years, were £38,034, £30,540 and £30,103.

There are also allowances payable with salary to staff who have been required to relocate to assist with increased travel and housing costs. No figures are available for these costs.

Letter from Duncan Simpson to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

In the absence of the Chief Executive on leave I have been asked by the Lord Chancellor's Parliamentary Secretary to reply to your following three questions, notified on 5 April 1995.

Number 237

(a) The total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made in each of the last three years is:

1992–93: 21,427 hours

1993–94: 23,412 hours

1994–95: 20,678 hours

(b) The total amounts paid in overtime in each of the last three years is:

1992–93: £120,796.97

1993–94: £138,637.12

1994–95: £116,378.17

(c) The total number of days lost through sick absence in each of the last three years is:

1992: 6021

1993: 5278

1994: This figure is not yet available

It is impossible to rely on the accuracy of calculating the monetary equivalent of the total days lost to sickness as there are too many variables.

Number 239

The Public Record Office has paid the following total amounts in subsistence allowances for travel in each of the last three years:

| | (a) Within the United Kingdom | (b) Outside the United Kingdom |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | £63,519 | £8,961 |
| 1993–94 | £72,848 | £7,712 |
| 1994–95 | £75,192 | £3,484 |

Number 240

The Public Record Office has not paid any removal costs and associated expenses in the last three years.

Letter from John Manthorpe to Mr. David Shaw, dated 25 April 1995:

I have been asked by the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, to reply to your recent question concerning the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials in HM Land Registry during the last three years. I can provide the following information:

| | 1992–93 £ | 1993–94 £ | 1994–95 £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| a) Total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials | 1,464,919 | 908,573 | 510,278 |
| b) Highest claims in each year | 148,265 | 122,971 | 114,455 |
| c) Average claim | 27,411 | 42,367 | 40,144 |

The period from 1992 to 1994 includes a number of exceptional cases arising from the difficulties encountered by staff transferring on compulsory terms to a new location just at the time of the sharp reduction in house prices and property activity following the peak price and activity of 1988–89. This created protracted problems in selling in a declining market.

I do hope that this answers the points raised with the Parliamentary Secretary but please contact me if I can be of any further assistance.

Criminal Appeals

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department how many appeals in each of the past five years for which statistics are available against conviction for criminal offences in England and Wales have (a) been upheld, (b) been dismissed and (c) led to direction for a retrial; and, in the case of those appeals upheld, what information he has concerning the reasons for which the appeals were upheld. [19521]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The question concerns a specific operational matter on which the chief executive of the Court Service is best placed to provide an answer and I have accordingly asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from M. D. Huebner to Mr. Neil Gerrard, dated 24 April 1995:

The Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department, has asked me to reply to your question about the number of appeals against convictions for the past five years.

The following table provides statistics on the number of appeals against conviction in the Crown Court since 1990 which have been granted, dismissed or which led to a re-trial:

| | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 | 1993 | 1994 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Granted | 256 | 269 | 299 | 402 | 351 |
| Dismissed | 337 | 308 | 370 | 524 | 577 |
| Re-trials | 3 | 15 | 12 | 20 | 51 |

The reasons for which the appeals were granted are not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Magistrates Courts

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what guidelines his Department has issued to magistrates courts committee regarding mergers of magistrates courts. [19734]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Guidance on the objectives which underlie amalgamation of magistrates courts committees is contained in the Lord Chancellor's speech of 10 February to the Magistrates Association, a copy of which has been placed in the Library of both Houses. My officials are discussing the mechanics of amalgamation individually with those committees currently contemplating amalgamation.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what steps he is taking to promote the delivery of local justice and the traditional role of magistrates courts. [19735]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 strengthens and enhances the magistrates courts through its commitment to efficient and effective administration. For the first time, the powers and responsibilities of the various components of the administration of the magistrates courts are clearly enshrined in statute and the Department is working in partnership with the courts in the development of training specific to the needs of the magistracy and court staff. The role of the independent inspectorate in improving performance and disseminating good practice, and in assisting in raising service standards in line with the citizens charter cannot be underplayed. The courts will continue to be locally based and reflect the local community.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what representations he has received about proposals to merge magistrates courts. [19736]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor is currently considering a formal request, under section 69 of the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994, to amalgamate two magistrates courts committees on a voluntary basis. Informal discussions have also taken place with representatives of several magistrates courts committees. Those discussions have explored both the question of amalgamation and alternatives to it which achieve the same objectives. These discussions are continuing, and in order to pay proper respect to local sensitivities I do not propose to publicise those discussions until formal decisions have been made.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what assessment he has made of the effects of magistrates courts committee mergers on the independence of the magistracy. [19737]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The amalgamation of magistrates courts committees will have no effect on the independence of the magistracy. The day-to-day administration of the magistrates courts in an amalgamated area will remain in the hands of a committee made up mostly, if not entirely, of magistrates. Section 30A of the Justice of the Peace Act 1979 provides added protection of the independence of justices' clerks and the staff of committees in relation to legal functions.

TREASURY

Adult Placement Carers

Mr. Hinchcliffe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his policy in respect of income tax contributions by adult placement carers. [21041]

Sir George Young: Income received by adult placement carers is subject to the normal taxation rules, which are generally those applicable to the self-employed. Carers are liable to income tax on any profits from caring to the extent that income received exceeds allowable expenditure incurred, and any general income tax allowances available to set against the net income. Relief may also be available under the rent-a-room scheme. Within these rules, it is the Inland Revenue's policy to treat carers sympathetically and, as with other very small businesses, to establish any profits with the minimum of fuss.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will give the Data Protection Registrar an undertaking that the national insurance number will not be used for purposes unconnected with the tax and benefits system; and if he will make a statement. [20037]

Sir George Young: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister of Social Security on 25 April. The policy of the Inland Revenue is in accordance with that of the Department of Social Security.

Smuggling

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the scale of value of diamond smuggling into the United Kingdom; and how many Customs and Excise staff are involved in its prevention; and what are the corresponding estimated figures for tobacco, alcohol and drugs. [19529]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Information on the value of diamonds seized is not immediately available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Information on the value of drugs prevented from entering the United Kingdom and the number of seizures made is contained in the Customs and Excise annual report. Information for 1993–94 is that drugs to the value of £1,979 million were prevented from entering. A total of 8,510 seizures were made.

For single market excise-related offences the number and value of seizures of tobacco and alcohol products for the year to December 1994 are as follows:

| | Number of seizures | Value (revenue) £ |
|---|---|---|
| Tobacco | 1,850 | 3,195,353 |
| Alcohol | 898 | 1,832,879 |

Customs staff employed at ports and airports are responsible for preventing the illegal importation of a wide range of prohibited and restricted goods and for the collection of revenue. They are not assigned to the prevention of smuggling of particular goods.

Income tax

Mr. Denzil Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the total cost in a full year of (a) an increase in the lower rate band of income tax to £3,500, (b) an increase in the basic rate band of income tax to £30,000 and (c) a reduction in the basic rate of income tax to 24 per cent.

Sir George Young: Estimates are as follows:

| | 1995–96[1] Full year revenue cost £ million |
|---|---|
| (a) Increase in the lower rate band from £3,200 to £3,500 | 310 |
| (b) Increase in the basic rate limit from £24,300 to £30,000 | 1,670 |
| (c) Reduction in the basic rate of income tax to 24 per cent. | 1,900 |

[1] The figures include consequential effects on the yield of capital gains tax. Each option has been costed separately; the combined cost of the three options may be different from the sum of the figures for the individual options.

Privatisation

Mr. Hain: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the debts written off by the Government for each industry privatised since 1979 and the total. [19972]

Sir George Young: It is common practice for capital restructuring to be undertaken where necessary before privatisation. For some privatisations debt is written off; for others debt is injected. The table shows the debt written off—and the type of debt concerned—and debt injected for each company privatised where either occurred. Debts shown as written off include all debt written off since 1979 in companies subsequently privatised. Receipts from privatisation have amounted to £60 billion over the past 15 years.

Debt written off and debt injected prior to privatisation

Agencies

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the number and location of Central Statistical Office, Paymaster and Royal Mint offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of the offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19964]

Mr. Nelson: There have been no offices opened or closed in Scotland by the Central Statistical Office, Paymaster or Royal Mint in the last five years.

Beer

Sir Ivan Lawrence: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his estimate of the cost to the Exchequer of lowering the excise duty on beer to the level obtaining in France and Germany. [20976]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Cutting United Kingdom beer rates to French or German levels would reduce revenue by about £2 billion.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary; [20507]

(2) if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20667]

(3) which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20877]

Mr. Nelson: There are no executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the Chancellor's departments.

Income Tax

Mr. Milburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to his answer of 25 November 1994, Official Report, column 463, if he will provide equivalent figures for 1993–94 on top rate taxpayers. [20476]

Sir George Young [holding answer 24 April 1995]: Currently available data were given in my reply of 25 November 1994.

House Buyers

Mr. Bill Michie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is his latest estimate of the additional cost which house buyers will have to meet this year as the result of the interest rate rises, the cut in MIRAS and the costs of private insurance to cover the withdrawal of income support. [17920]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 19 April 1995]: Housing costs have fallen substantially in recent years. For the average existing homeowner, even after taking into account the recent interest rate rises and the reduction in MIRAS, housing costs will still be over £1,550 per annum lower than in late 1990.

The combined effect of the recent increase in interest rates and the reduction of MIRAS from 20 to 15 per cent.

will be to increase housing costs for the average existing home owner by about £270 per annum.

Without knowing what proportion of house buyers will insure themselves following the changes in income support, it is impossible to estimate what, if any, additional costs house buyers will incur.

PRIME MINISTER

Kashmir

Mr. Cox: To ask the Prime Minister what dicussions he proposes to hold with the Prime Minister of India as to what action India will be taking on the future of direct rule in the indian occupied area of Kashmir from 18 July; and if he will make a statement. [21101]

The Prime Minister: I have no plans to discuss the question of President's rule in Kashmir with the Indian Prime Minister. Any decision to extend President's rule in Kashmir after 17 July is for the Indian Government.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Public Bodies

Dr Wright: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20884]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department sponsors two such bodies: the Legal Aid Board and the Authorised Conveyancing Practitioners Board. However, the latter has been inactive since March 1992 when the Lord Chancellor announced his decision to postpone implementation of the authorised practioners scheme.

The Legal Aid Board has no statutory requirement to admit members of the public to meetings or to hold open meetings.

Legal Aid

Mr. Fabricant: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what action he proposes to take in the light of the responses to the consultation paper, "Legal Aid for the Apparently Wealthy". [21310]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Fifty responses to the consultation paper were received. The Lord Chancellor and I are grateful to all these who expressed views. As a result of the consultation exercise, the Lord Chancellor is planning to take the following action:

(1) The Lord Chancellor intends that a special investigations unit should be established to handle means assessments in both civil and criminal cases where the applicant's financial circumstances are unusually complex. The Lord Chancellor has invited the Legal Aid Board to advise him on the feasibility of establishing such a unit, and on the practical arrangements necessary to establish and run it.

(2) The Lord Chancellor intends to amend the legal aid regulations to provide those assessing the means of applicants for legal aid with a discretionary power to include in the means assessment the assets of friends, relatives and children where these appear to be providing, a significant material advantage to the applicant.

(3) The Lord Chancellor intends to examine further the practical implications of allowing the trial judge in criminal cases to release details of the statement of means of an applicant for legal aid in specified circumstances.

(4) The Lord Chancellor intends to take powers to require applicants for legal aid to transfer ownership of any assets that they fail to declare in their application to the legal aid authorities so that the money disbursed in legal aid can be recovered from those assets.

(5) The Lord Chancellor intends to amend the legal aid regulations to provide that there shall be a limit of £100,000 on the amount of equity value in a house that is ignored in the legal aid means assessment. He also intends to limit the maximum amount of mortgage that can be offset against the equity value of a house to £100,000, and to limit the amount of mortgage repayment allowable against income to the amount due on a £100,000 mortgage.

The Lord Chancellor was persuaded by the weight of the responses that the other proposals in the consultation paper should not be pursued.

The overwhelming weight of the responses supported the view expressed in the consultation paper that it would not be right to impose nationality restrictions on the availability of either criminal or civil legal aid. The Lord Chancellor therefore proposes to make no change in the present arrangements on this point. Assets held abroad by those applying for legal aid in this country will continue to be taken into account in the means assessment process.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20871]

Mr. Horam: None.

ENVIRONMENT

Derelict Land Grant

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how much was paid by way of derelict land grant to the Corby district borough council in each year since 1979. [20269]

Sir Paul Beresford: The amount of derelict land grant paid to Corby district council since 1979 is as follows:

| Year | Grant Paid (£m) |
|---|---|
| 1979–80 | nil |
| 1980–81 | nil |
| 1981–82 | 1,260,937 |

| Year | Grant Paid (£m) |
|---|---|
| 1982–83 | 1,241,666 |
| 1983–84 | 2,906,929 |
| 1984–85 | 1,818,038 |
| 1985–86 | 3,667,586 |
| 1986–87 | 1,287,455 |
| 1987–88 | 3,817,553 |
| 1988–89 | 3,529,020 |
| 1989–90 | 2,866,205 |
| 1990–91 | 2,486,167 |
| 1991–92 | 2,730,477 |
| 1992–93 | 3,819,479 |
| 1993–94 | 1,873,663 |
| 1994–95 | 2,487,319 |
| Total | 35,792,494 |

Since 1 April 1994 payments of derelict land grant have been made by English Partnerships on behalf of the Secretary of State.

Dry Stone Walls

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what estimate he has made of the length of dry stone walls that (a) have collapsed and (b) are in need of substantial repair (i) in the national parks and (ii) elsewhere in England and Wales. [20397]

Mr. Atkins: The Secretary of State commissioned a comprehensive survey of countryside features in 1990—the countryside survey 1990. The survey included the length and condition of dry stone walls in Great Britain. The main results of the survey were published by the Department in 1993. There are an estimated 107,000 km of stone walls in England and Wales. This total includes walls which are derelict or collapsed. No further breakdown of the results, by condition of walls or designated areas, is currently available.

Local Government Reorganisation

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment, pursuant to his statement to the House on 21 March, Official Report, column 146, when he expects election to the new unitary authority of Bournemouth to take place; and what will be the period of service of those elected. [20819]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Subject to Parliament approving the relevant order, the existing authority for Bournemouth will continue but with unitary powers from 1 April 1997. There will be elections on 2 May 1996 to elect a council with a fresh mandate; those elected will serve for three years until May 1999 when the normal four-year cycle will resume.

Mr. Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many county councils there are in England; and how many he proposes to abolish in his reorganisation of local government structures. [20795]

Mr. Curry [holding answer 25 April 1995]: There are at present 39 county councils in England. We have accepted the Local Government Commission's recommendations for four of these to be abolished—the county councils of Avon, Berkshire, Cleveland and Humberside.

Secondary Liquid Fuel

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the periods of the trials which have been carried out at Barrington cement works into the burning of secondary liquid fuel; what was the effect, during the trials, on the levels of dioxin and particulate matter which were permitted whilst the cement kilns were burning secondary liquid fuel; what criteria were used to determine whether future trials will be permitted; and what is the percentage of dioxin in the secondary liquid fuel and the percentage of dioxin in the emissions. [20072]

Mr. Atkins: The trials that have been carried out are as follows:

Trial 1: Secondary Liquid Fuel (SLF) burnt from 9/11/93 to 22/12/93.

Trial 2: SLF burnt 1/3/94–31/5/94 and 1/7/94–31/8/94.

Trial 3: SLF burnt 26/9/94–16/12/94.

Trial 4: Started 24/1/95, ongoing.

The effect of burning SLF on the levels of dioxins and particulates was insignificant. Dioxins were below the limits set for chemical waste incinerators, and particulates were below the level set in the authorisation.

The criteria used to determine whether further trials would be permitted were based on a comparison of the emissions and their environmental effect and on the conditions set out in my written reply to my hon. Friend the Member for Rutland and Melton (Mr. Duncan) on 23 June 1994, Official Report, columns 259-60. The operator was required to demonstrate that burning of SLF will not result in a net adverse effect on the environment.

The level of dioxins in the secondary liquid fuel is below the limit of detection. The amount of dioxins as a percentage of exhaust gas weight is approximately $5 \times 10^{-11}$.

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) whether secondary liquid fuel is classified as waste by the European Union; [20073]

(2) what legal action is outstanding by the European Union against the United Kingdom in respect of the classification of secondary liquid fuel; [20074]

(3) which commercial companies producing waste allow their waste to be blended into fuels. [20075]

Mr. Atkins: The definition of waste in article 1(a) of Council directive 75/442/EEC, as amended by Council directive 91/156/EEC, has been transposed into national legislation in the Waste Management Licensing Regulations 1994. Whether or not a substance is waste within the meaning of article 1(a) depends on the facts of each case; and interpretation of the law is a matter for the courts. Guidance on the definition of waste is provided in annexe 2 to DOE circular 11/94.

There is no outstanding legal action by the European Commission against the United Kingdom in relation to the definition of waste and the classification of secondary liquid fuel.

No information is held centrally on commercial companies which allow waste which they have produced to be blended into fuels. All commercial companies producing waste are subject to the duty of care under section 34 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990; and each waste regulation authority is required to maintain a public register containing the information prescribed by regulation 10 of the 1994 regulations.

Defective Housing

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many Pre-cast reinforced concrete houses have been repaired using grants provided under the housing defects legislation; and what has been the total expenditure to date. [20537]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Local authorities in England report that between 1 December 1984 and 31 March 1994, 10,346 defective houses were reinstated under the housing defects legislation. Over the period, it is estimated that local authorities spent £275.626 million on reinstatement grants to eligible owners.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many complaints have been received by Pre-cast Reinforced Concrete Homes Ltd. regarding the quality of repairs carried out using grants provided under the housing defects legislation. [20538]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: PRC Homes Ltd. receives a low level of complaints about various matters, and does not keep statistics on individual subjects.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many companies have been licensed to repair homes under the terms of the Housing Defects Act; and, in each case, how many homes they have been responsible for repairing. [20539]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: The table shows the number of repairs completed under each licensed scheme, as recorded by PRC Homes Ltd. between 1 January 1986 and 31 March 1995. Information is not readily available on the number of repairs carried out under each licence by each builder registered with PRC Homes Ltd.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how companies have had their licence to improve homes under the terms of the Housing Defects Act suspended; and what, in each case, was the date of the suspension, the duration of the suspension and the reason for the suspension. [20540]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: I understand that PRC Homes Ltd. has not suspended any repair licences.

Mr. Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment he has made of the willingness of mortgage lenders to provide mortgages on homes repaired under the provision of the Housing Defects Act. [20541]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: A survey of the largest building societies carried out in 1986 by the Building Societies Association suggested that almost all will consider, subject to normal conditions and valuation, an application for mortgage on a defective house repaired under the housing defects legislation. Generally this remains the position today. The structural condition of any property is one of a number of factors which lending institutions take into account when considering an application for mortgage.

Sunspots

Mr. Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what analysis he has made on the effects of sunspots on (a) global warming, (b) the trade cycles and (c) landslides. [20807]

Mr. Atkins: The Government have undertaken no such analyses. However on (a), the 1994 report of the scientific assessment working group of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change suggests that any influence of solar intensity varying on the 11-year cycle associated with sunspots is likely to be small. Longer term variation in solar intensity may have accounted for around 10 per cent. of the warming influence of additional greenhouse gases since 1850.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20875]

Sir Paul Beresford: None of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by my Department has a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings, nor do any have a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public.

Housing Association Rents

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the average rent charged by English housing associations for (a) one-bedroom, (b) two bedroom and (c) three bedroom properties in each year since 1979. [21085]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: A full breakdown of housing association rents by bedroom size is available only for the last three years. The figures are published by the Housing Corporation in three annual volumes: Housing Associations in 1992, 1993 and 1994 which are held in the Library.

Power Station Emissions

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will list the annual emissions level from all large combustion plants in the United Kingdom for sulphur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide and particulates since 1983. [20843]

Mr. Atkins [holding answer 25 April 1995]: I refer the hon. Member to my written reply on 14 March 1995, Official Report, columns 536–38, detailing the $SO_2$, NO, and particulate emissions from power stations in England and Wales for 1991, 1992 and 1993.

For the remaining large combustion plants, at present Her Majesty's inspectorate of pollution holds validated data only for 1992 and 1993. Data for the preceding years is not held in the form requested.

HMIP is responsible for large combustion plant within England and Wales only.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Allowances

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19547]

Mr. Waldegrave: The costs incurred by my Department on subsistence for each of the last three years are as follows:

| | 1992–93 | 1993–94 | 1994–95 (provisional) |
|---|---|---|---|
| (a) United Kingdom | 1,857,423 | 1,845,800 | 1,473,335 |
| (b) Overseas | 773,353 | 776,681 | 673,660 |

The figures for 1992–93 and 1993–94 include those for the pesticides safety and veterinary medicines directorates.

Responsibility for such matters within ADAS, the Central Science Laboratory, the Central Veterinary Laboratory and the pesticides safety and the veterinary medicines directorates has been delegated to the agency chief executives and I have asked them to reply to my hon. Friend direct.

Letter from G. K. Bruce to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply, in respect of the Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD), to your question about expenditure on subsistence allowances for travel in each of the last three years.

The Directorate was launched as an executive agency on 1 April 1993 and figures prior to this date have been included in the core—MAFF response and are not separately available. However, I am able to advise that subsistence allowances paid to staff for travel in the UK since the agency was launched have totalled £10,956 in 1993/94, and £20,787 in 1994/95. For travel outside the UK, subsistence allowances paid to PSD staff have totalled £38,516 and £32,611 in 1993/94 and 1994/95 respectively.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Rutter to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about the total amount of subsistence allowance paid by the Veterinary Medicines Directorate within and outside the United Kingdom for each of the last three years, as this is an operational matter for which I am responsible.

|---|---|---|---|
| Within UK | 8,052 | 4,049 | 3,956 |
| Outside UK | 46,868 | 48,483 | 34,444 |

Subsistence payments outside the UK include those incurred on inspections overseas of manufacturing premises for veterinary immunological medicines. These are recovered from the company concerned as part of the inspection fee.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Walsh to Mr. David Shaw, dated 21 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture has asked me to reply directly to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question number 1055.

In this you asked for the total amount paid by this Agency for travel within the United Kingdom and outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years.

ADAS was formed in June 1992 as an Executive Agency, jointly owned by MAFF and the Welsh Office. The majority of expenditure on subsistence is spent by ADAS Consultants pursuing their commercial activities.

The costs incurred by ADAS on subsistence for each of the last three years are as follows:

| | 1992–93 £ | 1993–94 £ | 1994–95 £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| (a) Within the UK | 843,138 | 814,520 | 757,214 |
| (b) Overseas | 45,259 | 73,919 | 87,612 |

Letter from Dr. P. I. Stanley to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

Subsistence payments to staff of the Central Science Laboratory (CSL) in respect of travel within the UK for the past three financial years were:

| | £000 |
|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 63.10 |
| 1993–94 | 87.64 |
| 1994–95 | 153.33 |

I should explain that in April 1994 CSL was re-launched as an enlarged Agency following its merger with the Food Science Laboratories at Norwich and Aberdeen. The merger meant that the number of staff employed by CSL rose from about 450 to 700 and the incidence of UK travel increased with the addition of two major distant sites. This accounts for last year's significant rise in subsistence payments.

Regarding subsistence payments for travel outside of the UK, such statistics are not recorded separately from travel and other associated expenses and the cost of obtaining them would be disproportionately high.

Letter from Guy Stapleton to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply to your question about subsistence allowances paid by the Agency for travel within the United Kingdom and outside the United Kingdom for each of the last three years as the information for the Intervention Board is a matter within my operational responsibility.

The Intervention Board has spent the following sums on subsistence allowances since 1992–93:

| | 1992–93 £ | 1993–94 £ | 1994–95 £ |
|---|---|---|---|
| Subsistence on travel within the United Kingdom | 193,890 | 191,623 | 180,750 |
| Subsistence on travel outside the United Kingdom | 36,262 | 43,310 | 53,425 |

Subsistence is payable when an officer works away from their normal office and because they incur necessary expenses for accommodation or meals. The rates of subsistence are those currently indicated by Treasury. Approximately three-quarters of the Agency's subsistence for travel within the United Kingdom is paid to staff who regularly travel in their role as investigators, scrutineers and verifiers. Subsistence for trave outside the United Kingdom is incurred mainly by the attendance of Agency staff at meetings with European Commission and other officials in Brussels.

Letter from T. W. A. Little to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about subsistence allowance paid by CVL.

The total amounts paid over the last three years are:

| | Within UK £ | Outside UK £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 (Est) | 38,700 | 27,250 |
| 1993–94 | 24,676 | 24,382 |
| 1994–95 | 23,638 | 26,345 |

A word of explanation on the 1992–93 figures may be useful. CVL became an Executive Agency in 1990. Up to and including November 1992 our accounts were processed and produced by MAFF and it has only been possible to identify separately the subsistence allowances paid from 1 December 1992. The 1992–93 figure is derived from the amounts paid between 1 December and 31 March 1993.

Pesticides

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list the cases in which the Advisory committee on Pesticides has been consulted in each of the last five years, and what subsequent action was taken. [20065]

Mrs. Browning: Ministers are required by the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985 to consult the Advisory Committee on Pesticides on approvals they propose to give or revoke, on the conditions to be attached to approvals and on regulations to be made under the Act. Ministers also consult the committee on other current pesticides issues.

Consequently the committee has discussed many matters at its 28 meetings over the period 1990 to 1994. Details of these discussions and their outcomes are set out in the committee's annual reports, copies of which are in the House Library.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health regarding pesticides and animal treatments and their effect on the food chain, and what action resulted. [20066]

Mrs. Browning: My right hon. Friends the Minister and the Secretary of State for Health are among the Ministers responsible for the regulation of pesticides and have close contact on such matters. These contacts feed into decisions on individual applications for approval of pesticides and into the shaping of policy.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what guidance Her Majesty's Government offer on the minimum level for pesticide usage for effective pest control, at what interval this level is reviewed; and what investigations are made to decide it. [20067]

Mrs. Browning: Guidance on minimising pesticide use is provided through the code of practice on the safe use of pesticides on farms and holdings through ADAS and other advisory services. The guidance promotes, in particular, the better targeting of pesticide applications and the use of reduced application rates in appropriate cases. A wide-ranging research programme supports the Government's pesticide minimisation policy. Guidance is kept under constant review in the light of results from the research programme.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the European Union regime for regulating pesticides, and how this correlates with his Department's procedures. [20068]

Mrs. Browning: Directive 91/414/EEC provides a framework for the harmonisation of national regimes for agricultural pesticides; a framework directive for other pesticides is under negotiation. Under directive 91/414/EEC, active substances will be authorised, or not, by the Community as a whole. Products containing these active substances will be regulated by individual member states who will carry out their evaluations on the basis of agreed "Uniform Principles". Both the UK and EC systems place paramount importance upon human safety, and protecting the environment. Both base decisions on the evaluation of appropriate scientific data and the two systems are of comparable rigour in terms of the data required and the manner in which they are evaluated.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what procedures are adopted to investigate the veracity of company data when submitted for approval of a pesticide. [20069]

Mrs. Browning: Companies are required to satisfy themselves of the veracity of their data before submitting them. It is an offence under the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985 knowingly or recklessly to provide false information or to withhold a material fact. Those evaluating pesticides are alert to inconsistencies in the data package provided or between the data submitted and those which might be expected based on experience with similar active substances or formulations. Experimental toxicity data to support submissions for approval of new pesticides must be generated in accordance with good laboratory practice—GLP. GLP involves regular internal checks and reviews and facilities operating to GLP are subject to independent inspection for compliance.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what are the specific criteria used by his Department before approval of a pesticide. [20070]

Mrs. Browning: The key aims of the approvals system are that proper use of the pesticide carries no unacceptable risk to human health or to the environment and that the product is efficacious. The pursuit of these aims requires the examination of a number of issues including mammalian toxicity, operator exposure, pesticide chemistry, behaviour and toxicity in the environment and residue levels in food. Specific data relating to all relevant matters are required from the applicant company and evaluated according to best current standards and protocols.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to commission his Department to study the possible connections between the use of pesticides and allergies and other medical problems. [20071]

Mrs. Browning: Companies applying for pesticide approvals must provide fully researched data which addresses potential allergic and other medical effects in pesticide users and food consumers. These data are rigorously evaluated before any approval is given.

The chemical nature of pesticides and the fact that consumers are exposed only to very low levels mean that the risk of allergic reaction to pesticide residues is low compared with food allergens. Therefore, MAFF's continuing research concerned with allergies and intolerances will concentrate on foods rather than on pesticides.

There will, however, continue to be projects which examine allergic responses or other medical issues at a general level and which assist with the development of risk assessment techniques used in pesticide evaluation. MAFF will also continue to draw on public results of research carried out by other bodies throughout the world.

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the percentage of statutory instruments introduced by his Ministry which implement EU directives in the latest available year. [19739]

Mr. Jack: In the 1994 calendar year 22 per cent. of statutory instruments made or laid by MAFF implemented EU directives.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the estimated cost (a) to his Ministry and (b) to the relevant industries of implementing statutory instruments introduced by his Ministry in (i) 1980, (ii) 1985, (iii) 1990 and (iv) 1994. [19739]

Mr. Jack: The cost to the Ministry of implementing statutory instruments for the years in question could be provided only at disproportionate cost. As far as costs to the industry are concerned, compliance cost assessments are prepared by the Department in line with Government policy. A list of all such CCAs issued between November 1993 and June 1994 was published in a command paper in December 1994, Cm 2769. Another command paper covering the period July to December 1994 will be published shortly. Copies of the CCAs prepared during these periods and since have been placed in the Library of the House. Details of compliance cost assessments for earlier periods cannot be obtained without disproportionate cost.

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what is the total number of statutory instruments introduced by his Ministry in (a) 1980, (b) 1985, (c) 1990, (d) 1994 and (e) 1995, to date.

Mr. Jack: A total of 143 statutory instruments were made or laid by MAFF in the 1990 calendar year, 121 in 1994 and 55 in 1995 up to 21 April. Figures for the earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of TB in cattle were reported in each county in each year since 1985. [20554]

Mrs. Browning: Complete information in the form requested is not available and that information which is available for the years 1985 to 1987 could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the numbers of confirmed cattle tuberculosis breakdowns in each county of England in each of the years form 1988 to 1991 were as follows:

| | Year(s) in which cases occurred | Number of herds | Number of confirmed reactors |

Smoking Restrictions

Mr. Peter Griffiths: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what facilities are provided and arrangements made for the well-being and comfort of staff who (a) smoke and (b) do not wish to be affected by smoking at (i) the work station and (ii) rest, recreation and refreshment facilities at Whitehall place, London. [20457]

Mr. Jack: Smoking restrictions in the Ministry's London headquarters buildings were introduced on 1 July 1993. MAFF's smoking at work policy came into full force on 1 January 1994. From that date smoking was allowed on Ministry premises only in suitably equipped and ventilated smoking rooms. There are three designated smoking rooms in the Whitehall place complex.

Rest, recreation and refreshment facilities are available adjacent to one of the designated smoking areas.

Sheep Scab

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what reports he has had from markets in the United Kingdom on the prevalence of sheep scab. [21033]

Mrs. Browning: Last spring, the state veterinary service launched a month-long surveillance exercise at sheep markets to identify the prevalence of sheep scab in the country and to establish a benchmark for further checks. The result indicated that sheep scab had increased from the levels recorded before deregulation.

To help reduce the spread of scab the Government announced a joint industry—Government publicity campaign together with a significant increase in the official veterinary presence at markets. Only 46 out of 2,809 market visits conducted between 1 September 1994 and 3 March 1995 resulted in the detection of sheep suspected of being affected with scab. In total, only 363 animals had to be withdrawn and treated for sheep scab; a further 107 suspect animals were sent direct to slaughter.

The SVS have just repeated last year's exercise and the findings will be compared against those for last year. The results are currently being collated and will be announced shortly. The provisional indications are, however, that the amount of scab found at markets has significantly decreased.

Meat Inspectors

Mr. Cox: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to extend the rebate given on meat inspector costs. [21100]

Mrs. Browning: We have been considering how best to deploy the transitional assistance on meat hygiene service charges announced in the answer given by my right hon. Friend to my hon. Friend the Member for Hexham (Mr. Atkinson) on 29 March, Official Report, columns 653-54, so as to assist the widest possible range of premises within the funds available. The MHS is now consulting plant operators on the following proposed reductions in its charges:

- Charges for Official Veterinary Surgeons' normal time to be capped at £35 per hour at all plants for this financial year
- Charges for Meat Inspectors' normal time to be reduced by £1 per hour at all plants for this financial year
- A rebate equivalent to £1 per hour off Meat Inspectors' normal time after the end of the first two quarters of 1995–96 (i.e. in July and October 1995) to all plants, subject to the need to observe the requirements of European legislation which prohibits the subsidisation of inspection charges below the level of the Community Standard charge in the case of slaughterhouses.

Final decisions on these proposed charges will not be taken until after the end of the statutory consultation process. The charges would be subject to review in consultation with the Industry Forum—the consultative body which the MHS has set up to discuss issues with the industry—after the first six months of this financial year to see whether there was any further flexibility within the funds available to make any other adjustments for the remainder of the year.

Corncrake

Ms. Quin: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what plans he has to encourage the return of the corncrake to its farmland habitat. [20243]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 25 April 1995]: The present UK population of corncrakes is confined almost entirely to the north and west of Scotland where the Government have contributed to schemes designed to increase their numbers. English Nature has advised that a reintroduction programme for England is not considered feasible at present given the lack of any substantial areas of suitable habitat. However, the corncrake is a candidate species under consideration by the biodiversity steering group for an individual action plan to improve its conservation status.

North Sea (Aggregates)

Sir Richard Body: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether any sand or aggregates removed from the banks in the North sea off Lincolnshire is being exported abroad. [19747]

Sir Paul Beresford: I have been asked to reply.

Approximately 400,000 tonnes.

HEALTH

Alzheimer's Disease

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the drugs available on the NHS for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. [19900]

Mr. Sackville: The national health service provides different types of treatment for Alzheimer's disease which may include tranquillisers, physiotherapy and educational activities.

There are, however, currently no licensed drugs available for the treatment of this serious condition, although the Medicines Control Agency is aware that the pharmaceutical industry has drugs under development.

Organ Donor Register

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many registrations have been made on the national computerised registration system for kidney donors; [20516]

(2) what guidelines and information have been given to transplant co-ordinators regarding the national computerised registration system; [20517]

(3) what is the progress of the national computerised registration scheme for kidney donors by region; and if she will make a statement. [20519]

Mr. Sackville: Since the national health service organ donor register was launched on 6 October 1994 nearly 1,200,000[1] people have joined the register. A regional analysis is not available at present. The United Kingdom Transplant Co-ordinators Association is represented on the Health Departments' steering group for the NHS organ donor register. Transplant unit staff were informed about the register before it was launched and on 31 March 1995 the chief executive of the United Kingdom Transplant Support Service Authority sent transplant co-ordinators the procedure for using the register. A resources and information pack was recently sent to all transplant co-ordinators.

[1] Around 440,000 of these were transferred from the existing Lifeline Wales register.

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what efforts her Department has made to promote and advertise the national computerised registration system for kidney donors. [20518]

Mr. Sackville: We have produced a wide range of publicity material to support the NHS organ donor register since its launch in October 1994, at a cost of £1.53 million in 1994–95. This has included the delivery of leaflets, including registration forms, to over 19 million homes with local free newspapers or via the Royal Mail; national, regional and local newspaper advertisements; TV fillers; 25,000 posters; freepost and freephone facilities; displays in post offices; and distribution of leaflets and forms to all chemists and GPs.

M.E. Funding

Ms Lynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the current and future plans for funding the national task force on CFS/PVFS/myalgic encephalomyelitis. [20557]

Mr. Sackville: The task force, which is autonomous of the Department of Health, has received £20,000 funding over the past two years under section 64 of the Health Services and Public Health Act 1968. A bid for further funding has been received from the charity Westcare, which provides the secretariat to the task force, and the Department is in discussion with Westcare regarding this application. The decision on future funding will be made known to Westcare as soon as possible.

NHS Trust Boards

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if persons with criminal records are eligible for appointment to NHS trusts as chairman or non-executive directors. [20698]

Mr. Malone: In accordance with the National Health Service Trusts (Membership and Procedure) Regulations 1990, a person is disqualified from appointment to an NHS trust as chairman or non-executive director if within the preceding five years he has been convicted in the United Kingdom of any offence resulting in a sentence of imprisonment of not less than three months.

NHS Estates Agency

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the key tasks and targets for 1995–96 for the NHS Estates Agency. [21568]

Mr. Sackville: I have agreed the agency's key tasks and targets for 1995–96, and have placed copies in the Library.

Temazepam

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths occurred from temazepam abuse in each age group in each of the last five years. [19824]

The number of deaths certified as due to abuse of Temazepam [1](ICDs 304.1, 304.7, 304.8, 305.4, 305.9), alone or with other drugs, by five year age groups for the years 1989–1993 in England and Wales.

| | 1989 | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 | 1993 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 15–19 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 2 | 0 |

| 65–69 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 |
| 70–74 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 |

[1] International Classification of Disease 9th revision.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for the further control of temazepam capsules; and what indications there are for the use of temazepam capsules instead of temazepam pills. [19825]

Mr. Bowis: The abuse of temazepam capsules by drug misusers is of particular concern and we are keeping the position under review.

My Department, in consultation with other Departments, is considering the recommendation of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs to tighten the control of the drug temazepam.

The licensed indications for temazepam capsules and tablets are the same, and include short-term use as a hypnotic and premedication before minor surgery.

GP Recruitment

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the levels of recruitment of doctors to become general practitioners currently and five years ago. [19826]

Mr. Malone: In 1989–90 the number of general practitioners increased by 14—0.6 per cent.—in England. In 1993–94 the number increased by 278—1.0 per cent.—to an all-time high of 26,567.

Residential Care

Mr. Tim Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the progress made by placing authorities in reviewing placements at Stoke Place and Stoke Green House, residential care homes operated by Longcare Ltd; [20600]

(2) what conclusions have been drawn by her Department from the investigation by Buckinghamshire county council social services department inspection unit conducted in the period November 1993 to June 1994 of Stoke Place and Stoke Green House; and what account has been taken of these conclusions in the formulation of a new circular to local authorities on the regulation of residential care homes under the Registered Homes Act 1984; [20602]

(3) if she will list the local authorities that have residents in Stoke Place and Stoke Green House; and if she will give the number of placements by each at 30 June 1994 and at present. [20601]

Mr. Bowis: The social services inspectorate is continuing to keep in close contact with Buckinghamshire social services department on developments in the care of residents placed in homes operated by Longcare Ltd. The assessment and placing of residents is a matter for the authorities concerned. Information is not collected centrally on the authorities in relation to which placements in specific homes are made. The social services inspectorate will shortly begin a routine formal inspection of Buckinghamshire's inspection unit to check on the unit's effectiveness.

Learning Disabilities

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is her current policy in respect of village communities for persons with learning disabilities; what factors led her to holding an evaluation of village communities for persons with learning disabilities; and what is the estimated cost of the exercise. [21040]

Mr. Bowis: Guidance on residential services for people with learning disabilities is given in LAC(92)15, copies of which are available in the Library. Local authorities can purchase or provide places in village or residential communities if that is what individuals and their families prefer and the communities meet the criteria set out in the guidance. The planned evaluation will involve comparison with the cost and outcomes of other forms of provision and will help authorities make the best use of resources in meeting the needs of individuals in their area. Precise details of the evaluation including its cost have yet to be finalised.

Residential Care and Nursing Homes

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the purpose and scope of the review of registration and inspection of residential care and nursing homes; and when it will begin. [21039]

Mr. Bowis: In the consultative document, "Inspecting Social Services", issued in October 1992, the Government indicated that in 1995 they would review progress in implementing new arrangements for social services inspection and would consider what further steps might be necessary to achieve the essential objectives of effectiveness and independence. This review will begin later this year. Its precise scope is still under consideration.

Mental Illness

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what new policy proposals she has to reduce the number of inmates and remand prisons who are transferred to mental institutions shortly after their arrest. [20803]

Mr. Bowis: It is well-established Government policy that offenders suffering from mental disorder should, where necessary, receive care and treatment from the health and social services rather than in the criminal justice system. The transfer to hospital of prisoners requiring specialist psychiatric care plays an important part in this.

The development of services for mentally disordered offenders and others with similar needs is a high priority for the national health service. My Department is working closely with the Home Department in establishing initiatives, such as multi-agency working in courts and the provision of specialist training, to ensure that mentally disordered people who come into contact with the criminal justice system obtain the care they need at the earliest possible stage.

Cannabis

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what new proposals she has to legalise the therapeutic use of cannabis. [20806]

Mr. Bowis: Any consideration of the therapeutic use of cannabis would have to take account of the potential risks associated with short and long-term use. If, as a result of research, evidence became available that the quality, safety and efficacy of a cannabis-based preparation was suitable for the grant of a product licence under the Medicines Act 1968, the Misuse of Drugs Act controls, for which my right hon. and learned Friend the Home Secretary is responsible, could be modified to make such a medicine available to patients.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20886]

Mr. Sackville: None.

Hospitals, London

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when she received the South Thames regional health authority submission on changes to London hospitals; and approximately how many hours she spent studying it before 4 April; [21068]

(2) when she received the North Thames regional health authority submission on changes to London hospitals; and approximately how many hours she spent studying it before 4 April. [21069]

Mr. Malone: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave her on 18 April at column 120.

St. Bartholomew's and London Chest Hospital

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the estimated land value of (a) the St. Bartholomew's hospital site and (b) the London chest hospital site. [21102]

Mr. Malone: The estimated land values of the St. Bartholomew's hospital site and the London chest hospital site are £65 million and £1.5 million respectively.

Health Services, London

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the increased investment in primary care, revenue and capital, in London in 1992–93, 1993–94 and 1994–95; and what is planned for 1995–96 and 1996–97. [21103]

Mr. Malone: Total expenditure on primary care by family health services authorities in London in 1992–93 and 1993–94 together with increase over the previous year is shown in the table. Figures for 1994–95 are not yet available. No comparable planned figures are available for 1995–96 and 1996–97.

£000

|---|---|---|
| Total expenditure | 859,482 | 926,820 |
| Increase over previous year | 101,848 | 67,338 |

Notes:

1. Source—Annual Accounts of FHSAs. Figures for 1993–94 are provisional, being subject to National Audit Office review.
2. Figures relate to all FHSAs in London.
3. The figures are for total FHSA expenditure (services and administration) excluding general practitioner fundholder expenditure on hospital services. Services expenditure is for both cash limited and non cash limited services, including general medical services, pharmaceutical services, optical services and dental services administered by FHSAs. Expenditure on dental services centrally administered by the Dental Practice Board is not included. Expenditure on administration is both revenue and capital expenditure. The accounting policy in respect of capital changed between the two years: in 1993–94 capital charges were introduced in respect of FHSAs.

Survey Organisations

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will list the polling or public survey organisations employed by her Department in the financial year 1990–91; what were the values of individual contracts with these organisations; and what were the purposes of the research undertaken; [18171]

(2) how much was spent by her Department on contracts with polling or public survey organisations in the financial year 1994–95; [18172]

(3) if she will list the polling or public survey organisations employed by her Department in the financial year 1994–95; what were the values of individual contracts with these organisations; and what were the purposes of the research undertaken; [18173]

(4) what was the total amount of money spent by her Department on contracts with polling or public survey organisations in each financial year since 1990–91; [18189]

(5) if she will list the polling or public survey organisations employed by her Department in the financial year 1993–94, the values of individual contracts with these organisations and the purposes of the research undertaken; [18180]

(6) if she will list the polling or public survey organisations employed by her Department in the financial year 1992–93, the value of individual contracts with these organisations and the purposes of the research undertaken. [18181]

(7) if she will list the polling or public survey organisations employed by her Department in the financial year 1991–92, the values of individual contracts with these organisations and the purposes of the research undertaken. [18182]

Mr. Sackville [holding answer 5 April 1995]: A list of research projects commissioned from polling or public survey organisations for the financial years 1990–91 to 1994–95 will be placed in the Library. The cost of each individual survey is a matter of commercial confidentiality. Total costs of surveys in each year since 1990–91 are estimated as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 2.5 |
| 1991–92 | 3.4 |
| 1992–93 | 5.5 |
| 1993–94 | 6.7 |
| 1994–95 | 5.3 |

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Relocation Costs

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19655]

Mr. Dorrell: The Department of National Heritage was created in April 1992. It has two agencies—the Royal Parks Agency, created in April 1993 and the Historic Royal Palaces Agency, created in October 1989. The information requested is shown in the following table:

Overtime and Sickness

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19680]

Mr. Dorrell: The Department of National Heritage was created in April 1992. It has two agencies—the Royal Parks Agency (RPA) created in April 1993 and the Historic Royal Palaces Agency (HRPA) created in October 1989. The information requested is shown in the following tables:

(a) and (b) Table 1—Overtime

Notes:

[1] DNH did not have its own financial and management accounting arrangements in place until August 1992; for the year 1992–93, the information is therefore not available in the format requested.

[2] The 1994–95 figures (for year ending 31 March 1995) may change slightly as year-end accounts are finalised.

[3] The HRPA figures cover both overtime and premium pay (for excess hours worked at weekends and on Public and Bank holidays. It is not possible to disaggregate the two.

Notes:

[1] 1994 data is not yet available.

1. It is not possible to give figures for the monetary equivalent of days lost through sickness as there are too many variables in this calculation and it would be difficult to rely on the accuracy of any such calculations.

EMPLOYMENT

Workplace Fatal Injuries

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many persons under 16 years died at a place of employment in each year since 1990. [20689]

Mr. Oppenheim: The number of fatal injuries to persons under the age of 16 reported to health and safety enforcement authorities in each year since 1990–91 is shown in the following table:

Fatalities[1]

| Year | Employees[2] | Non-employees | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 0 | 46 | 46 |
| 1991–92 | 0 | 33 | 33 |
| 1992–93 | 1 | 32 | 33 |
| 1993–94[3] | 1 | 29 | 30 |

[1] Figures are for Great Britain: as reported to the Health and Safety Executive's factory and agricultural and railway inspectorates, and to local authorities.

[2] Includes trainees.

[3] Provisional.

Labour Statistics

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what is the current percentage of adult males who are currently unemployed or economically inactive. [20824]

Mr. Oppenheim: The latest estimates from the labour force survey for winter 1994–95 show that 34.8 per cent. of males aged 16 and over in Great Britain are ILO unemployed or economically inactive, a category which includes students, the long-term sick and disabled and retirees.

Over four out of five of the economically inactive males included in this percentage state, in reply to the LFS, that they do not want a job; many of them are aged 65 or over.

Employment Service

Ms Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment what support schemes for employees who take early retirement, early severance or voluntary redundancy are currently being operated by the Employment Service in the London region; how long these schemes have been in operation; and what plans there are to extend the cover of operation of these schemes. [21046]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Ms Harriet Harman, dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about early retirement, early severance and voluntary redundancy schemes in the London Region.

Schemes are operated on a regional basis and the majority of the following information therefore relates to the London and South East region of the Employment Services (ES).

Voluntary early retirement and early severance schemes have been operated for a number of years by the Department of Employment (ED), such schemes being offered when the prevailing circumstances justify them and are not run separately for the ES. The need for schemes is considered each year by ED, on a regional basis. Schemes are operated where it is clear that staff surpluses will occur that cannot be accommodated in other ways.

During the current financial year 89 staff in the ED Group in London and the South East left on early retirement. Of these 58 were from the ES. The staff involved were mainly from the more junior grades and in outlying locations (only three were from the Greater London area) for whom redeployment into other alternative posts elsewhere was not a realistic alternative.

With unemployment continuing to fall sharply in the region, a similar scheme has just been announced for the current financial year. This will provide ED Group staff London and South East with 170 retirement opportunities. Most of these opportunities are likely to affect ES staff.

Staff who take retirement under these schemes are offered retirement seminars to advise on financial planning and other matters. At this stage there are no plans for further schemes which would affect ES staff.

I hope this is helpful.

Ms Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment if he will list the number of staff actually employed in the region and the number of established positions which allocated resources allow for in the region, for the Employment Service in the London region, for each of the past 12 months, expressing the data by staff grade; and if he will make a statement about the staffing levels of the Employment Service in the London region. [21045]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service agency under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Ms Harriet Harman dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the levels of staffing in the London region of the Employment Service (ES) over the past 12 months.

The information you have requested is recorded on an ES Regional basis rather than for specific geographic areas. I have therefore provided the following information for the ES London and South East Region (LASER).

In common with all ES regions, LASER was allocated resources for the 1994/95 financial year on the basis of expected business volumes. The staff allocation for this twelve month period was 13,450. This is shown by grade and compared with actual usage in the following table.

| | Staff allocation 1994/95 | | | Staff usage 1994/95 | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Grade | Permanent | Casual | Total | Permanent | Casual | Total |
| 4 | 1.0 | 0.0 | 1.0 | 1.0 | 0.0 | 1.0 |
| 5 | 1.0 | 0.0 | 1.0 | 1.0 | 0.0 | 1.0 |
| 6 | 4.0 | 0.0 | 4.0 | 3.9 | 0.0 | 3.9 |
| 7 | 26.0 | 0.0 | 26.0 | 26.4 | 0.0 | 26.4 |
| SEO | 69.0 | 0.0 | 69.0 | 74.8 | 0.0 | 74.8 |
| HEO | 543.0 | 0.0 | 543.0 | 459.0 | 0.0 | 459.0 |
| EO | 3393.0 | 0.0 | 3393.0 | 3276.3 | 3.5 | 3279.8 |
| AO | 8048.0 | 365.0 | 8413.0 | 8187.7 | 611.0 | 8798.7 |
| AA | 829.0 | 1.0 | 830.0 | 367.0 | 109.0 | 476.0 |
| Others | 158.0 | 12.0 | 170.0 | 107.8 | 7.9 | 115.7 |
| Total | 13072.0 | 378.0 | 13450.0 | 12505.8 | 731.4 | 13237.2 |

Staffing levels and associated resource levels are determined largely, though not exclusively, by levels of unemployment. In LASER, unemployment fell by 15% between April 1994 and March 1995, although the fall was much sharper in some parts of South East England (up to 25%) than in the Region as a whole. This meant that staffing had to be reduced in LASER in phase with this and in fact staffing fell from 14,329 in April 1994 to 11,820 in March, or 17.5% As it is not possible to forecast with any reliability monthly changes in unemployment levels, ES Regions are not allocated staffing resources on a monthly basis.

It is also not possible to say with any precision how staffing will move in the year ahead, although during the 1980s unemployment rose more rapidly in London and the South East than in other Regions. That trend is now being matched by a more rapid decline in LASER, particularly outside London, although it is not possible to forecast with confidence whether this will continue. LASER is currently resourced on the basis that it will need an average of 11,650 staff during the current financial year.

As in all ES Regions, staffing levels are managed so as to keep as close a match as possible through the year between the levels of business to be performed and the staffing resources allocated. That this has been done successfully has been borne out by the fact that LASER placed 487,000 clients into jobs during the last financial year, 9.5% above target. Of these 37.8% were long term claimants (against a target of 36.0%) and 4.1% people with disabilities, against a target of 3.6%

I hope this is helpful.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20874]

Miss Widdecombe: None.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Criminal Injuries Compensation

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the total cost to the public purse of administering the change of the criminal injuries compensation awards to a tariff scheme. [20407]

Mr. Maclean: A precise figure is not available, but the total additional cost was probably in the order of £1 million.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) firefighters, (b) police officers and (c) nurses have been made criminal injuries compensation awards under the tariff scheme which are less than they would have received under the old scheme; and, for each of these categories, what was the average amount by which each claimant received reduced remuneration. [20408]

Mr. Maclean: Under the tariff scheme offers of awards were made to 10 firefighters, 226 police officers and 60 health professionals, including doctors and nurses. Until the cases are reassessed under the 1990 scheme by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board it will not be possible to say whether there was any difference in the awards payable under the two schemes.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action he plans to take with regard to claimants for criminal injuries compensation. [20409]

Mr. Maclean: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Mr. Michael) on 6 February at column 113 and to the hon. Member for Pembroke (Mr. Ainger) on 5 April at column 1250, pursuant to a reply given on 9 March.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claimants were awarded compensation by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority under the tariff scheme; and what action he now proposes to take with regard to those awards. [20406]

Mr. Maclean: At 31 March 1995, 4,891 monetary awards had been offered or paid under the tariff scheme. All applications received on or after 1 April 1994 are now to be considered or reassessed under the 1990 scheme. Where a higher award results, the board will pay the balance to the applicant. In other cases the tariff award will be allowed to stand.

Mr. McFall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with Cabinet colleagues on legislation to place the criminal injuries compensation scheme on a statutory basis. [20745]

Mr. Maclean: Meetings and correspondence between Ministers are confidential.

Mrs. Currie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many days a year the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board sits to consider claims; and if he will make a statement. [20616]

Mr. Maclean: Claims are decided initially by individual board members or by staff under delegated authority. Only where those decisions are appealed do board members sit in panels of two or three, usually for a week at a time, with a number of panels operating simultaneously. In 1993–94 the resulting number of sitting days were 969.

Mrs. Currie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases are currently outstanding with the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board; and what is the average length of time taken to settle a claim. [20617]

Mr. Maclean: At 31 March 1995, some 38,500 1990 scheme cases—including nearly 19,000 appeals cases—and some 72,000 former tariff scheme cases—which now fall to be considered or reassessed under the 1990 scheme—were outstanding. The board does not maintain statistics on the time taken to deal with cases in a form which enables the average time per case to be calculated, but the board normally aims to make a first decision within nine months of receipt of an application and to hear an appeal within 18 months of an application for appeal.

Mentally Ill Prisoners

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what new policy decisions he plans to reduce the number of prisoners who are transferred to mental institutions (a) before sentence and (b) after sentence; and if he will make a statement. [20804]

Mr. Maclean: It is well established Government policy that offenders suffering from mental disorder should, where necessary, receive care and treatment from the health and social services rather than in the criminal justice system. The transfer to hospital of prisoners requiring specialist care plays an important part in this.

The development of services for mentally disordered offenders and others with similar needs is a high priority for the NHS. My Department is working closely with the Department of Health in establishing initiatives, such as multi-agency working in courts and the provision of specialist training, to ensure that mentally disordered people who come into contact with the criminal justice system obtain the care that they need at the earliest possible stage.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20885]

Mr. Howard: None. However, the Data Protection Registrar is under a duty, under section 36 of the Data Protection Act 1984 to disseminate information about the operation of the Act.

Fingerprints

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the abandonment of the advanced fingerprint recognition system. [20685]

Mr. Maclean: The national automated fingerprint identification system—NAFIS—which is being procured by the Government on behalf of the police forces of England and Wales, remains on schedule for implementation from 1998. So far as the termination of the contract between the AFR Consortium and IBM for the provision of automated fingerprint recognition services is concerned, I refer the hon. Member to the reply which I gave on 5 April at columns 1249–50.

Miscarriages of Justice

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 19 April at column 193, if he will list the recently completed investigations to which he refers and the cost in each case. [20775]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 April to the question from the hon. Member for Cardiff, South and Penarth (Mr. Michael) at column 271.

Phoenix Database

Mrs. Golding: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department who will have access to the Phoenix database when it comes into service. [20466]

Mr. Maclean: The following organisations, all of which currently have access to the police national computer criminal names file, will have access to the Phoenix criminal justice record service database when it comes into service:

All police forces maintained under the Police Act 1964, or the Police (Scotland) Act 1967
The Metropolitan police
The City of London police
Regional crime squads, including the Scottish crime squad
National Identification Service
Scottish Criminal Record Office
National Criminal Intelligence Service
Regional criminal intelligence offices
Royal Ulster Constabulary
Isle of Man police
Jersey police
Guernsey police
British Transport police
Ministry of Defence police
Dover Harbour Board police
National Ports Office
HM Customs and Excise

The following four organisations will have access to the database for maintenance, development, or training purposes only:

Hendon data centre
Central police national computer training centre
Home Office technical policy division (maintenance and development)
The Police Staff college, Bramshill (training access only)

In addition, as I announced to the House on 22 March at column 200, six Government Departments and agencies will also be given limited access to the system, for the purpose of conducting preliminary security vetting checks. Limited direct access has also been approved in principle for the Forensic Science Service to allow the addition of markers to indicate that a sample has been taken and whether a DNA profile is available, and to ensure that their separate DNA database is appropriately weeded.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 5 April, Official Report, columns 1240-41 regarding asylum applications in 1994, if he will provide the comparable statistics for the period from 1 August 1993 to 31 December 1993, in the same format. [20582]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The information requested is provided in the table.

Decisions during the period August to December 1993, excluding dependants, on applications for asylum[1] made before and after the Asylum and Immigration Appeals Act, 1993

Number of principal applicants

Immigration Detainees

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the number of (a) hunger strikes and (b) suicides by (i) male and (ii) female immigration detainees in prisons in England and Wales during each of the last three years. [20356]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The available information is as follows:

| | May 1992–April 1993 | | May 1993–April 1994 | | May 1994–April 1995 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

| Suicides | — | — | — | — | — | — |

[1] Records of hunger-strikers in prisons prior to May 1993 do not distinguish between immigration detainees and others.

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the policy of his Department regarding keeping immigration detainees being held in prison in England and Wales informed of the position of their cases; which service is responsible for it; and if he will make a statement. [20355]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: All immigration detainees, including those held in prisons, receive written notification from the Immigration Service, on a monthly basis, of the progress of their case. Asylum applicants receive, in addition, a report from the asylum division on the position reached in considering their application.

Airlines

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will state for each year since 1987 the total sum paid in carriers' liability by each airline. [20394]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The administration of the Immigration (Carriers' Liability) Act 1987 involves the Home Office in sensitive discussions with air and sea carriers. These are conducted on a "commercial in confidence" basis, and to disclose information on individual carriers, including the level of charges paid by each airline, would represent a breach of confidentiality, which could jeopardise both the carriers' commercial operations, and our own debt recovery programme.

The total sums paid between 1987 and the end of 1994 by all carriers, together with total—cumulative—charges outstanding at the end of each year are as follows:

| Year | Paid | Total outstanding |
|---|---|---|
| 1987 | 1,403,000 | 2,361,000 |
| 1988 | 2,274,000 | 4,680,000 |
| 1989 | 1,721,000 | 10,170,000 |
| 1990 | 3,433,000 | 15,653,000 |
| 1991[1] | 7,581,000 | 19,440,000 |
| 1992 | 4,789,000 | 25,775,000 |
| 1993 | 11,500,000 | 22,003,000 |
| 1994 | 8,652,000 | [2]24,527,000 |
| Total paid | 41,353,000 | |

[1] Charge increased from £1,000 to £2,000 per improperly documented passenger on 1 August 1991.
[2] Of this sum, £9.269 million is currently the subject of settlement discussions.

Wandsworth Prison

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations he has received from the board of visitors at Wandsworth prison as to the physical conditions in A wing; and if he will make a statement of his Department's policy to improve conditions there. [20357]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the director general of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from B. Landers to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 26 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about what representations he had received from the Board of Visitors at Wandsworth prison about the physical conditions in A wing and what plans there are to improve the conditions there.

The Board of Visitors raised their concerns about the physical conditions on A wing in their Annual Report for 1994.

A wing will be closed at the end of January 1996 for major refurbishment, although showers have already been installed. A wing already provides better accommodation and facilities than would be available to prisoners in police cells. The delay in closing A wing was necessary in order to avoid the locking out of prisoners into police cells in the London area this year.

Police National Computer

Mr. Bennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what bodies other than police forces have access to the police national computer or criminal records; what safeguards exist against misuse; and what sanctions can be taken to remove access when individuals or organisations misuse the data. [20583]

Mr. Maclean: The following bodies other than police forces currently have direct access to the police national computer:

HM Customs and Excise

The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (vehicles application only)

National Ports Office

National Identification Service

Scottish Criminal Record Office

National Criminal Intelligence Service

Regional criminal intelligence offices

Regional crime squads, including the Scottish crime squad

The following four organisations have access for maintenance, development, or training purposes only:

Hendon data centre

Home Office technical and policy division

Central police national computer training centre

Police staff college, Bramshill

In addition, I announced to the House on 22 March at column 200 that limited direct access for security vetting purposes would be made available to six Government Departments and agencies. Data on stolen vehicles is also supplied directly on tape from the police national computer to HPI (Equifax), CCN Group Limited and the Association of British Insurers.

All data on the police national computer so far as it relates to identifiable individuals is subject to the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1984, and the provisions of the Computer Misuse Act 1990 are also relevant. All transactions undertaken on the police national computer are automatically logged. Security arrangements are formalised in access agreements which have been or will be concluded with each user. These agreements specify, amongst other matters, the purposes for which the data may be used, security procedures, and arrangements for audit, including external compliance audits to be conducted by Her Majesty's inspectorate of constabulary. Provisions exist for terminating direct access should this prove necessary.

There are also statutory and administrative arrangements under which the police conduct criminal record checks on individuals on behalf of a range of employers and licensing authorities, without the recipients of the information having direct access to the police national computer. These bodies are listed in the applications for registration completed separately by each data user and subsequently entered on the register held by the Office of the Data Protection Registrar.

Vulnerable Prisoner Units

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of vulnerable prisoner units in prisons in England and Wales as of 24 April (a) for men and (b) for women. [20353]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Richard Tilt to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 26 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the Office, to reply to your recent Question about the number of vulnerable prisoner units for men and women in prisons in England and Wales as of 24 April.

The latest available information is for 30 June 1994, when there were 38 vulnerable prisoner units for males and three for females.

Prisoners (Rule 43)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of (a) men and (b) women, who were on rule 43 in prisons in England and Wales on 17 April. [19953]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Richard Tilt to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 26 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General to reply to your recent Question about the number of men and women who were on Rule 43 in prisons in England and Wales on 17 April.

The latest available information is for 30 June 1994. On that date the number of inmates held on Prison Rule 43 or Young Offender Institution Rule 46 for their own interests or for good order and discipline were as follows:

| | Good order and discipline | Own interest |
|---|---|---|
| Males | 302 | 887 |
| Females | 8 | 0 |
| Total | 310 | 887 |

Relocation Costs

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19658]

Mr. Howard: Following is the available information about expenditure on removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials of my Department.

£000

| | 1992–93 | 1993–94 | 1994–95 (provisional) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Home Office (excluding HM Prison Service, the Forensic Science and the Fire Service College) | 3,944 | 3,758 | 2,646 |
| HM Prison Service[1] | [2]37,500 | 29,830 | 18,189 |
| Forensic Science Service | n/a | 96 | 71 |
| Fire Service College | 10 | nil | nil |

[1] Prison Service figures cover payments made centrally but exclude payments made locally.
[2] Figure includes repayable advances of salary which cannot be identified centrally.

At the Fire Service college, there were two claims in 1992–93 involving amounts of £5,774 and £4,241. The average was £5,007.

It is not possible to identify the highest claims that were concluded and settled in any one year or the average amount of each claim in any one year in other parts of the Home Office without disproportionate cost.

Prison Service Director

Lady Olga Maitland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Director General of the Prison Service's contract ceases; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Howard [pursuant to his reply 20 January 1995, column 695]: Mr. Lewis's original contract was for three years from 6 January 1993 extendable to five years by agreement. He was informed in March 1995 that the Home Office would not be offering him the two-year extension.

His contract has, however, been varied so that as from 22 April 1995 he continues to serve as Director General for a period of 12 months which may be rolled forward on a month-by-month basis. The contract will in any event not continue beyond 6 January 1998.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Local Enterprise Development Unit

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what were the results of the survey of the client companies of the Local Enterprise Development Unit on the success of its total quality policy as announced in section 6.22 of the Northern Ireland expenditure plans and priorities 1994–95 to 1996–97; and how these results are being made available. [19864]

Mr. Ancram: LEDU's 1994 "Client Company Quality of Service Survey" showed an overall rate of satisfaction for its services of 78 per cent. among its clients. An analysis of the survey results was published in LEDU's "Business Brief" magazine in February 1995, a copy of which will be placed in the Library.

Damage to Property (Compensation Claims)

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the reasons for the trend in the level of outstanding claims for damage to property in Northern Ireland between 1990 and 1994; and what provision he intends to make to deal with these outstanding claims as quickly as possible. [19873]

Sir John Wheeler: Responsibility for the subject in question has been delegated to the Compensation Agency under its chief executive, Mr. Denis Stanley. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from D. A. Stanley to Ms Marjorie Mowlam, dated 21 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland has asked me to reply, on behalf of the Compensation Agency, to your recent Question regarding claims for criminal damage to property.

The following table shows the number of criminal damage claims outstanding at each year ending 31 March from 1991 to 1995 along with the projected figure for the end of the current year:

| Year | Number of claims outstanding at year end |
|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 4,213 |
| 1991–92 | 6,238 |
| 1992–93 | 6,432 |
| 1993–94 | 6,612 |
| 1994–95 | 2,795 |
| 1995–96 | [1]950 |

[1] Estimated. The number of claims outstanding at the end of any year is directly related to the numbers of new claims received in that year. The rising trend over the three years up to 1993–94 reflected the terrorist bombing campaign over this period when, in particular, town centres were targeted resulting in a large number of claims involving commercial property, much of which took considerable time to rebuild.

A significant downturn in new claims occurred in 1994–95 particular following the paramilitary ceasefires of last Autumn. As a consequence, a substantial reduction was made in the number of outstanding claims. On the assumption that this downturn in new claims will continue, it is estimated that by the end of 1995–96 the number of outstanding claims will have been reduced to about 950.

The Agency remains committed to processing claims as quickly as possible. Resources and procedures are targeted at ensuring that the Agency provides the best possible service to the innocent victims of violent crime.

Arrests

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many arrests were made in Northern Ireland in each year since 1991. [20480]

Sir John Wheeler: Figures for all arrests are not held centrally and to obtain these would incur disproportionate cost. Arrests under the Police and Criminal Evidence Order and section 14 of the Prevention of Terrorism Act are set out below:

| | PACE | Section 14 PTA |
|---|---|---|
| 1991 | 145 | 1,620 |

| 1993 | 441 | 1,640 |
| 1994 | 628 | 1,503 |

Conviction Rates

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convictions there have been for offences committed in Northern Ireland in each year since 1991. [20479]

1991: 33,303

1993: 35,085

Housing Associations (Capital Grants)

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to reduce the capital grants available to housing associations in Northern Ireland. [20536]

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been (a) arrested and (b) convicted under the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1991 in each year since 1991. [20228]

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

British High Commission, Nairobi

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what has been the total cost to date of building the new British high commission office in Nairobi. [20940]

Mr. Goodlad: The total cost to date of building the British high commission office in Nairobi is £4,989,917 including consultants' fees.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20887]

Mr. Goodlad: None.

EDUCATION

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public.

Mr. Boswell: None.

Mature Students

Mrs. Anne Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many mature students were registered for degrees at British universities in the last three years for which figures are available.[20790]

Mr. Boswell: The latest available data on all home domiciled, first year, full-time and part-time mature students on higher education courses at publicly funded institutions in Great Britain was published in September 1994 in statistical bulletin 16/94. The numbers of mature students enroling on a first degree course are shown in the table.

Thousands

| | Academic year beginning | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 |
| Full-time | 34.7 | 50.5 | 66.4 |
| Part-time | 14.6 | 21.2 | 27.1 |

Illiteracy

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is the current reported rate of illiteracy; and what were the figures for each of the previous four years. [20725]

Mr. Boswell: The number of people in England and Wales who cannot read and write at all is minimal. However, the Basic Skills Agency estimates that one in six adults in England and Wales is unable to read, write and/or speak in English at a level necessary to function and progress at work and in society in general. There is no evidence that this proportion has changed significantly in recent years.

Barnsley and Doncaster Training and Enterprise Council

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when the contract of the current chairman of the Barnsley and Doncaster TEC was terminated; when the new chairman will be appointed; and what organisations were or are being consulted over this appointment. [20739]

Mr. Paice: I have been asked to reply.

The chairman of the Barnsley and Doncaster training and enterprise council has informed the TEC's board of directors that he intends to step down from the role of chairman before the end of 1995. The appointment of a new chairman is a matter for the TEC board, which has appointed a sub-group to consult local organisations, including both local authorities and chambers of commerce in the TEC area.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Coal Privatisation

Mr. Byers: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what plans he has to release details of the advice given by civil servants to the Secretary of State for Energy in 1991 on the awarding of the contract for advice on the privatisation of the coal industry to the National Audit Office. [20513]

Mr. Page: The National Audit Office has access to all the relevant papers on the appointment of N. M. Rothschild as advisers to the Government on coal privatisation.

Mr. Byers: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if any of the information concerning the reasons for awarding the consultancy contract on the privatisation of the coal industry to N. M. Rothschild, the advice given by civil servants to Ministers, the terms on which the contract was awarded, how value for money was to be judged and subsequent costs controlled is held in files marked as being not for National Audit Office eyes. [20514]

Mr. Byers: To ask the President of the Board of Trade on what date his Department became aware that Mr. Richard Budge had provided advice to N. M. Rothschild and Son on matters relating to the privatisation of the coal industry. [20515]

Mr. Page: In connection with the privatisation of the coal mining operations of British Coal the Department and N. M. Rothschild and Sons Ltd. held discussions with a wide selection of then existing and prospective coal industry participants, including Mr. Budge, in the period prior to the submission of tenders for the regional coal companies in September 1994. At no time has Mr. Budge provided advice to N. M. Rothschild and Sons Ltd.

Instruments of Torture

Mr. Jim Cunningham : To ask the President of the Board of Trade what Government or training and enterprise council support has been provided in the last five years to companies that produced equipment used for purposes of torture. [20286]

Mr. Eggar: My Department has not knowingly supported companies which produce equipment intended for the purpose of torture.

Questions on TEC support should be addressed to my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Employment.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what estimate he has made of the value of the trade in British torture equipment. [20296]

Mr. Ian Taylor: I know of no such trade. Export licences would not be granted for licensable goods if there were good reasons to suppose that they would be used for the purposes of torture.

Business Links

Dr. John Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much was spent on business links before September 1994. [19454]

Mr. Heseltine: The total amount spent on the development of business links by DTI up to 31 August 1994 was £3.61 million.

Allowances and Costs

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who were required to relocate as part of their employment, (b) the amount of each of the highest three claims that were concluded and settled and (c) the average amount of each claim in each of the last three years. [19650]

Mr. Ian Taylor: As regards the central DTI, the following amounts of removal costs and associated expenses were reimbursed to officials required to relocate as part of their employment:

| | £ | £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1994–95 | 2,234,526 | (includes 694,559 provision for relocation costs for merger of WSL with AEA) |
| 1993–94 | 1,634,070 | (includes 143,108 provision for relocation costs for merger of WSL with AEA) |
| 1992–93 | 1,418,515 | — |

The other expenditure details requested are not identified separately and to provide the information would entail disproportionate cost.

I have asked agency chief executives to reply direct in respect of the expenditure for which they are responsible.

Letter from W. Edgar to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

I refer to your question to the President of the Board of Trade concerning the amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials who are required to relocate as part of their employment. The expenditure of NEL is as shown below. Please note that in both years where expenditure was incurred only one official was involved and thus the total also represents the answer to part (b) and part (c) of your question. I trust you will find the information supplied to be satisfactory for your purposes.

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 1992–93 | nil |
| 1993–94 | 1,927 |
| 1994–95 | 3,073 |

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the total amount paid by his central Department and each agency for which he is responsible in subsistence allowances for travel (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom in each of the last three years. [19564]

Mr. Ian Taylor: As regards the central DTI, the subsistence element of claims by officers who travel on official business (a) within the United Kingdom and (b) outside the United Kingdom is not recorded separately from the travel costs element.

To provide the information requested would entail disproportionate cost.

I have asked agency chief executives to reply direct to the hon. Member as they have their own budgetary responsibility for United Kingdom and overseas travel and subsistence.

Letter from W. Edgar to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

I would refer to your question to the President of the Board of Trade concerning the total amount paid in subsistence allowances for travel, within and outside the United Kingdom in the last three years. The management information system NEL does not separate travel and subsistence costs and does not differentiate between travel and subsistence within or outside the UK. It is not possible therefore to supply the information you require.

Letter from Peter Clapham to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

I am writing in response to your questions to the President of the Board of Trade regarding i) subsistence allowances and ii) removal costs and associated expenses, in each of the last three years.

Subsistence Allowances

a) Within the UK—disproportionate cost rule applies. NPL's accounts do not separately identify subsistence costs from travel costs.

b) Overseas—disproportionate cost rule applies for the reason given above.

Removal Costs

a) Total removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed—£17,643 in 1992/93, £15,613 in 1993/94 and £9,354 in 1994/95.

b) Amount of each of the three highest claims concluded and settled—disproportionate cost rule applies. To obtain this information NPL would need to request that CSL Managed Services (formerly ASA), who handle claims on NPL's behalf, consult each individual relocation file for the last three years and total all expenses paid from each individual file.

c) Average amount of each claim in the last three years—disproportionate cost rule applies. All files from last three years would need to be consulted to endure that cases did not start outside the three year period, or started within the three year period but have yet to be completed.

I hope this provides the information you require.

Letter from P. R. S. Hartnack to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

You recently tabled two questions to the President of the Board of Trade, concerning subsistence allowances and removal costs. I have been asked to reply with respect to the Patent Office.

I am afraid that subsistence payments—in connection with both UK and overseas travel—are not separately identified from the related travel costs on our information system, and differentiating them would involve disproportionate cost.

The total amount of removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to Patent Office officials over the past three years was £748,000 in 1992–93; £381,000 in 1993–94; and £354,000 in 1994–95. These figures exclude advance of salary for house purchase, since this amounts to a repayable loan. The number of relocation cases in the Patent Office has been high over the past three years, since we have been completing the move from London to South Wales. We would need to research individual files in order to determine the three highest claims, which I regret would involve disproportionate cost. The same is true for the average amount of each claim, since many cases are protracted and will overlap with the three years in question.

Letter from Peter Joyce to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your Question about removal costs paid to officers relocated in the last three years.

The Insolvency Service Executive Agency paid the following removal and associated costs:

1992–93: £427,000

1993–94: £252,000

1994–95: £250,000

The figure for 1994–95 is provisional pending clearance of the final accounts for the year.

The further information which you have sought about the three highest claims and the average amount of each claim is not readily identified by CSL Managed Services (formerly the Accounts Services Agency) which maintain The Insolvency Service's Vote accounts, and could only be obtained from the examination of individual files at disproportionate cost.

Letter from Peter Joyce to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your Question about the amounts paid in subsistence allowances in the last three years.

The Insolvency Service Executive Agency paid the following travel costs and subsistence allowances, chargeable against the Vote:

1992–93: £328,000

1993–94: £342,000

1994–95: £370,000

CSL Managed Services (formerly the Accounts Services Agency) which maintain The Insolvency Service's Vote accounts do not separately identify subsistence allowances from travel costs nor differentiate between UK and overseas travel and subsistence. The specific information which you have sought in relation to subsistence allowances could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. The figure for travel and subsistence for 1994–95 is provisional pending clearance of the final accounts for the year.

The figures do not include travel costs and subsistence allowances chargeable against the estates of bankrupts and companies in compulsory liquidation incurred by Official Receivers and their staff in carrying out their functions under the Insolvency Act 1986. Information in relation to such costs and allowances could only be obtained from the examination of individual estate accounts at disproportionate cost.

Letter from Jim Norton to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26th April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the Radiocommunications Agency to your two written Parliamentary Questions concerning subsistence allowances and removal costs.

SUBSISTENCE ALLOWANCES

There would be a disproportionate cost involved in providing the information requested for each of the last three years as we do not separately identify subsistence costs and travel costs for either UK or overseas travel.

REMOVAL COSTS

The Radiocommunications Agency has spent the following amount on removal costs for its staff relocating as part of their employment:

1992–93: £64,439

1993–94: £55,338

1994–95 £104,038

You have asked for details of the three highest claims and the average amount of each claim in the last three years. There would be a disproportionate cost invovled in providing this information as we would have to consult each case for the last three years to total all expenses paid from each individual file and to ensure that cases did not start outside the three year period or started within the three year period but have yet to be completed.

I am sorry that I cannot be more helpful.

Letter from R. D. Worswick to Mr. David Shaw, dated 11 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply to your questions about subsistence allowances and removal and associated expenses with respect to the Laboratory of the Government Chemist.

Most of the information you requested is not readily available, and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

We do not keep records which distinguish between the subsistence costs of any trip and the travel costs. We record the total of "travel and subsistence". The total "travel and subsistence" costs for the last three years is (in £k):

| | 1992–93 | 1993–94 | 1994–95 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Within UK | 167 | 156 | 115 |
| Outside UK | 47 | 72 | 98 |

This expenditure is associated with fulfilling contracts for customers, attending scientific meetings and pursuing new areas of business.

Removal Allowances

The total amount of removal costs and associated expenses charged to the Laboratory of the Government Chemist are (£k):

1992–93: 18

1993–94: 6

1994–95: 6

I regret that it would require manual searches of records and would not be cost effective to provide further breakdown of these figures.

Letter from Seton Bennett to Mr. David Shaw, dated 26 April 1995:

The President of the Board of Trade has asked me to reply on behalf of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory to your questions about subsistence allowances and removal costs.

(a) Subsistence allowances

The CSL Managed Services (formerly ASA) do not separately identify subsistence costs from travel costs, nor do they differentiate between UK and overseas travel and subsistence. However, I am able to provide composite figures for expenditure on all travel and subsistence for the last three years.

They are:—

1992–93: £55,126

1993–94: £66,098

1994–95: £46,529 (Provisional)

(b) Removal costs

This Agency has had no expenditure on removal costs in the last three years.

Letter from David Durham to Mr. David Shaw, dated 6 April 1995:

You recently tabled two Parliamentary Questions requesting information about removal costs and associated expenses reimbursed to officials on relocation, and subsistence allowances for travel within and outside the United Kingdom. I have been asked to reply as Chief Executive of the Companies House Executive Agency.

As far as removal costs are concerned, this agency has not incurred any of these expenses. As regards subsistence allowances, I am afraid this information is not available except at disproportionate costs. This is because we do not separately identify subsistence costs from travel costs when recording claims in our accounting system.

Manufacturing Firms

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what percentage of United Kingdom companies he now assesses to be world class. [20561]

Mr. Eggar: A recent study by IBM and the London business school shows that the United Kingdom has a similar proportion to Germany of world-class manufacturing firms. Forty UK firms are in the Fortune 500 list of top global companies. In terms of profitability, 16 of the top 25 companies in Europe are UK-based.

Sellafield

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what application British Nuclear Fuels has made for a change of use in its site licence for Sellafield, as part of its decision to offer Nuclear Electric and Scottish Nuclear long-term storage contracts for spent nuclear fuel. [20398]

Mr. Page: None. No change is required to BNFL's Sellafield site licence to allow long term storage of spent fuel, although BNFL will be submitting a revised safety case to the Health and Safety Executive's nuclear installations inspectorate which takes account of the new contracts.

Royal Mail

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make it his policy that the Royal Mail should be able to negotiate a single contract with all the train operating units or companies. [20647]

Mr. Page: Contracts for transport services are a commercial matter for the Post Office. I understand from the Post Office that all Royal Mail's external rail transport services are covered by contractual arrangements with Rail Express Systems.

Departmental Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20175]

Mr. Heseltine: Drafting and editing of the departmental report is co-ordinated by a small editorial team, using information gathered from a wide variety of sources within the Department. It is not possible to quantify the time devoted by staff other than the editorial team to these activities.

The table shows the estimated staff time and associated costs of the editorial team for each departmental report since 1991–92. These figures are published each year in MINIS. Figures are not available for the 1990–91 report, which predated MINIS, but are not expected to have been substantially different from 1991–92. Costs are expressed in 1994–95 prices.

| | Time man years | Cost £000 |
|---|---|---|
| 1992 | 0.6 | 20 |
| 1993 | 0.8 | 26 |
| 1994 | 1.1 | 36 |
| 1995 | 1.1 | 36 |

In addition, some staff time is devoted to the design and production of the report. In 1993–94 and 1994–95, this amounted to 0.1 and 0.2 man years and £12,000 and £21,000 respectively—costs expressed in cash terms. These figures are not shown separately in MINIS and information on similar costs for earlier years is not available.

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20176]

Mr. Heseltine: The resources needed to coordinate drafting and production of the departmental report are considered as part of my annual examination of the Department's activities and resources in MINIS, the results of which are published each year. Budgets are set for non-staff costs at the beginning of work on each report.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the President of the Board of Trade which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department publish (a) annual reports, (b) annual accounts, (c) the minutes of meetings, (d) the agendas of meetings and (e) registers of members' interests; and whether this in each case is (i) under a statutory requirement or (ii) voluntary. [20505]

British Coal Projects

Mr. Milburn: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list those British Coal projects which received European regional development funding over the last 10 years, indicating (a) the level of funding and (b) the dates when it was received. [20402]

Mr. Eggar [holding answer 24 April 1995]: The amounts of European regional development fund grant approved for British Coal projects up to 31 March 1995 are as listed, except for information for Scotland before 1989, which is not readily available. The dates shown are those of the offers of grant. Most of the grants have been for British Coal Enterprise job creation projects. Most of the others have been to British Coal property for activities such as clearing and renovating old mine areas.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

RMS St. Helena

Sir David Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the MARSPEC report on the condition of RMS St. Helena. [20366]

Mr. Baldry: The MARSPEC report was produced for the Government of St. Helena. With the agreement of the Governor, a copy of the report has been placed in the Library of the House.

Forest Stewardship Council

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding has been made available by the Overseas Development Administration to the Forest Stewardship Council; and for what purpose. [20781]

Mr. Baldry: The ODA made a grant of £14,000 to the World Wide Fund for Nature to meet the costs of attendance of developing country representatives at the founding assembly of the council in 1993. We are presently discussing with the Forest Stewardship Council the possibility of providing funding to support national workshops in developing countries to discuss timber certification issues.

English Language Book Society

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons he has indicated that he wishes to terminate the subsidy to the English Language Book Society. [19891]

Mr. Baldry [holding answer 25 April 1995]: The subsidy to British publishers under the educational low-priced books scheme—ELBS—is being phased out over two years because it is not fully meeting ODA's developmental priorities. A review carried out in 1994 revealed that about a third of books sold under ELBS went to prosperous countries, including Hong Kong, Malaysia and Turkey, although our aim for the scheme was to reach poorer students in poorer countries who cannot afford to buy books. The review concluded that the money could be spent more effectively if targeted at specific countries and institutions to which poorer students have access. Over the coming months we will be developing new strategies to achieve improved targeting of and access to key text books and other essential learning materials for students in the poorer countries, in pursuit of our developmental objectives.

DEFENCE

Russian Forces

Mr. William Powell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his latest estimate of the number of Russian forces stationed in each sovereign state outside present Russian borders. [20280]

Mr. Soames: Some Russian-controlled military units stationed outside Russia are mixed-manned with Russians and local ethnic groups. The rounded figures for Russian-controlled units are as follows:

Turkmenistan around 1,000
Tajikistan: 25,000
Kazakhstan: 23,000
Uzbekistan: around 100
Kyrgyzstan: around 500
Estonia: none
Lithuania: none
Latvia: 600
Armenia: 15,000
Azerbaijan: 300
Georgia: 25,000
Moldova: 8,000
Ukraine: 35,000
Belarus: 3,000

Low Flying

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he is likely to complete his investigation into the low-flying incident over Barnoldswick and Earby in January. [20002]

Mr. Soames: Although the RAF police investigation is well advanced, there is still a need to interview eye witnesses. The RAF police aim to conduct these interviews as soon as possible and to conclude their investigation shortly thereafter.

Military Attaches

Mr. Jopling: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what countries the United Kingdom posts have defence attaches; and what number of serving military personnel is attached to each one, together with their rank. [19958]

Mr. Soames: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Leeds, Central (Mr. Fatchett) on 2 March, Official Report, column 687.

Rifle Grenades

Mr. Colvin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what United Kingdom capability exists for the design and manufacture of rifle grenades: which company was responsible for the production of rifle grenades currently in service: for what reasons no British company has been invited to tender for the design and supply of rifle grenades under tender No. LWS 2a/459; and if he will make a statement. [20332]

Mr. Freeman: Any accredited United Kingdom ammunition manufacturer would have the capability to design and manufacture rifle grenades as the technology is not complex. Current in-service grenades were manufactured by Luchaire (France) and Martin Marietta (US). Two UK companies registered an interest in the advance notice of tender LWS 2a/459, Heckler and Koch (UK) and Hunting Engineering. However, Heckler and Koch (UK) withdrew from the tender in August 1993, and the Hunting Engineering proposal did not meet the services' requirements.

Helicopters

Dr. David Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library the six reports on cost and operational effectiveness investment appraisal of the EH101 helicopter. [20478]

Mr. Freeman: This material is classified, and it would not therefore be appropriate to place it in the House of Commons Library.

Abbey Wood

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list (a) the functions and (b) the staff which he intends to transfer to the new facilities at Abbey wood, Bristol. [20801]

Mr. Freeman: The function to be transferred is defence equipment procurement and related policy support which is undertaken by the Department's Procurement Executive. Current plans envisage transferring some 4,300 PE civilian and military posts together with a further 600 PE-related project support and integrated logistics specialist personnel. Of the total PE strength, some 500 administrative or secretarial staff will be recruited locally with the balance transferring from existing locations. Consideration is being given to accommodating additional staff at Abbey wood to allow further rationalisation of MOD property holdings.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will set out (a) the original completion date, (b) the current completion date, (c) the confirmed cost and (d) the expected cost for the construction of Abbey wood, Bristol. [20802]

Mr. Freeman: The original completion date including occupation of Abbey wood by the Procurement Executive headquarters staff was autumn 1996. The current completion date is 31 October 1996. The approved and estimated cost of the development is £254.136 million—inclusive of VAT—at 1993 prices. The project remains within budget.

University Recruits

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many flying members of each university air squadron were recruited into the RAF on leaving university in the last available year. [20888]

Mr. Soames: We have no such plans.

Radioactive Waste

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to take any action against the individuals who, on 17 April, damaged the radioactive waste discharge pipeline which runs from AWE Aldermaston to the River Thames. [21010]

(2) what legal rights are held by Asea Brown Boveri to undertake rolling stock engineering and maintenance work for British Rail and rolling stock leasing companies; [20544]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the agreement reached with Asea Brown Boveri at the time of the privatisation of British Rail Engineering Ltd. regarding the future placing of orders for rolling stock engineering and maintenance work by British Rail; [20542]

(4) what reference was made to legal obligations on the railway rolling stock leasing companies regarding any requirement to place heavy engineering and maintenance work with any publicly or privately owned maintenance companies and to legal rights held by Asea Brown Boveri

(5) what legal obligations rest on the railway rolling stock leasing companies regarding any requirement to place heavy engineering and maintenance work with any publicly or privately owned maintenance companies. [20543]

Mr. Watts: The British Railways Board and the rolling stock companies have contractual commitments for rolling stock maintenance with a number of private sector suppliers, and with BR Maintenance Ltd.—level 5 maintenance depots. BR described these latter commitments and associated matters in the British Rail Maintenance Ltd.—level 5 information memoranda, other sales documents and in subsequent discussions with bidders for the depots. The documents are commercially confidential and cannot therefore be released. BR hopes to announce sales of the depots shortly.

Bull Bars

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to sponsor new research by the Transport Research Laboratory into accidents in which bull bars are involved. [20805]

Mr. Norris: None. I am waiting for the results of the accident study based on police reports of injuries to pedestrians involving cars fitted with bull bars, which should be available towards the end of this year.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20878]

Mr. Norris: Only the London regional passengers committee is subject to any statutory requirements. Meetings of the committee are required to be open to the public, except during discussion on items of business defined in paragraph 11A of schedule 3 to the London Regional Transport Act 1984—for example, where a breach of confidence would be involved.

Railway Passenger Services

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if passenger transport executives will be able to specify timetabling and fares for the rail services they support. [18015]

Mr. Watts: The Railways Act 1993 provides for passenger transport executives to submit to the franchising director a statement of their requirements for inclusion in the specification of services in respect of which the franchising director proposes to issue an invitation to tender. Such a statement shall specify the railway passenger services which the passenger transport authority considers it appropriate to secure to meet any public transport requirements within the relevant passenger transport area. The statement may also specify requirements with respect to the fares to be charged to persons using those services.

Ship Inspections

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the number of ship inspectors employed at each marine office for each of the last five years. [19381]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Ms Joan Walley, dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of ship inspectors employed at each Marine Office during the last five years.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many unannounced inspections have been carried out by the Marine Safety Agency for each of the last five years; [19383]

(2) if he will list for each of the last five years the number of ship inspections undertaken by the Marine Safety Agency. [19379]

Mr. Norris: These are operational matters for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Ms Joan Walley dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your two Questions about the number of ship inspections and the number of unannounced ship inspections carried out by the Marine Safety Agency (MSA) in each of the last five years.

Virtually all inspections made by the MSA are unannounced, by occasionally for operational reasons the inspection may be pre-arranged. The records held by the MSA do not identify which inspections might have been announced in advance.

The number of inspections carried out in the last five years by the MSA and the Surveyor General's Organisation (before 1993) are set out in the table below. The figures include fishing vessel inspections and port state control inspections.

| | 1989–90 | 1990–91 | 1991–92 | 1992–93 | 1993–94 |
| Total number of inspections | 6,018 | 5,801 | 6,654 | 6,211 | 6,663 |

The inspection figures for 1994–95 are being collated and will be published in the MSA's annual report.

Marine Safety Agency

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the total budget for the Marine Safety Agency and its predecessor for each of the last five years. [19387]

Mr. Norris: The gross budgets for the Marine Safety Agency for the financial years 1990–91 to 1994–95 are as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 1990–91 | 26.9 |
| 1991–92 | 28.6 |
| 1992–93 | 27.6 |
| 1993–94 | 28.5 |
| 1994–95 | 31.7 |

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list for each of the last two years the number of port state control checks undertaken by the Marine Safety Agency. [19380]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Ms Joan Walley, dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your Question about the number of port state control inspections undertaken by the Marine Safety Agency (MSA) in the last two years.

The MSA carried out 2,132 port state control inspections in the financial year 1992/93 and 2,218 inspections in 1993/94. Information on the inspections undertaken in 1994/95 is being collated and the number of port state control inspections carried out will be published in the MSA's annual report.

Ferry Safety

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the ferries sailing from United Kingdom waters that do not meet the standards set out in SOLAS 90. [19382]

Mr. Norris: In his oral statement to the House on 5 April 1995, Official Report, columns 1753–61, the Secretary of State announced the publication of lists of roll-on roll-off ferries serving the United Kingdom ports. The lists show whether the vessels meet the SOLAS 90 survivability standard or the date by which they need to be modified in accordance with the north-west European ferry stability agreement which applies SOLAS 90 to roll-on roll-off ferries built before 1990. A copy of those lists and an explanatory note were placed in the Library of the House.

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if it is mandatory for ferry operators to carry out fire evacuation exercises while passengers are on board; and if he will make a statement. [19384]

Mr. Norris: This is an operational matter for the Marine Safety Agency. I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from R. M. Bradley to Ms Joan Walley, dated 26 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Transport has asked me to reply to your question about fire evacuation exercises whilst passengers are on board ferries.

Passengers are not required to participate in fire drills unless the ship is engaged on a long international voyage, in which case a muster of the passengers must take place within 24 hours of their embarkation. In addition, all passenger ships on international voyages, including ferries, are subject to requirements that call for a weekly fire drill when the crew receive training and practise the functions that they are expected to carry out in an emergency. In the event of a fire passengers would be alerted using the general emergency alarm system and instructed on the public address system to muster at specified positions in the same way as any other emergency. Instructions are required to be posted in passenger cabins, muster stations and other passenger spaces to inform passengers of their muster station and the essential actions they must take in an emergency.

Railway Signalling Systems

Mr. Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on what dates work started or will start on site on the renewal of (a) Winchester/Weston, (b) Dorking-Arundel AHB level crossings, (c) Kingmoor area, (d) east Kent AHB level crossings, (e) Holmwood, (f) central Scotland, (g) Medway valley, (h) Olive Mount, (i) Great Eastern, (j) Manchester north, (k) Manchester south—Stockport—(l) Manchester south, (m) Hither Green, (n) Willesden, (o) Barnes, (p) Dartford and (q) Guildford railway signalling systems; and in each case when the renewal is due to be completed. Mr. Norris: Construction of the line continues. London Underground is still aiming for it to be completed in early 1998.

Container Freight Lorries

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many container freight lorries enter each United Kingdom port annually through ferry facilities. [20765]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is not available.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many container freight lorries have entered the United Kingdom via the channel tunnel since its opening. [20764]

Mr. Norris: The information requested is not available.

Motorways (Abnormal Loads)

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to privatise the escorting of wide and heavy loads on motorways by the police; and if he will make a statement. [20470]

Mr. Maclean: I have been asked to reply.

The Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers are examining the idea that on motorways and linking dual carriageways the escorting of abnormal loads which are between 4.3 and 4.6 m wide and 80 to 150 tonnes in weight might be carried out by suitably trained and qualified private escorts. The issue has recently been examined by consultants and their report is under consideration. The road haulage industry associations concerned with abnormal loads will be invited to comment on the report.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Pensioners

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many pensioners in Scotland (a) are dependent on income support, (b) have incomes less than £10 above income support levels and (c) are placed above these levels by receipt of a contributory pension or superannuation scheme. [18986]

Mr. Roger Evans: The number of pensioners[1] in Scotland in receipt of income support is 153,000[2].

It is estimated that 95,000 pensioners in Scotland will have income within £10 of income support thresholds including housing requirements in 1995–96[1].

It is estimated that 500,000 pensioners in Scotland would be placed above income support thresholds including housing requirements by the receipt of a contributory pension or superannuation scheme in 1995–96[1].

Notes:

[1] The definition of "pensioner" used throughout is women aged 60 and over and men aged 65 and over.

[2] The figure is rounded to the nearest 1,000.

Source: income support statistics quarterly inquiry May 1994.

[1] (a) Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 5,000.

(b) This is estimated using income brought to account for income support purposes, modelled from 1990, 1991 and 1992 family expenditure survey data uprated to 1995–96 prices and benefit levels.

(c) The definition of "contributory pension or superannuation scheme" used is:

—public and private pensions—occupational pensions;

—state retirement pensions.

Income-related Benefits

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many British nationals who have paid tax and national insurance contributions in the United Kingdom have been excluded from income-related benefits on the grounds of the habitual residence test, before taking up appeals after returning to the United Kingdom from another member state of the European Union. [19267]

Mr. Roger Evans: This information is not available.

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to limit income-related benefit payments to claimants who have paid tax and national insurance contributions in the United Kingdom. [19271]

Mr. Roger Evans: None. Tax and national insurance contributions are not taken into account when deciding entitlement to the income-related benefits.

Executive Agencies

Mr. MacDonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will give the number and location of Benefits Agency, Child Support Agency, Contributions Agency, the Information Technology Services Agency, Resettlement Agency, War Pensions Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years and the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20263]

Mr. Hague: The Benefits Agency opened the Glasgow benefit office in August 1989 and over the following 18 months 831 posts were gained as a result of work transferring from the rest of the United Kingdom. The central office for Scotland was closed in March 1992. During the 18-month run-down period the majority of posts were redistributed within Scotland and approximately 50 posts transferred to Leeds.

The Child Support Agency opened an agency centre—CSAC—at Falkirk during 1993. As at the end of February 1995, the CSAC had a total of 721 posts dealing with new work created following the Child Support Act 1991.

Over the last four years, the Contributions Agency has centralised some work at Newcastle while maintaining a local presence for face-to-face contact with customers. This has entailed some posts transferring to Newcastle from around the United Kingdom. Exact figures for posts transferring from Scotland to Newcastle could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Information Technology Services Agency, the Resettlement Agency and the War Pensions Agency have not transferred any work between Scotland and the rest of the UK.

Residential and Nursing Homes

Mr. Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what information his Department has in respect of the numbers of people who are entering private residential or nursing homes, where such care is publicly financed but does not involve the local authority social services department in any assessment of need, or in any expenditure. [19898]

Mr. Roger Evans: Information is not available in the form requested. In November 1994, the number of residents who were in receipt of income support that included residential allowance was 80,000. It is not known how many of these had been assessed or financially supported by social services. In addition, 201,000 residents have preserved rights to the higher levels of income support. It is not known how many of these receive financial support from the local authority.

Expenditure

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what is the underlying rate of growth in social security expenditure in the next 10 years, assuming level unemployment and assuming the full effects of all recently announced changes from the previous year. [20464]

Mr. Hague: The latest long-term projections of underlying growth in expenditure were published in the departmental report "The Government's Expenditure Plans 1995–96 to 1997–98", Cm 2813, which stated that recently announced reforms would contain growth between 1997–98 and 2000–01 to 2.1 per cent. a year, assuming level unemployment. Projections of social security expenditure over a 10-year period would be subject to considerable uncertainty.

Consultants

Mr. McAllion: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many former members of staff of his Department or its agencies are currently employed as consultants within his Department or its agencies; what is the length of the consultancy in each case; and what were their previous grades; [20343]

(2) how many former members of his staff are currently employed as consultants by DSS headquarters; what is the length of the consultancy in each case; and what were their previous grades. [20344]

Mr. Hague: Two former members of staff are currently employed as consultants by DSS headquarters. Their previous grade and length of consultancy are as follows:

| Previous grade | Length of consultancy |
|---|---|
| Grade 2 | Four days in total during April and May 1995. |
| Grade 3 | Two/three days per week on continuing basis. |

The information requested for the Department's agencies is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Family Credit

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security if he will list the proportion of (a) married couples and (b) single parents who claim family credit. [20390]

Mr. Roger Evans: The information is set out in the table.

| Family credit case load July 1994 | Cases | Percentage |
|---|---|---|
| Couples[1] | 327,700 | 57 |
| Lone parents | 243,980 | 43 |

Note:

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 28 March, Official Report, column 557, (1) how many of the 45,000 new incapacity benefit claimants who will be found capable of work in 1995–96 he estimates will (a) sign on as unemployed and receive unemployment benefit, (b) sign on as unemployed and receive income support only, (c) sign on and receive national insurance credits only, (d) receive retirement pension, (e) receive invalidity care allowance, (f) receive widows benefits and (g) receive income support without having to sign on; [21020]

(2) how many of the 55,000 new incapacity benefit claimants who will be found capable of work in 1996–97 he estimates will (a) sign on as unemployed and receive unemployment benefit, (b) sign on as unemployed and receive income support only, (c) sign on and receive national insurance credits only, (d) receive retirement pension, (e) receive invalidity care allowance, (f) receive widows benefits and (g) receive income support without having to sign on; [21021]

(3) how many of the 80,000 existing invalidity benefit claimants who will be found capable of work in 1996–97 he estimates will (a) sign on as unemployed and receive unemployment benefit, (b) sign on as unemployed and receive income support only, (c) sign on and receive national insurance credits only, (d) receive retirement pension, (e) receive invalidity care allowance, (f) receive widows benefits and (g) receive income support without having to sign on; [21018]

(4) how many of the 140,000 existing invalidity benefit claimants who will be found capable of work in 1995–96 he estimates will (a) sign on as unemployed and receive unemployment benefit, (b) sign on as unemployed and receive income support only, (c) sign on and receive national insurance credits only, (d) receive retirement pension, (e) receive invalidity care allowance, (f) receive widows benefits and (g) receive income support without having to sign on. [21016]

Mr. Hague: There are no estimates of the number of people found capable of work who will receive retirement pension, invalidity care allowance or widow's benefits. Such information as is available is in the table.

Figures based on the estimated number of people leaving incapacity benefit earlier than they would have done under current arrangements.

| Invalidity benefit/incapacity benefit claimants | 1995–96 | | 1996–97 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Existing cases | New cases | Existing cases | New cases |
| Estimated number of claimants found capable of work | 140,000 | 45,000 | 80,000 | 55,000 |
| Estimated number who will be unemployed and receive unemployment benefit/contributory jobseeker's allowance | 70,000 | 25,000 | 40,000 | 30,000 |
| Estimated number who will be unemployed and receive Income support/income-based jobseeker's allowance only[1] | 25,000 | 10,000 | 15,000 | 10,000 |
| Estimated number who will be unemployed and receive national insurance credits only | 20,000 | 10,000 | 15,000 | 10,000 |
| Estimated number who will receive income support without having to sign on as unemployed | 10,000 | 5,000 | 5,000 | 5,000 |

Note:

[1] Not receiving unemployment benefit/contributory jobseeker's allowance but may receive other benefits—for example, housing benefit, council tax benefit.

All estimates rounded to nearest 5,000. Totals may not sum due to rounding and because not all groups are included—for example, those found capable of work who do not register for employment or receive any other benefit.

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, pursuant to his answer of 28 March, Official Report, column 557 (1) if he will break down by region the estimates of the numbers of (a) existing invalidity benefit claimants, (b) existing income support claimants, (c) new incapacity benefit claimants and (d) new income support claimants who will be found capable of work in each of the years (i) 1995–96, (ii) 1996–97 and (iii) 1997–98; [21019]

(2) if he will break down by gender the estimates of the numbers of (a) existing invalidity benefit claimants, (b) existing income support claimants, (c) new incapacity benefit claimants and (d) new income support claimants who will be found capable of work in (i) 1995–96, (ii) 1996–97 and (iii) 1997–98. [21017]

Mr. Hague: The information is not available in the form requested. Estimates are available only on a national basis. There is insufficient data to allow them to be broken down regionally, or by gender.

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) how many of those who move off incapacity benefit in 1995 he estimates will not qualify for unemployment benefit for reasons of (a) failing the contribution test or (b) failing the availability test; [21011]

(2) pursuant to this answer of 28 March, Official Report. column 557, how many of the people who will fail to qualify for contributory jobseeker's allowance will do so for reasons of (a) failing the contributions test or (b) failing the availability tests; [21022]

(3) how many people who move off incapacity benefit in 1995–96 he estimates will not qualify for unemployment benefit. [21012]

Mr. Hague: It is estimated that around 95,000[1] new and existing claimants found fit for work in 1995–96 will not qualify for unemployment benefit because of failure to satisfy the contribution conditions.

Information is not available as to the number of people who will not qualify for unemployment benefit or contributory jobseeker's allowance due to failure to satisfy the availability for work tests.

[1]Figure rounded to the nearest 5,000.

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many people who move off incapacity benefit in 1995–96 will qualify for contributory jobseeker's allowance in each of the years 1996–97 and 1997–98. [21013]

Mr. Hague: The information requested is not available.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board of committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20880]

Mr. Hague: The Occupational Pensions Board is the only executive non-departmental public body sponsored by this Department. There is no statutory requirement to admit members of the public to its board or committee meetings. However, there is a statutory requirement, under the provisions of the Occupational Pensions Board (Determinations and Review Procedure) Regulations 1973 to hold formal public hearings, in connection with reviews of the board's determinations, unless the board for any special reasons directs otherwise. If such a hearing is held privately, a member of the Council on Tribunals is entitled to attend.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Rogers: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security how many complaints have now been made to his Department or the Child Support Agency concerning the Child Support Agency. [19239]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Miss Ann Chant to Mr. Allan Rogers, dated 26 April 1995:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the number of complaints received by the Child Support Agency.

The precise information you request is not available. Since launch to the end of February 1995, the Agency has recorded a total of 34,449 letters of complaint; but a significant proportion of those complaints concern areas such as general policy or the powers of this Agency. Many of these letters are from persons who are opposed to the legislation but not actually affected by it. The number of letters received that contain complaints specifically about the Agency's performance is not separately identified, but it is considerably less than the overall figure shown above.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Dewar: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the average amount of maintenance payable as a result of a full assessment by the Child Support Agency in cases where there are (a) one, (b) two and (c) more than two children, and the overall average figure excluding cases where the absent parent is on income support or other benefit and so paying the standard minimum contribution at the latest date for which figures are available. [19281]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the responsibility of the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Miss Ann Chant to Mr. Donald Dewar, dated 26 April 1995:

I am replying to your recent Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the average amount of child maintenance payable following a full maintenance assessment by the Child Support Agency.

As at 11 March 1995, the average weekly maintenance payable by absent parents with income from employment, but excluding those receiving income support, following a full maintenance assessment, was £43.46. Information on the average maintenance payments broken down by the number of qualifying children involved is not available.

I hope this is of help.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the total number to date of maintenance application forms issued by the Child Support Agency to parents with care that have not been returned, broken down to show (a) where good cause was accepted, (b) where good cause was investigated and not accepted, (c) where MAFs were issued at a parent with care's request which were subsequently found to have been duplicated, (d) where the parent with care ceased to claim benefit before returning the MAF and (e) the number of unreturned MAFs which were issued prior to 1 July 1994. [19152]

Mr. Burt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive, Miss Ann Chant. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Miss Ann Chant to Mr. Frank Field, dated 26 April 1995:

I am replying to your Parliamentary Question to the Secretary of State for Social Security about the number of maintenance application forms (MAF) issued by the Child Support Agency that have yet to be returned by the parent with care.

Since launch to the end of February 1995, a total of 1,217,941 maintenance application forms (MAF's) have been issued 867,883 of which have been returned, leaving an outstanding balance of 350,058. At that time 27,800 of the outstanding forms had only been issued during February. It is not possible to break the remaining 322,200 forms down into the categories that you request.

Some information that is available is as follows. The requirement to co-operate has been considered in a total of 146,790 cases. Good cause was accepted in 69,228 cases and refused in a further 53,174. The remainder (24,388) were cases where the parent with care (PWC) chose to name the absent parent (AP) before a decision on good cause was made.

Since September 1994, it has been possible to conduct good cause investigations without a MAF having been issued. No separate record is made of this type of investigation. Good cause may also be considered, for example, after a MAF has been returned if, in the case of a multiple assessment unit, the PWC chooses to name one or more APs while claiming good cause not to name one or more of the other APs, or where a MAF is returned incomplete but with a claim for good cause. The number of good cause investigations completed does not therefore provide a direct comparison with the number of MAF's not yet returned.

Cases where a MAF is issued and is subsequently found to have been a duplicate, along with cases where a PWC ceases to claim benefit before a maintenance assessment is completed, are recorded as "other" clearances or closures. This is regardless of whether the MAF has been returned or not. No data are collected on the number of closures falling into particular categories, except for cases where good cause is accepted. Other examples of closures are: reconciliation of AP and PWC; AP abroad; AP not traced. This list is not exhaustive.

At present the Agency cannot provide a detailed analysis of the age of those cases where a MAF has not been returned but future enhancements to the Child Support Computer System which will provide this information are planned. However, as at the end of February, 16,254 cases had been identified as part of the one off deferral exercise, announced in December 1994, referring to MAFs issued before 1 July 1994. This figure includes cases where no MAF had been returned and those where a partially completed form was received by the Agency and the PWC does not wish to pursue the matter.

WALES

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list, in respect of the newly established West Glamorgan and Dyfed ambulance trust, (a) the date when the trust commenced its operational duties, (b) the date on which the chief executive was appointed, (c) the date when the chairman was appointed, (d) the number of applications he has received for the executive positions and the date he will announce the appointments and (e) the number of applications he has received for the lay membership and the date he will announce the appointments. ### Health Authorities

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of whether all health authorities' members in Wales have now publicly declared any outside interests in which they participate. [19931]

Mr. Richards: At the annual review meetings to be held in June authorities will be asked to confirm that they have implemented a recently introduced requirement that they maintain a register of relevant private interests.

Paramedical Services

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what information is collected by his Department on the numbers employed, expressed as whole-time equivalents, and the total expenditure for each NHS provider in Wales on each of the paramedical services in the community, with particular reference to (a) community nurses, (b) health visitors, (c) chiropodists, (d) speech therapists, (e) occupational therapists, (f) physiotherapists and (g) community dentists. [19930]

Mr. Richards: Three national surveys of children's dental health have been carried out—1973, 1983 and 1993—by the social survey division of the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys and results were published by HMSO. The publications show separate information for Wales and copies are in the Library of the House. The ISBN numbers are as follows:

Dentistry

28. Mr. Wray: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many dentists in Scotland are refusing to treat certain categories of NHS patients. [19597]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The information requested is not available. General dental practitioners on health board NHS dental lists are free to decide in each case whether to provide NHS treatment to an individual patient.

Inward Investment

29. Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will make a statement about inward investment in Scotland. [19598]

Mr. Kynoch: The Government's pro-business policies have created a business climate in which companies can flourish and this continues to make Scotland—and indeed the United Kingdom as a whole—a very attractive location for inward investment.

In the five years to March 1994, Locate in Scotland and the Scottish Office industry department helped to attract to Scotland nearly 350 inward investment projects involving planned investment of £2.6 billion associated with the expected creation or safeguarding of over 47,000 jobs. That success was maintained during 1994–95, with Scotland attracting inward investment projects at the rate of almost two per week.

The success announced during the year to March 1995 included Motorola's decision to invest a further £250 million at its East Kilbride plant, creating 250 new jobs; NEC's decision to invest £530 million in setting up a new state-of-the-art wafer fabrication facility in Livingston, creating 430 new jobs; and BSkyB's decision to set up a new subscriber management centre in Dunfermline, creating up to 1,000 full-time jobs over the next few years.

Detailed figures for inward investment in Scotland in 1994–95 will be published in the Locate in Scotland annual review in June.

Japanese Companies

Friend's most recent such meeting was on 24 February when he accompanied my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister at a ground-breaking ceremony on the site of NEC's proposed new silicon wafer fabrication facility in Livingston.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will also visit Japan later this year, when trade promotion activities and meetings with existing and potential inward investors will play a key part in his programme.

Bus Services, Strathclyde

31. Mrs. Ray Michie: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he plans to meet the director general of Strathclyde passenger transport executive to discuss bus services in Strathclyde. [19600]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: No such meeting has been arranged.

Mr. Kynoch: My right hon. Friend meets the chairman of Scottish Enterprise from time to time to discuss a range of issues affecting the Scottish economy. No date has yet been arranged for the next meeting.

Monklands District Council

33. Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many police inquiries have been initiated into (a) Monklands district council's affairs and (b) those of its councillors in the last five years. [19602]

Mr. Kynoch: During this period Strathclyde police conducted one inquiry into the affairs of Monklands district council and two separate inquiries into those of some councillors.

Education, South Lanarkshire

34. Mr. McAvoy: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will undertake to meet representatives of the new South Lanarkshire council to discuss educational priorities within the council area. [19603]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The setting of educational priorities within its area will be an important matter for the new South Lanarkshire council. If the council in due course seeks a meeting, its request would be given full consideration as are all such requests for meetings. My hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government will wish to meet the new councils individually in due course.

Arts Funding

35. Mr. Maxton: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he next intends to meet the chairman of the Scottish Arts Council to discuss the funding of the arts in Scotland. [19604]

Sir Hector Monro: My right hon. Friend meets the chairman of the Scottish Arts Council from time to time to discuss a range of issues concerning the arts in Scotland. He has no current plans for a meeting.

Non-domestic Rates

36. Mr. Kirkwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will review the system of non-domestic rates relief available to small businesses in Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [19605]

Mr. Kynoch: The Non-domestic Rates (Levying) (Scotland) Regulations 1995 introduced provisions to protect all ratepayers including small businesses from unexpected and significant increases in rates bills resulting from the combined effects of the 1995 Revaluation and the introduction of the national non-domestic rate in Scotland.

The Local Government etc. (Scotland) Act 1994 also introduced with effect from 1 April 1995 a power permitting rating authorities to remit any rate levied by them where the ratepayer would otherwise suffer hardship and where it would be in the interests of the authority's council tax payers to do so.

I have no plans to review further the arrangements for non-domestic rating relief.

Drug-taking Kits

37. Mr. David Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will introduce legislation making it an offence for anyone to sell drug-taking kits; and if he will make a statement. [19606]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: It is already an offence under section 9A of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 for a person to supply any article which may be used for the administration of a controlled drug, if he believes that the article is to be so used in circumstances where the administration is unlawful. If the hon. Member has a specific issue in mind, he might wish to write to my right hon. Friend.

EC Aid

Sir David Steel: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he expects funds from the EC aid programme the borders objective 5b scheme to be made available to the appropriate authorities for distribution in the borders region; and what measures he is taking to ensure that receipt of funds is as soon as possible. [20249]

Mr. Lang: I understand the Commission will take the formal decision on the borders objective 5b single programme document before the end of April. To facilitate early release of funds, the monitoring committee met on 20 April and decided in principle which projects should be supported in the first round of applications under the programme. Formal offer letters will be issued to successful project sponsors immediately after the decisions of the committee are ratified, following the formal decision. Successful applicants can then claim structural funds grant against progress on their projects.

Urban Programme

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what powers he has to investigate (a) an inquiry, (b) an investigation and (c) an audit into the accounts or trading activities of community businesses established with public funds; and if he will make a statement. [21008]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Where financial assistance is being provided through the urban programme, my right hon. Friend has the right to ensure that the expenditure has been incurred for the purposes approved by him and seeks re-assurance from the sponsoring local authorities on this. My right hon. Friend has no powers in relation to community businesses once the period of any urban programme funding has expired.

Auditors

Mrs. Adams: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland which body is responsible for auditing the accounts or trading activities of FCB Enterprise Securities; and if he will make a statement. [21009]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Under the Companies Act 1985 all companies other than certain categories of small companies and dormant companies are required to appoint auditors. The Companies Act 1989 makes provision to secure that persons appointed as company auditors are appropriately qualified and independent. A copy of a company's annual accounts must be lodged, normally in the case of a private company within 10 months after the end of the company's financial year, with the Registrar of Companies. As my right hon. Friend is not involved in the running of FCB Enterprise Securities, he is unable to supply the information requested, which should be available from the Registrar of Companies.

Large Combustion Plant Directive

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many installations in Scotland are covered by the large combustion plant directive; and if he will list them. [20845]

Sir Hector Monro [holding answer 25 April 1995]: In Scotland, 19 installations, as listed, are subject to control under the United Kingdom's programme and national plan for reducing emissions of sulphur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen from existing large combustion plants which addresses the requirements of the large combustion plant directive in respect of existing plants. To date there is one plant at BP Chemicals Ltd. subject to the controls contained in the directive relating to new plants. The plants covered by the national plan are:

Mr. Davidson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what action has been taken by his Department to support the TABASCO application by Strathclyde regional council and others for EU 4th framework programme funding. [20799]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton [holding answer 25 April 1995]: TABASCO is based on collaborative links actively promoted by The Scottish Office with partners in Germany. Within the TABASCO project the Scottish Office is leading the work modules relating to travel and traffic control and information management and regional traffic control. The Scottish Office is supporting the TABASCO project bid through the implementation of the forth estuary driver information and control system—FEDICS—its committed joint funding with Strathclyde region of the new CITRAC traffic control system and the plans to develop a Scottish travel information centre.

Marine Discharges

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many installations in Scotland require consents for marine discharges; and if he will list them. [20841]

Sir Hector Monro [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Marine discharges are controlled either by the river purification authorities under the Control of Pollution Act 1974, part II as amended or, where relevant, by Her Majesty's industrial pollution inspectorate and river purification authorities acting together under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 part 1. Information relating to all such discharges is available for public inspection in registers maintained by river purification authorities, but a complete record is not held centrally.

PRIME MINISTER

Turkey

8. Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has to visit Turkey to discuss the situation of Kurdish people. [19645]

The Prime Minister: I have no plans at present to visit Turkey.

Local Education Authorities

Mr. Fisher: To ask the Prime Minister if he will identify the evidence in Social Trends for his figures on the ratio of local education authority administrators to teachers in schools. [21570]

The Prime Minister: The source is more appropriate and relevant for this issue than Social Trends. The figures are published by the Local Government Management Board, revealing that there are more than two non-teaching staff for every three teachers.

The figures show that in June 1994 local education authorities in England employed 376,665 full-time equivalent teachers and lecturers and 316,244 full-time equivalent other manual and non-manual staff involved in education.

This makes a ratio of 2.5 non-teaching staff to three teachers.

Lockerbie

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Prime Minister, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Linlithgow from the Lord President of the Council, 3 April 1995, Official Report, column 1388, whether it is Her Majesty's Government's policy to eschew further inquiry into the Lockerbie crime. [21402]

The Prime Minister: No. The criminal investigation into the Lockerbie bombing remains open.

Regency Act 1937

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what is the parliamentary timetable for consideration of the proposal of the Law Commission to amend section 2(2) of the Regency Act 1937; what consultations have been held with the governments of other countries of which Her Majesty the Queen is head of state; and if he will make a statement. [20837]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 25 April 1995]: The Statute Law (Repeals) Bill received its Second Reading in the House of Lords on 20 April and has been referred to the Joint Committee on Consolidation Bills in accordance with the usual procedure for consolidation Bills.

No consultations have been held with the Governments of other countries of which Her Majesty the Queen is head of state.

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the implications of amending the Regency Act 1937 in relation to the provisions of the Statute of Westminster Act 1931. [20854]

The Prime Minister [holding answer 25 April 1995]: The proposed repeal of the words "and to the Government of India" in section 2(2) of the Regency Act 1937 has no implications in relation to the Statue of Westminster 1931. The reference to the Government of India in section 2(2) of the 1937 Act is there because India did not fall within the term "dominions" as defined by section 1 of the Statute of Westminster 1931.

TRANSPORT

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21155]

Mr. Norris: The information is as follows:

(a) None.

(b) The Disabled Persons' Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC).

(c) DPTAC.

DPTAC has a statutory base.

Marine Safety Report

Mr. Neil Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will consider making available the final report of the National Marine Safety Steering Committee. [21575]

Mr. Norris: Copies of the report are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses and are also available from the Marine Safety Agency, Marine Information Centre, Spring Place, 105 Commercial Road, Southampton, SO15 1EG, Tel: 01703 329297.

Ferry Inspections

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will place in the Library copies of the inspection reports of the roll-on roll-off ferries inspected at the port of Folkestone over the last six months; [19386]

(2) if he will place in the Library copies of the inspection reports of roll-on roll-off ferries inspected at the port of Dover over the last six months. [19385]

Mr. Norris: The Government believe that there is no benefit to the travelling public to be gained from the release of the results of routine inspections. The technical content of the report would not be easily comprehensible and could be open to misinterpretation. Moreover, to release information only on inspections carried out in an individual port could unfairly disadvantage operators to that port.

In cases where an inspection of a foreign registered roll-on roll-off ferry reveals serious deficiencies which lead to its detention, the details would be included in the list of ships detained in UK ports, which is published monthly by the Marine Safety Agency.

EMPLOYMENT

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21164]

Miss Widdecombe: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the then Minister of State for Employment to the hon. Member for Liverpool, Walton (Mr. Kilfoyle) on 27 June 1994, Official Report, column 452.

ENVIRONMENT

Single Regeneration Budget

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) if he will publish the recommendations from each Government office on bids to the single regeneration budget challenge fund in 1995–96; [20395]

(2) which bids for single regeneration budget monies in 1994–95 were recommended for acceptance by the relevant Government office but were rejected by the government. [20401]

Sir Paul Beresford: In line with established practice in relation to documents which are the subject of Cabinet Committee proceedings, there are no plans to publish the internal advice to Ministers from the directors of the Government offices for the regions on bids for support from the single regeneration budget challenge fund in 1995–96.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how the latest criteria for judging bids to the single regeneration budget challenge fund have been influenced by the experiences of the 1995–96 bidding round. [20396]

Sir Paul Beresford: Following the success of the first round of the single regeneration budget challenge fund there have only been a few detailed, positive changes to the bidding guidance. Copies have been placed in Library of the House.

Residential Institutions (Change of Use)

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what representations he has received to change the C2 class of the 1987 Use Classes Order to allow local authorities control of change of use of residential institutions; and if he will make a statement. [20468]

Sir Paul Beresford: Since 1 January 1995, we have received two representations to change class C2—residential institutions—of the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987. Present arrangements reflect the assessment that a change from one kind of residential institution to another does not fundamentally affect the nature of the use of the site.

Leigh Mill, Wigan

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he hopes to announce the results of the public inquiry held in November in respect of Leigh Mill, Wigan; and if he will make a statement. [20726]

[20896]

Sir Paul Beresford: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave on 27 October 1994, Official Report, column 816, in which I advised on the development of targets for species conservation, announced in "Biodiversity: The UK Action Plan."

English Nature is already part-funding a three-year project by Butterfly Conservation, preparing conservation plans for the scarcer butterfly species, including the five about which the hon. Member is concerned.

The Biodiversity Steering Group is also considering a number of scarce butterfly and other species as candidates for action plans to improve their conservation status. The group will report later this year.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21163]

Sir Paul Beresford: My Department sponsors the following advisory non-departmental public bodies which have a statutory base:

Inland Waterways Amenity Advisory Council,
Advisory Committee on Hazardous Substances,
Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment,
Buildings Regulations Advisory Committee,
Local Government Commission for England, and Local Government Staff Commission

The following advisory bodies have a statutory requirement to publish their advice to Government on certain matters: the Inland Waterways Amenity Advisory Council and the Local Government Commission for England. The Advisory Committee on Releases to the Environment has a statutory requirement to maintain a public register containing specific information.

None of the advisory bodies has a statutory requirement to publish an annual report or lay it before Parliament.

Ordnance Survey

Mr. Sykes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment when he intends to publish a new framework document for the Ordnance Survey Executive Agency. [21783]

Mr. Atkins: The framework document for Ordnance Survey has been published today and copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Parliamentary Broadcasting

Mr. Allen: To ask the Lord President of the Council, pursuant to his answer of 9 March, Official Report, columns 283-84, when the parliamentary channel stopped being available to electors with a moveable satellite dish; when United Artists digitalised the parliamentary channel signal in order to share the transponder with wire TV; and if he will request that the Parliamentary Broadcasting Unit Ltd. consider selling decoders to electors to enable then to have access to the televised proceedings of Parliament. [19115]

Mr. Newton: Until June 1994, the parliamentary channel was distributed to cable-head ends via the Intelsat transponder, from which it was possible for viewers with large rotatable satellite dishes to pick up the signal directly rather than via a local cable service. From that date, the parliamentary channel switched its delivery mechanism to a different transponder and at the same time digitalised and compressed the signal. Although it was not the intention behind the change in the delivery system, one consequence was that those viewers with moveable satellite dishes who had previously been able to receive the signal were no longer able to do so.

At a meeting on 27 June 1994, the Select Committed on Broadcasting considered a number of complaints from viewers who were no longer able to receive the channel. While regretting the understandable disappointment of those affected, the Committee noted that the parliamentary channel was established as a cable service. Even though, quite fortuitously some people had been able, prior to the change to digitalisation, to eavesdrop on the signal via the distribution satellite, this did not seem to the Committee grounds for questioning United Artists' fulfilment of its original undertaking regarding the availability of the signal.

As a result of the savings achieved by digitalisation, the parliamentary channel is extending its service to include coverage of Committees at weekends from 7 May 1995.

Decoders which enable the digitalised signal to be unscrambled are available only to cable-head ends for cable distribution. They are manufactured specifically for that market and are not otherwise sold.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

National Lottery

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what directions he has issued under section 26(1) of the National Lottery etc. Act 1993; if he will make a statement on their content; and if he will place copies in the Library. [20983]

Mr. Dorrell: My predecessor issued directions under section 26(1) and (2) of the National Lottery etc. Act 1993 on 20 June last year. Copies were placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage, pursuant to the answer given by the Director-General of Oflot on 28 March in his letter to the hon. Member for Islington, South and Finsbury, what proportion of the £3 million cost of Oflot is recovered from (a) the national lottery distribution fund and (b) licencing fees. [20992]

Mr. Dorrell: In the 1994–95 financial year, £2,910,000 or 97 per cent. of the expenditure of the Office of the National Lottery will have been recovered from the national lottery distribution fund and £90,000 or 3 per cent. will have been from the payment of licence fees.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage on what grounds the draft guidelines issued by the National Lottery Charities Board allowed for the exclusion of charities concerned with environmental matters. [20984]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I have been asked to reply.

The issue of these guidelines is a matter for the board. I understand, however, that their purpose is to indicate only those areas to which the board intends to give priority. It must consider all applications from all eligible bodies, including charities concerned with environmental matters, on their merits and can not wholly exclude any. Decisions in individual cases are a matter for the board.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the National Heritage what is the legal basis for the issuing of draft guidelines for the disbursement of funds by the National Lottery Charities Board. [20982]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I have been asked to reply.

Section 26(1) of the National Lottery etc. Act 1993 provides that the National Lottery Charities Board, inter alia, shall comply with any directions given to it by the Secretary of State as to the matters to be taken into account in determining the persons to whom, the purposes for which and the conditions subject to which it distributes any money. The board is currently being consulted on the proposed directions as required by section 26(5) of that Act. The issue by the board of guidelines to applicants on how, in the light of the directions, it intends to set about the disbursement of the funds available to it, is a matter for the board.

Rugby Football

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what consultation he has had with the chairman of the Sports Council concerning discrimination by the rugby league authorities against the Australian rugby league in international matches; and if he will make a statement in relation to the principle of discrimination within rugby league and between rugby union and rugby league. [21327]

Mr. Sproat: I have had no such consultation. I have, of course, read the National Heritage Select Committee's report on relations between rugby union and rugby league and will be responding to the issues raised, including discrimination, in due course.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20661]

Mr. Dorrell [holding answer 25 April 1995]: My Department's executive non-departmental public bodies are listed in "Public Bodies 1994". The functions and responsibilities of each body are specified in its founding legislation or charter. The information requested is as follows:

(a) Bodies subject to the jurisdiction of the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration are listed in schedule 2 to the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1967 as amended. This includes:

Arts Council of Great Britain

British Film Institute

British Library Board

Crafts Council

English Tourist Board

Historic Buildings and Monuments Commission (English Heritage) Museums and Galleries Commission

Trustees of the National Heritage Memorial Fund

Register of Public Lending Right

Sports Council

(b) None.

(c) All of my Department's executive NDPBs are subject to scrutiny by the Comptroller and Auditor General with the exception of the national film development fund.

(d) There are no statutory provisions on open government which apply to executive NDPBs, although all NDPBs subject to the jurisdiction of the PCA will be covered by the non-statutory code of practice on access to Government information.

(e) Performance indicators for my Department's executive NDPBs can be found in their annual reports.

(f) The principles of the citizens charter apply to all the Department's executive NDPBs.

HEALTH

Dental Services

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what funds were provided to Derbyshire family health services authority for reallocation to the other family health service authorities in Trent for dental peer group review in each year since 1991; [20674]

(2) what amounts were reallocated by each family health service authority within Trent regional health authority by Derbyshire family health services authority of the funds provided for dental peer group review in each year since 1991. [20675]

Mr. Malone: Since the start of the peer review scheme in August 1991, the Department has reimbursed Derbyshire family health services authority the amounts as shown, for payment to dentists who participated in peer review. Derbyshire family health services authority has been nominated to make all peer review payments to dentists in the Trent region and no reallocation of funds by it to other family health services authorities is required.

| 1991–92 £ | 1992–93 £ | 1993–94 £ | 1994–95 £ | Total £ |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 3,965 | 44,736 | 127,176 | 223,096 | 398,973 |

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what action she intends to take to improve value for money in the community dental service; [20704]

(2) what out of hours emergency service she intends to require the community dental service to provide to cover shortfalls in the general dental service. [20679]

Mr. Malone: The community dental service is the responsibility of health authorities and national health service trusts. It is for these authorities to ensure that the service is run efficiently and meets the needs of people in the locality, who cannot get treatment in the general dental service. The Government have recently announced their intention to strengthen the "safety net" role of the CDS. Health authorities and trusts will be considering all aspects of this, including the provision of emergency service.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what recommendations in the Bloomfield dental report (a) have been implemented and (b) are planned for implementation. [20691]

Mr. Malone: Sir Kenneth Bloomfield was not asked to make recommendations but rather to identify the options for change. I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Carshalton and Wallington (Mr. Forman) on 5 April at cols. 1213–15, on the package of reforms which was consistent with Sir Kenneth's report.

Manchester Family Health Services Authority

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action she is taking to remove the chairman and non-executive directors of Manchester family health services authority following their unlawful use of funds when promoting fundholding general practitioners. [20682]

Mr. Malone: None. The chairman and chief executive of Manchester family health services authority who were in post during the events which led to the judicial review left the authority in 1992.

Information for Patients

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will require all NHS trusts to display prominently at the accident and emergency reception and at the main reception the name and telephone number of the duty manager. [20700]

Mr. Malone: The patients charter sets out the right for patients to be given information on local health services. It is for trusts to decide locally how to make this information available.

Foundation Trust, Stafford

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to set up a Department of Health inquiry into the dismissal of Mr. Michael Murray from his post as chief executive of the Foundation Trust, Stafford; and when the findings will be made public. [20673]

Mr. Malone: I have no plans to do so.

Neuroleptic Drugs (Deaths)

Ms Rachel Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what decision has been taken, following discussions with the Royal College of Psychiatrists, to begin research into the deaths of psychiatric patients associated with neuroleptic drugs. [20730]

Mr. Bowis: It has been agreed in principle that the remit of the confidential inquiry into homicide and suicides by mentally ill people should be extended to cover the deaths of patients associated with neuroleptic drugs. Further discussions will be held about the arrangements for examining these deaths.

Mental Health Spending

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the budget of each local authority's social services department is currently spent on mental health services. [20826]

Mr. Bowis: Information is not yet available for the current year. The information for 1994–95 is shown in the table.

Out-patient Travelling Expenses

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will issue guidance reminding NHS trusts of the rights of out-patients to travelling expenses and requiring them to draw patients' attention to such rights in their in their out-patient appointment documentation; [20693]

(2) if she will take immediate steps to ensure out-patients are not deprived of their rights to travelling expenses. [20697]

Mr. Bowis: The Department has already issued guidance to the national health service setting out the arrangements for payment of travel costs to all those hospital patients entitled to it. This guidance advises hospitals to send details of these arrangements with appointment or admissions letters.

Voluntary Staff

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department offers to health authorities and trusts concerning the appointment of voluntary staff to clerical and administrative posts. [21053]

Mr. Malone: HSG(92)15 issued to national health service trusts, health authorities and community health councils on 17 March 1992 provided guidance on voluntary work in hospitals. Copies of the guidance are available in the Library.

Bradford Plastic Surgery and Burns Unit

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the standard of treatment of and research into scar tissue as a result of burns; and what evaluation she has made of the effect on the treatment and research relating to scar tissue which will result as a consequence of the closure of the Bradford unit. [19945]

Mr. Bowis: Treatment of and research into scar tissue as a result of burns is carried out in several plastic surgery units in this country. The standard of both treatment and research is excellent. I understand that the Bradford plastic surgery and burns unit, a charity, makes a helpful contribution in this field. I hope that the Bradford unit will succeed in its bid for further charitable funding so that it can continue to complement the work done by the other units.

District General Hospitals

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is her estimate of the approximate population to be served by a district general hospital. [21070]

Mr. Malone: There is no fixed population to be served by a district general hospital as such hospitals do not just serve the needs of the local population. It is the responsibility of district health authorities, as the main purchasers of health care for their populations, to ensure that local health care needs are met through the placing of contracts with hospitals both inside their boundaries and, where appropriate, outside.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she gives on the percentage of a district general hospital area that should be within a 30-minute blue light travel time from a district general hospital. [21071]

Mr. Sackville: There is no central guidance on this matter. It is for the district health authority to take relevant issues into account when placing contracts for services.

GP Fundholders (Hospital Referrals)

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evidence she has on trends in hospital referrals by general practitioner fundholders. [21072]

Mr. Malone: A report by Professor Angela Coulter in the British Medical Journal of February 1993, based on the first two years of fundholding, showed no evidence of any changes in general practitioner fundholder referral patterns. Other studies have shown that fundholders have improved services for patients, including the reduction of waiting times.

Royal Marsden Hospital

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what meetings she has had in the last six months about the future of the Royal Marsden hospital; [21086]

(2) what plans she has to close the Royal Marsden hospital. [21087]

Mr. Malone: None.

Polio

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the position in respect of eradication of the wild polio virus from the United Kingdom; and if she will make a statement. [21320]

Mr. Sackville: The World Health Organisation considers the United Kingdom as being one of those countries which have eliminated polio due to wild virus. This is due to the great success of our childhood immunisation programme which has resulted in the incidence of childhood diseases being at their lowest ever levels. Today, 95 per cent. of all children have been unimmunised against polio by two years of age. However, despite this achievement, nobody should remain immunised against polio, whatever age they are. Unimmunised people can be at some risk of catching polio from recently immunised babies if standard hygiene procedures are not carefully followed; travellers to areas of the world where polio is still endemic should ensure that they are appropriately protected.

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what medical research her Department is aware of suggesting that a return to the inactivated polio vaccine would reduce the remote risk of vaccine damage to children; and whether this position is being reviewed. [21326]

Mr. Bowis: Oral polio vaccine and inactivated polio vaccine are both efficacious vaccines. However, whereas both vaccines provide protection against poliomyelitis for the individual immunised, only OPV produces "herd immunity" whereby susceptible contacts are protected as well. OPV is the vaccine used in the United Kingdom.

On average there are between one and two vaccine-associated cases of poliomyelitis reported in England and Wales each year. During 1994–95 over 7 million doses of OPV were issued to the national health service. The National Institute of Biological Standards and Controls undertakes research on the neurovirulence of oral polio vaccine. The Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation keeps matters such as vaccine-associated poliomyelitis under careful review and believes that OPV is the most appropriate product for United Kingdom circumstances. OPV is the vaccine recommended by World Health Organisation for global polio eradication.

Measles and Rubella Vaccination

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what are the results of the study into the 17 cases of severe adverse reaction from the 1994 mass measles and rubella vaccination. [21325]

Mr. Bowis: The 17 cases referred to were spontaneous reports of suspected adverse reactions to measles and rubella vaccine which predominantly affected the nervous system. Doctors who reported these cases have been contacted to obtain further details of the reaction and the progress of these patients. Thirteen are known to have recovered from their reaction, two have not yet recovered and further information is not yet available in two cases. These figures are out of nearly 6.5 million children who were immunised during the campaign.

Whooping Cough Vaccine

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what studies have been made and what records are available from the Committee on Safety of Medicines concerning adverse reactions to whooping cough vaccine. [21322]

Mr. Bowis: The Committee on Safety of Medicines keeps records of suspected reactions to whooping cough vaccine. Receipt of a report does not indicate that the vaccine caused the reaction, merely that the reporter suspected that this may have been the case. Whooping cough vaccine is usually given in a combined preparation with diphtheria and tetanus vaccine and at the same time as vaccines for haemophilus influenzae type B and poliomyelitis. This makes it difficult to identify the cause of an adverse reaction.

General Medical Services Budgets

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what was the general medical services cash-limited budget in each family health services authority area in each year since 1990–91; and what is the planned budget for the next three years.

Mr. Malone [holding answer 21 April 1995]: The information requested is not available centrally. Allocations to family health services authorities are made by regional health authorities. The allocations to RHAs for cash-limited general medical services are shown in the tables. Allocations are made for one financial year ahead only.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will list the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department which are subject to (a) investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner, (b) scrutiny by the Audit Commission, (c) scrutiny by the National Audit Office, (d) statutory provisions for open government, (e) performance indicators and (f) provisions under the citizens charter. [20652]

Mr. Horam [pursuant to his answer, 25 April 1995, c. 412]: I regret that the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council was omitted from the list of executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the Office of Public Service and Science.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Attorney-General if he will list the number and location of Government Property Lawyers offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19970]

The Attorney-General: I have responsibility for the Government Property Lawyers, which is an agency of the Treasury Solicitor's Department, whose remit extends only to England and Wales. It follows that no work of that agency has been or would be transferred either to or from Scotland.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Personal Injury Claims

Mr. Allen: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what proposals he has in respect of personal injury claims through the small claims court; and if he will make a statement. [21149]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Procedures affecting small personal injury claims, among others, are within the scope of Lord Woolf's comprehensive review of civil justice. The Lord Chancellor is awaiting the first report of this review, and any decisions will be taken in that context.

Freemasonry

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department (1) how many (a) Lords of Appeal, (b) Lord Justices of Appeal, (c) High Court judges, (d) chairmen of tribunals for which his Department is responsible and (e) members of non-judicial bodies for which his Department is responsible, are former members of the Freemasons, according to his departmental files; [21256]

(2) how many (a) Lords of Appeal, (b) Lord Justices of Appeal, (c) High Court judges, (d) chairmen of tribunals for which his Department is responsible and (e) members of non-judicial bodies for which his Department is responsible, are currently members of the Freemasons, according to his departmental files. [21255]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Such information is not collected either on candidates for appointment or on serving judges or office-holders, so the information requested is not available from my Department's files.

Legal Aid

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what were the total costs to the legal aid fund in the case of Alistair Green v. Ministry of Defence; and what costs were incurred by the legal aid fund after the Ministry had paid £32,000 into court. [19903]

Mr. John M. Taylor: No final bill has been received in this matter and, therefore, the total cost to the legal aid fund is not yet known. However, £80,000 has been paid to date on account to lawyers representing Mr. Green. It is not possible to identify separately costs incurred after the Ministry of Defence had paid moneys into court.

Public Trustee

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will make a statement on the actions of the public trustee in relation to legal proceedings brought by Miss Phoebe Winch. [19998]

Mr. John M. Taylor: I am unable to comment on individual cases where legal proceedings have been brought against the public trustee, who is also chief executive of the Public Trust Office. Whilst she is accountable for her actions as public trustee, she is also an independent statutory office holder and the decisions she takes in exercise of her statutory functions are those of her office and are not taken on behalf of the Government.

As the question concerns a specific case, I have asked the chief executive to reply direct.

Letter from Julia Lomas to Mr. Alex Carlisle, dated 25 April 1995:

The Lord Chancellor has asked me to reply to your Question about the actions of my Office in relation to legal proceedings brought by Miss Phoebe Winch.

I think you may be mistaken in your reference to Miss Phoebe Winch and mean Miss Mary Agnes Winch who has brought proceedings against the Public Trustee and I am replying to your Question on the basis that it meant to refer to Miss Mary Agnes Winch and not Miss Phoebe Winch.

In 1982 Miss Mary Agnes Winch brought proceedings against the Public Trustee in relation to the administration of the estate of her mother the late Mrs Violet Winch. These proceedings were defended.

The case was very complicated and the hearing was anticipated to be lengthy and expensive. I therefore authorised in 1994 the payment of £15000 into Court to settle the matter. Miss Winch accepted this settlement which was made with no admission of liability on the part of the Public Trustee.

The Public Trustee have always been confident that had the case been fought the Public Trustee would have won, albeit at a disproportionate cost to public funds. The payment into Court was, and remains, regarded by me as a payment to save public funds, rather than any admission as to the merits of Miss Winch's claim.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he will list the number and location of HM Land Registry, Public Record and Public Trust offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19969]

Mr. John M. Taylor: Neither Her Majesty's Land Registry nor the Public Record and Public Trust Offices have ever had offices or jobs in Scotland and neither have these agencies transferred any offices or jobs to Scotland to date. Accordingly, the situations referred to in the question have not arisen.

Agency Performance Targets

Mr. Luff: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what are the key performance targets for Her Majesty's Land Registry, the Public Record Office and the Public Trust Office executive agencies for 1995–96. [21854]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The following tables set out the key performance targets that the Lord Chancellor has set for Her Majesty's Land Registry, the Public Records Office and the Public Trust Office for 1995–96.

[1] A revised target for return on average capital employed will be agreed for 1995–96 following the conclusion of discussions with HM Treasury. The purpose of the discussions is to enable an element of surpluses arising up to 31 March 1995 to be carried over to 1995–96 and future years. This will allow the registry to reduce or contain future fee levels.

[2] The real term unit cost in the base year of 1992–93 was £31.30.

Note:

Fuller details of the registry's performance targets are given in its business plan, which is available from Her Majesty's Land Registry.

|---|---|
| | (k) Self service copying from microfilm: a service will be available in the microfilm reading rooms during opening times |
| Quality of copying: | No more than 4 per cent. to be required to be re-taken |
| The quality and usefulness of finding aids to the records: | To continue work on bringing the current guide up to date:—to produce a new edition in hard copy;—to write or expand 10 new sections or sub-sections |

Notes:
1. Some of these targets will be subject to suspension or modification on occasion due to the major disruption to the Office's services and activities which will be caused in 1995–96 by the closure of the Chancery Lane building, the removal of records to Kew and the refurbishment of the existing Kew building. Where appropriate, supplemental targets have been set in order to mitigate the effect on users.

| 5. Percentage of full costs recovered. | To ensure that 100 per cent. of full costs are recovered. |

Note:
Fuller details of the office's performance targets are given in its business plan, which is available from the Public Trust Office.

Marriage Guidance and Research Organisations

Mr. Luff: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans the Government have for the future responsibility for the funding of marriage guidance and research organisations from the Home Office to the Lord Chancellor's Department. [21853]

Mr. John M. Taylor: With the approval of my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, responsibility for the funding of marriage guidance and research organisations has been transferred from the Secretary of State for the Home Department to the Lord Chancellor.

Divorce

Mr. Luff: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department what plans the Government has to bring forward reforms to the law of divorce in England and Wales following the publication of the consultation paper in December 1993; and if he will make a statement. [21855]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor has today laid before Parliament a White Paper, "Looking to the future. Mediation and the ground for divorce". This paper sets out the Government's proposals in relation to the introduction of family mediation, reform of the ground for divorce and related matters.

Appointments (Consultation)

Mr. Boateng: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department if he or his private office is consulted by the Lord Chancellor or his private office, either formally or informally, about (a) candidates for appointment as magistrates, tribunal members and senior full-time judges, (b) candidates for non-judicial public appointments and (c) candidates for appointments of chief executives of executive agencies and non-departmental bodies for which his Department is responsible. [21412]

Mr. John M. Taylor: It is not the practice to disclose internal consultation between Ministers.

WALES

NHS Expenditure

Mr. Gareth Wardell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will publish for each financial year since 1991–92 the hospital and community health services gross current expenditure by sector and by age; and if he will separately distinguish the expenditure on the hospital and community health service for each age group, expressed as a cost per head of population. [19897]

Mr. Richards: The gross current expenditure on hospital and community health services for the years 1991–92 to 1993–94 is as follows. Information on expenditure by sector and age is not held centrally.

| | £ |

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales: (1) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20169]

(2) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [29170]

Mr. Redwood: Costs are not separately attributable to the departmental report of much of the information there presented, which is collected for other purposes. At a rough estimate, staff costs of the editing, design and translation of the 1995 Report, Cm 2815, were £37,000, and for previous years would be broadly comparable in real terms.

The Department operates a system of divisional and group plans which ensures that both programme and running cost provision are identified for key objectives and targets.

Environmentally Sensitive Areas

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many farmers in Wales received environmentally sensitive area payments greater than (a) £100,000, (b) £50,000, (c) £10,000, (d) £5,000 or (e) £1,000 in the last year for which figures are available. [20001]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The total number of farmers in Wales in 1994–95 who received environmentally sensitive area payments in each band is as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| (a) | 0 |
| (b) | 2 |
| (c) | 29 |
| (d) | 30 |
| (e) | 190 |

In addition, 501 scheme participants received payments of less than £1,000.

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what amount of environmentally sensitive area grant budget for 1994–95 is still uncommitted (a) in cash and (b) as a percentage of the budget: and if he will make a statement on underspending in the environmentally sensitive areas budget for 1993–94 and 1994–95. [20000]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Expenditure in 1994–95 was £1,533,000 or 22 per cent. of the total budget of £6,863,000.

Five new areas were launched in Wales during 1994, bringing the total number of designations in Wales to eight. I expect expenditure in Wales to increase as more farmers enter the new schemes.

Houses in Multiple Occupation

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the standard and enforcement of fire safety regulations in houses in multiple occupation in Wales. [20783]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: The Government have consulted widely on both fire safety and houses in multiple occupation; decisions will be announced in due course.

Housing Association Rents

Mr. Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the average rent charged by each Welsh housing association for (a) one-bedroom, (b) two-bedroom and (c) three-bedroom properties in each year since Tai Cymru was established. [21084]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: This information is not available in the form requested. Information for 1994–95 is, however, held by Housing for Wales and I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member.

A44

Mr. Alex Carlile: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what plans he has to carry out road improvements during the next three years on the A44 trunk road between Ponterwyd, Cardiganshire and Llangurig Montgomeryshire. [21104]

Mr. Redwood: There are no plans for any major improvements to this section of road. However, a small scheme to provide a footway near Ponterwyd is under consideration and some localised side support works are planned at Gelli Bends and Bont Rhydgaled.

Health Service Survey

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will make a statement on the survey on the future needs and aims of the Welsh health service. [21319]

Mr. Redwood: The survey will help my Department and the NHS in Wales identify priority areas for improving both the health of the population and the responsiveness of the service to the needs and expectations of patients.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will name the company administering the Welsh health service random sample questionnaire survey and the principle components of the work specified in that company contracts; and if the company was chosen after competitive tender. [21318]

Mr. Redwood: The contract for the Welsh health survey was awarded to the South East Institute of Public Health. The main components of the contract are: testing the questionnaire and the survey method; drawing the sample; printing and posting the letters, questionnaires, and reminders; entering the answers from the completed questionnaires into a computer database; analysis of the data and production of a report.

The contract was advertised in the Official Journal of the European Communities and awarded by competitive tender.

NHS Trusts

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answers of 24 April, Official Report, columns 371–72, if he will make a statement on the guidelines he issued on financial viability of trusts as a consideration in contract setting by NHS providers and on what date he issued them (a) in draft and (b) in final form; and what representations he has received concerning their content from (i) purchasers and (ii) providers. [21414]

Mr. Redwood: I refer the hon. Member to the reply that I gave him on 25 April, Official Report, column 515.

Higher Education Funding Council

Sir Wyn Roberts: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he expects to announce the new membership of the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales and if he will make a statement. [21981]

Mr. Redwood: The following have accepted invitations to be members of the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales.

Sir Idris Pearce, Chairman
Dr. Eleri Edwards
Professor Richard Griffiths
Sir Philip Jones CB
Mr. Alfred Morris
Dr. Brynley Roberts
Dr. Ann Robinson
Professor Roger Williams

Dr. Edwards and Professor Williams have been appointed for three years from 6 May 1995, and the other members reappointed for two years from the same date.

Dr. R. H. Jones continues as a member until 30 June 1995 and Professor Andrews as chief executive and member until 5 May 1997.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board or committee meetings and (b) a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public. [20876]

Mr. Redwood [holding answer 26 April 1995]: Only the Residuary Body for Wales, as a levying body, is bound by a statutory requirement, under the Public Bodies (Admission to Meetings) Act 1960, to open its board meetings to the public. No NDPB has a statutory requirement to hold open meetings for the public.

OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

Turkey

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial aid is now being given to Turkey from organisations in which the United Kingdom has a vote; and if he will list the organisations. [20741]

Mr. Baldry: A detailed breakdown of financial aid by international agencies to Turkey is not available. According to OECD Development Assistance Committee statistics, in 1993, the latest year for which figures are available, total multilateral aid to that country was $3 million in loans and $25.8 million in grants. Taking into account receipts, net multilateral assistance was minus $8.7 million.

The following agencies in which the UK has a vote currently have programmes in Turkey:

The World Bank
United Nations Development Programme
Food and Agriculture Organisation
International Atomic Energy Agency
United Nations Population Fund
United Nations Conference on Trade and Development
World Food Programme
United Nations Industrial Development Organisation
World Health Organisation
United Nations Childrens Fund
United Nations Department of Development Support and Management Services
World Intellectual Property Organisation
World Meteorological Organisation
International Civil Aviation Organisation
International Maritime Organisation
International Labour Organisation

European Community assistance provided to Turkey in the form of grants and loans under the first three EC/Turkey financial protocols and the special programme of assistance agreed in 1981 has now been fully disbursed. A fourth financial protocol which should have come into force in 1981 remains suspended for political reasons. Turkey is eligible for support under a number of other EC budget lines, including horizontal cooperation in the Mediterranean and support for Turkish NGOs providing aid for Kurdish refugees.

Afghanistan

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British non-governmental organisations have, over the last five years, been working in Pakistan and elsewhere in support of refugees and displaced persons from Afghanistan; what funding each has received in each year; and what funding each is to receive over the next two years. [21150]

Mr. Baldry: We have provided assistance to the British non-governmental organisations as detailed in the table over the last five years for their work with Afghan refugees and displaced persons. We are unable to predict how much funding may be made available to any organisation for emergency aid over the next two years.

£000s

In addition the following three British non-governmental organisations received grants for immediate disaster response work. Figures are available for 1993 and 1994 only.

|---|---|---|
| CARE | 0 | 828 |
| Ockenden Venture | 0 | 47 |
| Oxfam | 110 | 323 |

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations have been made to Her Majesty's Government directly and indirectly through international organisations to invest in infrastructure development in Afghanistan; what is the total amount agreed by Her Majesty's Government to be spent in such development projects over the next three years; and what assessment has been made of the need for development investment in Afghanistan to facilitate the return of refugees to that country. [21151]

Mr. Baldry: Frequent discussions on the needs of Afghanistan are held with international development agencies, the Government of Pakistan and UK non-governmental organisations.

We take the view that long-term infrastructure and development programmes are only possible when the political and security situation is stable. At present, the main focus of our assistance for Afghanistan will remain emergency aid and refugee relief and resettlement programmes. We give funding through international agencies and UK NGOs, some of which operate small rehabilitation projects in the more peaceful parts of the country.

We understand that the United Nations development programme have plans for a meeting to discuss with the international community the prospects for a transition from humanitarian assistance for Afghanistan to longer term rehabilitation.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government regarding financial inducements to Afghan refugees and displaced persons in Pakistan and elsewhere to assist their return to Afghanistan; and what contribution Her Majesty's Government have agreed to make to such programmes over the next two years. [21152]

Mr. Baldry: UNHCR provides repatriation grants to assist the return of Afghan refugees from Pakistan and Iran. We support UNHCR's work with Afghan refugees, both politically and financially. Whilst we do not earmark funds given to UNHCR specifically for repatriation grants, such use is not excluded. We are unable to make advance commitments about the use of emergency aid funds.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made by the United Nations Commissioner for Refugees on the likely implications of closing schools located in Afghan refugee camps in Pakistan; and if he will make a statement. [21167]

Mr. Baldry: UNHCR have no plans to cease primary education for all Afghan refugee children in Pakistan.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Benefit Statistics

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security, if he will list the average length of time a claimant who was (a) retired (b) sick or disabled, (c) a single parent and (d) unemployed remained on benefit 30 years ago; and if he will give what those averages are at the latest available date. [20389]

Mr. Hague: Information is not available for 30 years ago.

Current available information is as follows:

(1) The average length of time for retirement pensioners to remain on benefit until death is 16.5 years.

(2) The average length of time a claimant is sick or disabled and on benefit is as follows: sickness benefit—114 days; invalidity benefit—3.4 years; severe disablement allowance—6.1 years.

(3) At 10 May 1994 the average length of time a claimant registered as unemployed was 410 days.

This information does not include recipients who receive only income support.

Information for lone parents is not available.

War Pensions

Ms Rachel Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what was the number of war pension appeals in (a) 1979 and (b) 1993 and the average length of time which elapsed between the lodging of an appeal and the appeal being heard. [20734]

Mr. Arbuthnot: During 1979, 1,816 war pension appeals were lodged against decisions on entitlement and 1,872 appeals on the assessment of the degree of disablement. During 1993, 11,079 entitlement and 9,147 assessment appeals were lodged. The average length of time in 1993 between the lodging of an entitlement appeal and the appeal being heard was 349 days. The time scale in 1993 for an assessment appeal was 288 days. Comparable information for 1979 is not available.

Ms Rachel Squire: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) if he will make a statement on claims for war disablement pensions in respect of bilateral noise-induced sensorineural hearing loss. [20731]

(2) if he will make a statement on the restriction on claims for war disablement pensions due to bilateral noise-induced sensorineural hearing loss arising from (a) the absence of any award where the assessment of disability is less than 20 per cent. and (b) the non-inclusion of the condition of tinnitus where assessed disablement is less than 20 per cent. [20732]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The war pensions scheme provides compensation for disablement arising from injury or disease which is due to service in the armed forces.

Where the degree of disablement in respect of bilateral noise-induced sensorineural hearing loss is assessed at 20 per cent. or more, a war pension may be paid. Below this level, no award is made in respect of such hearing loss or any condition or symptom, such as tinnitus, which is attributable to the same basic injurious process.

I remain satisfied that bilateral noise-induced sensorineural hearing loss of less than 20 per cent. is not the sort of disablement which should be compensated under a war pensions scheme.

The provisions on this type of hearing loss, which came into effect on 7 January 1993, brought war pensions rules more into line with the rules covering occupational deafness under the industrial injuries scheme. They formed part of a package which increased considerably, from April 1993, the war pensions of the most severely disabled.

Child Support

Mrs. Angela Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to make payments to those recipients of family credit and disability working allowance who lose income for the balance of the period of their existing claim to benefit as a result of the child support regulation changes to be introduced on 18 April, and if he will make a statement. [21900]

Mr. Burt: The Department intends to make such payments as soon as it is administratively possible to do so once the loss to the individual has been identified and calculated. This compensation will equal half of the difference between the previous maintenance assessment and the new maintenance assessment for the outstanding period in that claim to family credit or disability working allowance. Although awards of these benefits are not normally changed for variations in income once made, the Government have recognised that it is unreasonable not to offer compensation to working parents with care who are modestly paid, particularly as the structure of income support offers automatic adjustment for the incomes of those parents with care not at work and dependent on income support.

It would also be wrong to wait until the Child Support Bill received Royal Assent, before considering compensation, as this would result in a delay of several months which could cause hardship. Accordingly, payments will be made in advance of Royal Assent. Parliamentary approval for this service will be sought in a Supplementary Estimate for the Department of Social Security's central government administered Social Security benefits and other payments vote, class XIII, vote 1. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £1,000,000 will be met by repayable advances from the Contingencies Fund.

Income Support (Deductions)

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what agreements his Department and the Benefits Agency have with the utility industries regarding deductions from income support. [21901]

Mr. Roger Evans: The Department of Social Security and the Benefits Agency have negotiated a joint statement of intent with the fuel and water industries, a copy of which has been placed in the Library. Its purpose is to ensure the continuity of an essential supply to claimants and to prevent disconnection of that supply. It outlines procedures for direct payment for fuel and water bills from income support by reflecting regulations and providing guidance on how the direct payment system should operate in practice. The JSI is not a contract between the parties but works as a "best practice" guide.

Mortgage Interest

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what estimate he has so far made of the number of individuals annually who change from a fixed rate to a variable rate mortgage; if such individuals would be considered under his current proposals to have obtained a new mortgage and be ineligible for the existing range of social security assistance with mortgage interest; and if he will make a statement. [21106]

Mr. Roger Evans: No such estimate has been made. Under our proposals for changes to the rules on income support help with mortgage interest payments, a borrower with existing housing costs who changes from a fixed rate to a variable rate mortgage after 1 October this year will only be subject to the rules affecting new housing costs if they have entered into a new mortgage agreement while doing so. The full details of the new rules will not be completed until we have given full consideration to the report of the Social Security Advisory Committee. We are currently awaiting this report which will be based on representations that were made to the committee during its consultation period.

War Widows Pension

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what recent discussions he has had with ex-service and other organisations about war widows' pensions. [213328]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The Minister with special responsibility for war pensions meets regularly with members of the war pension committees and twice-yearly (in June and December) with members of the Central Advisory Committee on War Pensions. At these meetings, matters of concern to both war disablement pensioners and war widows are discussed. He also met on 25 April with Major General Sir Laurence New CB CBE, to discuss the campaign by the Officers' Pensions Society, the War Widows Association of Great Britain, the RAF Widows Association and Help the Aged, for improvements to the pension provision for war and service widows. During that meeting our decision announced on 24 April to restore the war widow's pension to those former war widows who had become widowed for a second time, divorced or legally separated was discussed.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Welsh: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what information he has on the projected level of the state retirement pension for each of the following five years for each of the European Union member states; and what percentage change this represents relative to the projection for the previous year; [21258]

(2) what is the current level of state retirement pension paid in each European Union member state; and what percentage increase or decrease this represents relative to the previous year. [21257]

Mr. Arbuthnot: The information is not available in the form requested, as most European Union member states operate wholly earnings-related state retirement pension schemes, unlike the United Kingdom.

Information on retirement pensions in the EU, and their annual adjustments, is contained in the "MISSOC" tables, "Social Protection in the Member States of the Community", published by the European Commission. Information about retirement pensions in the three new member states, Austria, Finland, and Sweden, may be found in "Comparative tables of social security schemes in Council of Europe member states, published by the Council of Europe. Copies of both publications are in the Library."

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21156]

Mr. Hague: The advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by this Department are listed in "Public Bodies 1994".

All of the bodies have a statutory basis, but none is under statutory requirement to publish advice or reports, although most such reports are published.

Vaccine Damage Payments

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what compensation is available for those who are severely or partially damaged by (a) polio vaccination and (b) measles and rubella vaccination; [21324]

(2) whether the Government will seek to amend the Vaccine Damage Payment Act 1979 to provide adequate compensation for the children and families affected by all degrees of vaccine damage. [21321]

Mr. Hague: The Vaccine Damage Payment Act 1979 provides for a single, tax-free payment of £30,000 for people who, on the balance of probability, have suffered severe mental and/or physical disablement of 80 per cent. or more as a result of vaccination against one, or a group, of the specified diseases. The specified diseases include poliomyelitis, measles and rubella.

The payment is not compensation, but is designed to ease the present and future burdens of those suffering from vaccine damage and their families.

The Government are satisfied that the scheme operates fairly and effectively in its present form.

SCOTLAND

Pensions Agency

Mr. Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what key performance targets he has set the Scottish Office Pensions Agency for 1995–96. [21804]

Mr. Lang: I have set the Scottish Office Pensions Agency the following key targets for 1995–96, which cover important areas of service delivery and steps to improve efficiency and effectiveness.

1. To ensure that awards and transfer payments are accurate to within 1 per cent. of their value in 99 per cent. of cases, as compared with the 1994–95 target of 1 per cent. in 98 per cent. of cases.
2. To pay on time 99 per cent. of all pensions and lump sums where the target date for receipt of claims is met.
3. To make transfer payments within four weeks of members' final instructions to transfer pension rights.
4. To carry out a survey to measure customer satisfaction with administration of the teachers' superannuation scheme, taking account of experience gained from the 1994–95 NHS survey.
5. To keep the development and supply of a new pension administration IT system on course for completion by June 1996, by reaching the last key 1995–96 milestone in the implementation plan.
6. To optimise use of budgetary provision while keeping within direct running cost limits.
7. To provide policy advice which is consistent with public service pension policy and takes account of operational objectives of Scottish Office departments, within the required time scales.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Mathew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20179]

Mr. Lang: Much of the information collected for publication in the Scottish Office departmental report is also used for other purposes. Therefore the total staff time commitment to the report is not readily estimated. The editor of the 1995 report spent approximately four months in its compilation at an estimated cost of £15,000. Costs for previous years were broadly comparable.

Mr. Mathew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20180]

Mr. Lang: Estimates are made annually, in the light of previous years' experience, of the time commitment which will be required of the departmental report editor and of the costs of pre-production design work and of purchase and distribution of copies of the report.

Illiteracy

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the current reported rate of illiteracy; and what was the rate in each of the previous four years. [20701]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: Information on the rate of illiteracy is not held centrally by the Scottish Office. In 1990 the Scottish Community Education Council was funded by the Scottish Office to undertake a small study of literacy and numeracy. This indicated that 9 per cent. of a sample of adults had difficulties with either reading, writing or numeracy.

The Scottish Office will continue to support initiatives addressing problems of adult literacy and numeracy. We will also continue to tackle the problem in schools by encouraging appropriate support for pupils with special needs.

Electricity Privatisation

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what is the actual cost incurred to date by his Department meeting the obligation to provide pension incentives to eligible applicants under the pensioner priority offer for shares on the flotation of ScottishPower and Scottish Hydro-Electric; [20597]

(2) what estimate he originally made of the likely cost to his Department of the offer announced by him on 12 March 1991 making available to pensioners of ScottishPower and Scottish Hydro-Electric preferential arrangements and pension incentives on the public flotation of these companies; [20598]

(3) what estimate he has made of the savings to his Department as a result of the non-completion of the pensioner incentive section of the pensioner priority offer application form submitted by eligible pensioners of ScottishPower and Scottish Hydro-Electric; [20595]

(4) how many pensioners of ScottishPower and Scottish Hydro-Electric purchased shares in these companies by completing the pensioner priority offer application form; and how many eligible applicants omitted to apply for the pensioner incentives. [20599]

Mr. Lang [holding answer 26 April 1995]: As part of the arrangements for the flotation of ScottishPower and Scottish Hydro-Electric, all employees and pensioners of the two Scottish electricity boards who applied for shares were given priority access to up to £15,350 worth of shares when the allocation of shares to applicants was made. Quite separately, all applicants were able to elect to receive bonus shares if they held the shares they had purchased for a specified period and met certain other criteria; 1,170,000 applicants did so. Apart from the initial priority allocation arrangement, therefore, there were no special incentives offered to electricity board pensioners.

TREASURY

Mortgage Protection Policies

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the possible effect of taxation on those benefits paid under insurance policies purchased to provide protection to mortgage holders following his proposed changes to income support for mortgage interest; what specific proposals he has for the tax treatment of such benefits with particular reference to any period for which they would be untaxed; and if he will make a statement. [21107]

Sir George Young: Under the Secretary of State for Social Security's proposals, there will be no entitlement to income support in respect of mortgage interest payments for a period of nine months for new borrowers. Benefits paid under mortgage protection insurance policies that provide cover for this period are not liable to tax, provided the maximum period during which benefits can be paid does not exceed one year.

European Community Finances

Mr. Matthew Banks: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will publish the statement on the 1995 Community budget; and what information it will contain. [21856]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: I have today laid before Parliament the statement on the 1995 Community budget, entitled "European Community Finances". This White Paper is the 15th in the series. As in the past, it covers annual budgetary matters. It also describes the Budget for 1995 as adopted by the European Parliament and the United Kingdom's gross and net contribution to the Community budget over the years 1992 to 1995.

This year, the annual statement includes for the first time details of recent developments in EC financial management and in countering fraud against the Community budget. This reflects an undertaking that I gave in December 1994 during the passage of the European Communities (Finance) Bill.

Copies of the White Paper are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Monetary Policy

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what effect on the nominal exchange rate it was Her Majesty's Government's policy to engender in the decisions to increase the interest rates on (a) 12 September 1994, (b) 7 December 1994 and (c) 2 February; and if he will publish his estimate of the effect on real interest rates together with the export unit value of United Kingdom manufacturers as a percentage of the fourth quarter 1986 figure in dollar terms. [21413]

Mr. Nelson: Interest rates are set in order to meet the Government's objective of permanently low inflation. Movements in the exchange rate are considered part of the general assessment of monetary conditions in setling monetary policy. The basis of all decisions on interest rates are fully set out in the published minutes of my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer's meetings with the Governor of the Bank of England. Copies of the minutes are in the House of Commons Library. It is impossible to quantify effects of interest rate changes on real interest rates and export unit values.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the evidence of overheating on which be based his decision in (a) September 1994, (b) December 1994 and (c) February 1995 to raise interest rates. [21403]

Mr. Nelson: The basis of all the interest rate decisions on my right hon. and learned Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer is set out fully in the published minutes of his meetings with the Governor and in the Treasury's monthly monetary report, published on the same day as the meetings. Copies of these publications are in the House Library.

Privatisation

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will produce a table showing the gross proceeds of all privatisations since 1979 and the net proceeds after taking account of (a) underwriting fees and sales commissions, (b) accounting, banking, legal and consultancy fees, (c) marketing and advertising costs, (d) the actual or estimated cost of employee and small shareholder incentives, (e) any other expenses associated with the sale, (f) any small shareholder incentives, (g) any tax or debt write-offs agreed ahead of the sale and (h) interest income or other offsetting receipts, itemising each of these costs separately, and expressing total costs as a percentage of total gross proceeds. [19894]

Sir George Young: It is not practical to list all companies that have been privatised as many were subsidiaries of nationalised industries and were sold by the parent body, not the Government; consequently, information is not held centrally for all such sales. The table shows the companies privatised by the Government since 1979. Non-sale costs are shown where this information is held centrally; in some cases, costs are initial estimates rather than outturns. The administrative costs incurred by the vendor department are not included. To the extent that the costs shown in the table include non-cash costs—debt written off and the cost of bonus shares—they would not normally be set against the net proceeds which are measured in cash terms. Receipts from privatisation have amounted to £60 billion over the past 15 years.

Value Added Tax

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which directorate and commissioner are responsible for taking forward the proposals contained in European Commission document COM (94) 584 on the subject of the establishment of a common system of value added tax. [20981]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Directorate General XXI of the European Commission has responsibility for "Customs and Indirect Taxation" and for matters relating to VAT. The commissioner responsible for DGXXI is Mr. Monti. Document COM (94) 584 is essentially a report produced by the European Commission on the operation of the VAT system in the Community, with particular reference to the rates of tax applicable in member states. The only specific proposal which is made in the context of this document relates to an option for member states to apply a reduced rate of VAT to certain non-food agricultural products, such as cut flowers.

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he has yet had chance to consider European Commission Document COM (94) 584 on the subject of the establishment of a common system of value added tax, what response he has made to those parts of that document which propose the abolition of zero rating for new houses; and if he will make a statement; [20977]

(2) whether it is his policy to endorse the recommendations of the European Commission Document COM (94) 584 on the subject of the establishment of a common system of value added tax in respect of (a) the scheduled establishment in January 1997 of a definitive value added tax regime and (b) the inclusion within that regime of the ending zero rating of all outstanding items including housing. [20978]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Document COM (94) 584 is a routine report produced by the European Commission in accordance with the requirements of the sixth VAT directive. It is largely concerned with the operation of the VAT system within the Community, with particular reference to the rates of tax applicable in member states. I have noted its contents, and, in particular, its principal conclusion that the current VAT rates and structures applicable in the Community do not present any serious problems for the satisfactory operation of the single market.

The report makes no specific proposals in respect of zero rates, although it makes reference to them in the context of the proposed move to a definitive system for VAT. Separate proposals from the Commission in respect of a definitive system are expected later this year. The Government have already made it clear that a condition of any move to a definitive system would be that such a system made provision for the UK to continue to apply any zero rates which are in force at the time any new system is introduced.

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the possible impact on the United Kingdom housing market of the implementation of the proposals of European Commission Document COM (94) 584 on the subject of the establishment of a common system of value added tax; and if he will make a statement. [20980]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Document COM (94) 584 does not contain any specific proposals in relation to the VAT treatment of housing. To the extent that the document addresses the status of zero rates, it does so in the context of the proposed move to a definitive system. Substantive discussions on any such definitive system have yet to begin, but the UK has consistently made it clear that one condition of a move to any such system would be that it made provision for the UK to continue to apply any zero rates which are in force at the time any new system is introduced.

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list all those items which are currently zero rated for value added tax purposes and which would be affected by the recommendations for the ending of such zero rating included within the provisions of European Commission document COM (94) 584 on the subject of the establishment of a common system of value added tax. [20979]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: Document COM (94) 584 makes no specific proposals for the ending of UK zero rates. It addresses only the status of zero rates in the context of the proposed move to a definitive system. The Government have consistently made it clear that, as a condition of any move to a definitive system for VAT, such a system must make provision for the UK to continue to apply any zero rates which are in force at the time any new system is introduced.

Building Societies

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take action to compel directors of building societies to declare publicly in full the benefits they will gain personally when takeovers, amalgamations and conversions into banks are promoted and recommended. [20683]

Mr. Nelson: Regulations made under the Building Societies Act 1986 require the disclosure of information about the interests of the directors of a society in any transfer of business, the compensation or other consideration proposed to be paid to directors or other officers of the society attributable to the transfer and the manner in which the salary and other benefits of officers of the society will be affected by appointment to any position by the successor company. This information must be contained in the transfer statement, which is sent to all members eligible to vote.

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will introduce changes to the Building Societies Act 1986 so that when the Building Societies ombudsman confirms that maladministration is proven against the interest of a category of saver, all such savers shall be recompensed, and not only those who have registered a complaint. [20975]

Mr. Nelson: The purpose of the building societies ombudsmen scheme is to provide an alternative to legal action for settling individual disputes between societies and their customers. Each case must be decided by the ombudsman on its merits and the details of any two complaints are seldom identical, so it would not be appropriate for the decision of the ombudsman in one particular case to be applied automatically to a number of other cases which had not been submitted to him.

Government Borrowing

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is the current level of Government borrowing; what was the level in April 1992; what he estimates the level will be in April next year; and at what level of borrowing he thinks it would be prudent to contemplate tax cuts. [21075]

Mr. Nelson: The public sector borrowing requirement in 1991–92 was £13.9 billion. In 1994–95, the PSBR was £35.6 billion. The PSBR is expected to fall to £21½ billion in 1995–96 and is projected to be in surplus by the end of the decade.

Tax cuts will be made only when it is in the best interests of the economy.

Manufacturers

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the relative competitiveness on price of United Kingdom exports of manufactures at the current rates of exchange and at those in the fourth quarter of 1986. [21303]

Mr. Nelson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 March, Official Report, column 360.

Mortgage Statistics

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will list by region the current average amount where a home owner's mortgage debt exceeds or falls short of the value of their property; what the national average is; and what were the equivalent figures for each of the four previous years; [20721]

(2) if he will list by region the number of home owners whose current property value is at a negative equity figure; and what were the figures for each of the previous four years. [20729]

Mr. Nelson: Estimates of the number of households with, and the average value per household of, negative equity by region in the years 1990–1994 are shown in the tables. Figures for households with positive equity are not available.

Estimates of negative equity are sensitive to assumptions made about average house prices. These estimates are based on Department of the Environment house price data.

On this basis, the number of UK households with negative equity in the fourth quarter of 1994 had fallen by 45 per cent. since its peak in the fourth quarter of 1992. The total value of negative equity fell by 64 per cent. over the same period.

Council Tax Bands

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what are the charter standards for the speed with which the Inland Revenue notifies local authorities of amendments to a property's council tax band. [20690]

Mr. Nelson: Listing officers of the Valuation Office Agency are responsible for maintaining council tax bandings.

There is no charter standard for the speed with which listing officers notify local authorities of amendments to a property's council tax band but they would aim to do this within three months of becoming aware of the need for an amendment.

Medicash

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what fee was paid by Medicash to the Paymaster General's office for sending private health care mailshots to NHS pensioners; and how many were sent out. [20678]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The information requested falls within the operational responsibility of the chief executive of PAYMASTER, whom I have asked to reply.

Letter from Keith Sullens to Mr. Martin Redmond, dated 26 April 1995:

I am replying to your written parliamentary question of 21 April, that you asked The Chancellor of the Exchequer. I have been asked to reply because it falls within my area of responsibility as Chief Executive of the Office of HM Paymaster General, known as the Agency PAYMASTER.

On behalf of Medicash we forwarded informative material to 152,000 pensioners. Medicash were charged £21,379 including VAT.

British Manufacture and Research Company

Mr. Byers: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will refer the conduct of the former directors of the British Manufacture and Research Company to the Customs and Excise for it to consider an investigation into possible breaches of the arms embargo with Iran. [20487]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory [holding answer 24 April 1995]: Decisions on whether to investigate possible breaches of UK export controls are for the Commissioners of Customs and Excise in exercise of their law enforcement responsibilities. They will consider all relevant information available to them in deciding whether an investigation is appropriate and would welcome any information which the hon. Member or others may provide.

Cable Companies

Mr. Key: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the uniform business rate is calculated for franchised cable companies; and what is the rate set for 1994–95 and for 1995–96. [19111]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Valuations of the franchised cable companies for uniform business rate purposes, in the absence of reliable rental evidence, have been based on the cost of installing the systems.

In 1994–95 the rateable value for England for franchised cable companies is estimated to be £5.5 million. For 1995–96 the equivalent figure is estimated to be £22.5 million.

Public Sector Occupational Pension Schemes

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information is available regarding the expenditure of public sector occupational pension schemes on pensions, lump sums on death and lump sums on retirement, comparable to that given for self-administered private sector schemes in table 4.4 of the Government Actuary's report, "Occupational Pension Schemes 1991"; and what was the total expenditure of public sector schemes under each of these heads in 1991 and in the financial year 1992–93. [19990]

Sir George Young [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Information in the form requested is held centrally only for the public service pension schemes covering local government, teaching, the NHS, the civil service and the armed forces. It is given in the following table. Similar information for other public sector occupational pension schemes may be available from employing authorities or the managers of those schemes.

The Central Statistical Office publishes information obtained on a different sampling basis from that used by the Government Actuary—its survey of income and expenditure of funded private and public sector schemes in table 4.3 of "Business Monitor MQ5".

EDUCATION

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if she will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21165]

Mr. Boswell: There are no advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by this Department.

Drugs

Mr. Hawksley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what changes there have been in circulars giving guidance to schools concerning the reporting to police of pupils caught with soft drugs. [21279]

Mr. Forth: The Department issued for consultation last November a draft circular on drug prevention and schools. That made it clear that my right hon. Friend expects schools to notify the police when illegal drugs are found on a pupil or on school premises. That remains our view. Any instances of possession, use or supply of illegal drugs on school premises should be regarded with the utmost seriousness. The final circular will be published next month.

University Science Parks

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many university science parks are now in operation; and how many acres of land they occupy. [21061]

Mr. Boswell: There are currently 49 science parks in the UK with UK Science Park Association membership. We understand that there are also a small number of independent science parks. Figures on acreage of land occupied are not available centrally. The total amount of science park property floor space occupied by UKSPA members in 1994 was 675,000 sq. m.

School Meals

Mr. Thurnham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if she will list, in ranking order, the amount of subsidy per pupil for school meals for each local education authority in England and Wales, giving in the form of a table the income, expenditure and the subsidy, both in absolute amounts and per pupil, and relate the absolute subsidy to the cost of teachers' pay award in each authority. [20720]

Mr. Robin Squire: The table shows, in ranking order of cost per pupil, the expenditure and income in cash terms for local education authority school catering services in 1992–93, the latest year for which final figures are available. The table also shows the notional cost of the increase in teacher salaries in 1995–96 in England only; this information is not collected centrally in Wales. The figures in the table take no account of changes in teacher numbers or other factors that affect the teachers' pay bill.

Class Sizes

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what is her estimate of the cost of adopting a policy which ensures that no class sizes in state schools exceed 30 pupils. [20463]

Mr. Robin Squire: The financial implications of any policy setting arbitrary limits on class size would depend on the resulting decisions taken at school level about the deployment of teachers and pupils.

Education Expenditure, Leicestershire

Mr. Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much is budgeted to be paid directly to schools in Leicestershire in the current financial year; how much will be spent elsewhere by the LEA on central administration or for other purposes; and what were the figures for each of the four previous years. [19934]

Mr. Robin Squire: The figures in the table are derived from the budget and outturn statements published by the Leicestershire local education authority under section 42 of the Education Reform Act 1988 in respect of schools covered by its scheme for the local management of schools. The general schools budget represents total expenditure, or planned expenditure, on the authority's county, voluntary and—from 1 April 1994—special schools; the aggregated schools budget is that portion of the GSB which is allocated to the schools themselves. The difference represents funding retained by the authority for central administration and other purposes relating to the schools covered by the local management of schools scheme.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Equalisation Reserves

Mr. Heald: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when he will be issuing a consultation document on the subject of equalisation reserves. [22006]

Mr. Jonathan Evans: In his speech on Second Reading of the Insurance Companies (Reserves) Bill, my hon. Friend the Member for Hertfordshire, North (Mr. Heald) indicated that the Government proposed to issue a consultation document in the spring to invite comments on proposals for regulations introducing a requirement for equalisation reserves for some types of non-life business. I am pleased to be able to tell the House that the DTI and Inland Revenue are today jointly issuing the consultation document to which he referred. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The insurance industry has argued for some years that it is at a disadvantage compared to its overseas competitors because some countries allow tax relief on transfers made into equalisation reserves for non-life business. These representations have been made in the light of the emerging single European market in insurance, and in particular the EC third non-life directive, which came into force on 1 July 1994 and which enables insurers to operate anywhere throughout the Community under a single authorisation and regulation by their home state. In some EC member states insurers are able to build up equalisation reserves free of tax to assist them in responding to exceptional claims and many UK companies believe this gives such companies a competitive advantage both in European and world insurance markets.

Claims equalisation reserves are used to set aside funds in good years to assist the meeting of losses in bad ones, resulting in a smoothing of insurers' underwriting results over time. Much insurance business that can suffer catastrophe or exceptional claims is written as one year contracts and taxed on the results for a single year. It is in the nature of such business, however, that its true profitability emerges only over a longer period. It is therefore argued that tax should be able to be deferred in respect of prudential sums set aside to reserves in good years since such sums are not really profit at all but will be needed to pay claims in bad years.

The supervisory proposals in the consultation document could be the basis of regulations if the provisions of the Insurance Companies (Reserves) Bill become law. The consultation document suggests that it would be appropriate for companies writing certain types of business to set aside a certain proportion of net written premium each year up to a maximum limit based on the amount of premium written over five years. Withdrawals would be triggered when a company's claims ratio for a financial year exceeded a set amount. The types of business which it is proposed be covered are: property, consequential loss, mortgage indemnity, marine, nuclear, proportional reinsurance of that business and all non-proportional reinsurance.

I am grateful to the industry, and in particular to the Association of British Insurers, for the work done to assist the development of these proposals. We hope that all interested parties will consider the proposals carefully and indicate whether they are content to proceed on that basis.

Representations should be sent by 7 July 1995 either to the DTI or the Inland Revenue.

Radio Spectrum Review

Mr. Heald: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when the Government's response to stage 3 Radio spectrum review report will be published. [22007]

Mr. Heseltine: I am pleased to announce that, in agreement with the Secretaries of State for Defence, for the Home Department, for Scotland and for National Heritage, the Government's response to the recommendations made in the report of the radio spectrum review committee, "Stage 3: 28–470 MHz", will be published today. The review committee was chaired by Sir Colin Fielding and its report presented to Ministers on 19 January 1994.

Today's response and the progress which will be made in implementing the recommendations is a further example of the steps we are taking to improve the efficiency of spectrum management and usage in the UK to promote competition and choice for the benefit of all users of the radio spectrum.

The review committee made 28 recommendations, 24 of which have been accepted by the Government without reservation; the remaining four are accepted in principle. The recommendations cover both defence and civil use of the review spectrum and a number of them have already been acted upon. Part of an existing defence frequency band has already been released for a new digital radio broadcasting service for the UK. Further defence spectrum has been released in co-operation with NATO to provide the emergency services with an opportunity to develop a new radio system. This in turn will also assist with the resolution of the long-standing continental radio interference problems in the UHF frequency bands in England and Wales.

Some of the review committee's recommendations addressed spectrum management issues which were also the subject of the consultative document on the future management of the radio spectrum. Therefore it was decided to delay the completion of the Government's response to the stage three review until after consideration of the submissions to the consultative document.

Cable Television Operators

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what assessment has been made of the damage to trees in the borough of Havering by the work undertaken by Encom; and what steps have been taken to prevent further damage. [20719]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Havering borough council, in conjunction with Encom, has carried out a survey of 14,000 trees in the borough to assess damage to trees by cabling activity. The company have agreed that any tree damaged as a result of their contractors' activity will be replaced by two new specimens. A code of practice has been agreed with the borough council to minimise the potential for further damage. The code commits Encom's contractors to hand digging in the vicinity of trees.

Sir Nicholas Bonsor: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what powers local authorities have to control the activities of cable television operators within their area; and what residual powers Her Majesty's Government have in this area. [20717]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The street works activities of cable TV operators, in common with other statutory undertakers, are governed by the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991, and its associated regulations. Local authorities may bring prosecutions under the Act for offences which include failure to reinstate, failure to comply with requirements on reinstatement materials and workmanship standards, failure to sign, guard and light the works as required and failure to co-operate with the street authority. The Telecommunications Act 1984, under which cable TV operators are licensed to install and run their systems, empowers the Secretary of State to modify the system installation conditions of cable operators' licences should he consider it expedient to do so.

Mr. McMaster: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what monitoring his Department carries out to ensure that cable television companies do not abuse their franchise by causing serious, unnecessary and unacceptable disruption to other local services and local residents; what recourse is available where this happens; and if he will make a statement. [19003]

Mr. Ian Taylor: Cable TV operators are licensed under the Telecommunications Act 1984 to install their systems in the maintainable highway and, with appropriate consent, on private land. Their licences include conditions designed to ensure that they operate in a responsible manner and adhere to all relevant street works legislation. Street works in the maintainable highway are subject to the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991, and its associated regulations, which is enforced by local highway authorities. The Act imposes a duty on the cable operator to co-operate with the local highway authority in the interests of safety, to minimise the inconvenience to persons using the street and to protect the structure of the street and the integrity of apparatus in it. The DTI monitors the performance of individual cable operators using a variety of statistical and empirical measures. The Department, in conjunction with local authorities, take action to ensure street works do not cause unnecessary disruption.

Cable Communications (Schools)

Ms Coffey: To ask the President of the Board of Trade, pursuant to his oral answer to the hon. Member for Milton Keynes, North-East (Mrs. Butler) of 5 April, Official Report, column 1722, if he will place in the Library a copy of the Cable Communications Association undertaking to ensure that all schools in the areas for which it has franchises will be connected. [21023]

Mr. Ian Taylor: I welcome the decision by the Cable Communications Association to offer a free connecting to every school passed by cable TV networks. More than 350 schools are already benefiting from this policy, which was agreed by the association's board on 16 February. A copy of the policy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Shipbuilding

Mr. Davidson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what is his Department's policy on support for the shipbuilding industry from 1 January 1996. [20733]

Mr. Eggar: With the exception of the shipbuilding intervention fund and the home credit guarantee scheme, no changes are planned to the Department's policies on the shipbuilding industry after 1 January 1996.

The shipbuilding intervention fund scheme will be abolished from that date. The United Kingdom will abide by the terms of the OECD's agreement respecting competitive conditions in the commercial shipbuilding and repair industry, signed in December 1994, which abolishes all direct subsidies to these industries on a multilateral basis. However, payments made under commitments entered into before 1 January 1996 may be continued until 31 December 1998.

The future of the home credit guarantee scheme is being reviewed in the light of the OECD agreement.

Land Sales (British Coal)

Mr. Illsley: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will identify all the parcels of land currently being offered by sale by British Coal. [20829]

Mr. Page: This is a matter for British Coal. I understand that the corporation is considering the composition of the property packages which it is to offer for sale.

Crown Post Offices

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what guidance his Department gives to the Post Office regarding consultation procedures for proposed changes to Crown post offices. [20890]

Mr. Page: The implementation of any changes to Crown post offices is a matter for Post Office Counters Ltd.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many Crown post offices he expects there to be in each of the next five years. [20891]

Mr. Page: The ownership of its outlets is a matter for Post Office Counters Ltd.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many representations he has received from members of the public regarding converting Crown post offices to agency status; how many of those have been in favour of such a change; and how many against. [20893]

Mr. Page: Since the Post Office started its Crown conversion programme in 1989 my Department has received a wide range of correspondence commenting on the programme, most commonly on proposals for individual offices. However, summary records of the numbers of letters received and the views expressed in them are not maintained.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what guidance he issues on the categories of shops and businesses in which it is (a) appropriate and (b) inappropriate to situate post offices. [20894]

Mr. Page: The location and ownership of its outlets is a matter for Post Office Counters Ltd.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade how many Crown post offices there were in (a) 1979, (b) 1985, (c) 1990 and (d) the last year for which figures are available. [20895]

Mr. Page: I understand from the Post Office that the information requested is as follows:

| Date | Number of Crown Post Offices |
|---|---|
| 31 March 1979 | 1,580 |
| 3 April 1985 | 1,553 |
| 28 March 1990 | 1,339 |
| 28 February 1995 | 735 |

The total number of post offices offering the full range of Post Office services is currently 1,506.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will ensure that Post Office guidelines about suitable outlets for agency post offices are published in the Official Report and placed in the Library. [21026]

Mr. Page: The location and ownership of its outlets is a matter for Post Office Counters Ltd.

Trade Visit (South Africa)

Mr. Worthington: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the outcomes of the recent visit by the trade Minister to South Africa and on future plans for trade development with South Africa. [19913]

Mr. Needham: During my visit to South Africa in March, 80 business men were involved in technical seminars on the royal yacht, on-shore business-to-business meetings and meetings with key figures in the South African Government of National Unity.

Nearly 50 of the business party travelled to Johannesburg during the middle of the week to discuss issues with the financial community and to talk to their opposite numbers in the electricity utility, Eskom, brewing conglomerate, South African Breweries, and urban regeneration planners and engineers at the Johannesburg Transitional metropolitan council.

British companies announced a series of major deals during the week which are expected to lead millions of pounds of additional business.

An Anglo-South African partnership initiative is to be established, comprising some of the most important business men in both countries, which will promote trade between the two countries. This is expected to be formally inaugurated in September, when we will be staging a major "British Week" in Johannesburg. This will feature sporting and cultural events as well as a major all-British trade exhibition under the title "Britain means Business".

HOME DEPARTMENT

Immigration Service and Police Raids

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has to reform the named offender procedure with regard to immigration service and police raids. [20889]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: There are no plans to change the present policy that in all cases every reasonable effort should be made to establish the names of people whom it is suspected will be found and to check them against immigration records. Visits to private addresses will continue to be authorised only where there is good reason to suspect that an identified person is there in breach of the immigration laws. However, in relation to places of work, my right hon. and learned Friend and I have decided that in future, where there is reason to believe that efforts to enlist the co-operation of the employer would undermine the effectiveness of a planned operation, visits will be authorised where there is apparently reliable information that immigration offenders will be found.

Particular account will be taken of whether there is a history of the premises being used by offenders.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, pursuant to his answer of 31 March, Official Report, column 854, what criteria were used by Ministers to decide which of the bids for closed circuit TV funding assessed by the panel as being of good or very good quality would receive funding. [21025]

Mr. Maclean: The criteria used to assess all of the bids for funding for CCTV in the recent challenge competition were those published in the bidding guidance document issued on 9 November 1994.

Private Security Companies

Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he has sought the opinion of the Merseyside police authority on the Protect-U-Rite private security company based in Liverpool; and if he will make a statement. [21145]

Mr. Maclean: No.

Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of any link between the setting up of a private security company on Merseyside and the reduction in the Merseyside police budget and if he will make a statement. [21147]

Mr. Maclean: There is no link between the setting up of private security companies in a particular area and the budget of the local police force. Merseyside police authority has taken advantage of the additional funds made available for 1995–96 and has set this year's force budget at £218.56 million. That is an increase of £5.33 million, or 2.5 per cent., over the base budget for 1994–95.

Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the process used by private security companies to check on possible criminal records of their employees; and if he will make a statement. [21148]

Mr. Maclean: It is for private security companies themselves to decide what checks to carry out in assessing the suitability of prospective employees. They do not at present have access to criminal records, but we are looking at the case for such access as part of our wider review of the arrangements for disclosure of criminal records.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21160]

Mr. Howard: The information is as follows:

(a) Advisory NDPBs required by statute to publish their advice
Firearms Consultative Committee
Parliamentary Boundary Commission for England
Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Wales

(b) Advisory NDPBs required by statute to publish an annual report
The Animal Procedures Committee
Firearms Consultative Committee
The Parole Board

(c) Advisory NDPBs required by statute to lay an annual report before Parliament

The Animal Procedures Committee
Firearms Consultative Committee
The Parole Board

(d) Advisory NDPBs with a statutory basis

Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs
Animal Procedures Committee
Central Fire Brigades Advisory Council
Firearms Consultative Committee
Parliamentary Boundary Commission for England
Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Wales
Parole Board
Poisons Board
Police Negotiating Board

Computer Pornography

Mr. Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers have been trained to deal with computer pornography on the Internet; and how many of these are outside the specialist obscene publication branches in London and Manchester. [21187]

Mr. Maclean: It is for chief officers to decide, in the light of their operational requirements, what training should be given on detecting computer pornography. Records of the number of officers so trained are not held centrally.

Extradition (Singapore)

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the grounds for extraditing a British citizen to Singapore from the United Kingdom. [21128]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The United Kingdom's extradition arrangements with Singapore are governed by part III of the Extradition Act 1989. This permits extradition for offences committed within Singapore's legal jurisdiction, provided that a prima facie case can be shown, that the alleged offence carries a sentence of one year or more on conviction and that the alleged offence would also be an offence in this country.

National Lottery

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he intends to report to Parliament the initial findings of his officials' monitoring exercise on the impact of the national lottery on charities and charity lotteries. [20987]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: My right hon. and learned Friend will wish to report on the level of charitable income following the introduction of the national lottery once he has sufficient relevant data and after it has been analysed. The Government are now looking into the practicalities of the necessary data collection and my right hon. and learned Friend will decide on the timing of his report in the light of that consideration.

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of his officials are engaged in the exercise to monitor the impact of the national lottery on charities and charity lotteries. [21002]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Consideration is still being given to how best to measure any changes in charitable income following the introduction of the national lottery and to the staffing implications of the exercise.

Mr. Nicholas Hill

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Nicholas Anthony Hill, convicted in 1990 at Birmingham Crown court, will be considered for (a) parole and (b) weekend leave; and what is his estimated date of release. [20646]

Mr. Maclean: The third review of Mr. Hill's eligibility for parole is currently under way, his previous two applications having been unsuccessful. Under the new system of release on temporary licence, which came into effect on 25 April, Mr. Hill is eligible at the same time to be considered for resettlement licence although he has no automatic entitlement to it. If he is not granted parole, Mr. Hill will be released from prison on 20 April 1998.

Metropolitan Police

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications have been received by the Metropolitan police for police recruitment in each of the last 12 months. [20650]

Mr. Maclean: The following is the information requested:

| Month | Male | Female |
|---|---|---|
| April 1994 | 16 | 8 |
| May 1994 | 19 | 7 |
| June 1994 | 2,015 | 557 |
| July 1994 | 1,323 | 322 |
| August 1994 | 59 | 12 |
| September 1994 | 846 | 249 |
| October 1994 | 759 | 233 |
| November 1994 | 378 | 183 |
| December 1994 | 1,060 | 276 |
| January 1995 | 37 | 8 |
| February 1995 | 493 | 138 |
| March 1995 | 1,178 | 373 |

These figures exclude applications to join the special constabulary.

Illegal Passengers

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many immigration surveillance units, equipped with trained dogs, are currently monitoring the entry through the port of Dover of heavy goods vehicles; [20749]

(2) how many immigration surveillance units, equipped with trained dogs, are currently monitoring the entry of heavy goods vehicles through east coast ports between the Thames ports in London and North End and Newcastle; [20751]

(3) how many immigration surveillance units, equipped with trained dogs, are currently monitoring the transportation of heavy goods vehicles through the channel tunnel; and where those units are based; [20747]

(4) how many immigration surveillance units, equipped with trained dogs, are currently monitoring the entry of heavy goods vehicles through the channel ports, from Ramsgate to Plymouth. [20748]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: There is one unit, based at Dover, equipped with dogs specially trained for the purpose of detecting people hidden in vehicles. The use of dogs in this way forms part of the operational measures to combat illegal entry. In addition to the ports in the south-east district, the dogs have been deployed at Felixstowe, Harwich, Newhaven, Southampton, Portsmouth and Poole.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what equipment is being used in and around the channel tunnel to detect the possible presence of illegal passengers in the freight containers of heavy goods vehicles using the tunnel. [20760]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: No special equipment is used by the immigration service in and around the channel tunnel in order to detect the presence of illegal entrants. However, there is scope for using specially trained dogs at Cheriton for this purpose.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many immigration officers currently employed on permanent contracts to monitor the movement of illegal passengers are based permanently at (a) Ramsgate, (b) Dover, (c) Newhaven, (d) Portsmouth, (e) Southampton, (f) Poole and (g) Plymouth; [20750]

(2) how many United Kingdom immigration officers are currently employed on permanent contracts to monitor the movement of illegal passengers in and around the channel tunnel and where those officers are based. [20746]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The detection of passengers attempting to enter illegally forms part of the duties of all immigration officers. The number of immigration officers in post on 31 March 1995 at the ports cited was as follows: (a) Ramsgate: 12, (b) Dover: 188.5, (c) Newhaven: 18.5, (d) Portsmouth: 30, (e) Southampton: 11, (f) Poole: 3, and (g) Plymouth: 8. There were a further 62 immigration officers based at Waterloo international terminal and 22.5 at Cheriton. Immigration officers based at Dover and Cheriton staff the channel tunnel control at Coquelles in France.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have been apprehended during 1994–95 by the United Kingdom authorities (a) at a port of entry in the act of attempting to obtain illegal entry to the United Kingdom by hiding in the freight containers of heavy goods vehicles and (b) at inland locations, the vehicles having passed through the port of entry. [20761]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: A total of 1,742 illegal entrants who arrived by clandestine means were detected in the year ended 31 December 1994, the latest period for which statistics—currently provisional—are available. A breakdown of this figure by method of clandestine entry and by port of detection is not available.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures he is taking in co-operation with Europol/Interpol and with his counterparts in other EU member states to combat the activities of criminals in Italy and France engaged in smuggling illegal immigrants into the United Kingdom. [20759]

Mr. Maclean: At their meeting on 9 and 10 March 1995, European Union Interior and Justice Ministers agreed to extend the remit of the Europol drugs unit to include the exchange and analysis of intelligence on crimes involving illegal immigration networks and the criminal organisations involved. Through the national criminal intelligence service UK police and immigration officers are actively involved in planning the work of the EDU in this field. There are already good bilateral links between the UK, France and Italy.

Identity Cards

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the relevance of the expertise of United Kingdom Passport Agency staff to work involved in any national identity card scheme which he is considering announcing. [20767]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: I am well aware of the valuable expertise which the Passport Agency has available in considering applications for and issuing identity documents in the form of British passports. Consequently, my officials have kept closely in touch with the Passport Agency in preparing the forthcoming Green Paper on identity cards.

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what are the estimated costs of introducing comprehensive identity card schemes for the United Kingdom utilising (a) a smart card capable of being processed by electronic equipment and (b) a standard paper document. [20770]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: To establish a separate comprehensive identity card scheme covering all the adult population has been estimated to cost in the region of £600 million or possibly more depending on the type of scheme. These costs could be substantially lower if the card were associated with an existing form of official documentation. The precise cost would depend on the detailed arrangements, including the type of card—a "smart" card incorporating an electronic chip could cost up to £5 to produce compared with up to £1 for an ordinary plastic photocard—and the nature of the scheme.

My right hon. and learned Friend will be publishing a consultation document on identity cards shortly which will contain some estimates of costs of different kinds of schemes.

Firearms

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licensed gun dealers are located within the Metropolitan police area. [20787]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is published in the annual Home Office statistical bulletin "Firearm certificate statistics, England and Wales 1993", issue 22/94, table 5, copies of which can be found in the Library.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) firearm and (b) shotgun licences were issued in the Metropolitan police area during the last year for which figures are available. [20785]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is published in the annual Home Office statistical bulletin "Firearm certificate statistics, England and Wales 1993", issue 22/94, tables 2 and 4, copies of which can be found in the Library.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further steps he proposes to take to exercise control over the sale and purchase of firearms in (a) the Metropolitan police area and (b) nationally. [20788]

Mr. Maclean: None. There are already extensive restrictions on the purchase and sale of firearms.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many gun and shotgun licences were issued in the Metropolitan Police area during the last available year to persons with previous criminal convictions of any kind. [20786]

Mr. Maclean: This information is not available.

Cheshire Police

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make inquiries into the present status of the case referred to in oral answers from the then Home Secretary, 13 May 1993, Official Report, column

924, insofar as it affects allegations of corrupt activities by officers in the Cheshire force. [20779]

Mr. Maclean: The report of the investigation has been submitted to the Director of Public Prosecutions who will decide whether any criminal charges should be brought. Once a decision has been made, the chief constable of Cheshire and the Police Complaints Authority will consider whether disciplinary action should be taken against any officer.

Deported Kenyan Citizens

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what has been the number of citizens of Kenya who have been deported from the United Kingdom in each of the past five years. [20742]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The information requested is given in the table.

Citizens of Kenya removed from the United Kingdom under the deportation process[1]

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 1990 | 15 |
| 1991 | 12 |
| 1992 | 10 |
| 1993 | 16 |
| 1994 | [2]19 |

[1] Including persons who departed voluntarily, but excluding illegal entrants removed—15 in 1994—and persons refused leave to enter at ports and removed.
[2] Provisional.

Animal Rights Protestors

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what is the funding, the establishment and the location of the headquarters and other subsidiary offices of the special police unit that has been set up in respect of animal rights protestors; and if he will make a statement. [20712]

Mr. Maclean: No special national police unit has been established in respect of animal rights protestors. The animal rights national index, which was established in 1986 and is based at New Scotland Yard, continues to support police forces throughout the United Kingdom by gathering, assessing and disseminating intelligence about animal rights extremist activity. In addition, the Association of Chief Police Officers recently decided that the commander of the Metropolitan police anti-terrorist branch should have a co-ordinating role in respect of certain operations against animal rights extremists suspected of involvement in serious crime extending beyond individual force boundaries. This change does not involve the creation of additional posts.

Child Prostitution

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many cases of child prostitution have been reported in Wales during the last year; and what are the figures for each of the previous four years; [20753]

(2) how many cases of child prostitution have been reported during the last year; and what were the figures for each of the previous four years. [20728]

Mr. Maclean: The information requested is not available centrally.

Mr. Paul Malone

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken to discipline named police officers following the Police Complaints Authority report which he has received in respect of Mr. Paul Malone. [20780]

Mr. Maclean: The decision to institute disciplinary proceedings against any police officer is a matter for the chief officer concerned and the Police Complaints Authority. A decision will be taken in respect of those officers who were the subject of allegations made by Mr. Malone after the Director of Public Prosecutions has announced whether any officers are to face criminal proceedings.

Complaints against Police

Mr. Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what length of time should elapse after a chief constable has received a report from the Police Complaints Authority before action is taken. [20778]

Mr. Maclean: Under Part IX of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, the investigation of complaints is the responsibility of the chief officer of police, who is required to submit a report to the Director of Public Prosecutions where an investigation indicates that a criminal offence may have been committed. After the director has reached a decision on criminal proceedings or if the chief officer is satisfied that no criminal offence has been committed, the chief officer must submit a memorandum to the Police Complaints Authority stating whether he has or intends to prefer disciplinary charges in respect of matter investigated.

The joint statement of intent by the Police Complaints Authority, Crown Prosecution Service and Association of Chief Police Officers sets a target of 28 days of receipt of the investigation report in which the Crown Prosecution Service will deal with all but the more complex cases. The Police Complaints Authority's target is to complete consideration of the disciplinary aspects of the case within 28 days of the receipt of the chief officer's memorandum.

Immigration Detainees

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what monitoring takes place and by whom of immigration detainees held in prisons in England and Wales; and if he will make a statement. [20354]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The welfare of immigration detainees held in prisons is monitored by the Prison Service, which reports any matter of concern to the immigration service.

The immigration service regularly reviews the detention of all immigration detainees. The initial decision to detain is taken by an officer of at least chief immigration officer level and is reviewed within 24 hours by an immigration service inspector. Thereafter, detention is reviewed locally at least every seven days. After one month, the case is reviewed at headquarters, and thereafter on a monthly basis at an increasingly senior level, in consultation with the asylum division where there is an outstanding application for asylum.

Immigration (EU Decisions)

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list all entitled resolutions, conclusions, recommendations or other decisions relating to immigration and/or asylum matters which have been adopted by the European Council of the European Union either under the auspices of the intergovernmental process or on the formalisation of procedures under title VI of the treaty on European Union; and by what means members of the public may gain access to these matters. [20360]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: The following measures relating to immigration and asylum have been adopted by the Council in accordance with the procedures established by the intergovernmental chapter—title VI—of the treaty on European Union:

- Resolution on limitations on admission of third-country nationals to the member states for employment;
- Resolution on the admission of third-country nationals to the territory of member states for study purposes;
- Resolution on limitations on admission of third country nationals to the territory of member states for the purpose of self-employment;
- Joint action on travel facilities for third country nationals—school pupils;
- Conclusions on the organisation and development of the Centre for Information, Discussion and Exchange on the Crossing of Frontiers and Immigration;
- Recommendation concerning a specimen draft bilateral readmission agreement between a member state of the European Union and a third country;
- Recommendation concerning a standard travel document for the removal of third country nationals.

Proposals under title VI are made available for parliamentary scrutiny where they fall within the criteria for deposit in accordance with the Government's proposed scrutiny arrangements for title VI matters. Once they have been agreed by the Council, texts are made available to the House and can be provided to members of the public on request.

Additionally, the following decisions were taken by Immigration Ministers under the ad hoc arrangements which existed before the structures created under title VI:

- Creation of a European forgery bulletin;
- Convention determining the state responsible for examining applications for asylum lodged in one of the member states of the EC, the "Dublin convention";
- Decision setting up CIREA, the centre for information, discussion and exchange on asylum;
- Conclusions concerning countries where there is generally no serious risk of persecution;
- Resolution on a harmonised approach to questions concerning host third countries;
- Resolution on manifestly unfounded applications for asylum;
- Recommendation concerning member states' practices regarding removal;
- Recommendation concerning transit for the purposes of expulsion;
- Act setting up CIREFI, the centre for information, research and exchange on the crossing of boarders and immigration;
- Recommendation concerning checks on and expulsion of third country nationals residing or working without authorisation;
- Conclusions concerning greater flexibility in application of the provisions on transit for the purposes of expulsion; and
- Resolution on harmonisation of national policies on family reunification.

These documents were normally placed in the Library after their adoption by Immigration Ministers.

Schengen Agreement

Mr. Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) in what circumstances he would recommend to Parliament that the United Kingdom becomes a party to the Schengen agreement of 14 June 1985; [20361]

(2) whether the United Kingdom will join the Schengen agreement; and to what extent joining will be dependent on matters of immigration and asylum being taken out of the European Union. [20359]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: We have no intention of becoming a party to the Schengen agreement, which would be inconsistent with the maintenance of our system of frontier controls.

Prisons (Drugs)

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of prisoners disciplined for drugs possession or use during each of the last five years. [20387]

Mr. Maclean: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from B. Landers to Mr. Mike O' Brien, dated 27 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the number of prisoners disciplined for drugs possession or use during each of the last five years.

The numbers in Prison Service establishments in England and Wales are as follows:

Possession of controlled drugs: Offences proved at adjudication hearings, England and Wales, 1990–1994

| Year | Number |
|---|---|
| 1990 | 2,650 |
| 1991 | 2,798 |
| 1992 | 2,041 |
| 1993 | 1,797 |
| 1994 | [1]2,414 |

[1] Provisional.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990; [20188]

(2) what measures the Department takes to asses the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20189]

Mr. Howard: Contributions to the annual report are provided by Home Office staff as part of their normal duties. The time and cost associated with this work are not separately recorded.

Prisons (Suicides)

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if it is the policy of his Department to ensure that proper records are kept at all prisons in England and Wales on serious attempts to commit suicide; and if he will make a statement. [19950]

Mr. Maclean: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Dr. Rosemary Wool to Mr. Tom Cox, dated 27 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about our policy towards the keeping of proper records at prisons on serious attempts to commit suicide.

In April 1994 the Prison Service introduced a revised strategy designed to enable a high quality of care to be given to prisoners who are identified as being at possible risk of self harm or suicide. Among the new procedures introduced then was a system for identifying those at risk of self harm by the use of a new Self Harm at Risk Form. The instruction issued to Prison Service establishments when the revised strategy was introduced states that such a form is to be raised following any incident of self harm or attempted suicide. It is made clear on the form that the details of any incident of actual self harm must be recorded in the section headed "daily supervision and support record".

There is no absolute rule about the length of time a Self Harm at Risk Form should remain open. Some crises pass very quickly, whereas other prisoners may require special monitoring and support over a long period. Once raised, a Self Harm at Risk Form may only be closed, by the unit manager after a case review, once the prisoner concerned appears to be coping satisfactorily. Closed forms are then filed in prisoners' personal records.

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Rules and Regulations

Mr. Steen: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many rules and regulations he repealed in the first three months of 1995; and how many new rules and regulations were introduced in that period by way of statutory instruments, motions or orders. [19377]

Mr. Jack [holding answer 18 April 1995]: In the first three months of 1995, one statutory instrument was partially revoked by Order. A total of 51 other statutory instruments were introduced but the majority of these were to carry forward amendments to existing instruments rather than to add to regulation or impose new burdens. For example, some 16 statutory instruments concerned voluntary schemes and rates of grant aid to farmers, notably orders amending rates of payment in designated environmentally sensitive areas. Six replaced earlier instruments or substituted more favourable regimes for industry. Five statutory instruments extended plant breeders' rights to cover additional plant varieties. Of the remaining measures, 13 implemented EU obligations; three updated frees and charges; and the remaining eight included measures to protect public health and animal welfare, to establish the Milk Development Council, and to make certain technical and procedural changes to existing legislation.

EU Fisheries Legislation

Mr. David Atkinson: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will propose that EU fisheries legislation will provide for the possession of illegal mesh size nets to be illegal; and if he will make a statement. [19258]

Mr. Jack: EU regulations provide for various minimum mesh sizes to be used in different circumstances. In practice, a fishing vessel will carry nets of all the mesh sizes likely to be needed for any trip. For example, in the English channel cod and sole must be targeted with trawl mesh sizes of not less than 80 mm, but it would be reasonable in season to take sprat on the same fishing trip and for this a net of not less than 16 mm is permitted. Enforcement activity focuses on the mesh sizes and the nets employed in relation to the catch retained on board.

Within the EU, consideration has been given in the past to imposing a "single net rule" so that only one mesh size can be carried on a fishing vessel. However, so far it has been concluded that this would be too restrictive to be practical for general application.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime, (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19669]

Mr. Waldegrave: Information in the form requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Summary information on overtime from 1989–90 onwards for the agencies and the core Department is to be found at annex 6 of the Department's annual report, Cm 2803, a copy of which is to be found in the Library of the House.

On sick absence, civil service occupational health service data show the total number of sick leave days taken to be:

1992 (a) 57,693 days

1993 (b) 66,268 days

(a) core Department only (7,194 staff)

(b) core Department and PSD, VMD and CSL agencies (7,889 staff)

Figures for 1994 are not yet available.

Responsibility for such matters within ADAS, the Central Science Laboratory, the Central Veterinary Laboratory and the Pesticides Safety and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate have been delegated to the agency chief executives and I have asked them to reply to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Dr. J. M. Rutter, Chief Executive, Veterinary Medicines Directorate to Mr. David Shaw dated 20 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about the amount and cost of paid overtime worked, and the amount and monetary value of days lost through sickness in the Veterinary Medicines Directorate for each of the last three years, as this is an operational matter for which I am responsible.

For overtime, information on the number of hours worked is not readily available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost. The amount paid however is as follows:

1992/93: £858

1993/94: £1,729

1994/95: £2,430

For sickness absences, the total number of days lost was:

| | Total available days | Number of days lost through sickness | Percentage lost of total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 22,597.5 | 585 | 2.59 |
| 1993–94 | 24,065 | 865 | 3.59 |
| 1994–95 | 24,801.4 | 768.3 | 3.10 |

I regret that the monetary equivalent of these figures is not available and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Letter from T. W. A. Little to Mr. David Shaw, dated 27 April 1995:

The Minister has asked me to reply to your question about overtime and days lost through sickness.

Information on overtime in the form requested is not readily available but summary information can be found at Annex 6 of MAFF's Departmental Report 1995 (cm 2803) which has been placed in the Members' Library.

On sickness, the total time in days lost at CVL in 1992/93 was 4,307 and in 1993/94 5,868 days. Figures for 1994/95 are not yet available. I am unable to give a monetary equivalent for the days lost as our records do not readily show this information. It could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Letter from Dr. P. I. Stanley to Mr. David Shaw, dated 27 April 1995:

The Central Science Laboratory (CSL) became a Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) executive agency in April 1992. However I am unable to provide overtime statistics for the Agency in respect of 1992/93 as, throughout that financial year, figures were not recorded separately but formed part of the Departmental total.

I am able to provide statistics for 1993/94 and 1994/95; however I should point out that in April 1994 the number of staff employed by the Agency increased from 450 to some 700 as a result of the merger of CSL with the MAFF Food Science Laboratories at Norwich and Aberdeen. This accounts for last year's rise in overtime above the previous year. Details are as follows:

| | 1993–94 | 1994–95 |
|---|---|---|
| Total hours: | 14,082 | 18,248 |
| Sum paid: | £101.98K | £134.49K |

Finally you asked for details of the total time lost through sickness and its cost over the same three year period. I regret that I am unable to give this information because the figures for CSL form part of the Department's statistics and are not separately identified. An attempt to separate the figures would incur disproportionate costs.

Letter from G. K. Bruce to Mr. David Shaw, dated 27 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply, in respect of the Pesticides Safety Directorate (PSD), to your question about overtime and sickness over the last three years.

Such information is maintained by the core-Department but I understand that it is not readily available in the form requested and could only be provided at disproportionate cost. The figures which are available have been provided in the answer given by the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food. I am, however, able to provide information on the total amount paid in overtime since PSD was launched as an agency on 1 April 1993. This totalled £59,165 in 1993/94 and £46,021 in 1994/95. Figures prior to this date are not available.

Letter from J. M. Walsh to Mr. David Shaw, dated 19 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture has asked me to reply, on behalf of ADAS, in answer to your Parliamentary Question Number 1059. In this you sought information about:

a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made,

b) the total paid in overtime,

c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years.

ADAS is an Executive Agency of the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Foods and the Welsh Office which was formed in June 1992.

My reply is as follows:

a) Total hours of overtime.

Information in the form requested is not readily available and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

b) As above.

c) On sick absence details are:

1992: 13,097 days

1993: 15,115 days

Figures for 1994 are not yet available.

Letter from Guy Stapleton to Mr. David Shaw, dated 27 April 1995:

The Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food has asked me to reply to your Question about overtime and sickness in the Intervention Board as this matter is within my operational responsibility.

The total hours of paid overtime and the total amount paid for overtime working in the Agency in each of the last three financial years, calculated on the basis of pay-roll data, were as follows:

| | Paid overtime hours | Overtime Payments £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1992/93 | 56,973 | 337,401 |
| 1993/94 | 46,621 | 261,291 |
| 1994/95[1] | 39,655 | 251,477 |

[1] Excludes March payments.

Sick absence rates are monitored in the Agency on a financial year basis to correspond with key performance measures and targets which are published in our Annual Report. The figures shown below, which have been calculated using our pay-roll data, represent the number of working days lost due to sickness and the associated salary costs. Figures for the last quarter of 1994–95 are not yet available.

| | Sick absence (working days) | Salary cost £ |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 8,507 | 571,600 |
| 1993–94 | 9,816 | 720,000 |
| 1994–95[1] | 6,917 | 520,000 |

[1] April to December.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what the figures were for each year for which figures are available since 1990; [20204]

(2) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20205]

Mr. Jack: Staff costs accounted for just over half of the estimated £100,000 cost of producing the 1995 departmental report. This was equivalent to about 400 staff days. Equivalent figures are not available for earlier years.

Costs are estimated as and when necessary but must in any case be contained within the Department's overall running cost provision.

EC Tobacco Regime

Mr. Marlow: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 19 April, Official Report, column 162, what information he has received about the Commission's internal investigation into the suicide of an Italian official in the tobacco department; and what assessment he has made of this matter. [20460]

Mr. Jack: The official, a former head of the Commission's tobacco sector, was removed from his post in June 1990 and was subject to internal investigation by the Commission. These investigations ceased on his death in March 1993 and the Commission did not publish a report of its internal investigations. During the investigations, the official was not involved in any market management activities in the tobacco sector.

In 1993, the European Court of Auditors produced a special report of its detailed examination of the operation of the tobacco regime in the period between 1987, when the last such report was produced, and 1992 that is the period prior to the December 1992 reform of the sector. Its report highlighted several areas where procedures needed to be improved. In 1992, the Council of Ministers agreed a number of substantial reforms especially designed to prevent fraud, such as elimination of intervention and export refunds, areas traditionally susceptible to fraud. The changes made met the major concerns identified in the European Court of Auditors report. Furthermore, the Commission is investigating cases of irregularities mentioned in that report and will take action in the form of disallowance of expenditure where controls have not been effective. In this respect, disallowance has already been applied to Greece and Italy to the value of £11 million and £5 million for the EAGGF accounts in 1990 and £23 million and £16 million for the 1991 EAGGF accounts.

Meat Hygiene Service

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food what representations he has received about the increases in fees levied by the Meat Hygiene Service [20818]

Mrs. Browning: We have received representations about the Meat Hygiene Service's charges from a number of organisations and individuals. The meat Hygiene Service is now consulting plant operators on proposed revised charges following the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Hexham (Mr. Atkinson) on 29 March, Official Report, columns 653–54, about the transitional relief we are minded to make available.

Mrs. Gorman: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) what assessment he has made of the reasons why the imposition of new meat hygiene regulations over the past two years has not brought about a reduction in cases of salmonella typhimurium DT 104C and what has been the increase in that period; [20822]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of expenditure on the new Meat Hygiene Service on trends on the number of food poisoning cases over the course of the year. [20821]

Mrs. Browning: The number of food poisoning cases has continued to rise over recent years but the number of cases of salmonella typhimurium DT 104C has fallen from 25 in 1993 to nine in 1994. The incidence of salmonella typhimurium DT 104 has risen in humans over the same period from 808 to 2,873 and I believe it is this to which my hon. Friend refers. Salmonella typhimurium DT 104 has been implicated in some food poisoning incidents associated with the consumption of meat and meat products but there is no strong evidence of a direct link.

Thorough cooking will destroy most, if not all, pathogenic micro-organisms, but steps must be taken to limit the risk of cross-contamination, particularly from raw meat to other foods which may not be cooked before consumption.

The slaughterhouse is an important area where steps can be taken to address the problem of cross-contamination between carcases, in order to reduce the incidence of pathogenic micro-organisms entering the distribution chain.

The Fresh Meat (Hygiene and Inspection) Regulations 1992 have improved hygiene standards generally in slaughterhouses and other licensed fresh meat premises and the Meat Hygiene Service will build on this success. It is difficult, however, to make a direct quantitative link between the enforcement of these regulations and the level of occurrence of any food poisoning, including by salmonella typhimurium DT 104.

Animal Diseases

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of Teschen disease occurred in each year since 1975. [21099]

Mrs. Browning: No case of Teschen disease has ever been reported in England.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of African swine fever there has been each year since 1985. [21067]

Mrs. Browning : No case of African swine fever has ever been reported in England.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many cases of vesicular stomatitis occurred in each year since 1985. [21136]

Mrs. Browning: No case of vesicular stomatitis has ever been reported in England.

DEFENCE

Army Base Repair Organisation

Mr. Butler: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the key targets set for the chief executive of the Army Base Repair Organisation agency for the financial year 1995–96. [21903]

Mr. Soames: The chief executive of the Army Base Repair Organisation agency has been set the following key targets for 1995–96.

1. To deliver a responsive repair service to match the needs of the customer in peace and for operations to the agreed timeliness, quantity and quality criteria and within the allocated resources.
2. To operate an automated full cost, accruals accounting system by 31 March 1996.
3. To develop a comprehensive output based system to measure customer satisfaction.
4. To reduce by 4 per cent. the 1995–96 ratio of labour costs to hours of production by 31 March 1996.
5. To complete the transfer of light armoured fighting vehicle repair activities from ABRO Old Dalby to ABRO Bovington by 31 March 1996.
6. To invite tenders for the Land Command Support Market Test by 31 December 1995.

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his estimate of the unused floor space within the ABRO facilities at Bovington; and what plans he has to increase the work load for ABRO or to utilise the floorspace in another way. [21260]

Mr. Freeman: The extent of unused floor space at ABRO Bovington, which varies from period to period because of the fluctuating nature of the business, is not readily available. Spare workshop capacity exists throughout the Army Base Repair Organisation and plans to rationalise workshop capacity, through the closure of the ABRO Old Dalby workshop and the transfer of its work either to other ABRO or MOD facilities or to industry, are being implemented.

Preparations are under way for the transfer of a major armoured vehicle repair programme from Old Dalby to Bovington. In addition, a newly identified heavy "B" vehicle repair programme is about to be placed with the workshop, starting in the next few weeks.

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel are currently employed by his Department in the ABRO, Bovington and Lulworth facilities, breaking the figures down to indicate the type of personnel and whether the people live (a) on and (b) off the base. [21285]

Mr. Freeman: There are currently 422 personnel employed at ABRO Bovington; of these, 29 are based at the Lulworth detachment and hence 393 are located at Bovington. None of the staff lives on the base itself. I will send the hon. Member a detailed breakdown and will arrange for a copy of this to be placed in the Library of the House.

Engineer Resources

Mrs. Angela Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the Army's engineer resources. [21902]

Mr. Soames: The engineer resources, employing some 275 civilian staff is currently located at Long Marston, Warwickshire. Following an examination of the business structure of the engineer resources and investment appraisal, it has been concluded that significant savings could be made from collocating with the military work force at Chilwell.

I have therefore decided to accept, as the basis for consultation with the trade unions and other interested parties, the recommendation that staff at Long Marston be collocated with the military work force on a single site at Chilwell. Final decisions will be taken only in the light of representations made during the consultation period. A copy of the consultative document is being placed in the Library of the House.

Service Accommodation

Mr. Dicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the current valuation of the official service residence in Norfolk, Virginia, United States of America. [21904]

Mr. Soames The paper on official service residences referred to in my reply to the hon. Member for Fareham (Sir Peter Lloyd) on 10 February, Official Report, columns 465-67, erroneously stated the value to the US$5 million. The figure should, however, have read US$500,000. A more recent valuation by an independent firm in Norfolk, Virginia has valued the property at US$650,000.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the major items of repair to Haymes Garth and the estimated and actual costs of each item.

Mr. Soames [holding answer Thursday 20 April 1995]: Since January 1993, the total cost of essential external repairs to Haymes Garth has been £80,000. Items of repair undertaken include repairs to the roof, repairs and replacement of doors and windows and essential repairs to the driveway.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report; [20201]

(2) how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what the figures were for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20200]

Mr. Soames: Most of the information in the departmental report is gathered and compiled by staff, as part of their normal duties, for use not only in the report but in other Government publications and internal management plans. It is therefore not possible to separate the marginal staff effort and costs relating solely to the departmental report.

Defence Attachés

Mr. Jopling: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent reviews of the effectiveness of United Kingdom defence attachés have been undertaken; and when the results will be published. [19957]

Mr. Soames: The most recent review of attachés was the Goddard study, which considered the tasks of the corps, its long-term role and deployment and its management and operation, and reported in July 1993.

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is his Department's assessment of whether the United Kingdom deploys fewer nuclear warheads than any of the other four acknowledged nuclear weapon sates. [20568]

Mr. Soames: The United Kingdom deploys the minimum nuclear deterrent necessary for our security. The size of our nuclear stockpile is not determined by comparison with the number of nuclear warheads held by the other nuclear weapon states.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if it is Her Majesty's Government's policy to deploy only nuclear weapons on the three Trident submarines in the operational cycle. [20570]

Mr. Soames: In addition to the Trident missile system, each submarine has a tactical weapon system, including Spearfish torpedoes, for self-defence.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the United Kingdom already has sufficient fissile material suitable for weapons purposes to meet any future contingencies which might require the deployment of additional nuclear warheads. [20565]

Mr. Soames: We have sufficient fissile material for explosive purposes to meet our foreseeable operational needs.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if Her Majesty's Government's policy to cease the production of fissile material for explosive purposes will prevent the recycling of fissile material arising from the dismantling of decommissioned nuclear weapons for use in Trident warheads. [20564]

Mr. Freeman: No. Recycling allows us to keep our stockpile of fissile material at the minimum necessary to meet our operational requirements.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the production of Trident warheads has been completed. [20566]

Mr. Freeman: No.

Nuclear Emergency Unit

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what is the current establishment and current funding of the nuclear emergency unit based at his Department's main building, Whitehall; and what were the figures for the previous four years. [20722]

Mr. Soames: The costs for the eight full-time staff currently in the MOD headquarters nuclear accident response organisation are expected to be £300,000 for financial year 1995–96. In the previous four years there were seven full-time staff; costs for 1991–92 are not available but in the intervening years they were as follows:

1992–93: £230,000
1993–94: £247,000
1994–95: £262,000

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the current aims and objectives of the nuclear emergency unit. [20723]

Mr. Soames: The aims and objectives of the MOD nuclear accident response organisation are to ensure that, in conjunction with the appropriate civil agencies, there would be an effective response to safeguard the general public and MOD personnel in the unlikely event of an accident or other emergency involving defence nuclear material.

Regimental Vehicles

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what facilities are available to the 1st and 2nd Armoured Reconnaissance Regiments for repair and storage of the regiments' vehicles; if he will list the vehicles that are attached to the regiments and estimate the floor area taken up in covered accommodation for these vehicles; and what estimate he has made of the relative size of the 3rd Armoured Reconnaissance Regiment. [21261]

Mr. Soames: The facilities available for the repair and storage of the 1st and 2nd Regiments' vehicles are as follows:

Windsor: 2,970m²
Hohne: 2,240m²

The vehicles attached to each regiment are:

Tracked
5 Samaritan
16 Striker
48 Scimitar
16 Sultan
30 Spartan
5 Samson

Wheeled
1 Reconnaissance vehicle
2 TUM GS
14 Track 8 ton
1 Staff car
20 TUM FFR
18 Truck 4 ton
1 Van 1 ton
1 Car utility

Plant
2 JCB

The current floor area taken up in covered accommodation for these vehicles is:

Windsor: 3,700m²
Hohne: 6,720m²

The estimated size of the 3rd Armoured Reconnaissance Regiment is 527 personnel and the same number of vehicles as given above.

Naval Gunfire Training

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what safety precautions are planned to be taken by his Department during naval gunnery support training when this is undertaken off Dodman Point in Cornwall. [21265]

Mr. Soames: Safety is the paramount consideration in conducting naval gunfire support training. Safety procedures involve a number of distinct and independent checks which must all be completed before the commanding officer can give approval to fire. Moreover, the area will be monitored visually by military observers, and by a range safety craft. These measures are designed to ensure the safety of all marine users in the area. It is a feature of NGS training that the Royal Navy vessel works around all other marine activity, and that there is no question of any exclusion areas, whether for vessels or for people.

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what Army personnel and civilian work force are involved in naval gunnery support exercises at Lulworth ranges; where these personnel are normally based; and what the job implications are for removing these exercises from Lulworth. [21264]

Mr. Soames: There are not civilian personnel at Lulworth currently in support of naval gunfire support training. Three shore-based Army observers support NGS training at Lulworth and are drawn from 148 Battery Royal Artillery, based at Poole. This battery will continue to support NGS training when it moves to the area off Dodman Point. There are therefore no job implications for personnel at Lulworth.

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the use of the Lulworth ranges for naval gunnery support training; if the gunfire has always been directed into the sea; and what incidents have been recorded of the projectiles landing onshore when they were aimed at the sea. [21266]

Mr. Soames: Naval gunfire support training has been carried out at Lulworth without incident for more than 20 years. The firing position is in Weymouth bay, firing parallel with the coast at a target sited two miles out to sea from St. Albans head.

Regimental Staff

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff there are in the 1st and 2nd Armoured Reconnaissance Regiments; how many are (a) MOD and (b) civilian staff; where they are currently located; and how many staff live (i) on and (ii) off the bases. [21262]

Mr. Soames: The information is as follows:

| | Military | MOD civilian | Civilian contractors |
|---|---|---|---|
| Household Cavalry Regiment based at Windsor: | 527 | 14 | 46 |
| Light Dragoons based in Hohne, Germany: | 527 | 1 | 37 |

At Windsor, 224 staff live on the base, 363 live off and at Hohne 246 staff live on the base, 319 live off.

Procurement Executive

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the floor area to be occupied by each employee at the Abbey Wood procurement executive headquarters; what is the equivalent figure currently available to staff working in South Dorset; and what was the original area per employee that had been planned for Abbey Wood at the outset of the project. [21242]

Mr. Freeman: Within the Abbey Wood headquarters office buildings, which is mainly open plan, the average floor area to be occupied by each employee will be 9.64 sq m, which includes an allowance for storage, IT equipment and local meeting space. For the largely cellular office accommodation occupied by MOD staff in Portland, south Dorset, the average floor area occupied by each employee is some 13.25 sq m. The original average floor area planned at the outset of the Abbey Wood project was 10.52 sq m per employee. More taut accommodation standards are now being implemented.

Royal Armoured Corps

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the facilities and accommodation currently vacant or under-used at the Royal Armoured Corps centre at Bovington and Lulworth; and what facilities and accommodation will become vacant if the RAC training becomes civilianised. [21259]

Mr. Soames: None of the facilities at the Royal Armoured Corps centre are under-utilised, although there are at present two soldiers' accommodation blocks vacant and 47 married quarters unoccupied. No facilities will become vacant if the RAC training becomes civilianised. A maximum of three accommodation blocks will remain under-utilised.

Naval Gunfire Support

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what safety arrangements are made at Lulworth ranges when naval gunnery support exercises are being carried out; if the public are allowed to be present on the ranges; if boats, ships and swimmers are excluded from the maritime restriction zone; and if safety boats are in attendance. [21263]

Mr. Soames: Safety is the paramount consideration in conducting naval gunfire support training. Safety procedures involve a number of distinct and independent checks which must all be completed before the commanding officer can give approval to fire. The area is also monitored visually by military observers, and by a range safety craft. These measures are designed to ensure the safety of all marine users in the area. It is a feature of NGS training that the Royal Navy vessel works around all other marine activity, and thus there is no question of any exclusion zones, whether for vessels or for people. Similarly, NGS training at Lulworth does not affect public access to the landward coastline and environs of Lulworth at all. Only when the range is active for Army tank firings is access on land or to sea controlled.

Third Reconnaissance Battalion

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has had from hon. Members as to the location of the 3rd Reconnaissance Battalion in a location other than Bovington; if he will name those hon. Members who have contacted his Department; and if he will publish the correspondence. [21267]

Mr. Soames: I have had a number of representations from hon. Members on this subject but it is not my Department's practice to publish details of such correspondence.

Defence Postings (Weymouth and Portland)

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will estimate the number of defence posts which have already been lost in Weymouth and Portland over the past three years and the number of posts he expects to be lost rather than transferred up until the year 2000. [21243]

Mr. Soames: The number of service and civilian posts in my Department and its agencies in the Weymouth and Portland area has reduced by over 400 in the last three years. Between now and the year 2000 the transfer of functions to new locations means that some 3,000 further posts will move from the area. The majority of these will transfer to the new locations but it is not possible to estimate accurately how many will be saved by efficiency measures.

Portland Naval Base

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which companies have made a bid to purchase the Portland naval base. [21238]

Mr. Soames: It is not my Department's policy to divulge details of bidders for redundant military sites.

Mr. Fatchett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if his Department has accepted the highest bid for the Portland naval base. [21239]

Mr. Soames: My Department has accepted the bid which offers the best long-term solution for the area and reuse of the naval base.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base; [21166]

Mr. Soames: The Dartmoor steering group and working party was established on a statutory basis under Command 6837.

The Independent Board of Visitors was established in accordance with the Naval Detention Quarters Rules 1973 for RN detention quarters, and the Imprisonment and Detention Rules Army 1979 for military corrective training centres.

There is no formal requirement for any of MOD's advisory non-departmental public bodies to publish their advice to Government, publish an annual report or lay their annual reports before Parliament.

The annual reports of the Dartmoor steering group and working party and the Review Board for Government Contracts have, however, been placed in the Library of the House on previous occasions.

Alistair Green v. Ministry of Defence

Mr. John Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what were the total costs to public funds incurred in the case of Alistair Green v. Ministry of Defence; and what costs were incurred after the Ministry paid £32,000 into court. [19899]

Mr. Freeman: In this case the legal costs to my Department notified to date are in excess of £200,000, mostly incurred after a payment had been made into court. Our practice is to settle compensation claims by agreement whenever this can appropriately be done, but it is necessary to resist those claims which are regarded as unfounded.

Army Vehicles

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, pursuant to his answer of 5 April, Official Report, column 1153, which companies are participating in the evaluation trial for replacement of the Army's Land Rover 1 tonne and three-quarter tonne ambulances. [20207]

Mr. Freeman: Three companies—Land Rover Ltd., Iveco Ford Truck Ltd. and Steyr Daimler Puch—are currently being evaluated in this competition.

Fraud

Ms Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made by his Department in reclaiming moneys from the companies Borletti, Junghans and Raufass; and what is the up to date position regarding civil proceedings against Gordon Foxley, members of his family circle and the companies involved in the payment of secret commissions. [19954]

Mr. Freeman: I refer the hon. Lady to the Comptroller and Auditor General's recently published report, "The Risk of Fraud in Defence Procurement", HC 258 Session 1994–95, 10 March 1995. Chapter 5 contains an extensive description of my Department's response to the Foxley case, including civil proceedings.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Construction Industry

8. Mr. Rogers: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the current state of the construction industry in Northern Ireland. [19615]

Mr. Moss: The construction industry in Northern Ireland has in terms of its growth in the value of output since 1990 increased by 7.5 percentage points.

Royal Ulster Constabulary

10. Mr. Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to commence reorganisation of the Royal Ulster Constabulary. [19617]

Sir John Wheeler: The Government published their proposals for changes in policing structure in 1994. Following the ceasefires, the RUC and the Police Authority are now carrying out consultations into the future of policing in Northern Ireland.

Peace Support Programme

15. Ms Estelle Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what meetings he has had with European commissioners to discuss the distribution of resources under the special support programme for peace and reconciliation in Northern Ireland. [19622]

Sir John Wheeler: My right hon. and learned Friend has discussed the special support programme for peace and reconciliation with the President of the European Commission, Mr. Jacques Santer, and the Commissioner of Regional Policy, Mrs. Monika Wolf-Mathies, during their recent visits to Northern Ireland. Officials have also given views on the funding priorities of the programme.

24. Ms Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what meetings he has had with local community organisations in Northern Ireland to discuss the distribution of resources under the European special support programme for peace and reconciliation. [19632]

Sir John Wheeler: My right hon. and learned Friend has discussed the special programme with representatives of the voluntary sector. In addition, in drawing up proposals for an operational programme, officials are currently involved in an extensive consultation process with interested bodies, including local community organisations. These discussions covered a wide range of issues, including the distribution of resources.

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland which Department organised the conference in Newcastle on 29 March about the European Union fund for Peace and Reconciliation; and how many persons were invited in their capacity as elected members of the district councils. [19935]

Sir John Wheeler: The conference in Newcastle on 29 March 1995 on the European Union initiative for peace and reconciliation was organised by the Department of Finance and Personnel. A total of 248 invitations were issued, 52 of which were sent to the district councils. It was a matter for individual councils to decide whether elected members or officials would attend.

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of staff of the Labour Relations Agency have been given (a) paid time off work and (b) unpaid time off work to attend the forum for peace and reconciliation in Dublin. [19904]

Mr. Ancram: One Labour Relations Agency staff member has been given both paid and unpaid time off work, in accordance with the rules governing political activities in the agency's staff handbook, to attend the forum for peace and reconciliation.

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, if he will consult the Government of the Republic of Ireland about (a) the investment of that part of the EU funding for peace and reconciliation for cross-border projects and (b) the investment of the remaining part of this funding for projects entirely within Northern Ireland. [19906]

Sir John Wheeler: The special support programme for peace and reconciliation in Northern Ireland and the border counties of the Republic of Ireland will, as laid down in the European Commission's guidelines, be jointly submitted by both member states. This will require consultation and liaison, particularly in respect of the cross-border elements of the programme. The programme will also reflect the outcome of extensive public consultations in Northern Ireland and in the eligible area of the Republic of Ireland.

Unemployment

17. Mr. Stott: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to tackle pockets of extremely high unemployment in Northern Ireland. [19625]

Mr. Ancram: I refer the hon. Member to our increasingly successful efforts to attract inward investment, grow tourism, encourage exports and explore innovation by our current companies as well as the training programmes and other job creation measures which are available.

In addition, we are piloting 1,000 places under the community work programme for long-term unemployed in three of the highest areas of unemployment.

Framework Document

18. Ms Corston: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what representations he had received following the publication of the framework document. [19626]

Mr. Ancram: The Northern Ireland Office has received 238 letters of varied content from members of the public and from Members of Parliament. My right hon. and learned Friend and I have met a delegation from the grand orange lodge, and answered questions from audiences at a number of speaking engagements in Northern Ireland.

Rules and Regulations

19. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what rules and regulations he plans to repeal in the next four weeks. [19627]

Sir John Wheeler: Within the NI Departments and the Northern Ireland Office a total of 11 rules and regulations will be repealed during the next four weeks.

Trade Unions

20. Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what value his Department places on the work of trade unions in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [19628]

Mr. Ancram: Trade unions in Northern Ireland make, and have made, a valuable contribution to Northern Ireland's excellent industrial relations record, in combating sectarianism in the work place and in promoting peace and reconciliation. I also commend the work undertaken by the trade unions in encouraging and supporting equality of employment opportunities.

Sinn Fein

21. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects to open face to face discussions with Sinn Fein. [19629]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I refer the hon. Member to the oral answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Walsall, North (Mr. Winnick) earlier today.

Irish-medium Schools

22. Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what improvement he plans in the inspection of Irish-medium schools. [19630]

Mr. Ancram: Inspection of schools of all types in Northern Ireland follows the principles and procedures set out in two booklets published by the Department of Education, "The Inspection Process in Schools" and "Evaluating Schools". Copies of these are available in the Library. The effectiveness of inspection is evaluated annually and adjusted as necessary.

Private Lee Clegg

23. Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many representations he has received on behalf of Private Lee Clegg. [19631]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: Private Clegg's case has generated considerable interest, including over 4,000 letters and a number of petitions.

Community and Youth Organisations

25. Mr. Gapes: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to increase funding for community and youth organisations in Northern Ireland. [19633]

Mr. Ancram: In 1995–96, the Department of Education for Northern Ireland will increase its funding to the Youth Council for Northern Ireland by 3.2 per cent. to £2.05 million. It will be a matter for each education and library board to determine the funds to be allocated to youth services from within their block grant allocations. The Department of Health and Social Services will increase the grant to District councils for their support to independent advice centres by 45 per cent. to £377,000 and make an additional £275,000 per annum available for the development of volunteer bureaux. The Department of the Environment has made an additional £5 million available for the Community regeneration and improvement special programme for the three years to 1997–98, while the Making Belfast Work initiative will provide £50 million over the next two years. Community groups will also benefit from funding available between 1994 and 1999 under various sub-programmes in the single programming document.

Rented Housing

26. Mr. William O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new houses for rent at low cost were built in Northern Ireland in the years 1993–94 and 1994–95; and if he will make a statement. [19634]

Mr. Moss: The numbers of new public and voluntary sector houses which were completed in Northern Ireland during 1993–94 and 1994–95 were as follows:

| | Northern Ireland housing executive (Public sector) | Registered housing associations (Voluntary sector) | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1993–94 | 888 | 781 | 1,669 |
| 1994–95 | 878 | 1,026 | 1,904 |

Family Carers

27. Mr. Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his Department's policy towards family carers. [19635]

Mr. Moss: The policy for family carers is set out in "People First" which was published by the Department of Health and Social Services in 1990. It is that family carers should be encouraged and assisted to continue to provide care through the timely provision of support tailored to their needs.

Coronary Heart Disease

28. Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made towards the eradication of premature deaths caused by coronary heart disease in Northern Ireland; and what was the death rate for people aged under 65 years in (a) 1985 and (b) 1992. [19636]

Mr. Moss: There has been a marked reduction in premature deaths due to coronary heart disease in recent years. The rates are as follows:

| Year | Number (under age 65) | Crude death rate per 100,000 estimated population aged under 65 years |
|---|---|---|
| 1985 | 1,056 | 77 |
| 1992 | 770 | 55 |

Irish Government (Talks)

Mr. Alton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he last held discussions with his counterparts in the Irish Government on the peace process. [19614]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I discussed elements of the peace process with Mr. Bruton on 12 April.

Water Industry

Mr. Win Griffiths: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future of the water industry in Northern Ireland. [19621]

Mr. Moss: As my hon. Friend the Member for Beaconsfield (Mr. Smith) announced on 29 June 1994, Official Report, columns 550–51, the Government intend to establish the Department of the Environment's Water Executive as a next steps agency by April 1996.

Harbours

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the harbours at Church bay and Ballycastle. [19623]

Mr. Moss: On 1 March I announced funding of £4.5 million over three years for improvements to the harbours at Church Bay, Rathlin Island and Ballycastle. This will allow the introduction of a new roll-on roll-off ferry service and demonstrates the Government's commitment to the people of Rathlin.

Arms and Explosives

Mr. Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the current situation relating to the decommissioning of arms and explosives by all terrorist groups. [19624]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: I refer my hon. Friend to the oral answer that I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Bexleyheath (Mr. Townsend).

Fisheries

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what further swaps the Government are considering with Norway to benefit the Irish sea. [19925]

Mr. Ancram: None.

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures the Government are adopting to protect the United Kingdom's fishing fleet, following the disappearance of the Irish box from 1 January 1996. [19923]

Mr. Ancram: Under the new arrangements for western waters, our industry's ability to take their quotas is fully protected. We secured a key enforcement role for coastal states under the new arrangements agreed in December 1994. We will be taking full advantage of this key enforcement role to monitor fishing activity in our waters, including those by vessels from other member states, to ensure the new rules are properly policed. The Government have already announced that it will provide the necessary resources to do so.

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures the Government is proposing to compensate those areas of the United Kingdom that are discriminated against by the Hague preference. [19924]

Mr. Ancram: The Government have made a commitment to seek to reduce through quota swaps any disadvantage to Northern Ireland and Wales resulting from the application of the Hague preference in the Irish sea. In honouring this commitment, quota swaps have already been agreed this year with the Republic of Ireland and with the Netherlands for additional quotas of Irish sea cod and whiting which are affected by the Hague preference arrangements and which are two of the most important stocks to Northern Ireland fishermen.

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what indications Her Majesty's Government have received from the Republic of Ireland that it is willing to allocate some of the fish quotas that it does not catch to Northern Ireland fishermen. [19926]

Mr. Ancram: A quota swap has already been agreed with the Republic of Ireland for additional quotas of Irish sea cod and whiting which are important stocks for Northern Ireland fishermen.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much staff time, and at what estimated cost, was put into compiling the departmental annual report; and what were the figures for each year for which figures are available since 1990. [20183]

Sir John Wheeler: Within Northern Ireland Departments and the Northern Ireland Office, information on costs is not readily collectable, as much of the material obtained for the report is also required for other purposes, such as strategic planning. However, the estimated cost borne by the Department of Finance and Personnel, in editing and composing the 1995 Northern Ireland departmental report, from material submitted by other Northern Ireland Departments and the Northern Ireland Office was some £25,000. This covers some 13 man months of staff time by the editor and his team, along with some 3.5 weeks of staff time by typists in composing the report. Estimated editing and composing costs for previous years are broadly comparable in real terms.

EU Structural Funds

Rev. Ian Paisley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) management committee and (b) other bodies have been formed in drawing up a strategy to manage the structural funds allocated in Northern Ireland from the Economic Union; who are the members of the committee; who appointed them; and which members have sea fisheries experience. [19921]

Sir John Wheeler: A single programme monitoring committee has been established to oversee the implementation of the single programme under which around £956 million of European structural funds assistance will be available to Northern Ireland for the period 1994–99. Ten informal working committees have also been established to support and advise the SPMC in its role. In addition to Government and European Commission representation on the Committees, there are also a number of outside members who are drawn from relevant key sectors.

In accordance with the structural funds regulations, outside members have been appointed by the member state. This was done following consultation with Departments and on the basis of their background and wide experience. Mr. Ledwidge, a member of the Sea Fish Industry Authority, NI Seafood Ltd. and former chairman of the NI Fishery Harbour Authority has been appointed to the fisheries sub-programme working committee.

As required by the Structural Funds Regulations, a separate monitoring committee will be established for each of the nine community initiative programmes benefiting Northern Ireland. To date five of these programmes have been approved by the European Commission. A monitoring committee has been formally established for one of them, the employment community initiative programme, which was the first one agreed.

The monitoring arrangements for the special initiative for peace and reconciliation will be agreed with the European Commission as part of the negotiation of the programme.

A list of the outside membership for the committees which have been established to date is as follows:

Modern Apprenticeships

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on progress on modern apprenticeships in Northern Ireland. [20206]

Mr. Ancram: Consultation between the Training and Employment Agency, industry and relevant training organisations has shown widespread support for the introduction in Northern Ireland of arrangements similar to modern apprenticeships. Accordingly, the agency has been working with the industry representatives to agree Northern Ireland modern apprenticeship frameworks for introduction from September 1995, the same implementation date as for modern apprenticeships in Great Britain. It is planned to have agreed frameworks for 20 skill areas by that time, and subsequently to expand the approach progressively to other sectors. The Northern Ireland arrangements have been designed to meet Northern Ireland circumstances. Funding support for Northern Ireland modern apprenticeship training will be provided under the recently introduced jobskills programme.

Game Shooting

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what arrangements exist for game shooting at Seskinore forest, Omagh; what proposals he has for future arrangements for game shooting at this forest; if he will make a statement. [19905]

Mr. Ancram: Pheasant shooting will take place at Seskinore forest on 11 days during the 1995–96 season. Shooting will be let by tender. Following closure of the Department's game farm at Seskinore, which will take place during 1995, no further shooting will be available at Seskinore after 31 January 1996. Future management of the forest has yet to be finally decided and will be subject to the conclusions drawn from the prior options study of all Forest Service activities which is currently under way.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. MacDonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the number and location of Compensation Agency, Driver and Vehicle Licensing, Driver and Vehicle Testing Agency, Northern Ireland Child Support Agency, Ordnance Survey of Northern Ireland, Rate Collection Agency, Social Security Agency, Training and Employment Agency and Valuation and Lands Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [19967]

Sir John Wheeler: None.

National Insurance Numbers

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will give the Data Protection Registrar an undertaking that the national insurance number will not be used for purposes unconnected with the tax and benefits system; and if he will make a statement. [20039]

Mr. Moss: The Data Protection Registrar has been advised that it is departmental policy to restrict use of the national insurance number to national insurance, tax and social security benefit related purposes.

Departmental Annual Report

Mr. Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures the Department takes to assess the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the departmental annual report. [20184]

Sir John Wheeler: Where possible, the cost and staff implications of compiling material for the report are assessed on the basis of the previous year's experience. However, as much of the material collected is also required for other purposes, assessments of costs relating to the report alone is often not possible.

Hospital Waiting Lists

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many patients have been on hospital waiting lists in Northern Ireland for more than 12 months. [19963]

Mr. Moss: The table shows the number of patients waiting for admission to Northern Ireland health service hospitals for more than 12 months at the end of December 1994:

Number waiting for ordinary admission: 2,402
Number waiting for day case treatment: 925

Blood Transfusion Agency

Mr. John D. Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to his answer of 18 April 1995, Official Report, column 19, on what dates the contract for the Blood Transfusion Agency new building at the Belfast City hospital was signed; and how many weeks were allowed for the completion of the building in accordance with the terms of the original contract document. [20168]

Mr. Moss: The contract for the construction of the headquarters of the Northern Ireland Blood Transfusion Agency at the Belfast City hospital site was signed on 18 October 1994. Article 5, paragraph 5.1, page 8, of the contract states:

"The Employer and Contractor shall be deemed to have entered into this agreement on 7th March 1993".

The time allowed in the original contract document for the completion of the works was 91.5 weeks.

Race Relations Legislation

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he proposes to introduce race relations legislation to Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [20320]

Sir Patrick Mayhew: Following an earlier process of public consultation, I have concluded that legislation on the general lines of the Race Relations Act 1976 should be introduced in Northern Ireland. It is my intention to bring this legislation forward by means of an Order in Council as soon as possible.

Skilled Workers

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his Department's latest estimate of the need for and availability of skilled workers in Northern Ireland. [19961]

Mr. Ancram: The demand for skilled labour in Northern Ireland is increasing and in general there is a sufficient supply of suitable workers. However, the situation differs in different sectors and localities. Demand is particularly noticeable, for example, in the tourism sector. Action is being taken through the Training and Employment Agency, working with sector representative bodies, to identify needs and to ensure that they can be met.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he has plans to publish details of the targets of the Child Support Agency; and if he will make a statement. [21803]

Mr. Moss: The Child Support Agency will publish its 1995–96 business plan today. Copies will be placed in the Library.

The targets that I have set for the Child Support Agency for 1995–96 are as follows:

—£6.15 million of maintenance to be collected, or arranged for direct payment from absent parents to parents with care in 1995–96.

—90 per cent. of payments made to parents with care to be made in 10 working days of receipt from an absent parent.

—To achieve a steady improvement in accuracy, so that in at least 75 per cent. of cases checked during March 1996 the cash value will be for the correct amount.

—Where a client is dissatisfied with a Child Support Officer's decision and requests a review, 50 per cent. to be cleared within 13 weeks; 80 per cent. to be cleared within 26 weeks; and no more than 15 per cent. to be older than six months as at 31 March 1996.

—60 per cent. of new maintenance applications to be cleared within 26 weeks and as at 31 March 1996 no maintenance applications received by the agency to be over 12 months old.

—To manage the agency's resources so as to deliver its business plan within the gross budget allocation.

As a new and evolving agency the 1994–95 targets did not cover the whole range of the agency's business and in the light of experience did not prove to be appropriate drivers of the business. The new targets take account of this and cover a wider range of activities. They will require the agency to improve performance in a number of areas. In particular, this year's targets include measures of accuracy and of the time taken to provide services. This underlines the agency's focus on quality and client service in 1995–96.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Nuclear Arms Control

Mr. Llew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent responses have been made by those nations opposing indefinite unconditional extension of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty to the proposals he set out on behalf of Her Majesty's Government at the non-proliferation treaty conference in New York on 18 April. [20808]

Mr. David Davis: The steps that we have taken to address the concerns of the non-aligned movement have helped to develop growing support for the indefinite extension of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. There have been statements of support for the treaty's indefinite extension by South Africa, Singapore, the Philippines, Bolivia, Uzbekistan and many others.

Mr. Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what are the implications of his announcement that the United Kingdom is to cease production of fissile materials for explosive purposes at the Chapelcross and Calder Hall reactors; and if he will make a statement. [21014]

Mr. David Davis [holding answer 26 April 1995]: The conference on disarmament in Geneva has agreed the mandate for the ad hoc committee which will negotiate a treaty banning the production of fissile material for explosive purposes. In order to show our commitment to that process my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs announced that the UK has ceased production of fissile material. We anticipate that negotiations will begin in June.

Hong Kong

Mr. Parry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what decision has been reached by Her Majesty's Government with respect to whether Hong Kong citizens holding a Hong Kong special administrative region passport after 1997 will need a visa to visit the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [21146]

Mr. Goodlad: We have not yet taken any decision on visa requirements for Hong Kong special administrative region passport holders wishing to visit the United Kingdom after 1 July 1997. In taking such a decision, we will consider a number of factors, including eligibility for the passport and arrangements for its issue and security. We continue through the Joint Liaison Group to press the Chinese for early progress on these questions, but until details have been finalised and we have evidence that satisfactory procedures are in place we shall not be able to take a decision on visa requirements for HKSAR passport holders.

Kashmir

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what criteria Her Majesty's Government will apply to elections in Kashmir in respect of their being free and fair; and if he will make a statement. [21153]

Mr. Baldry: We shall be considering with our European partners how best to assess the forthcoming elections in Kashmir.

Mr. Madden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what is the policy of Her Majesty's Government in relation to United Nations resolutions concerning Kashmir; and if he will make a statement. [21154]

Mr. Baldry: Britain supported, and both India and Pakistan agreed, the United Nations resolutions of 1948 and 1949 which provided the basis for a possible solution to the Kashmir dispute, but neither side fully implemented those resolutions, which have to some extent been overtaken by events. The 1972 Simla agreement represents the most recent formal agreement between India and Pakistan on the handling of the dispute. It envisages settlement through bilateral negotiations or other peaceful means mutually agreed between them. We believe this to be the best way forward.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those bodies with a statutory base. [21162]

Mr. Goodlad: There is no statutory requirement for the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by the FCO, including the Overseas Development Administration, to (a) publish their advice to the Government, (b) publish an annual report or (c) lay an annual report before Parliament.

The following bodies have a statutory base:

The Indian Family Pension Funds Body of Commissioners

The Overseas Service Pensions Scheme Advisory Board.

US (Visas)

Mr. Wareing: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reasons have been given by the United States Government for not applying reciprocity in respect of visa requirements on British citizens travelling to the United States of America; what recent discussions there have been with the US authorities on this matter; and if he will make a statement. [21241]

Mr. Baldry: There has for some years been reciprocity for visitors, in that neither country requires visas of the other's citizens who wish to make short-term visits. Similarly, both countries require visas of people wishing to work or settle in the other.

Lockerbie

Ms Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, what steps he has taken to negotiate with the Libyan Government in respect of the Lockerbie disaster. [21059]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We have had a number of meetings with Libyan officials. The Libyan Government are fully aware of the requirements which have been placed on Libya by the United Nations Security Council.

LORD CHANCELLOR'S DEPARTMENT

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Parliamentary Secretary, Lord Chancellor's Department which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament, and if he will list those with a statutory base. [21595]

Mr. John M. Taylor: The Lord Chancellor's Department and the Northern Ireland Court Service sponsor the following advisory non-departmental public bodies:

- Insolvency Rule Committee
- County Court Rule Committee
- Supreme Court Rule Committee
- Land Registration Rule Committee
- Family Proceedings Rule Committee
- Crown Court Rule Committee
- Advisory Council on Public Records
- Advisory Committee on Legal Education and Conduct Council on Tribunals
- Law Commission
- Northern Ireland Court Service:
  - Legal Aid Advisory Committee (NI)
  - Advisory Committees on General Commissioners of Income Tax (NI)
  - Advisory Committees on JPs in Northern Ireland
  - Advisory Committees on Juvenile Court Lay Panel
- Advisory Committees on General Commissioners of Income Tax
- Advisory Committees on JPs in England (excluding the Duchy of Lancaster) and Wales
- Judicial Studies Board

All but the last six have a statutory basis.

None is under a statutory requirement to publish its advice to Government.

The Advisory Committee on Legal Education and Conduct, the Law Commission and the Council on Tribunals are all required by statute to make annual reports to the Lord Chancellor. While there is no statutory requirement on the Advisory Council on Public Records to submit an annual report, there is a requirement that any report by it to the Lord Chancellor should be included in the Public Record Office's own annual report, for which there is a statutory requirement. All these annual reports are laid before Parliament by the Lord Chancellor.

The Legal Aid Advisory Committee (Northern Ireland) is required to consider the Law Society's annual report on legal aid in Northern Ireland and the Lord Chancellor is required to lay before Parliament a copy of any comments or recommendations made by the committee.

ENVIRONMENT

Public Inquiries

Mr. Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment (1) what was the number of public inquiries which were held in each year since 1985; [20998]

(2) what was the average length of time it takes to obtain dates for public inquiries into planning refusals; [20999]

(3) if he will list by local authority the number of (a) planning application refusals, (b) appeals, (c) public inquiries, (d) the estimated time to obtain a date and (e) the estimated costs for (i) 1992, (ii) 1993 and (iii) 1994. [21000]

Sir Paul Beresford: I have delegated responsibility for the provision of information on planning appeals to the Planning Inspectorate agency. I have therefore asked Mr. Chris Shepley, the agency's chief executive, to reply.

Letter from Chris Shepley to Mr. Keith Vaz, dated 25 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to provide replies to your Parliamentary Questions about:

the number of public inquiries held each year since 1985 (PQ/20998)

the average length of time it takes to obtain dates for public inquiries into planning refusals (PQ 20999); for each local authority, the number of (a) planning application refusals, (b) appeals, (c) public inquiries, (d) the estimated time to obtain a date and (e) the estimated costs for (i) 1992, (ii) 1993 and (iii) 1994 (PQ 21000).

As these are all matters that have been delegated to the Executive Agency.

20998

The number of appeals against a refusal of planning permission determined following a public inquiry in each financial year since 1985/86 is shown in the table below. The information is taken from the Chief Planning Inspector's Annual Report.

| Year | Appeals determined |
|---|---|
| 1985–86 | 1,663 |
| 1986–87 | 2,098 |
| 1987–88 | 1,960 |
| 1988–89 | 2,204 |
| 1989–90 | 2,347 |
| 1990–91 | 1,960 |
| 1991–92 | 1,808 |
| 1992–93 | 1,505 |
| 1993–94 | 1,176 |
| 1994–95 | 1,108 |

(20999)

Our most recent check showed that over 95% of inquiry dates for planning appeals were finalised within the one month negotiation period recommended by the inquiries procedure rules.

(21000)

The information you seek in respect of each planning authority on (a) Planning Application Refusals, (b) appeals and (c) inquiries is not immediately available and will take a few days to compile and check. I will write to you again when the work is complete.

I cannot, however, provide the information you seek in parts (d) or (e) of your question. The Agency does not keep records at a level of detail that would enable us to estimate for each planning authority either the time taken to obtain inquiry dates or the costs of inquiries.

Rural Areas

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the role of a parish council in the (a) preparation and (b) implementation of a village design statement. [20737]

Sir Paul Beresford: Parish councils may have an enabling or co-ordinating role during the preparation of village design statements. They may also make representations on development plans and development control matters.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action he will take if design constraints in a rural community inhibit (a) local affordable housing, (b) job creation and (c) creative use of areas of local land; and if he will make a statement. [20735]

Sir Paul Beresford: Design issues—such as considering a building's context, its relationship to its setting, and its relationship to its proposed function—may be material consideration in determining a planning application or appeal. They will need to be assessed with other planning considerations in taking decisions.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what action he is taking to protect free-standing buildings in (a) villages, (b) whole parishes and (c) hamlets and less defined settlements; and if he will make a statement. [20736]

Sir Paul Beresford: National policy on the re-use of rural buildings is set out in planning policy guidance note 7, "The Countryside and the Rural Economy." There should generally be no reason for preventing the re-use of rural buildings, provided their form, bulk and general design are in keeping with their surroundings.

DOE circular 26/92 advises on planning controls over demolition.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what guidance is given to local authorities in determining the relative priority which is accorded to (a) a village design statement and (b) other building development; and what guidelines apply in respect of the use of concrete blocks as building materials in villages. [20738]

Sir Paul Beresford: Village design statements are being promoted by the Countryside Commission. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State supports this initiative, which enables local people to express views on how future development can make a positive contribution to a specific area. The Countryside Commission plans to publish advice on the preparation of village design statements later this year.

Village design statements may be a material consideration in determining a planning application or appeal, and it is for local planning authorities to consider whether to adopt them as supplementary guidance to the development plan.

The development plan system provides the framework for planning for new development and for delivering a quality built environment. Planning policy guidance note 1 advises planning authorities to reject obviously poor designs which are out of scale or character with their surroundings.

Premises in Multiple Occupation

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what assessment he has made of the effect of the image presented by former seaside guest houses and hotels now operated as unlicensed houses in multiple occupation in seaside towns on the prospects for trade in those towns. [20784]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: Representations received by the Department of National Heritage from tourism operators and trade organisations strongly suggest that the growth in numbers of houses in multiple occupation in traditional tourism areas, particularly in some seaside resorts, is having an unfavourable effect on the tourist trade. My Department conducted a consultation exercise between November 1994 and February 1995 on the principle of a licensing scheme for houses in multiple occupation and received similar representations. The Government hope to announce shortly the conclusions of this review.

City Challenge, North Tyneside

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what guidance is given by his Department to North Tyneside city challenge project relating to the placing of contracts for security work; what contracts have been issued by North Tyneside city council for security work; if he will name the city challenge board members and officials who are responsible for such contracts; and how they are appointed. [21224]

Sir Paul Beresford: The Department of the Environment has not given any specific guidance to North Tyneside city challenge, or any other city challenge partnership, about the placing of contracts for security work. North Tyneside city challenge has not let any such contract. The North Tyneside city challenge partnership undertakes no direct tendering or contracting relating to city challenge projects; this is the responsibility of project sponsors, who are required to achieve value for money. Where projects are assisted by city challenge funding, it is the responsibility of the contractor to assess the degree of risk and make the appropriate contractual arrangements for security.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment if he will give the number and location of Building Research Establishment, Ordnance Survey, Planning Inspectorate, Security Facilities Executive and Buying Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and what is the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as the result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [21547]

Sir Paul Beresford: I refer the hon. Member to my answer to him on 25 April, Official Report, column 471.

Household Expenditure

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what is the average weekly household expenditure on housing for (a) those in rented accommodation and (b) owner-occupiers in the United Kingdom; what were the corresponding figures in (i) 1987 and (ii) 1992; and if he will make a statement. [20899]

Mr. Curry: Estimates of average weekly household expenditure on housing for those in rented accommodation and for owner-occupiers in the United Kingdom are as follows:

Gross and net average weekly housing costs

£ per week

| | Gross | | Net | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Renters | Owner occupiers | Renters | Owner occupiers |
| 1987 | 26.80 | n/a | 17.20 | 35.80 |
| 1992 | 45.40 | n/a | 28.00 | 57.40 |
| 1993 | 49.70 | n/a | 29.40 | 52.50 |

Housing costs include rates, community charge or council tax as appropriate. The estimates of net costs allow for housing benefit, rent rebates and allowances, and rates/community charge/council tax rebates.

Figures for gross average weekly housing costs for owner occupiers are not readily available.

These figures are drawn from the family expenditure survey and are subject to sampling error.

Pigeons

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what additional financial support he will provide to local authorities which have severe problems with pigeons, with special reference to Bradford. [21551]

Mr. Curry: Support for local authorities' revenue expenditure, provided through revenue support grant, is made in respect of all local authority powers and duties. Individual authorities make expenditure decisions on the basis of local needs and priorities. We have received no representations about problems with pigeons.

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment what measures he proposes to take to control the pigeon population. [21554]

Sir Paul Beresford: Under the provisions of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, my Department and the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food issue annual general licences permitting authorised persons to kill or take 13 species of pest bird, including feral pigeons for specified reasons. Under part VI of the Public Health Act 1961, local authorities have a specific power to abate or mitigate any nuisance, annoyance or damage caused by the congregation of pigeons in any built-up area.

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Environment how many accidents due to pigeon droppings were reported in (a) Bradford and (b) West Yorkshire in the last year for which information is available. [21556]

Sir Paul Beresford: My Department does not collect this information.

EDUCATION

Philosophy Courses

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State of Education how many people graduated from English higher education institutions with honours either in philosophy or in a joint honours or composite degree involving philosophy in 1994; what proportion of the total number graduating from English higher education this represents; and if she will make a statement. [20903]

Mr. Boswell: Some 500 students graduated from first degree courses wholly or mainly in philosophy from English higher education institutions in academic year 1992–93, which represents one third of 1 per cent. of all graduates from these institutions. It is not possible to give data from courses where philosophy is combined with other subjects. Statistics on the numbers graduating where philosophy has been a minor element of the course are not readily available.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many higher education institutions in England currently offer single honours or joint honours degrees in philosophy; what percentage of the total number of higher education institutions in England this represents; and if she will make a statement. [20911]

Mr. Boswell: From the 110 higher education institutions in England which are members of the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service, 45 offered philosophy as an element of a first degree course in the UCAS "Handbook for 1995 Entry". This represents 41 per cent. of all English higher education institutions offering courses through UCAS.

HOUSE OF COMMONS

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Lord President of the Council, pursuant to his answer of 24 April, column 339, if he will now reply forthwith to the letter sent to him on 25 April by the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton.

Mr. Newton: I will write to the right hon. Member shortly.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Children (Benefit)

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what proportions of all children are in households claiming (a) income support, (b) family credit and (c) housing benefit; and what proportion of (i) single parents and (ii) unemployed drawing income support or housing benefit have mortgages. [20391]

Mr. Roger Evans: The available information is set out in the tables. Figures are not available for housing benefit recipients with mortgages. Housing benefit is not payable for mortgage interest. Although there are a small number of cases where both housing benefit and mortgage interest are in payment, it is not possible to identify these cases separately.

Children in households receiving benefit[1]

| Benefit | Number (000) | As a percentage of all children in Great Britain |
|---|---|---|
| Income Support | 2,980 | 25.8 |

State Pensions

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what challenges in court have been made to his policy on the date for commencement of payment of retirement pensions; and what discussions there have been of this policy at international bodies of which the Government are a member. [20816]

Mr. Arbuthnot: None.

Mrs. Fyfe: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what plans he has to pay retirement pensions so as to include the amount which is currently not paid for the intervening days from a person's date of retirement or relevant birthday to the Monday following. [20817]

Mr. Arbuthnot: None.

Vaccine Damage

Mr. Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what records are kept by the vaccine damage payment unit of claims for compensation; and whether such records are available for all claims made since 1979. [21323]

Mr. Hague: The administration of the vaccine damage payment scheme is a matter for Mr. Ian Magee, the acting chief executive of the Benefits Agency. He will write to the hon. Member with such information as is available.

Letter from Ian Magee to Mr. Richard Burden, dated 27 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Social Security has asked me to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the records kept of claims to the Vaccine Damage Scheme.

Information is available from the inception of the scheme about the total number of claims received and awards made. Statistics are also available from 1981 in respect of the reasons for disallowance within certain categories.

I hope you find this reply helpful.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security (1) what is his estimate of the number of current invalidity benefit recipients in Wales who will not qualify for incapacity benefit; and if he will make a statement; [20905]

(2) what is his estimate of the fiscal impact of implementing the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 on social security expenditure incurred in Wales; and if he will make a statement. [20906]

Mr. Hague: There are insufficient data on which to base a reliable breakdown of the national estimates provided for the effect of the new medical test, or to assess, on a regional basis, the public expenditure consequences of the Incapacity For Work Act 1994.

Welfare Provision

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Social Security what studies he has instigated to determine the effect of the single market on welfare provision in the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [20907]

Mr. Hague: No such studies have been instigated by the Department.

EMPLOYMENT

Fair Play for Women

Ms Angela Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, if he will make a statement on the fair play for women initiative. [21284]

Miss Widdecombe: Fair play for women is a joint initiative between the Department and the Equal Opportunities Commission launched in April 1994. Ten independent consortia have been set up all over England to plan how woman can realise their full capabilities and to take suitable action within their regions. The Government and the EOC are encouraged by the wide range of organisations and individuals supporting fair play, and will be monitoring consortia activity.

Workstart

Sir Ralph Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment which Ministers have visited workstart schemes; which schemes were visited; and when they were each visited. [21127]

Miss Widdecombe: Workstart pays a subsidy to employers who recruit very long-term unemployed people. On 5 November 1993, the then Secretary of State for Employment visited Bishop's Move Distribution Service of Broadstairs, Kent, an employer who received a Workstart subsidy under the original pilots, which ended December 1994. Further pilots commenced this month.

Grays Benefit Office

Mr. Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 57, under which sections of the Control of Pesticides Regulations 1986 Stapro insecticide was used at Grays benefit office on 5 October 1991. [21141]

Miss Widdecombe: Responsibility for the subject of the question has been delegated to the Employment Service Agency under its chief executive. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from M. E. G. Fogden to Mr. Andrew Mackinlay, dated 28 April 1995:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about under which sections of the Control of Pesticides Regulations 1986, Stapro Insecticide was used at Grays Unemployment Benefit Office on 5 October 1991.

You will wish to note that, according to our records, spraying actually took place on 8 October 1991.

My colleagues at the Health and Safety Executive advise me that Regulations 4(5) of the Control of Pesticides Regulations 1986 allows use of a pesticide that has been approved by Ministers under regulation 5, provided that

(a) the conditions of approval are complied with, and

(b) the requirements of the consent of use (Schedule 3 as amended) are followed.

The Regulations do not tie the use of pesticides to specific premises, but the conditions of approval specify, for example, who can use the product, the application method and the necessary precautions.

Severe Disablement Allowance

Ms Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Employment how many hours of study people in receipt of severe disablement allowance will be able to undertake without jeopardising their benefit entitlement when the jobseeker's allowance is introduced; and if he will make a statement. [19753]

Mr Hague: I have been asked to reply.

On its introduction in April 1996, jobseeker's allowance will allow unemployed people to undertake part-time further education courses of up to 16 "guided learning hours" a week. Severe disablement allowance is paid to people who are incapable of work through sickness and therefore cannot be claimed at the same time as JSA. SDA rules on hours of attendance on educational courses apply only to those recipients aged between 16 and 19 and the current limit on part time education is 21 hours a week. We are considering whether we need to change these rules.

PRIME MINISTER

Nurses' Pay

Mr. Mark Robinson: To ask the Prime Minister if he will make a statement about nurses' pay. [22336]

The Prime Minister: The report for 1995–96 of the Independent Review Body for Nursing Staff, Midwives, Health Visitors and Professions Allied to Medicine was published on 9 February 1995. The review body recommended a 1 per cent. national increase in pay, with additional increases to be negotiated locally. The Government accepted the review body's recommendations in full.

I am advised that offers have been made by 175 NHS trusts. Since the vast majority meet the nurses demand for a rise of 3 per cent., I assume that the offers are acceptable to them. It was that to which I was referring in the House yesterday.

HEALTH

NHS Trusts

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if NHS trusts are permitted to appoint honorary non-executive directors in addition to the five paid non-executive directors. [20684]

Mr. Malone: There is no provision in either the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 or in the National Health Service Trusts (Membership and Procedure) Regulations 1990 for the appointment of honorary non-executive directors for NHS trusts.

Psychiatric Services

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychiatric beds were available in each health authority in 1979; and how many are currently available. [20686]

Mr. Bowis: Figures for 1979 are published in "SH3 National and Regional Summaries (DHSS Hospital Statistics) 1979" and for 1993–94, the latest year available, in "Bed availability for England, financial year 1993–94". Copies are available in the Library. Because of changes in the classifications of beds and health authority boundaries over the period, figures are not strictly comparable.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much of each £1 spent on the psychiatric services is spent on (a) hospital beds and (b) community health services; and if she will make a statement. [20825]

Mr. Bowis: Information in the form requested is not available.

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what current plans her Department has to fund Mindline; and if she will enter into discussions with MIND to do so. [20687]

Mr. Bowis: No such application for funding has been received.

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mental health beds per 1,000 population were available in London, Newcastle, Birmingham, Manchester and Liverpool in each year since 1991. [21914]

Mr. Bowis: Hospitals in the cities listed do not provide services exclusively for the populations of those cities. The information is not, therefore, available in the form requested.

St. Bartholomew's Hospital Site

Mr. Spearing: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 19, on the future use of the site of St. Bartholomew's hospital, if future health-related services could include a privately funded casualty, emergency or acute hospital which could incorporate some of the existing facilities. [21063]

Mr. Malone: A project team, led by Sir Ronald Grierson, will look at the practical options for future use of the St. Bartholomew's hospital site, taking into account its historic health care connections. The team will work with the Royal Hospitals trust and other interested parties.

Correspondence

Mrs. Bridget Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to reply to the letter of 17 March sent to her by Roger and Michelle Gould regarding the medical condition and treatment of their son, Jo. [21676]

Mr. Bowis: No such letter has been received in the Department. If the hon. Lady will arrange for a copy to be sent to me I will ensure that it receives urgent attention.

Market Testing

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the number of staff employed and the establishment and running costs of the NHS Executive (a) information desk and (b) database relating to NHS market testing guidance. [21756]

Mr. Malone: The market testing information desk and data base is staffed and run by one half whole-time equivalent national health service executive executive officer at an approximate cost of £12,500 per year.

Emergency Vehicles

Ms Jowell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many emergency vehicles run by (a) the London ambulance service, (b) the Northumbria ambulance service, (c) the West Midlands ambulance service and (d) the Greater Manchester ambulance service are more than three years old; and what proportion of the fleet this represents in each case. [21926]

Mr. Bowis: This information is not available centrally.

NHS Pensions Agency Targets

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will publish the key targets for 1995–96 for the NHS Pensions Agency. [22133]

Mr. Sackville: I have agreed the agency's key targets for 1995–96. These are:

Clearance

To clear 95 per cent. of the projected 28,200 pension awards within four weeks of the application being accepted by the Agency and 99 per cent. within eight weeks.

To send a substantive reply to all correspondence within four weeks of receipt.

Efficiency

To achieve a 7 per cent. increase in efficiency over three years, based upon the agency's cost-weighted activity index.

Financial

To deliver the business programme within the agreed allocations.

Improvement

To reorganise the agency into multi-functional client-centred teams by 30 November 1995.

To implement a new pensions processing system by 31 March 1996.

Medicines Control Agency Targets

Mr. Robert G. Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the key business targets for the Medicines Control Agency for 1995–96. [22134]

Mr. Sackville: I have today placed in the Library a copy of the Medicines Control Agency's business plan for 1995–96.

Selected List Scheme

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultations her Department has had with the Department of Trade and Industry over the implications to United Kingdom investment of the selected list scheme. [20629]

Mr. Malone: There are regular discussions between Government Departments, including the Department of Trade and Industry, and representatives of the pharmaceutical industry about matters of mutual concern.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what change there has been in the level of industry investment into the seven therapeutic areas listed on the 1984 selected list scheme since the announcement of the categories. [20630]

Mr. Malone: This information is not available centrally.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what medical basis there is for retaining the category of contraception within the remit of the Advisory Committee on NHS Drugs. [20638]

Mr. Malone: The basis for asking the Advisory Committee on NHS Drugs to continue to review the therapeutic categories covered by the selected list scheme remains that there should be drugs to meet all real clinical need on NHS prescription as economically as possible.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, on what basis, and by whom, the category of contraception was chosen as one of the selected list of scheme categories. [20639]

Mr. Malone: Ministers decided which categories of drugs should be covered by the selected list scheme on the basis that they included a range of products at varying price levels which offered scope for savings while enabling all real clinical need to be met.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the hormonal contraceptives to be blacklisted under the current selected list scheme. [20640]

Mr. Malone: There are no plans to remove any hormonal contraceptive products from general practitioner prescription under the selected list scheme.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans her Department has to remove the category of contraception from the selected list scheme. [20641]

Mr. Malone: None.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans there are to extend the number of categories under the remit of the selected list scheme. [20642]

Mr. Malone: None.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what basis the Advisory Committee on NHS Drugs makes the decision that an oral contraceptive (a) offers a therapeutic benefit and (b) meets a clinical need; [20643]

(2) how the Advisory Committee on NHS Drugs makes the decision that the range of oral contraceptives available on the NHS is sufficient to take into account the individual needs of women. [20644]

Mr. Malone: The Advisory Committee on NHS Drugs is composed of a number of independent medical and pharmaceutical experts. It makes its recommendations on the basis of the clinical and scientific knowledge and experience of these members and after examining the relevant published information and any evidence submitted by the manufacturers of the drugs under review.

Birth Control

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what her Department's plans are for research into contraception and contraceptive methods. [20631]

Mr. Bowis: None. Research in this field is a matter for the Medical Research Council, which is the responsibility of my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what initiatives, other than educational, her Department has undertaken within the last 12 months in order to meet "The Health of the Nation" target for teenage conceptions. [20632]

Mr. Bowis: Priorities set by the national health service chief executive for 1994–95 required authorities to ensure the provision, within available resources, of the full range of NHS family planning services which are appropriate, accessible and comprehensive and that emergency contraception and services for teenagers, including counselling, are publicised and readily available. This requirement was reaffirmed in the priorities set for 1995–96.

Over £136 million per year has been spent on NHS family planning services in England. In addition, in 1994–95, more than £340,000 was allocated to key voluntary bodies working towards "The Health of the Nation target on teenage conceptions".

In March 1995 the Department sponsored a Family Planning Association radio and magazine advertising campaign in London and Manchester to launch the Sexwise phoneline—a free, confidential service offering teenagers the opportunity to receive advice from a trained counsellor. There have been more than 45,000 calls to the line during its first six weeks of operation.

The Family Planning Association and the Health Education Authority, in collaboration with Brook Advisory Centres and the Birth Control Trust, have also recently launched a national radio and magazine advertising campaign to raise awareness of emergency contraception. This campaign is supported by a telephone helpline.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in the United Kingdom use hormonal contraception. [20633]

Mr. Bowis: According to the Office of Population Censuses and Surveys 1993 general household survey, 25 per cent. of women in Great Britain aged 16 to 49 use oral contraceptives.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the average cost to the NHS of one year's course of hormonal contraception. [20634]

Mr. Bowis: Assuming that recommended doses were followed in all cases, the average net ingredient cost of one year's supply of hormonal contraceptives, including implants and injections, dispensed in the family health services authorities in England in 1994 was £18.39 per woman.

This figure excludes dispensing costs or fees. Preparations for short-term and emergency hormonal contraception have also been excluded from the calculation.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what figures her Department has as to the cost to the NHS of (a) terminations and (b) maternities and births, resulting from (i) all pregnancies and (ii) unplanned pregnancies. [20635]

Mr. Bowis: The costs to the national health service of terminations and of maternities and births resulting from planned or unplanned pregnancies are not separately identifiable.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what data her Department has on the increased likelihood of pregnancy when a woman changes the type of contraceptive pill she uses for family planning. [20636]

Mr. Bowis: None. The "Handbook on Contraceptive Practice", published by the Health Departments in England, Scotland and Wales and issued to doctors and nurses working in the family planning field, provides advice on avoiding the risk of pregnancy when patients need to change their pill formulation.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimates her Department makes as to what proportion of pregnancies are (a) unplanned and (b) unwanted. [20637]

Mr. Bowis: The chief medical officer's report for 1990 estimated that almost half of all conceptions to women in England were in some sense unwanted or unintended.

Mrs. Beckett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether hormonal contraceptives are distinguished by her Department from other pharmaceutical products in any way. [20645]

Mr. Malone: Hormonal contraceptives are treated in the same way as other pharmaceutical products under the Medicines Act and the relevant European legislation. Unlike other products, people receiving hormonal contraceptives on NHS prescription do not pay a prescription charge in any circumstances.

Mrs. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many calls seeking post-coital contraception have to date been received by the helpline funded by the Health Education Authority and the Family Planning Association; and what specific advice is given to callers; [21733]

(2) what public funds have been used by the Health Education Authority and the Family Planning Association to finance their national advertising campaign and telephone advice service promoting the uptake of the morning-after pill; what was the total cost of those campaigns; and by whom were they approved. [21732]

Mr. Malone: The campaign budget for 1994–95 was £300,000. It is funded by the Health Education Authority through the Family Planning Association. All expenditure has been approved in the normal way. The helpline has received 30,000 calls to date relating to all aspects of use of emergency contraception.

Smoking

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what is the percentage of people over 16 years old who smoke; what are the corresponding estimates for (a) 1965, (b) 1970 and (c) 1980; and if she will make a statement. [20908]

Mr. Bowis: The available data are shown in the table. Differences in the questions in the two surveys means that the data from the two sources are not directly comparable.

Percentage of adults aged 16 and over who smoke cigarettes

Great Britain

percentage

| Year | Men | Women |
|---|---|---|
| 1965[1] | 54 | 42 |
| 1971[1,2] | 51 | 42 |
| 1980[3] | 43 | 37 |
| 1992[3,4] | 29 | 28 |

Notes:
[1] Source: Tobacco Advisory Council. Percentage of those smoking manufactured cigarettes, excludes those smoking hand-rolled cigarettes only.
[2] No survey data are available for 1970
[3] Source: OPCS General Household Survey.
[4] The 1992 survey figures are the latest available.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many were treated for lung cancer in the NHS in (a) 1993 and (b) 1994; what percentage of these were smokers; and if she will make a statement; [20909]

(2) what was the cost of treating people suffering from lung cancer on the NHS in (a) 1993–94 and (b) 1994–95; and if she will make a statement. [20910]

Mr. Bowis: The number of episodes of hospital care in the national health service in England with a main diagnosis of lung cancer is shown in the table:

Finished consultant episodes, ordinary admissions and day cases Malignant neoplasm—bronchus or lung (Diagnostic Codes ICD9 162.2—162.9)

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 1992–93 | 57,261 |
| 1993–94 (provisional) | 56,317 |

Source:
Hospital Episode Statistics, 25 per cent. sample.

Information on the smoking habits of patients is not available centrally, but it is estimated that four out of five cases of lung cancer are attributable to smoking. Information on the costs of treating patients with a diagnosis of lung cancer on the NHS is not available centrally.

BST in Milk (Cancer Risk)

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what investigations she has conducted into evidence from research at Musgrove Park hospital, Taunton, that consumption of milk from cows treated with bovine somatotropin may increase the risk of tumours developing in humans. [21073]

Mr. Bowis: This research shows that increased cell division can occur in isolated intestinal tissue directly treated with the growth factor IGF-1. This result is not unexpected. Treatment of cows with BST can cause slight rises in the concentrations of BST and IGF-1 in milk, but the rises are very small compared with the natural variations in levels. There is no convincing evidence to suggest that IGF-1 can cause cancer. The ability of IGF-1 to cause cell division was one of the considerations taken into account by United Kingdom and European Union expert committees in their thorough assessment of the safety of milk from BST-treated cows. They concluded that the levels of IGF-1 and of BST in such milk will have no adverse effect on the health of consumers.

Electronic Tagging

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, what is her policy with regard to the use of electronic tagging for hospital patients. [21425]

Mr. Malone: Selection of electronic tagging or other security equipment for national health service units is a matter for local managers to determine in the light of local needs, priorities and resources. Tagging is used to increase the safety of patients, but is in itself unlikely to offer a complete solution to security or safety needs. It should be used as part of a wider local strategy which places an emphasis on staff and patient awareness.

Mr. Hinchliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she has issued regarding the electronic tagging of hospital patients. [21426]

Mr. Malone: No specific guidance has yet been issued on the use of electronic tagging. Guidance will be contained in a supplement to the national health service security manual and a report on a recent survey of security in maternity units, both of which will be published in July.

Mr. Hinchcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will identify which (a) NHS hospitals, (b) private or voluntary hospitals or (c) care or nursing homes currently use electronic tagging; and if she will specify the category of patient involved. [21427]

Mr. Malone: Decisions on security measures in individual units are the responsibility of local management in consultation, where necessary and appropriate, with clinicians, patients and their relatives.

Parental Responsibility Agreements

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has for making available joint parental responsibility agreements in registry offices for parents when registering the birth of their child. [21600]

Mr. Bowis: The Government are considering whether a supply of forms for the making of parental responsibility agreements can and should be made available in registry offices.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Post Office

Dr. John Cunningham: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the Crown post offices converted to agency status in England and Wales, giving the parliamentary constituency in which they lie. [19484]

Mr. Heseltine: A list, obtained from the Post Office, showing the Crown post offices in England and Wales which have been converted to agency status, together with the parliamentary constituencies within which they are located, is being placed in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Roche: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will list the agency post offices which were once Crown post offices, listing for each (a) how many staff were employed in them prior to agency status, and how many now, (b) the level of training before and after agency status, (c) what changes have occurred in respect of the business in which the Post Office is sited and (d) the occasions on which the Post Office has at any time had to move to other premises and the factors leading to the move. [20892]

Mr. Page [holding answer 27 April 1995]: A list of Crown post offices which have been converted to agency status in England and Wales will be placed in the Library of the House in answer to a question from the right hon. Member for Copeland (Dr. Cunningham) today. As more than 700 Crown post offices have been converted to agency status, the specific information requested about each individual office could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hain: To ask the President of the Board of Trade what are the terms of reference of the efficiency audit of the Post Office. [21183]

Mr. Heseltine: A copy of the terms of reference of the Post Office performance review has been placed in the Library of the House.

Mr. Hain: To ask the President of the Board of Trade if he will make a statement on the tendering and cost of the efficiency audit of the Post Office. [21182]

Mr. Heseltine: My Department has recently invited tenders for the Post Office Performance Review from five shortlisted consultants. I expect to make an appointment in May.

Arms Exports

Mr. Wilson: To ask the President of the Board of Trade when his Department was first informed of allegations that Singapore was a conduit for arms exported by the company BMARC to Iran; [19078]

(2) if he will list those contracts involving the firm BMARC, which were notified to his Department as being potentially in breach of Her Majesty's Government's arms export controls; and on what dates this information was received in each case; [19079]

(3) what assessment he has made of the number of occasions on which breaches of the rules applying to notification took place in respect of BMARC between 1988 and 1991. [19165]

Mr. Ian Taylor: The information required to answer these questions is not held centrally. I will write to the hon. Member in due course and will place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

War Crimes

Mr. Cyril D. Townsend: To ask the Attorney-General how many second world war war crimes are still under investigation; for how long each of the cases has been under investigation; and when a decision on each case as to possible prosecution is due to be taken.

The Attorney-General: There are 20 second world war war crimes currently under investigation by the Metropolitan police. Fourteen of these allegations were received from the Home Office on 28 May 1991 on the formation of the Metropolitan police war crimes unit. One allegation was received on 3 June 1992. Three allegations were received on 11 March 1993, 9 August 1993 and 8 December 1993. Two allegations were received on 21 January 1994 and 25 March 1994. Decisions as to possible prosecution will be taken once all relevant evidence has been fully considered and analysed. I refer my hon. Friend to the answers that I gave in the House to the hon. Member for Coventry, South-East (Mr. Cunningham) and my hon. Friend the Member for Gravesham (Mr. Arnold) on 24 April 1995 Official Report, columns 517–18, concerning those allegations in the seven cases which have been the subject of initial advice from senior Treasury counsel.

WALES

Inward Investment

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is his estimate of the quantitative impact on inward investment into Wales of an increase of (a) 1p, (b) 2p and (c) 5p on corporation tax; and if he will make a statement. [20897]

Mr. Redwood: The fact that corporation tax in the United Kingdom, along with levels of income tax, is among the lowest in European Union is undoubtedly an important factor in the attraction of inward investment but there are many other factors which need to be taken into account. These include the skill and flexibility of the work force; the competitive overheads that we have to offer; the excellent communications in this country; and the warm welcome offered by central and local government.

Household Expenditure

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what is the average weekly household expenditure on housing for (a) those in rented accommodation and (b) owner-occupiers in (i) Wales and (ii) for each Welsh council district area; what were the corresponding figures in (1) 1987 and (2) 1992; and if he will make a statement. [ 20898]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: Estimates of average weekly household expenditure on housing in Wales are as follows:

£ per week

| | Gross housing costs | | Net housing costs | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Tenants | Owner occupiers | Tenants | Owner occupiers |
| 1987 | 27 | n/a | 15 | 27 |
| 1992 | 41 | n/a | 23 | 51 |
| 1993 | 45 | n/a | 28 | 44 |

Notes:
n/a = not available.
Source:
Family Expenditure Survey. Welsh figures are taken from the Family Expenditure Survey and are subject to sampling error. Figures for gross average weekly housing costs for owner occupiers are not readily available. Data are not available for district council areas because of small sample sizes.

Philosophy Courses

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many people graduated from Welsh higher education institutions with honours either in philosophy or in a joint honours or composite degree involving philosophy in 1994; what proportion of the total number graduating from Welsh higher eduction this represents; and if he will make a statement. [20902]

Mr. Richards: The most recent data available, from Welsh office returns and the university of Wales registry, are for 1992–93. These data can identify only courses whose only, or main, component was philosophy. Courses in which philosophy was a minority component cannot be identified. On this basis, there were 100 first degree graduates in philosophy from Welsh higher education institutions. A total of 9,360 students graduated with first degrees in 1992–93. The proportion with philosophy degrees was therefore 1.1 per cent.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many higher education institutions in Wales currently offer single honours or joint honours degrees in philosophy; what proportion of the total number of higher education institutions in Wales this represents; and if he will make a statement. [20913]

Mr. Richards: The most recent data on courses offered by higher education establishments come from the University and College Admissions Service handbook for the academic year 1994–95. This shows that of the 15 higher education institutions in Wales, four offer first degree courses which have "philosophy" in the course title. This is just under 27 per cent. of the number of institutions.

Badgers

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many licences have been granted for interference with badger setts for the purpose of hunting in each year since 1991. [21112]

Mr. Gwilym Jones: None. There are no specific provisions under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 for the granting of licences to interfere with badger setts for hunting purposes.

Local Government Electoral Arrangements

Mr. Ron Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales who he is consulting on his direction to the Local Government Boundary Commission for Wales; on what basis; what deadline he has placed on the consultations; and if he will place a copy of the consultation document in the Library. [21415]

Mr. Redwood: For the guidance of the Local Government Boundary Commission for Wales in undertaking the electoral arrangements reviews, I propose to issue directions under section 59(1) of the Local Government Act 1972. Copies of the directions in draft form have been sent for comments to the Commission and to the Assembly of Welsh Councils and the Council of Welsh Districts. Comments have been requested by 5 May.

Section 59(2) of the 1972 Act requires me to consult associations which appear to be representative of local authorities. Since the directions will be issued to the Local Government Boundary Commission, I consider it appropriate to seek beforehand the benefit of their advice and experience in these matters.

I have made arrangements for a copy of the draft directions to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Public Bodies

Dr. Tony Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those with a statutory base. [21594]

Mr. Redwood: The Local Government Boundary Commission is under a statutory requirement to deposit copies of its reports and proposals to the Secretary of State at the offices of any principal council whose area might be affected.

The Historic Buildings Council for Wales, the Ancient Monuments Board for Wales, and the Local Government Boundary Commission are under a statutory requirement to publish an annual report and lay it before Parliament. A report on the work of the Welsh Industrial Development Advisory Board must be contained in the annual report on the Industrial Development Act 1982, which must be laid before Parliament.

The following have a statutory base: the Historic Buildings Council for Wales; the Ancient Monuments Board for Wales; the Local Government Boundary Commission; the Staff Commission for Wales; the Welsh Industrial Development Advisory Board; the NRA Advisory Committee for Wales; the Agricultural Dwelling House Advisory Committees; the Welsh Dental Committee; the Welsh Medical Committee; the Welsh Optical Committee; the Welsh Pharmaceutical Committee; the Welsh Nursing and Midwifery Committee; and the Library and Information Services Council.

Cardiff Bay Barrage

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) of 24 April, Official Report, column 369, what interim payments had already been paid (a) to Balfour Beatty with respect to the Cardiff bay barrage construction contract and (b) to contractors carrying out the sewer diversion contract connected with the barrage. [21680]

Mr. Redwood: Interim payments of £16.9 million have been paid to Balfour Beatty-Costain for barrage construction and £0.3 million has been paid for sewer diversion works.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) on 24 April 1995, Official Report, column 369, if he will give the details of the breakdown of the figure of £191 million, by each financial year in which any significant part of that expenditure has or will occur. [21684]

Mr. Redwood: Details of possible barrage expenditure to 1997–98 are as follows:

| To: | 31 March 1994 | 1994–95 | 1995–96 | 1996–97 | 1997–98 | Future | Totals |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Totals | 22.3 | 22.3 | 44.4 | 48.1 | 36.6 | 17.3 | 191.0 |

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) of 24 April, Official Report, column 369, if he will list what categories of cost escalation apply to (a) the main contract with Balfour Beatty for the construction of the Cardiff bay barrage and (b) contracts for sewer diversion being funded by the Cardiff Bay development corporation; and if he will make a statement on how these categories have affected the difference between the October 1992 estimate and the present outturn forecast. [21681]

Mr. Redwood: This is an operational matter for the corporation and I will ask the chief executive of the corporation to respond.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) of 24 April, Official Report, column 369, if he will specify how much of the £15.4 million for preliminary design work and the presentation of Bills to Parliament was (a) for preliminary design work and (b) for presentation of Bills to Parliament. [21683]

Mr. Redwood: Of the £15.4 million preliminary design and barrage Bill costs, £9.30 million was for preliminary design work and £6,066 million was for presentation of Bills to Parliament.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales, pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Swindon (Mr. Coombs) 24 April, Official Report, column 369, if he will specify what proportion of the construction of the barrage had been completed by 31 March. [21682]

Mr. Redwood: By 31 March 1995, the corporation estimate the construction of the barrage to be 8 per cent. complete. This does not represent the actual cost spent on barrage construction to date, which includes enabling works such as piling and dredging as well as construction materials already bought in.

TREASURY

Interest and Exchange Rates

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of increases in (a) interest rates and (b) exchange rates on the standard of living. [21404]

Mr. Nelson: Permanently low inflation provides the best environment for achieving sustained growth and higher living standards. Monetary policy is set to keep underlying inflation within the Government's 1 to 4 per cent. target range and to bring it down into the lower half of this range by the end of the present Parliament. Movements in the exchange rate are taken into account, along with a range of indicators, when considering the prospects for underlying inflation.

Mr. Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effects of a half point rise in official interest rates in the United Kingdom upon the trade-weighted value of sterling. [21430]

Mr. Nelson: Movements in the trade-weighted value of sterling depend on many factors beside interest rates and it is not possible to estimate the effect of any one factor with any degree of confidence. Interest rates are set to meet the Government's objective of permanently low inflation.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what is Her Majesty's Government's assessment of the effect on the rate of inflation of raising interest and the exchange rate when the output of manufacturing industry approaches full capacity. [21301]

Mr. Nelson: Interest rates are set to keep underlying inflation within the Government's 1 to 4 per cent. target range and to bring it down into the lower half of this range by the end of the present Parliament.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the impact of increases in (a) interest rates and (b) exchange rates on the standard of living. [21404]

Mr. Nelson: Permanently low inflation provides the best environment for achieving sustained growth and higher living standards. Monetary policy is set to keep underlying inflation within the Government's 1 to 4 per cent. target range and to bring it down into the lower half of this range by the end of the present Parliament. Movements in the exchange rate are taken into account, along with a range of indicators, when considering the prospects for underlying inflation.

Tobacco Duty

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what weight he attaches to the cost of NHS treatment of smoking-related diseases when determining the level of duty on tobacco; and if he will make a statement. [20914]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: The Government recognised the importance of tax in reducing consumption in the continuing Budget commitment to raise tobacco duties, on average, by at least 3 per cent. per annum in real terms.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those with a statutory base. [21593]

Mr. Nelson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave him on 7 March 1995, Official Report, column 62.

Pensions Offences

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how many individual offences against section 47 of the Financial Services Act 1986 have been recorded by the Securities and Investments Board since April 1988; and what measures have been taken by the Securities and Investments Board or his Department to notify victims that they have a legal right to ask the police to investigate these offences. [20833]

Mr. Nelson: Prosecution powers in relation to section 47 have not been transferred to the Securities and Investments Board nor are they exercised by the Treasury. These powers can be exercised by the Department of Trade and Industry, the Serious Fraud Office, the Crown Prosecution Service and the procurators fiscal in Scotland.

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether, on the various occasions that Treasury Ministers and officials have met pensions industry practitioners and regulators, they discussed (a) section 47 offences and pensions mis-selling and (b) the provision of information to victims that they had the right to ask the police to investigate such offences. [20835]

Mr. Nelson: No.

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether, on the occasion of its pensions initiative in October 1994, the Securities and Investments Board referred to (a) the gravity of the offence of mis-selling pensions, (b) prison terms possibly resulting and (c) the fact that victims have the legal right to involve the police in investigations. [20834]

Mr. Nelson: I can add nothing further to my answer to the hon. Member of 30 March 1995, Official Report, column 727.

Mr. David Nicholson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, how far (a) his Department, and (b) the Securities and Investments Board, have day-to-day policy control over offences under section 47 of the Financial Services Act 1986; and what information about this control provided to those making representations over the mis-selling of pension and other investment products. [20836]

Mr. Nelson: The Treasury is responsible for the general policy expressed in the legislation. On specific contraventions of section 47 and information provided in relation to mis-selling, I refer the hon. Member to my answers of 30 March 1995, Official Report, column 727.

Vehicle Excise Duty

Sir David Steel: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what factors influenced the decision to impose vehicle excise duty on tower wagons; for what reasons vehicle excise duty was not imposed on mobile cranes and mobile concrete pumps; and what principle determined the different status of these items. [21126]

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: A wide-ranging reform of the system of vehicle excise duty exemptions and concessions was announced in the Budget.

Tower wagons currently pay a concessionary rate of duty of £150. Under the new arrangements, they will pay full vehicle excise duty, in common with nearly all goods vehicles fitted with hydraulic platforms.

Mobile cranes, including concrete pumps, currently pay duty of £35. Those weighing 3.5 tonnes or more will, under the new arrangements, be registered in the new special vehicles class and will be subject to duty of £150. Vehicles under that weight can register as normal light goods vehicles and pay £135.

Mobile cranes use the road only between sites and their operations are restricted by their specialised construction which means that they cannot carry any load except necessary equipment. Tower wagons, on the other hand, are adapted goods vehicles which use the road more extensively than mobile cranes and are often parked on the road. Their impact on the roads and the environment is no different to that of normal goods vehicles. There has always been a significant duty differential between the two types of vehicle.

Bilingual Bank Notes

Mr. Cynog Dafis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will discuss with the Secretary of State for Wales and the Governor of the Bank of England the issue of bilingual bank notes for Wales; and if he will make a statement. [21048]

Mr. Nelson [holding answer 26 April 1995]: The Bank has no plans to issue bilingual English/Welsh banknotes.

Member for Edinburgh, West (Lord James Douglas-Hamilton) of 21 April 1995 to the hon. Member for Linlithgow, (1) what evidence he has that the Libyan position on trial of the accused has been one of constant prevarication, and to whom he refers as intermediaries and well-intentioned individuals; [21409]

(2) what offers have been made by the Crown Office to Lockerbie to the German authorities of evidence relating to Lockerbie. [21410]

Mr. McMaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will arrange for the Minister of State, Scottish Office, to visit Paisley to meet the police and others involved in combating the drugs-related problems there; and if he will make a statement. [18994]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: My noble and learned Friend has no such immediate plans. He has recently held constructive meetings with the hon. Member and with two other hon. Members who represent constituencies in Renfrewshire to discuss drug-related crime. Furthermore, he has been kept fully briefed on relevant developments by the chief constable of Strathclyde police.

Water Charges

Mr. Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland, what assessment he has made of the comparative proportion of unpaid water bills in Scotland and in (a) England and Wales and (b) Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [20352]

Mr. Kynoch: My right hon. Friend has made no such assessment. Domestic charges in Scotland are collected along with the council tax.

Prison Population

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what is the current prison population; and what were the figures in each of the previous four years. [20776]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: The subject of this question relates to matters undertaken by the Scottish Prison Service. I have asked its chief executive, Mr. E. W. Frizzell, to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from E. W. Frizzell to Mr. Martin Redmond, dated 28 April 1995:

[20901]

Lord James Douglas-Hamilton: In 1993, the latest year for which information is available, 85 people graduated from Scottish higher education institutions with a degree where philosophy was the main or only subject; this represents 0.5 per cent. of all degree graduates from Scottish higher education institutions in 1993.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many higher education institutions in Scotland currently offer single honours or joint honours degrees in philosophy; what proportion of the total number of higher education institutions in Scotland this represents; and if he will make a statement. The information requested is not held centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

Royal Collections

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will publish a definitive catalogue of all the works of art in the royal collections which are held by the Crown on behalf of the nation; if he will indicate how many of these works have been displayed to the general public; and for how long. [20990]

Mr. Dorrell: The royal collection is a department of the royal household and is not a responsibility of my Department. I understand that the royal household is completing an inventory of works of art in the royal collection, which is scheduled for completion by the end of 1997.

Sport and Leisure Spending

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage how much is spent on sport and leisure in the United Kingdom by (a) the United Kingdom Sports Commission and the sports councils and (b) local authorities. [20996]

Mr. Dorrell: The United Kingdom Sports Council will not have spending powers until it has formally been established by royal charter. We expect this to be on 1 January 1996. The grant in aid expended by the four Sports Councils in 1994–95 was:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| GB Sports Council | 49,824,000 |
| Scottish Sports Council | 8,778,000 |
| Welsh Sports Council | 6,559,000 |
| Northern Ireland Sports Council | 2,158,569 |
| Total: | 67,319,569 |

It is not possible to make cross-national comparisons of local authority expenditure as different definations are used. Local authority expenditure on sport and recreation in England for 1993–94, the last year for which figures are available, is estimated at £900 million.

European Football Championship

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what actions his Department has taken to ensure that tourism benefits accrue from the 1996 European football championship. [20986]

Mr. Dorrell: Officials from my Department sit on the central co-ordinating committee responsible for the organisation of the 1996 European football championship. The statutory tourist boards, the British Tourist Authority and the English tourist board, which are sponsored by my Department, are ensuring that all possible steps are being taken to maximise the tourism potential of the event. A full overseas marketing plan has been drawn up, supporting programmes of cultural events are being developed and a warm welcome for visitors is being prepared in the host towns and cities.

New Novelists

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what representations his Department has received to encourage new novelists by means of securing their publication by HMSO in the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [20991]

Mr. Dorrell: I have received no representations. HMSO does not publish works of fiction and is therefore unable to support new novelists.

Rugby Football (Broadcasting)

Mr. Pendry: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage if he will make a statement on News Corporation's bid for the rights to television coverage of rugby league football.

Mr. Dorrell: The Government believe that sporting rights owners should be free to dispose of their television rights in the way they choose. It is for the Rugby Football League to judge whether News Corporation's proposals are in the best interests of the game.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage which of the executive non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department have (a) a statutory requirement to admit members of the public to all board

The figures requested by the hon. Member are not held centrally.

VE Day

Mr. Chris Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for National Heritage what recognition is being given in VE day celebrations of the role of the Merchant Navy in the second world war. [20993]

Mr. Soames I have been asked to reply.

Events to mark the 50th anniversary of VE day offer a welcome opportunity to pay tribute not only to the military but to the civilian contribution to the war effort. The Government are conscious of the vital role played by the Merchant Navy and look forward to seeing it well represented during this year's commemorations. Representation at each of the Government's key events over the VE day weekend is being co-ordinated through the Merchant Navy veterans; organisations and the chamber of shipping. I envisage that tribute will also be paid to the men of Merchant Navy in one of the pavilions in Hyde park, over the period 6, 7 and 8 May.

In addition to their involvement in the May events, it is hoped that large numbers of merchant seamen will take part in the service and parade in the presence of Her Majesty the Queen which will take place in August, as part of the programme of events to mark the 50th anniversary of VE day.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Occupational Health and Safety Agency

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer of 20 April, Official Report, column 223, what assessment he has made of the effect on the outcome of the market testing exercise for the supply of occupational health and safety services at AWE Aldermaston, Burghfield, Cardiff and Foulness, of the availability of privileged information from the senior medical officer in the civil service occupational health and safety agency at Aldermaston as a director of the successful bidder company. [21078]

Mr. Horam: As both Hunting BRAE Ltd.—trading as AWE—and Trident Medical Services Ltd., the successful bidder company, operate in the private sector and the officer concerned has left the public service, no such assessment can be made.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer of 20 April, Official Report, column 223, what permission was (a) sought and (b) granted by the permanent secretary of the Cabinet Office to the former senior medical officer at the civil service occupational health and safety agency Aldermaston to act as a director of Trident Medical Services in providing health and safety services to the Ministry of Defence Atomic Weapons Establishment plc, and what post-resignation quarantine period applies to civil servants of his grade with respect to acting for companies trading with his previous employer department. [21077]

Mr. Horam: No permission was sought or granted while the officer was serving with the OHSA. Within two years of leaving, a former civil servant of his grade must obtain approval before taking up an appointment if the following circumstances apply: if they have had any official dealings with their prospective employer during the last two years of Crown employment; if they have had official dealings of a continued or repeated nature with their prospective employer at any time during their period of Crown employment; if they have had access to commercially sensitive information of competitors of their prospective employer in the course of their official duties; or if, during the last two years of Crown employment, their official duties have involved advice or decisions benefiting that prospective employer, for which the offer of employment could be interpreted as reward, or have involved developing policy, knowledge of which might be of benefit to the prospective employer. The former officer concerned has been reminded of his obligations. Applications are considered on a case-by-case basis; there are no automatic or standard post-resignation quarantine periods at this level.

Mr. Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to his answer of 20 April, Official Report, column 223, if he will list the sanctions available, in cases where serving senior civil servants form companies for the purposes of bidding for contracts in market-testing exercises; and if he will specify which of those sanctions apply to (a) those civil servants and (b) the companies which they helped to form, whether successful or otherwise in market-testing competition. [21076]

Mr. Horam: Serving civil servants are required to seek permission before seeking any outside employment which might affect their work directly or indirectly; where a conflict of interest arises, they must declare their personal interest. Civil servants dealing with procurement or contracts work must report any approach offering employment whether or not they are considering taking it up. Breaches of these rules can lead to disciplinary action, with penalties up to and including dismissal. Civil servants must also observe the rules on business appointments after leaving the civil service. Companies seeking government business might wish to consider the propriety of sanctioning breaches of rules governing the conduct of serving and former civil servants.

Public Bodies

Dr. Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which of the advisory non-departmental public bodies sponsored by his Department are under a statutory requirement to (a) publish their advice to Government, (b) publish an annual report and (c) lay an annual report before Parliament; and if he will list those with a statutory base. [21597]

Mr. Horam: None.

Recruitment and Assessment Services Agency

Mr. Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what key targets have been set for the Recruitment and Assessment Services Agency for the current financial year. [22335]

Mr. Horam: I have set the following targets for Recruitment and Assessment Services to achieve in 1995–96:

1. a financial surplus of £100,000 in accrual accounting terms;
2. at least a 2 per cent. increase in efficiency over 1994–95 performance; and
3. customer evaluation ratings for overall service of 96 per cent. for customers satisfied with the service they have received with 80 per cent. of customers giving "highly satisfied" or "more than satisfied" assessments.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH AFFAIRS

Singapore

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what evaluation he has made of the independence of the judiciary in Singapore from the Government of Singapore in relation to cases which have political or international significance. [21131]

Mr. Goodlad: None. The independence of the Singapore judiciary is a matter for the Singapore Government.

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions have been held (a) with the German Government or German diplomats in the United Kingdom and (b) with the Singapore Government or Singaporean diplomats in the United Kingdom relating to (i) the Barings affair and (ii) the extradition of Mr. Nick Leeson. [21179]

Mr. Baldry: There have been no discussions with the German authorities about either the collapse of Barings bank or the possible extradition of Mr. Nick Leeson.

We and the Singapore authorities are co-operating in investigating the circumstances surrounding the collapse of the bank, including Mr. Leeson's activities. In response to questions from the Singapore high commission we confirmed that the Serious Fraud Office was continuing investigations to establish whether offences of serious or complex fraud had been committed which could be prosecuted in the UK.

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received from HM embassy or consular staff in Germany about the view of the German authorities on the extradition of Mr. Nick Leeson to Singapore. [21132]

Mr. Baldry: None. This is entirely a matter for the German and Singapore authorities.

Iraq

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the forthcoming visit by the Iraqi-British interest group to Iraq.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We were aware of the possibility but we have no specific details of a forthcoming visit. Before it last visited Iraq in February, the Iraqi British interest group neither sought, nor was given assistance by my Department. Under British legislation, introduced in support of UN sanctions against Iraq, all British companies visiting that country to discuss permissible trade—that is, trade of a humanitarian nature—must first obtain a communications licence.

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance his Department will give to the Iraqi-British interest group on its forthcoming visit to Iraq.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: None.

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what requests for assistance his Department has received from the Iraqi-British interest group for its forthcoming visit to Iraq.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: None.

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from Mr. Riad El Taher about sanctions against Iraq; and if he will make a statement.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We receive regular reports from Mr. El Taher about how he sees the situation in Iraq. Although he clearly has a keen interest in the welfare of the Iraqi people, and wishes to see an early end to UN sanctions, his reports consistently fail to recognise the Iraqi regime's failure to implement all the relevant UN resolutions.

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what investigations he has carried out into the activities of Dr. Riad El Taher.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We are aware of Dr. El Taher's activities and those of his organisation, "Friendship Across Frontiers", thanks to the numerous reports that we have received from him about Iraq.

Mr. Edmund Sykes

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the relationship between the Department and Mr. Edmund Sykes.

Mr. Douglas Hogg: We are unaware of any contacts between the Department and Mr. Sykes.

Mr. Stephen Crouch

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the relationship between his Department and Mr. Stephen Crouch. [21703]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply that my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs gave to the hon. Member for Cynon Valley (Mrs. Clwyd), on 28 March 1995, Official Report, column 523. There have since been no further contacts with Mr. Crouch, and none are planned in the future.

Lockerbie

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what communication Her Majesty's Government have received from the German authorities to the effect that they believe that the bomb which destroyed Pan Am 103 was not put on the plane at the Rhein Main airport in Frankfurt. [21408]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: None.

Colonel Oliver North

Mr. Dalyell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 6, for what reasons he declined to give details in answer to the question by the hon. Member for Linlithgow as to the reasons why Mr. Andrew Green of the Foreign Office met Colonel Oliver North on 24 July 1984 to discuss hostage rescue missions. [21406]

Mr. Douglas Hogg: I have nothing to add to the answer that I gave the hon. Gentleman on 18 April, Official Report, columns 5-6.

VE day Commemorations

AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FOOD

Rabies

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the incidence of rabies in (a) Belgium and (b) other EC member states. [21093]

Mrs. Browning: We welcome the steady progress being made in the mainland EU member states towards the eradication of rabies in their countries, although we are disappointed to see the increase in the number of reported cases in Belgium in the third quarter of 1994. This was apparently due to a single focus of infection in foxes in the Belgian province of Luxembourg. We shall continue to monitor the situation carefully.

Badgers

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will make a statement on the Government's policy on badger culling. [21095]

Mrs. Browning: In those areas in the south-west of England and parts of Wales where there is a recent history of badger-related herd breakdowns in cattle, badger removal operations may proceed on breakdown farms on the judgment of Ministry staff, providing detailed epidemiological investigations have attributed the source of infection for that breakdown to badgers. Where detailed epidemiological investigations indicate that badgers are implicated in a herd breakdown but where there is not recent history of badger-related tuberculosis, it is a requirement that a badger removal operation must first be sanctioned by a sub-committee of the consultative panel on badgers and bovine tuberculosis. This sub-committee includes farming, veterinary and conservation representatives and ensures that the decisions made and action taken are subject to independent scrutiny.

Of those breakdowns which meet the criteria for the trial of the live test, announced in December 1993 and started in November last year, half will be subject to a live test, which will be undertaken on the breakdown farm and surrounding area so that only badgers from setts containing infected badgers will be culled. On the other half, a badger removal operation will be undertaken following the criteria laid down in the independent report of Ministers by Professor Dunnet in 1986. The trial will run for five years, with the objective of comparing the effect on the incidence of bovine tuberculosis in cattle of the strategy recommended by Professor Dunnet of the live test strategy and of the removing no badgers if the breakdown farmer refuses a badger removal operation.

In all situations where breakdowns do not meet the criteria for the trial, the farmer will be offered a badger removal operation in accordance with the Dunnett criteria—the "interim strategy". This means that action against badgers is confined to that part of the breakdown farm where it is believed tuberculosis was transmitted to cattle, or to the whole farm if it is not possible to be more precise.

It is estimated that fewer than 3,000 badgers will be humanely killed in Ministry badger removal operations in 1995. This in no way represents a threat to the species, whose Great Britain population is estimated at about 250,000 adult badgers.

Mr. Morely: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food how many licences have been granted for interference with badger setts in each year since 1991 for the purpose of hunting; and which purpose this comes under in section 10 of the Protection of Badgers Act 1992. [21109]

Mrs. Browning: None. There are no specific provisions under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992 for the granting of licences to interfere with badger setts for the purpose of hunting.

Live Animal Exports

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, pursuant to his answer of 18 April, Official Report, column 102, and of 4 April, Official Report, columns 1057-58, when he expects to be able to make a statement on banning the export of calves to be reared in veal crates. [21113]

Mrs. Browning: My right hon. Friend has already explained on various occasions that it is not his policy, for both practical and legal reasons, to ban the export of calves to be reared in veal crates. Lawyers are currently examining, at his request, the complex arguments, recently submitted by the RSPCA and the International Fund for Animal Welfare, as to how they consider that a ban might be legally defended.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food whether he has any plans to stop people with convictions for cruelty to livestock from being allowed to continue exporting livestock. [21329]

Mrs. Browning: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply that I gave to the hon. Member for Newport, West (Mr. Flynn) in the House on 23 February 1995, Official Report, 23 February 1995, column 475.

Mink and Arctic Fox

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food if he will insist that mink and arctic fox farms are listed under the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976; and if he will make a statement. [21105]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 27 April 1995]: The Farm Animal Welfare Council has recommended that consideration should be given to the inclusion of mink and arctic fox in the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976. The views of interested organisations have been obtained on this recommendation and we are currently considering how this matter should be taken forward.

EC Welfare of Livestock Convention

Mr. Morley: To ask the Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (1) which EC member states have been in breach of the European convention on the protection of animals kept for farming purposes over the past 12 months; [19818]

(2) if he will make a statement on the European Convention on the Protection of Animals kept for farming purposes; whether the provisions of the convention are mandatory; what assessment he has made of whether all EC member states are taking action to adopt these provisions; and what action he is taking to encourage them to do so. [19819]

Mrs. Browning [holding answer 24 April 1995]: The European Community and its member states are all contracting parties to this convention, which lays down general principles for safeguarding the welfare of animals kept for farming purposes, in particular those kept in intensive farming systems. Detailed recommendations for the welfare of individual species are elaborated by a standing committee established under the convention. By adoption of Council decision 78/923/EEC, the European Community approved the convention, while in Great Britain its principles were implemented in provisions which are now incorporated in the Welfare of Livestock Regulations 1994 (SI 2126).

We do not have detailed information on how other contracting parties implement and enforce the convention and the subsidiary measures adopted under it: the Government agree with the European Commission's view, indicated in its communication on the protection of animals of 8 September 1993 (8442/93), that Community legislation is necessary to ensure uniform application of the convention and its subordinate recommendations within the Community. We are therefore continuing to press for the adoption of high welfare standards on a Community basis.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Prison Population

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what were the total numbers of (a) adult and (b) juvenile prisoners held in custody in each of the last 15 years. [20386]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from Richard Tilt to Mr. Mike O'Brien, dated 28 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the total numbers of adult and juvenile prisoners held in custody in each of the last 15 years.

Within the prison system, adults are defined as aged 21 and over. A breakdown of the prison population from 1980–1994 into adults and young persons is given in Table 1. Before the introduction in October 1992 of the Criminal Justice Act 1991, young persons in Prison Service establishments between the ages of 14 and 16 were defined as juveniles. Since the 1991 Act came into effect, young persons aged between 15 and 17 have been treated as juveniles. Information on juveniles aged between 15 and 17 in Prison Service establishments is only available from 1987 and is contained in Table 2. More detailed information on the population of young persons up to 1992 is published annually in "Prison Statistics, England and Wales" (Table 3.2 of the 1992 edition).

UK Passport Agency

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement about the recent results of the UK Passport Agency on number of passports issued and levels of customer satisfaction; [20755]

(2) if he will make a statement on the current UK Passport Agency review of size, number and location of passport offices; and what assessment he has made of the capacity for an increased work load and further improvements to customer service of a network of professionally staffed offices; [20758]

(3) how the confidentiality and security of the passport issuing process is to be protected under UK Passport Agency management proposals to seek private sector involvement in this process; [20769]

(4) what plans he has to increase the numbers of evening shifts worked at the UK Passport Agency and the number of casual workers with a consequent reduction of permanent staff numbers; and what effect he expects this to have on productivity; [20756]

(5) what rise in demand for standard passports he expects with the abolition of the British visitor's passport; and what plans he has to alter staffing levels at UK Passport Agency offices; [20768]

(6) what considerations underlie his proposals to farmout to the private sector work currently undertaken by the UK Passport Agency; and for what reasons the agency's management is being instructed to seek reductions in numbers of permanent staff employed; [20754]

(7) what measures he is taking to ensure that the management of the UK Passport Agency is discouraged from breaching unilateral industrial relations agreements within the agency; and what assessment he has made of the contribution of those agreements and the subsequent co-operation among management and staff within the UK Passport Agency to the performance of that agency. [20766]

Mr. Nicholas Baker: Responsibility for these matters has been delegated to the UK Passport Agency under its chief executive, Mr. David Gatenby. I have asked him to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from David Gatenby to Dr. Kim Howells, dated 28 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for the Home Department has asked me to reply to your Questions about the UK Passport Agency.

The Passport Agency has significantly improved its performance since it was established as an executive agency of the Home Office in April 1991. Demand has risen to record levels (we provided almost 4 million passport services in the year ended 31 March 1995) but the maximum time for processing straightforward applications has been reduced from 95 working days in 1989 to 16 working days in 1994. Since 1991 efficiency has been improved by 13.7% in real terms. Very high levels of customer satisfaction are being achieved.

In November 1994, in confirming the Agency's status as an executive agency for a further 5 years, the Home Secretary indicated his expectation that the Agency would further improve the quality of its service, and its efficiency and that, in accordance with Government policy, the private sector should become progressively involved in the issuing of passports. As part of this process, to improve the convenience and accessibility of its service to the public, the Agency plans to establish, by October 1995, partnerships with travel agents, banks, and the Post Office covering the initial handling of passport applications. This approach has been fully discussed with the Agency Trade Union Side (TUS). I have indicated to them that once the partnership arrangements are effectively in place we will wish to develop them further. It is accepted on both sides that changes to the partnership arrangements will be subject to prior consultation.

To explore the scope for achieving greater efficiency, we shall shortly commence a review of ways or involving the private sector in the issuing operation after the decision to grant a passport is taken, and in the provision of support services. Until the reviews have been undertaken I am unable to say whether or not private sector involvement is likely but if it is I can assure you that the Agency would require the system to be equally as secure and confidential as the present operation. There has been no secrecy about these reviews which were mentioned in the Home Secretary's statement, and in briefings to our staff.

We have also undertaken a review of the size number and location of the Agency's offices and this has recently been completed. Once we have sought Ministers' approval of the findings and recommendations we will advise our staff and consult the TUS.

The review has taken into account the Agency's current and future business needs and the needs of its customers and staff. We are committed to continuing to improve customer service and to maintaining the professionalism of staff. The outcome of the review will in no way diminish the Agency's resolve in these two very important areas.

As you will appreciate we are duty bound to carry out Government policy which as clearly explained in the two recent White Papers on the Civil Service requires us, among other things, to absorb increases in pay and prices through efficiency improvements. In seeking efficiency savings we simply cannot ignore our staff costs which currently account for more than 50% of our unit costs. The passport business is demand led. Passport demand shows a marked seasonality with demand averaging 100,000 applications per week between mid January and mid July, but tailing off rapidly to under 50,000 per week immediately after the main holiday season.

Our policy which I believe is a sensible one, is to match our staffing resources more closely to the pattern of passport demand. Over time this will mean some reduction in permanent full-time staff resources as we introduce more flexible and efficient staffing arrangements. These are likely to include the continuation of shift working which is already being used very successfully in four of our offices is providing job opportunities which would not otherwise exist and is proving very popular with those who prefer evening work to daytime work. My aim, so far as is possible, is to achieve these reductions in full-time permanent resources through natural wastage. I have given an assurance that there will be no redundancies as a result of introducing those arrangements in the coming year to the end of March 1996. Overall, however, we are likely to be employing more, rather than less staff, although not all staff will work the full year. This will be jobs in place of the former practice of working excessive overtime in the first half of the year.

I do not believe we have breached agreements with the Trade Unions. In certain areas they have been overtaken by events, and we must have regard to the overriding imperatives of Government policy. We shall shortly be consulting our Trade Unions about a review of these arrangements to check that they remain relevant to the Agency's present and future needs. I remain committed to the maintenance of good industrial relations, and to proper consultations with the TUS.

As you are aware Ministers have already announced the withdrawal of the British Visitor's Passport (BVP) from 31 December 1995. The Agency is already seeing a steady increase in demand as people switch away from the BVP and we expect these increased levels to continue for the remainder of this year and most of next. Thereafter we will return to lower levels. We have taken a number of measures to cope with this temporary extra demand including increasing the number of seasonal staff we employ and extending the evening shifts. I am confident that these measures will enable us to cope with the expected increase.

I expect all of the measures I have outlined in my letter to lead to improved productivity reduced unit costs and an even better service for our customers. I should perhaps re-emphasise that we are currently coping with record levels of demand with an average turnround time of less than seven days and shift working is contributing to this success.

I hope my letter has satisfactorily answered your concerns. If there is anything further you wish to know or if you would like more details of our plans I would be pleased to meet you to discuss them.

Policing, Sussex

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many representations he has received on the level of policing in Sussex (a) since October 1994 and (b) between May 1994 and October 1994. [21094]

Mr. Maclean: The numbers of representations received were as follows:

Since October 1994: 40

Between May 1994 and October 1994: 3

CS Gas Attacks

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what assessment he has made of the increase in number of CS gas canister attacks on the public; and what advice he is giving concerning them. [21550]

(2) what action he proposes to take to stop CS gas canister attacks in public places. [21553]

Mr. Maclean: Under section 5(1)(b) of the Firearms Act 1968, as amended, devices capable of discharging a noxious substance are classed as prohibited weapons. We consider that CS gas canisters are covered by the terms of section 5(1)(b). Their possession, acquisition, purchase, manufacture, sale and transfer are prohibited without the authority of the Secretary of State.

No information is available centrally on numbers of attacks involving CS gas canisters. The Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 has increased the maximum penalty for the unauthorised possession of a CS gas weapon, or of any other prohibited weapon, to ten years imprisonment.

The Government take crime prevention very seriously. The Home Office booklet, "Your Practical Guide to Crime Prevention", gives detailed advice on how people can reduce the risk of assault. More than 17 million copies have been distributed to date.

Live Animal Exports (Policing)

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions he has had with representatives of the Essex Constabulary on the use of the Public Order Act 1986 at Brightlingsea docks. [21092]

Mr. Maclean: None, beyond requests by officials for factual information.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the cost of the police operation at (a) Dover port and (b) Brightlingsea docks on (i) 20 and (ii) 21 April. [21114]

Mr. Maclean: I understand that the estimated additional costs of policing the demonstrations against live animal exports at Dover port on 20 and 21 April were £32,000 and £17,000 respectively.

I am told that Essex police's estimate of the additional costs of policing at Brightlingsea on the dates in question is not yet available. However, the additional pay costs incurred on 20 and 21 April were £7,700 and £2,970 respectively.

Firearms

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further action he proposes to take in respect of the availability of firearms. [21552]

Mr. Maclean: None. There are already stringent controls designed to restrict access to firearms to suitable persons.

West Yorkshire Police

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will provide additional financial resources to the West Yorkshire police to enable them to deal effectively with violent crime in the area. [21679]

Mr. Maclean: The police authority has taken full advantage of the additional funds already made available for 1995–96, and set this year's force budget at £249.83 million. This is an increase of £8.94 million, or 3.7 per cent., over the base budget for 1994–95.

Sunday Dancing

Mr. Anthony Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for relaxing the restrictions on Sunday dancing. [22132]

Mr. Michael Forsyth: We have today published a consultation paper proposing that the prohibition imposed by the Sunday Observance Act 1780 on admission charges for public dancing on Sundays should be removed. Our proposals also include amendments to the Licensing Act 1964 so that extensions of licensing hours at places where public dancing takes place may be granted on Sunday evening in the same way as they are on weekdays.

We have in mind to implement these changes by means of the order making power in the Deregulation and Contracting Out Act 1994; and we would hope that they could be introduced before Christmas, as Christmas eve and new year's eve, which are popular nights for dancing, this year fall on a Sunday.

Copies of the consultation paper, to which responses are requested by Friday 26 May, have been placed in the Library.

Prison Service News

Mr. Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the total cost, including cost of compilation, cost of production, cost of distribution, and all other costs, of Prison Service News for April 1995.

Mr. Michael Forsyth [holding answer 21 April 1995]: Responsibility for this matter has been delegated to the Director General of the Prison Service, who has been asked to arrange for a reply to be given.

Letter from B. Launders to Mr. Gerald Kaufman, dated 28 April 1995:

The Home Secretary has asked me, in the absence of the Director General from the office, to reply to your recent Question about the cost of producing the April issue of Prison Service News.

The total cost, including paper, colour separations, proofing, printing, distribution and staff wages was £9,913.70.

Set against this cost was £2,373 of advertising revenue.

Premises in Multiple Occupation

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the standard of enforcement of fire safety regulations in former seaside guest houses and hotels now used as houses in multiple occupation and located in the Kent coastal towns. [20782]

Mr. Robert B. Jones: I have been asked to reply.

Enforcement of standards for fire precautions and means of escape for houses in multiple occupation is the responsibility of the local housing authority. No particular study of the adequacy of enforcement of these powers in Kent has been made, but the Government are undertaking a more general review of HMO enforcement powers and hope to make an announcement shortly about their proposals for change.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Fair Employment

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what firms have failed to respond to inquiries from the Fair Employment Commission about progress with affirmative action measures and goals and timetables; and what fines have been issued as a result of such breaches since the implementation of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989. [19859]

Mr. Ancram: To date, the commission has sought information concerning affirmative action and goals and timetables without resort to formal powers of inquiry under section 32 of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what firms have failed to respond to inquiries from the Fair Employment Commission about the regular review of practices or about the composition of monitoring returns; and what fines were issued as a result of such breaches since the implementation of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989. [19858]

Mr. Ancram: The commission has powers under section 32 of the Act to obtain certain information from employers with regard to their reviews and their monitoring returns. To date, no formal inquiries under this section have been made with regard to the composition of the monitoring returns. No concern has failed to respond to a formal inquiry for information concerning regular reviews of practices.

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what firms have failed to register with the Fair Employment Commission and what fines were issued as a result of such breaches since the implementation of the Fair Employment (Northern Ireland) Act 1989. [19856]

Mr. Ancram: The commission is unaware of any concern which fulfils the requirement to register and has not made applications for registration.

Technology Graduates

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many technology graduates have been employed in companies under the supervision of the industrial research and technology unit and their university since 1989; and how many of these placements led to permanent employment. [19827]

Mr. Ancram: The industrial research and technology unit is not involved in the supervision of any employees in companies. However, the industrial research and technology unit is one of several sponsors of the national teaching company scheme which provides support for technology transfer projects within industry undertaken by young graduates under the joint supervision of the company and the university. Eighty-seven such graduates commenced two-year programmes under TCS in industry in Northern Ireland in the period 1 April 1989 to 31 March 1995. No information is available on the numbers of these graduates in permanent employment.

Energy Efficiency

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the reasons for the differences in the trends since 1989 in the number of low income households applying for grants from the homes insulation scheme and of businesses applying for the equivalent scheme, the energy management assistance scheme, as published in tables 6.29 and 6.30 of the Northern Ireland Expenditure Plans and Priorities 1994–95 to 1996–97. [19865]

Mr. Ancram: The two schemes are not comparable as they are targeted at different groups and provide different forms of assistance.

Regarding the homes insulation scheme, the reduced number of completions from 1989–90 were the result of (i) changes in the eligibility conditions from 11 April 1988 and (ii) action by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive to insulate its own properties in parallel with the homes insulation scheme.

The energy efficiency survey scheme was launched in June 1988 and the figures reflect a normal build up of applications. This was given further impetus in 1992 when the scheme was replaced by the energy management assistance scheme which provided grant aid for a wider range of energy efficiency measures.

Peace Initiative

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if the principle of additionality applies to the special European Union funds being channelled to Northern Ireland through the peace initiative. [20321]

Sir John Wheeler: Both the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland have made it absolutely clear that the European Union's programme will be in addition to the British Government's own expenditure plans for Northern Ireland.

Security Vetting

Mr. Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to review the Hurd principles on security vetting procedure; and if he will make a statement. [20322]

Sir John Wheeler: It has been Government policy, as set out in the parliamentary written answer of 27 June 1985, Official Report, column 451, by the then Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, to withhold Government assistance from community groups where the Secretary of State was satisfied that there was a grave risk that such assistance would have the effect of improving the standing or furthering the aims of a paramilitary organisation, whether directly or indirectly. This policy is kept under active review in the light of wider developments in Northern Ireland.

Salmon

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the number of smolt produced in the River Bush in each of the last 25 years; and what percentage and numbers were lost in each year as a result of predation by cormorants. [20586]

Mr. Ancram: Records of the numbers of smolt produced in the River Bush are available only for the last 21 years. These are set out in the table. The only research carried out into the number of smolt lost to cormorants occurred in 1986. I have arranged for a copy of the research paper, which contains the only statistical data available, to be sent to the hon. Gentleman.

Banbridge District Council

Mr. Trimble: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list all the public service offices other than local government offices and the number of persons employed in such offices in Banbridge district council in (a) January 1992, (b) January 1993, (c) January 1994 and (d) January 1995. [20458]

Sir John Wheeler: The information requested is as follows:

| Offices | January 1992 | January 1993 | January 1994 | January 1995 |
|---|---|---|---|---|

[1] The contributions unit area office moved to its present location in Banbridge on 18 April 1994. It was previously based in Lurgan SSO.
[2] The Banbridge office is a sub-office of the Department of Agriculture. Information held on numbers of staff based in sub-offices is not held centrally as they can vary according to need. Currently 17 DANI staff use the Banbridge office on an ad hoc basis.

University Students

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many persons resident in Northern Ireland who applied for a place in a Northern Ireland university in each of the last three years failed to get a place and are now attending a university in Great Britain. [20614]

Mr. Ancram: Due to the different mechanisms for processing applications to universities, the information cannot be supplied in the form requested.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many university students from Northern Ireland are at present attending university in (a) Great Britain, (b) the Irish Republic, (c) other EC countries and (d) elsewhere; and, of these students, how many are following courses leading to a qualification which is available at a university in Northern Ireland. [20613]

Mr. Ancram: In 1993–94, the number of Northern Ireland domiciled full-time undergraduate students attending university outside Northern Ireland was as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| (a) Great Britain | 10,763 |
| (b) Republic of Ireland | 1,117 |
| (c) Other | 10 |

It is not possible to separate (c) into EC countries and elsewhere.

Information on NI students following courses leading to a qualification which is available at a university in Northern Ireland is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many students there are on each campus of each university in Northern Ireland broken down into (a) full-time undergraduates, (b) part-time undergraduates, (c) postgraduate and (d) doctorate level; and, of these, how many are from (i) Northern Ireland, (ii) the Irish Republic, (iii) Great Britain, (iv) other EU countries and (v) elsewhere. [20615]

Mr. Ancram: The information is as follows:

University of Ulster 1993–94

Otters

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the number of otters now present in each river system in Northern Ireland; what was the number five and 10 years ago; and what research he has carried out in recent years into the (a) fish species, (b) birds and (c) mammals eaten by otters, and the effect of such predation on the number of prey species. [20588]

Mr. Moss: There is no specific information on the numbers of otters, but surveys have confirmed that otters are present in most parts of Northern Ireland.

The Departments of Environment and of Education have sponsored research which shows that otters are entirely opportunistic in their feeding behaviour and the choice of prey depends on availability; however, mammals and birds are rarely taken. No information is available on the effects of otter predation on the numbers of prey species.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, how many cases of TB in cattle were reported in each county in each year since 1985. [20552]

Mr. Ancram: Statistics on the number of cases of TB in Northern Ireland are recorded on a divisional veterinary office basis and are not available by county. The number of animals in which TB has been detected in Northern Ireland since 1985 in each DVO area is shown below:

| | 1985 | 1986 | 1987 | 1988 | 1989 | 1990 | 1991 | 1992 | 1993 | 1994 |

Seals

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what is his estimate of the number of seals of each species present in Northern Ireland coastal waters; how much fish of each species they eat annually; and what research he has carried out in recent years on the effect seals have on salmonids. [20587]

Mr. Moss: It is estimated that there are approximately 500 common and 200 grey seals in Northern Ireland coastal waters. Data on the species composition of seal diets are not available, but adult male common seals are known to eat approximately 4 kg fish daily and grey seals 5 kg. Taking account of the fact that females and sub-adults eat less, the total consumption is estimated to be approximately 700 tonnes per annum. No local research has been carried out on the effect of seals on salmonids, but from other studies it has been concluded that salmonid fish comprise a very small proportion of the diet of both species.

Craigavon Borough Council

Mr. Trimble: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list all the public service offices other than local government offices and the number of persons employed in such offices in Craigavon borough council in (a) January 1992, (b) January 1993 (c) January 1994 and (d) January 1995. ### Development Capital Fund

Ms Mowlam: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications were received to manage the Northern Ireland development capital fund; and if he will list the companies and publish the applications. [20467]

Mr. Ancram: Ten applications were received with Hambros Bank plc subsequently selected as the manger of the new fund. However, for reasons of confidentiality, the applications cannot be published or the names of the unsuccessful candidates revealed.

Philosophy Courses

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many higher education institutions in Northern Ireland currently offer single honours or joint honours degrees in philosophy; what proportion of the total number of higher education institutions in Northern Ireland this represents; and if he will make a statement. [20900]

Mr. Ancram: Two; that is 100 per cent. of the higher education institutions in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people graduated from Northern Irish higher education institutions with honours either in philosophy or in a joint honours or composite degree involving philosophy in 1994; what proportion of the total number graduating from Northern Irish higher education this represents; and if he will make a statement. [20904]

Mr. Ancram: Seventy-one, or 1.34 per cent. of the total number graduating from Northern Ireland higher education institutions.

Badgers

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many licences have been granted for interference with badger setts for the purposes of hunting in each year since 1991. [21110]

Mr. Moss: No licences have been issued as there is no provision for doing so under the Northern Ireland legislation.

Social Security Agency

Mr. Simon Coombs: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what performance targets have been set for the Social Security Agency for the current financial year. [22198]

Mr. Moss: The targets are included in the agency's 1995–96 business plan, which was published today. A copy of the plan will be placed in the Library. The targets are in line with the Government's policy of improving the service provided to customers and fully support the standards established in the Northern Ireland citizens charter. ## TRANSPORT

Executive Agencies

Sir Ivan Lawrence: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what targets he has set for the executive agencies in his Department. [22100]

Mr. Norris: The following key targets have been set for the Department of Transport's executive agencies. The targets are set out in the agencies' business plans, which also include management objectives, performance indicators and key tasks, where appropriate to the agencies' businesses. Copies of the business plans will be placed in the Library in due course except that for the Transport Research Laboratory, whose plan is commercially confidential and will not be published.

The key targets for the Coastguard Agency are to:

discharge the Secretary of State's responsibility for maritime search and rescue through the agency's own or dedicated assets by:

(i) maintaining a 24 hours SAR co-ordinating capability within, and including the coasts and shoreline of, the United Kingdom search and rescue region, UKSRR;

(iii) testing contingency plans for major maritime SAR incidents, particularly those involving ferries, by undertaking six major live exercises;

In line with the objective of reducing the time taken to complete schemes, state in the agency's annual report:

the average time taken to complete schemes that are completed in 1995–96 compared with the performance in recent years; and the average time between milestones for all those schemes that reach milestones in 1995–96, and compare this with previous years' performance.

Complete all schemes within the approved scheme brief with performance to be measured by the number of schemes submitted to the Central Transport Group because of changes of scope or cost initiated by the Agency.

Monitor, and state in the annual report, the unit cost of new construction.

Monitor, and state in the annual report, the unit cost of carriageway renewal.

Monitor, and state in the annual report, the benefit-cost ratio for the national roads programme based on the scheme briefs and agree with the Central Transport Group a target level for 1995–96 and following years below which the average should not fall.

Carry out post-scheme evaluations on all appropriate schemes as agreed with the Central Transport Group.

Reach scheme milestones for schemes in the roads programme and listed in annexe B of the business plan, as follows:

award main works contracts for six of the eight publicly funded schemes; reach 90 per cent. of the other scheme milestones.

Report in the annual report on progress towards the target of letting 30 per cent. of new construction contracts, by value, as design and build contracts by the end of 1996–97.

If tenders represent good value for money, award four DBFO contracts and, subject to ministerial decisions, invite tenders for a further four DBFO contracts.

Start 14 of the 16 major network enhancement projects listed at annexe C of the business plan and 85 per cent. of the smaller network enhancement projects listed at annexe D of the business plan.

Maintain the trunk road network cost effectively by undertaking a programme of capital maintenance to preserve past investment at an optimum whole life cost, with the minimum disruption to traffic, and to ensure that roads are safe, reliable, and offer an acceptable quality of ride; and to ensure that, from 1 January 1999, all vehicles up to and including the new 40 tonnes maximum gross weight standard can use all structures supporting trunk roads and other important routes over trunk roads by, in 1995–96:

renewing 134 nearside lane kilometres of motorway and 261 nlks of all purpose trunk road; assessing the structural capacity of 820 structures and upgrading 86 structures.

Contribute to the Government's target of reducing road casualties by one third by the year 2000 compared to the annual average for 1981–85, by reducing casualties on the trunk road network to an average of not more than 35,000 a year over the three years 1993 to 1995.

Publish, as part of the agency's annual report, a section reporting its activities to promote road safety, including the accident rate on motorways and trunk roads.

Publish as part of the agency's annual report, a report on environmental aspects of new schemes, and network management and maintenance activities demonstrating that the agency has given full weight to environmental issues in carrying out its functions, and has struck a balance accordingly.

Meet the aims and targets enshrined within the citizens charter, the road user's charter and the agency's charter standard statement, "Your Home and Trunk Road Proposals".

Continue to develop systems for measuring the performance of the network, including quality of service indicators; collect data during 1995–96; make specific proposals to Ministers by the end of November 1995; and, subject to ministerial approval, agree targets for 1996–97.

In accordance with the normal rules of Government accounting, avoid breaching the cash limits on the budgets voted by Parliament for both total expenditure and running costs.

Introduce accrual accounting procedures to enable an auditable set of commercial-style accounts to be produced for the 1996–97 financial year, including a balance sheet, income and expenditure account, and a cash flow statement.

Produce certified appropriation accounts by August 1995.

The key targets for the Marine Safety Agency are to:

on deregulation, complete the internal review of all groups of merchant shipping legislation by 31 March 1995;

maintain survey fee levels in real terms below those applied in 1994–95 whilst recovering the full economic cost of providing the service; work with the EU to ensure arrangements are in place by 31 December 1995 for the mandatory application of the international safety management code for passenger ships, class I and II, by 30 June 1996;

National Bus Company

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the current owners of the 70 former subsidiaries of the National Bus Company. [21673]

Mr. Norris: The 72 subsidiaries of the former National Bus Company, which included engineering works and holiday and service companies, were privatised between 1986 and 1988. Since then, there have been various changes in ownership, the structure of groups, and in operating territories, which makes it impossible to provide an exact correlation between original subsidiaries and present ownership.

M11 Link Road

Mr. Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what is the latest total estimated cost of the M11 link road; [16549]

(2) on what estimated total cost the cost-benefit analysis study of the M11 link road was based; [16545]

(3) if accidents including fatal ones were included in the COBA study of the M11 link road and what numbers and costs were used. [16550]

Mr. Norris: The current estimated total cost of the link road at today's prices is £340 million. This figure includes the preparation of designs and the supervision of works by our consulting engineers, the works contracts, the cost of diversion of statutory undertakers services and land costs; it also includes VAT where applicable.

The cost-benefit analysis at the 1987 public inquiry used a present value of total costs of £39.11 million calculated in accordance with then current practice of using 1979 prices discounted to 1979. Future cost savings attributable to anticipated reduction in all accidents were included in the cost-benefit analysis. Details are given in the letter and in section 4.5 and table 7.1 of inquiry documents D2 and D45 respectively, which were sent to the hon. Member at his request by the Highways Agency on 20 December last.

The present value cost was based on a construction cost of £101.02 million and land cost of £23.3 million at 1986 prices.

A comparison of these figures with the present £340 million estimated total cost indicates that the main areas with increases from the 1987 estimate are an update of works cost to 1995 prices of £29 million; land costs of £12 million; statutory undertakers costs of £22 million; preparation and supervision costs of our consulting engineers of £21 million; the introduction of secant piling retaining walls to reduce the effects of construction on adjoining properties and London Underground in Leytonstone of £32 million; various changes such as the cost of making provision in the scheme for the Chelsea-Hackney underground line, changes following receipt of soils investigation, and increased use of brick for screen and boundary walls and an improved standard of finish generally of £39.5 million; improved signs, lighting and communications in the tunnels of £4 million; security costs of £10 million; and VAT, £46 million.

Airports

Mr. Day: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department will consider introducing legislation to give airports the power to impose fines on aircraft deliberately straying from officially recognised approach and departure flight paths. [20465]

Mr. Norris: The Government announced in March 1993 their intention to introduce, at a suitable parliamentary opportunity, new legislation to give aerodromes power to prepare and enforce noise amelioration schemes. The announcement followed extensive consultation, and included consideration of powers to impose fines for poor track keeping.

Noise preferential routes for departing aircraft are in place at most major UK airports. There is, however, no consensus on what constitutes an unacceptable deviation from track, since track keeping, especially on turns, may be affected by operational factors, including weather. Operational factors also make it more difficult to devise comparable routes for landing aircraft.

For safety reasons, air traffic controllers have complete discretion to direct aircraft off noise-preferential routes when necessary.

Purchase Guidelines (Motorway Widening Schemes)

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether new guidelines will be introduced for the discretionary purchase of property affected by a proposed motorway widening scheme, which take into account loss of value of the property. [21277]

Mr. Watts: Yes.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will reconsider the cases of homeowners in Hadrian's way, Baldock, when new guidelines are introduced for the discretionary purchase of properties affected by a proposed motorway widening scheme. [21275]

Mr. Watts: I should be grateful if my hon. Friend would write to me about these cases.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will introduce new guidelines for the discretionary purchase of property affected by a proposed motorway widening scheme. [21278]

Mr. Watts: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer that I gave my right hon. Friend the Member for Tonbridge and Malling (Sir J. Stanley) on 23 March, Official Report, column 317.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for interim measures pending the introduction of new guidelines for the discretionary purchase of property affected by a proposed motorway widening scheme. [21276]

Mr. Watts: Applications from owners whose property may be seriously affected by scheme proposals will continue to be considered against the current guidelines, which I have placed in the Library. Applications which are refused under the current guidelines during this period will be reconsidered when the new guidelines are introduced.

Motorway Restrictions (Heavy Goods Vehicles)

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what consideration he is giving to restricting heavy goods vehicles to the inside two lanes on four-lane motorways. [21549]

Mr. Norris: None. To do so would deny the road haulage industry the benefits of motorway widening and could have an adverse effect on road safety.

Drivers' Hours Regulations

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to introduce proposals for changes in the road vehicle drivers' hours regulations during the current Session of Parliament. [21660]

Mr. Steven Norris: The only change that we expect to propose in this Session is a minor one to clarify that the application of the UK regulations to certain vehicles used by health authorities extends as well to similar vehicles used by health trusts.

British Railways Board

Mr. Heppell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will list the current subsidiaries and other commercial or operational units of the British Railways Board. [21658]

Mr. Watts: This is a matter for the board of British Rail. I have asked it to reply to the hon. Member.

Passenger Coaches

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what checks are being made on the roadworthiness of passenger coaches. [21548]

Mr. Norris: A check of the roadworthiness of a passenger coach is made at the annual test. In addition, passenger coaches are examined for roadworthiness at enforcement checks both at the roadside and at operators, premises, where they may be prohibited from use if found to be defective.

DEFENCE

Haymes Garth

Mr. William Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, whether advice was sought from an interior designer in respect of the redecoration and furnishings for Haymes Garth. [20612]

Mr. Soames: An interior designer was commissioned in November 1992 to provide advice in respect of the redecoration and furnishings for Haymes Garth.

Turkish Forces

Mr. Cox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what military training has been given by his Department within the United Kingdom or Turkey to members of the Turkish military forces during the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [20358]

Mr. Soames: Training has been provided in the UK to members of the Turkish armed forces during the past 12 months, as is normal practice between NATO nations. Pursuant to the answer that I gave to the hon. Member for Cynon Valley (Mrs Clwyd) on 28 March 1995, Official Report, column 633, it is not normally our practice to disclose the precise details of military training given to any particular country as such details are regarded as being confidential between Governments.

Sub-strategic Capability

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if the transfer of the United Kingdom's sub-strategic capability from free-fall bombs to Trident missiles will allow a reduction in the overall number of weapons assigned to the sub-strategic role. [20569]

Mr. Soames: It is not our practice to comment on the details of nuclear forces assigned to different roles.

Nuclear Warheads

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what change there will have been in the total number of nuclear warheads deployed by the United Kingdom when Trident is fully deployed compared with the 1990 level. [20567]

Mr. Soames: By the time Trident is fully in service, the UK's total stockpile of nuclear weapons will be 14 per cent. smaller than in the 1980s.

Mr. Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, what assessment his Department had made as to the advantage that might accrue to the United Kingdom in terms of demonstrating restraint in its nuclear weapons policy if Her Majesty's Government declared the number of nuclear warheads it deploys. [20571]

Mr. Soames: The restraint exercised by the United Kingdom in its nuclear weapons policy is amply demonstrated by the fact that total deployed UK nuclear warheads will be less than 10 per cent. of the strategic nuclear forces available to Russia or the United States even when the START 2 ceilings are implemented.

Military Hospital, Aldershot

Mr. Redmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what was the cost of the recent upgrading of toilets at Cambridge military hospital, Aldershot; and who ordered the upgrading. [20672]

Mr. Soames: While there has been no upgrading of lavatories at the Cambridge military hospital itself, the lavatories in the officers' mess were recently brought up to normal standards at a cost of around £1,100. The work was authorised locally in line with established procedures.

Edmund Sykes

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence, if he will make a statement on the relationship between his Department and Mr. Edmund Sykes. [21688]

Mr. Soames: My Department has no relationship with Mr. Edmund Sykes.

Mr. Stephen Crouch

Miss Emma Nicholson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the relationship between his Department and Mr. Stephen Crouch. [21687]

Mr. Soames: My Department has no relationship with Mr. Stephen Crouch.

Arms Sales (Lebanon)

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what official business was discussed at the meeting between the right hon. Member for Thanet, South (Mr. Aitken) and Mr. Fouad Makhzoumi, pursuant to his answer of 24 April, Official Report, column 395. [21740]

Mr. Freeman: Discussions covered a range of topics of mutual interest to the MOD and Mr. Makhzoumi.

Mr. Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the occasions on which the right hon. Member for Thanet, South (Mr. Aitken), as Minister for Defence Procurement, discussed with Mr. Fouad Makhzoumi defence sales possibilities involving Lebanon. [21739]

Mr. Freeman: I have nothing to add to the answers that I gave to the hon. Members for Cunninghame, North (Mr. Wilson) and for Wallsend (Mr. Byers) on 24 April 1995, Official Report, column 395.

Portland Naval Base (Closure)

Mr. Ian Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what are the expected departure dates from the Royal Navy base at Portland of (a) the Defence Research Agency, (b) the Sea Systems Controllerate, (c) the Naval Support Command and (d) other units; what is the expected departure date of units from the rest of south Dorset; and what are the numbers of personnel involved. [21405]

Mr. Soames: On current plans, the departure dates of units from south Dorset and members of personnel involved are as follows:

Defence Research Agency: all operational staff will have left the naval base by June 1995.

Sea Systems Controllerate: Staff relocating from Portland to Abbey Wood are expected to move between August and October 1996.

Naval Support Command: options for the location of the headquarters are still under consideration. It is not yet possible to say when these moves will take place.

Other units: if the Front Line First proposal is agreed that the Royal Naval air station Portland should close, the expected relocation of units to Yeovilton would be phased over a period, leading to the final closure of RNAS Portland by 1 April 1999. On current plans flag officer sea training personnel will move to Plymouth on 21 July 1995. It is also expected that Royal Marines personnel will relocate to Poole in June 1995.

For numbers of personnel involved, I refer the hon. Member to the answer that I gave him on 27 April, column 692.

Overtime

Mr. David Shaw: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list for each agency and the central Department for which he is responsible (a) the total hours of overtime worked for which payment has been made, (b) the total amount paid in overtime and (c) the total time in days and its monetary equivalent lost through sickness in each of the last three years. [19687]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 25 April 1995]: Separate records are not maintained for all the individual defence agencies and it would require disproportionate cost to provide this information. We are, however, able to supply the overtime information requested at (a) and (b) for the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency and the Met Office. The information set out below relates to non-industrial and industrial staff for the financial years shown:

| (a) Overtime hours worked | | (b) Amount paid £ million |
|---|---|---|
| 1992–93—MOD including Agencies | | |
| Non-industrial | 8,463,679 | 67.7 |
| Industrial | 8,279,479 | 52.2 |
| Total | 16,743,158 | 119.9 |
| 1993–94—MOD excluding DERA | | |
| Non-industrial | 8,591,769 | 63.6 |
| Industrial | 7,372,299 | 48.1 |
| Total | 15,964,068 | 111.7 |
| 1993–94—DERA | | |
| Non-industrial | 687,759 | 4.7 |
| Industrial | 314,763 | 2.1 |
| Total | 1,002,522 | 6.8 |
| 1994–95—MOD excluding DERA and Met Office | | |
| Non-industrial | 7,201,061 | 50.5 |
| Industrial | 7,233,424 | 48.3 |
| Total | 14,434,485 | 98.8 |
| 1994–95—DERA | | |
| Non-industrial | 714,186 | 5.2 |
| Industrial | 227,960 | 1.5 |
| Total | 942,146 | 6.7 |
| 1994–95—Met Office | | |
| Non-industrial | 558,407 | 3.5 |
| Industrial | 454 | 0.003 |
| Total | 558,861 | 3.503 |

(c) 1992 Total MOD including agencies

|---|---|
| Non-industrial | 709,745 days |
| Industrial | No data available |
| 1993 | |
| Non-industrial | 737,963 days |
| Industrial | No data available |
| 1994 | Data is not yet available for this year |

It is not possible to give a figure for the monetary equivalent of the total number of days lost to sickness. There are too many variables involved in this calculation and it would be difficult to rely on the accuracy of any such calculation.

Agency Job Losses

Mr. Macdonald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will give the number and location of Army Base Repair Organisation, Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment, Defence Accounts Agency, Defence Analytical Services Agency, Defence Animal Centre, Defence Operational Analysis Centre, Defence Postal and Courier Services, Defence Research Agency, Duke of York's Royal Military School, Hydrographic Office, Meteorological Office, Military Survey, Naval Aircraft Repair Organisation, Queen Victoria School, RAF support command's Maintenance Group Defence Agency, RAF Training Group Defence Agency, Service Children's Schools offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland as a result of agency work transferring to Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period. [20036]

Mr. Freeman [holding answer 27 April 1995]: I have asked the chief executives of the agencies mentioned in the question to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from J. Drew to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply directly to your parliamentary question concerning the number of Army Base Repair Organisation offices closed in Scotland, and the transference of workload between Scotland and the rest of the United Kingdom.

It might be helpful if I begin by briefly explaining how the Army Base Repair Organisation (ABRO) is organised. The Agency is responsible for the delivery of a repair and refurbishment service for Army equipment. This service is delivered through a network of workshops and contract repair offices located throughout the United Kingdom. Agency Headquarters is at Andover. The repair service comprises two distinct categories. First is the planned repair of the Army's equipment fleets, known as base repair. Second is the unplanned repair and support of equipment held by Army units in the geographical area covered by each workshop and contract repair office. Both the planned and unplanned repair workload is divided between ABRO's workshops and private industry. This could well change in the future as our Competing for Quality strategy matures.

The Agency has a workshop situated at Stirling, and I can confirm that there has been no transference of workload into or out of Scotland, and therefore no loss or increase in jobs other than that associated with the normal fluctuation of the annual workload. However, given the character of the work, there can be substantial variations. The future may well see further reductions throughout the agency as Defence Costs Study decisions are implemented.

During June 1992 the ABRO Contract Repair office based at Inverness closed with the loss of two technical posts (HPTO, PTO) and one and a half clerical posts. The workload was transferred to the Glasgow office with no increase in staffing levels at that location. Subsequently, the ABRO Contract Repair office at Glasgow relocated to Stirling during March 1994, co-locating with the workshop with the loss of one clerical post.

I hope this information is sufficient for your purposes.

Letter from P. Trevelyan to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

I have been asked by the Secretary of State for Defence to reply, on behalf of the Defence Accounts Agency, to your Parliamentary Question number 7343G. You asked for the number and location of Agency offices closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of Agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period.

The answer to both parts of your question is Nil.

Letter from P. Altobell to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply to your question about jobs lost or gained as a result of Agency work transferring to or from Scotland over the past five years.

For the period concerned the Defence Analytical Services Agency have had no offices in Scotland.

Letter from A. Roache to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

The Under Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question No 7343G, relating to numbers of Agency offices and jobs in Scotland.

The Defence Animal Centre operates from a single site here at Melton Mowbray and has no connection, past or present, with jobs or offices in Scotland.

I hope you find this information useful.

Letter from T. Brown to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply on behalf of the Defence Postal and Courier Services Agency to your question about the number of offices closed and jobs lost or transferred as a result of work moving between Scotland and other parts of the United Kingdom.

In the period requested this Agency has not closed or opened any new offices. In addition no work has been transferred from Scotland to other parts of the United Kingdom, or vice versa.

Letter from J. Chisholm to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

1. I am replying to your parliamentary question about changes in employment in Scotland over the last 5 years in the Defence Evaluation and Research Agency (DERA).

2. The DERA was formed on 1 April 1995 out of the Defence Research Agency (DRA), the Defence Operational Analysis Centre (DOAC), the Chemical and Biological Defence Establishment (CBDE), all Agencies of the MOD, and a number of other MOD directorates and establishments providing scientific and technical support to the department.

3. I am therefore now responsible for three former Agencies listed in your question. Of these, only the DRA, which was formed in April 1991, has sites in Scotland, DOAC and CBDE are both confined to single sites in the south of England.

4. Since its launch in 1991 the DRA has neither closed offices or lost jobs as a result of any of its work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom nor has it opened offices or gained jobs in Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period.

5. I hope this information is useful.

Letter from W. Spreadbury to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

I have been asked to reply to your PQ 7343G on behalf of the Chief Executive who is absent on duty.

In response to your request to list the number of offices closed and jobs lost or transferred from Scotland and also of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland for the same reason, I have to report that the answer in respect of the Duke of York's Royal Military School is nought in all cases.

Letter from R. Cotton to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

1. You recently asked The Secretary of State for Defence a Parliamentary Question concerning the number of Offices closed and jobs lost or transferred from Scotland to other areas in the UK as a result of agency work transferring from Scotland over the past five years. As your question was, in part, related to the Hydrographic Office, the Secretary of State has asked that the Chief Executive of the Hydrographic Office should reply to you direct. Unfortunately,

Admiral Essenhigh is at present away from the Office on official duty so I am replying on his behalf.

2. The UK Hydrographic Office, located in Taunton, Somerset, became a Defence Agency on 6 April 1990. Its primary task is to provide nautical charts and publications to the Royal Navy, but it also offers similar services to the mercantile marine and other commercial shipping agencies both within the UK and overseas. To support the Royal Navy, a number of chart maintenance units (CMU) exist throughout the UK to provide a waterfront service for the Fleet. Two such CMUs are located in Scotland, one at Rosyth and one at Faslane.

3. Since 1990 there has been a reduction from 10 to 2 posts in the complement of the CMU at Rosyth; some of these posts have been lost while others have been transferred to other CMUs within the UK. No posts have been lost at Faslane, where the complement remains at 2. This reduction has been caused by a combination of a reducing Fleet, baseport transfers and a reduction in stockholdings arising from ongoing efficiency improvements.

4. I hope the above has served to answer your question. If I can be of any further assistance please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Letter from J. C. R. Hunt to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 25 April 1995:

I am responding on behalf of the Meteorological Office to your Parliamentary Question concerning job gains and losses in Scotland over the past five year.

As an operational organisation responsive to changes in customer requirements we have periodically to move jobs around within Scotland as well as 'importing' and 'exporting' posts to and from the rest of the United Kingdom. However the net effect of these changes over the years in question has been neutral in terms of Meteorological Office staff in Scotland.

Letter from A. J. Hoon to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 20 April 1995:

I understand that you have asked the Secretary of State for Defence to give the number Military Survey offices closed, and the number of jobs that have been lost or transferred result of Agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom, over the five years. Likewise for the creation of such in Scotland. Acting on behalf on the Chief Executive of Military Survey I have been asked to reply with regard to this Agency.

Military Survey has no offices in Scotland. There have, therefore, been no closures of nature identified and no job losses resulting in the last five years. Neither have there been transfers to Scotland during the period.

Letter from W. S. Graham to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

1. The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question concerning offices and jobs changes in the NARO DA over the last 5 years.

2. My response to your 2 part question is as follows:

(a) Transferring from Scotland: Nil.

(b) Transferring to Scotland: Nil.

Letter from Brian Raine to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

The Secretary of State for Defence has asked me to reply to your Parliamentary Question No 7343G about Agencies and jobs lost or transferred out of Scotland.

As a result of Queen Victoria School being designated an Agency in 1992, no offices or jobs have been lost or transferred to other parts of the United Kingdom, nor have any jobs been created.

I hope this answers your question satisfactorily, but if there is anything on which you would like to me to elaborate, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Letter from Richard Kyle to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

You asked Secretary of State for Defence if he would give the number and location of RAF Logistics Command's Maintenance Group Defence Agency's offices closed, and the number of jobs lost or transferred, as a result of Agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom over the past five years; and if he will list the number and location of offices opened and jobs gained in Scotland from the rest of the United Kingdom over the same period.

The Maintenance Group was established as a Defence Agency on 1 April 1991. The Defence Agency has no offices or establishments located in Scotland and no offices or jobs have been transferred from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom since the creation of the Defence Agency.

Letter from A. A. Nicholson to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

PARLIAMENTARY QUESTION NO PQ7343G—TRAINING GROUP DEFENCE AGENCY REPLY

The Parliamentary Under Secretary of State asked me to reply, in respect of my own area of responsibility, to the question you asked of him about Defence Agencies and Jobs Lost and Jobs Transferred.

I am able to tell you that no Training Group jobs have been lost in Scotland since the launch of Training Group Defence Agency on 1 April 1994, nor have others been transferred to Scotland since the same date.

I am copying this letter to the Agency's owner, the Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief Personnel & Training Command.

Letter from Ian S. Mitchelson to Mr. Calum Macdonald, dated 27 April 1995:

1. The Secretary of State has referred to me for reply to your Parliamentary Question asking for the number of Service Children's Schools (amongst others) closed and the number of jobs lost or transferred as a result of Agency work transferring from Scotland to the rest of the United Kingdom in the past 5 years. You also asked for similar information about offices opened and jobs gained.

2. Service Children's Schools (North West Europe) formed as a Defence Agency in April 1991. Under the arrangements set out in the Agency's Framework Document the Agency operates solely overseas in North West Europe. The Agency does not have any responsibility for Scotland.

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES VOLUME 258

SESSION 1994–95

18th April—28th April 1995

SCOPE OF THE INDEX, ARRANGEMENT AND ABBREVIATIONS

This index is derived from the House of Commons Library's Parliamentary On-Line Information System (POLIS), and the subject terms used are based on those used in POLIS. There are often changes in column numbering, etc., between the daily part or weekly Hansard (which simply collects together the daily parts without revision) and the bound volume. The index for the bound volume is revised to take account of these changes and cannot therefore, be used in connection with the daily part or weekly Hansard. For these versions use the Fortnightly Index.

Scope and arrangement of the Index

Oral and Written Parliamentary Questions are indexed under subject headings and the names of Members asking and Ministers replying to them. Questions are not listed under the names of Departments replying. Departmental listings can be arrived at indirectly by looking under the names of the Minister(s) of that Department. There are, however, the headings 'Northern Ireland', 'Scotland', and 'Wales' under which one can find not only most Questions answered by the Northern Ireland Office, Scottish Office, Welsh Office but also Questions about these areas of the United Kingdom which are answered by other Departments. Ministerial statements are indexed under subject headings, under 'Ministerial statements' and the names of Ministers making them and Members speaking on them. General debates are indexed under broad subject headings and under the names of all Members and Ministers taking part. Debates on legislation (Bills, Orders, Regulations etc.) are indexed under the name of the Bill, Statutory Instruments etc, under subject headings and under the names of those taking part.

Rulings and Statements by Speaker and deputies are brought together under the heading 'Speaker's rulings and statements'.

Other contributions by Speaker and deputies appear under the heading Speaker.

Opposition Day Debates and Estimates Day Debates and Standing Order No. 10 applications are listed under those respective headings and under subject headings too.

The date of each item except Parliamentary Questions is inserted immediately before the reference.

Members' names are given in the form by which they prefer to be known and are printed in bold italics. Under their names, entries are arranged under one of the two headings Debates, etc. (to include interventions on statements, points of order and so on) or Questions.

Abbreviations

Bills 1R = first reading, 2R = second reading, Money res = money resolution, Comm = Committee stage, Rep = Report stage, 3R = third reading, amendt/amendts = amendment/amendments, * = matter taken formally, without debate.

Column numbers followed by the letter W refer to Written Questions. These appear at the end of each daily part or volume with their own sequence of column numbers printed in italics.
